The new six story building to be erected at 75 Market Street by Amos H. VanHorn for the use of the Cowperthwait & Van Horn Co. will be the tallest structure on that street west of Broad Street. The top of the open cupola, which surmounts the roof, will be upwards of 120 feet above the ground. The building will be ready by fall and will cost between $45,000 and $50,000.

One More Week of the ANNIVERSARY SALE.

One more week of the bargains that have created more talk and made us more new friends than our brightest anticipation during all the days of preparation for the event. It was our aim to impress you—at this time particularly—with the advantages in shopping here. A store that is not burdened with the additional expenses of several thousand dollars yearly to the trading stamp "house," nor has the great portion of its capital tied up on its books, can and does offer the most for your money. We have demonstrated this with especial force the past three weeks of our First Anniversary Sale, and are making a strong effort this last week of the sale to have you join the crowds that are praising the Tepper slogan—"no trading stamps nor favors, but more for your money."

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

The important local games tomorrow include the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. vs. Harlem Branch, New York Y. M. C. A. team, at Creccent Oval; Scotch Plains vs. West Ends, at Somerville; Clinton Avenue vs. Rahway, at Rahway.

The local contest on Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon between the Plainfield and New York Y. M. C. A. teams should be a good one, as they are both playing fine ball. Peacock will probably pitch for the Plainfield aggregation.

A crowd of rooters will accompany the Clinton Avenues to Rahway tomorrow afternoon. The team will leave on the 1:45 o'clock trolley from the Watchung avenue stand.

Those Phillies' faces now beam with that extra $2,000 look.

John McGraw has enough players under contract to switch the presidential election in New York to Hisgen.

Spurt of the Phillies has worked wonders. Even John Titus threatened to swing on Catcher Kling's jaw in one of the games with the Cubs. Some day he'll throw his bat at the umpire and the Phillies will get a safe grasp on the pennant.

Brother owners who last winter beseeched Barney Dreyfuss not to let Wagner retire from the game are taking it all back.

A certain Chicago pitcher is said to be so yellow that he could enter an Orangemen's parade attired in black and make good.

For obvious reasons, Messrs. Cobb and Wagner are taking no part in the discussion on how to increase batting.

Everybody in Cambridge is supposed to have a high brow, but Harvard certainly showed poor judgment when it let Eddie Grant get away. Last week President Eliot offered the man who holds the chair of philosophy a forty-foot telescope and three training house rubbers for the return of Eddie, but Manager Murray said nix.

Captain Ganley, of Washington, is accused of using his bat on Pitcher Burns. Probably his method of driving baseball knowledge into the heads of his players.

The Clinton Avenues will play the West Ends of Somerville at the latter place, Saturday, August 29. In September the West Ends will play a return game here.

Larry Lajoie made the two thousandth base hit of his major league career on July 30, according to a report.

Ty Cobb married a girl last Thursday who is worth $300,000. Mr. Cobb possibly had his 1909 contract in mind when he gave out that valuation.

It is said that John McGraw paid $4,500 and a car ticket for the release of Jack Barry. We believe the car ticket end.

Now that they have a chance for the pennant, those Phillies are taking desperate measures. President Shettsline is negotiating with Lloyd's for $100,000 insurance on McQuillen's right arm.

GOLF.

Players who intend to try for the amateur championships, September 14-19, are dropping in whenever they can for practice rounds at the Garden City Golf Club. W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburg, who twice has put W. J. Travis out of the national competition on extra hole matches, arrived there last Saturday for a few days of play.

The bogey score of 71 at Forest Park, Brooklyn, has been held by many frequenters of the course to be too difficult, although based on the par figures. The score is 38, 33—71. If there was an open professional tournament there, however, there is little doubt that 70 would be beaten, for there are so many short holes an expert going well would do all sorts of stunts on them. On July 31 last Charles T. Sweeny, a scratch man of the Brooklyn-Forest Park Golf Club, cut the record of 75 with a 72.

In the latest bogey competition at the Dyker Meadow Golf Club there were thirteen starters. Frank J. Phillips, one of the M. G. A. handicap committee, won first prize, with 84, 6 1, with F. H. Wilkins, 92, 12—2 down, in second place.

There is so much bridge at the golf and country clubs that this story from the Sheffield, Eng., Daily Telegraph may be retold on the links: "One evening in a country house a young and charming lady playing bridge would persist in trumping her partner's aces and generally misbehaving herself according to the recognized laws of the game. However, her partner took it all in good part, though a substantial loser when the party broke up. The following morning the same pair were out as partners in a golfing foursome. The first tee shot by the man was a beauty, dead straight and of splendid length. His volatile partner, however, taking no more care over her golf than over her bridge, dug a great square divot out, while the virtually teed up ball lay there smiling and untouched. Then the long suffering man spoke; and as the great tuft of grass and soil went whirling through the air he called across to the lady: 'Having no spade, partner?'"

One the twelfth hole of the Siasconset course, Nantucket Island, a few days ago, Stanley Swift, of Detroit, hit a robin on his cleek shot that had flown up about fifty yards ahead. The under part of the beak was all that was left of the bird's head, but the flight of the ball was not noticeably checked. Swift's partner at the time was W. A. Adriance, of the Dutchess Golf and Country Club, Poughkeepsie. Digby Bell is president of the Siasconset Golf Club. The club championship will be decided this week, the contestants including H. E. Armstrong, of Fox Hills, and George Ryall, of Yountakah.

One of the most popular members of the Hackensack Golf Club bounded into the ranks of the immortals on Tuesday by making the 140 yard seventh hole in two strokes and by following up this achievement by making the 118 yard eighth hole in one stroke. The members and many outsiders know him as Uncle Tom. This is not a nickname in honor of the hero of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's novel, but a familiar title due to his good nature and that his front name is Thomas. He refuses to permit his full name to be printed unless it is demanded on an affidavit embodying the above facts.

POLITICAL NOTES.

"I would not accept a nomination for sheriff were a salary of $100,000 a year attached to the job," said James E. Martine today. "It is the meanest, most contemptible and abhorrent office a man could hold, and I would rather be under my tombstone than in such a position." This sets at rest all talk of "Jim" for such a job.

As told exclusively in this paper yesterday, Mayor C. J. Fisk's petition for renomination has been made ready for filing with City Clerk MacMurray.

Tax Collector William R. Townsend's friends circulated his petition for renomination today and within a few hours the required number of signers were obtained.

Frank W. Rowley, formerly borough clerk, is talked of as a probable candidate for the Republican nomination for county clerk in Somerset.

Councilman E. P. T. Smith, of the Second district of North Plainfield, will circulate his petition for renomination tomorrow.

William L. Smalley, Jr., is a sure winner as a candidate for Council in North Plainfield.

Former Governor Franklin Murphy, chairman of the State's Republican Committee, announced the personnel of his executive staff yesterday. The executive committees is composed of United States Senators Briggs and Kean, ex-Governor Stokes, Representative J. J. Gardner, David Baird, A. N. Dalrymple, D. S. Voorhees, Theodore Strong and E. W. Wakelee. The Finance Committee consists of C. C. Breckenridge, W. C. Garrison, F. H. Sommer, S. K. Robbins, C. E. Murray, J. A. McGraw, Robert Williams, Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and Joseph McDermott.

Mrs. George Foltz and son, Roy Foltz, of Pottsville, Pa., are spending a fortnight at the home of her sister Mrs. Aaron Snyder, of West Third street.

RIGHT LEG CRUSHED; AMPUTATION FOLLOWS.

John McClosky, 45 years old, whose home is at Dover Plains, was struck yesterday by a local train on the Pennsylvania Railroad, bound westward and due in Elizabeth at 11 o'clock. The accident occurred some distance west of Newark.

So far as can be learned McClosky was walking along the track toward Elizabeth. He was picked up by the train that struck him and taken to Elizabeth, and then conveyed by ambulance from the railroad station to the General Hospital, where upon examination it was found that in addition to his having received severe contusions, his right leg from a point just below the knee was so badly crushed that amputation was found necessary.

Dr. Victor Mravlag, of Elizabeth, saye he will not support Mayor Berry for renomination in that town. He believes the office should be occupied by a younger man, and says that he favors a $1,000 license fee for saloons with Sunday opening.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

H. L. Hathaway, who was operated on at the Jefferson Hospital on Tuesday, is reported to be consistently gaining strength, and the operation is considered a successful one in every way. Mr. Hathaway's trouble was an adhesion of the gall bladder, and he went to the hospital last week. Dr. Platt, Dr. Main and Dr. DeCosta, the latter of the hospital, performed the operation, and it is now expected that he will be able to leave the hospital within a month.

Tax Assessor John H. L. Peters has stated that the local tax rate will probably be about four points lower than last year, amounting to about $1.80. The assessable value has been reduced about $30,000 by the railroad tax. The county tax rate will probably be several points higher than last year.

The Dunellen nine will meet the Highland A. C. on the local diamond tomorrow afternoon, and a hard-fought game may be expected. The Highland Park nine trimmed the locals here Independence Day morning.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

No other actor who has appeared in New York city in many years has been successful in attracting the especial following that is now that clientele of Douglas Fairbanks, who will be seen here next Monday night, in the New Plainfield theatre, in Rupert Hughes' new play, called "All for a Girl." Mr. Fairbanks has done something more than merely earn his spurs; he has become the leading light comedian of the American stage in this day, and has taken a place left unoccupied through many years, following the maturing of John Drew.

Lovers of the emotional drama, and their names are legion, will be pleased to learn that the greatest of all emotional dramas, "East Lynne," will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night. Lady Isabel in the lighter scenes of the play, youth and beauty, enable her to be most effective and charming, while the depth and variety of her ripened art render her scenes in the more sombre portions of the drama, models of intensity and passion. The engagement is for one night.

The attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night will be George M. Cohan's latest musical drama, "Fifty Miles From Boston," which will be presented under the management of Cohan and Harris. Versatile Miss Hazel Lowry will ap-

Fluffy Ruches in Favor.

Of the numerous accessories that give a toilette the real touch of elegance, the new Pierott ruches are, just at present, the things of great importance. They are extremely fashionable and they give a certain dressy air to many a summer costume. Malines, tulle, chiffon, ostrich plumes, taffeta or velvet are used in making these ruffles, but tulle or malines are perhaps used most generally. They are worn close to the throat and are fastened at one side by a bow of ribbon with long ends or by an artificial rose.

All colors are shown, so it is possible to get ont that matches or harmonizes with some part of the custume. They are fast becoming the most popular neck finish of the season, gradually taking the place of the high-boned stock, but when this ruche is not adopted there is a plaiting at least two inches wide finishing the top of the collar.

A Serviceable Dress.

The girl who wishes to save as much as possible and yet be clean and fresh looking at the "office" every day, may be well and economically dressed in the summer in a dark blue or brown pongee, with a yoke made of lace or fine lawn and half sleeves of the same. The neck and sleeve parts may be fresh every day, and with two pairs this will be possible. This part of the dress may be easily laundered in one's own room, as starch is not used and ironing is not absolutely necessary, pongee is expensive, but one makes up in the saving of laundry bills for shirtwaists.

Does Your Furnace Leak Gas?

Cases of asphyxiation are not uncommon, but even the faintest odor of gas in the house is disagreeable. It's due to the faulty construction of the old style of furnace, and any Boynton dealer will tell you why the can never leak gas under any circumstances, and will give you a cleaner, hotter fire than any round fire pot and do it with less coal and trouble, and no dust in the house. Now is the best time to see him.

BOYNTON

The Furnace with the Square Fire Pot

A LITTLE HOMILY ON THE BATHING SUIT.

Since the day of the bathing suit is at its height let us consider it. No longer do we tolerate horrors. We know a good suit when we put it on, and we insist upon having it.

Who has not at some time or another suffered from the cheaply run up garment bedizened with braid and superfluous anchors, and wrongly proportioned throughout?

he really perfect and supremely successful gown requires to be made to special measurement, although when a fair price is exacted, it is possible that a stock figure can fit from the better class of read-made production. But anyone of an outsize, either on the score of extraordinary slightness or the reverse, is always well advised to indulge in the mild extravagance of special measurement and make.

As one is in the fortunate position of being able to proclaim, French fashions in this regard are utterly useless. The average Frenchwoman rests wholly satisfied with bobbing up and down in the water, and invariably elects to wear toward the pursuit of this exercise, a ludicrously long tunic. Far and away the most practical dresses are adopted by the smart American who swims. One has only to visit a foreign seaside resort to realize how admirably these clever individual efforts stands out from their fellows. Wherefore let us bestow praise where praise is due, and grant the whole palm to our own particular fair sex for the innovation of the black mohair or taffeta bathing suit, preferably worn with black stocking tights with feet.

The upper part should not be too low, and there completed by a white turn-down embroidered linen collar, rather bouffant sleeves terminating just above the elbow with cuffs en suit. There is nothing in either of these details to impede the most ardent swimmer, while the skirt, a cleverly cut affair, ceases just at the knees, beneath which divided garments are worn, drawn in with elasti:

A Convention Speech.

OFFICE OF THE STREET COMMISSIONER,
City of Plainfield,
New Jersey.

To JOHN J. TRAINOR, or unknown owner of No. 413 to 423 Monroe Avenue.

Pursuant to the requirements of Sections 3 and 6 of the ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled "An Ordinance concerning the construction, maintenance and repair of sidewalks," approved April 10, 1899, amended by ordinances approved August 4, 1902, June 6, 1905, June 6, 1906.

You are hereby notified and required on or before November 1, 1908, to construct a sidewalk abutting on the premises owned by you, situate number 413 to 423 Monroe Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, Union County, and State of New Jersey, which sidewalk shall be constructed of bluestone flagging, smooth and even on the surface and properly laid in one course under the direction of and on such lines as shall be given by the Street Commissioner; the flags shall not be less than four feet long transversely to the length of the street, not less than two feet wide lengthwise of said street, and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinnest part, or said sidewalk may be constructed of concrete slabs of same dimensions as specified for flagging, excepting that said slabs shall be not less than three inches thick, and shall be composed of concrete containing at least one part of Portland cement to two and one-half parts of sand and two and one-half parts of broken stone, or it may be constructed of concrete laid in place, the construction of which walks shall be under the direction and subject to the approval of the Street Commissioner.

In default of compliance herewith, the Common Council are authorized by law to order the required work to be done and paid for; to make the amount of the expense and costs a lien upon the said abutting lands in front of which said work is done, to be collected in the manner provided by law and to bear interest at the same rate as other assessments; or payment may be enforced by action in any court of competent jurisdiction, as provided by the statute.

SCALPED BY MERRY-GO-ROUND.

Boy of Five Dragged By the Hair—His Rescuer Injured.

Hurled under the platform of a merry-go-round when a ride stealer driven from the carrousal by a guard, stumbled over him, five-year-old Alfred Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith, of Burlington, was seriously hurt at Burlington Island Park late yesterday afternoon. His curly hair caught on a spike, which projected below the platform, and he was dragged along until his scalp was torn from his forehead and the skin pulled from almost his entire back.

The lad would undoubtedly have been killed but for young Frank Spinoja, who dived under the platform, seized the boy, and shoved him out of danger. The rescuer himself was caught in the spike, his leg being broken, his arms mangled, and badly sprained, and his body bruised and cut before the merry-go-round could be stopped.

Several young men picking up the wounded boy and youth, rushed them through the crowd to a swift power launch at the river bank and made a ecord run to Bristol, where physicians dressed their wounds. Mrs. Smith, mother of the boy, held him in her arms during the operation. His condition is critical.

CENT A DRINK BY THE SEA.

Long Branch Railroad Patrons Must Now Pay For Water.

Spring water is now served to waiting passengers at 1 cent a glass both at Ocean Grove and Asbury Park. A plumber yesterday removed the fixtures of the free drinking fountains which have supplied the station crowds. Ice water is still free on the trains.

A fat commuter, accustomed to the cooler, commented on the change to a freight handler. He got a lecture substantially as follows: "They wasted the ice water till it rotted the floor boards. That water's clean. But some of 'em sure do kick."

Whistling a bar from a merry waltz the man tossed a trunk into a yawning baggage car.

"But that's there privilege and they'll do it anyway," he added.

CARRIAGE WAITS "WITHOUT."

"The carriage waits without, my lord,"
"Without what, gentle sir?"
"Without the left-hand running-board,
Without the French chauffeur,
Without a drop of gasoline,
Six nuts, the can of il,
Four pinions, and the limousine,
he spark-plug and the coil.
Without the brake, the horn, the clutch,
Without the running gear,
One cylinder—it beats the Dutch
How much there isn't here!
The car has been repaired, in fact,
And you should be right glad
To find that this much is intact
Of what your lordship had.
The garage sent it back, my lord,
In perfect shape throughout;
So you will understand, my lord,
Your carriage waits without."
—Harvard Lampoon.

Nothing In It.

Towne—I never saw a man who was so fond of entertaining as Henpeck is. It's really remarkable.

Browne—Oh, that's not so strange. You see, his wife is quite pleasant to him when there's company in the house.—Philadelphia Press.

HESS LOSES LICENSE.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Confirms Revocation.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles J. B. R. Smith at Trenton confirmed yesterday the revocation of the license of Louis Hess, the Newark chauffeur who recently was fined $100 in Atlantic City for driving his employer's automobile without authority, and caused an accident on July 25, resulting in serious damage to the car.

A new rule made by the department is that in all cases where chauffeurs drive either without a license or in an intoxicated condition, or where they drive their employer's car without his knowledge, the chauffeur's license may be revoked under the law without the usual rule to show cause. Nearly all the accidents this season have been due to one or another of these three causes.

CORDOVA OUT OF JAIL TODAY.

Eloping Jersey Pastor Intends to Hasten Out of the State.

The sentence of J. Frank Cordova, the former Methodist minister who was sent to the State prison by Judge Woodbridge Strong for deserting his wife, after he had twice eloped with Julia Bowne, a member of his choir, expired today at Trenton. Cordova will lose no time in getting out of New Jersey.

Mrs. Cordova said emphatically yesterday at Atlantic Highlands that she would never be reconciled with her husband. She also said that she has never been in communication with him, nor will she ever accept any overtures on his part. She has been advised to sue for divorce, but says that she does not care to spend the money to secure this end. She is now proprietor of a boarding house at Atlantic Highlands.

Julia Bowne is summering at Ocean Grove. She has intimated that with Cordova and their baby she will start West immediately after his release.

Vincent Miner, of The Plainfield Trust Company, will take his vacation the last two weeks in August and will spend it in the Adirondacks.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Mrs. Bridget Davis, of Gibbstown, fell down stairs and broke her right leg. Three months ago she broke the same leg by a fall from a step.

Mistaking lye for sugar, Charles Davis, two years old, of 1703 Mulford street, Camden, swallowed a teaspoonful of the deadly stuff yesterday. He was hurried to Cooper Hospital, where he was soon revived.

All efffforts to locate Ralph and Emmet Nickerson and Thomas Boden, boys who ran away from their homes near Glassboro last Thursday night, have proved futile. The boys are known to have been in Atlantic City last Friday night.

As a result of the certiorari proceedings brought by Harry Fish, of Woodbury, which will stop work on the new schoolhouse, it is more than likely that the Dillon House will not be sold, but will be used for school purposes.

Accused of obtaining money under false pretenses from Owen Kernan, a saloon-keeper of Sixth and Pearl streets, Frederick Needham, of 639 Grant street, was held in $200 bail by Justice of the Peace Barr in Camden yesterday.

William Lee, colored, who was arrested in Gloucester Tuesday on suspicion of having stolen a lot of copper wire he had in his possession, was discharged yesterday by order of Prosecutor Scovel, as no one came forward to prosecute the man.

Although her husband disappeared about three months ago, Mrs. David Turner, of Scranton, Pa., failed to report the matter to the Camden police until yesterday. She said he had been seen crossing the ferry. Mrs. Turner is stopping at the home of a Camden relative.

Sheriff Jeffrey has a "wild man" in the Toms River jail. He was brought down yesterday from Jackson township, where he had frightened a number of women, and was wandering about the woods. He mumbles unintelligible words, is apparently about thirty-five years old and wears a full beard. All there was in his pockets was a pipe and tobacco.

Bridgeton faces just now a big shortage of funds. It is estimated that the city will close the fiscal year with a deficit of $33,000. City Comptroller Sharp sounded a note of warning to City Council last evening and many projects involving the expenditure of money were voted down. Nevertheless, council ordered 55,000 gutter bricks and will have also the expense of laying them in the various wards.

The annual campmeeting of the West Jersey Grove Association opened at Malaga yesterday morning. "Every day will be 'the big day' this year," said Rev. Sanford M. Nichols, president of the association, as he gazed on the large audience in the auditorium at the opening service. It was "Temperance Day" and the meetings were in charge of Miss Elizabeth H. Goodwin, president of Cumberland County W. C. T. U.

Adjudged guilty of allowing a horse to be overdriven to Atco and back to Camden, Joseph Hunter, of Philadelphia, was fined $10 and costs by Justice of the Peace Schmitz in Camden yesterday. For allowing a pair of mules to be driven with sores on their backs, Wilmer Collins, of Pensauken township, was fined $10 and costs. Raymond Allard, of Haddon Heights, for shooting a dog belonging to Frank Marsh, was similarly fined.

Chief Linderman arrested two Italians yesterday after a chase of three miles through North Merchantville, and a fight, finally landing them in the jail. The men attracted the chief's attention as they drove down Centre street. When he went out to stop them and investigate the men jumped out of the wagon and ran, leaving in the wagon about 450 feet of hose, a couple of bicycle tires, a couple of automobile tires and a big brass pot, found to have been stolen.

During a severe electrical storm last evening lightning hit the farmhouse of Henry Cluet, on the Bridgeton turnpike, a mile west of this city. A hole ten feet square was torn through the roof, one side of the house was almost torn out and clothing from a bureau which was demolished was carried fifteen feet through a wall. Mrs. Cluet and her five children, seated at a table, were stunned. Harry, one of the children, was burned about the back.

Howard Hall, Clarence Smith, of Burlington; Fred Metcalf, of Beverly; Oscar and William Henry, of Delanco, all colored, waited on the doorstep of the Bethel A. M. E. church at Delanco for Nathan Evans, also colored, who was leading a prayer-meeting, and as he came out of the church with the other parishioners he was attacked and unmercifully beaten into insensibility. At the trial the five men offered as an excuse that last Sunday night Evans had stolen Hall's girl. Hall and Smith were committed to jail.

Rev. H. B. Gibson, of Daytona, Fla., who is spending his vacation in the north will preach at Faith chapel August 23 and 30.

Kiel Garrison and Miss Hhyeth, who will soon go to India as missionaries, will speak at the Plainfield Rescue Mission meeting in the W. C. T. U. rooms tonight at 8 o'clock.

PLAINFIELD A. C. DEFEAT ROYAL GIANTS, 8 TO 1.

The Plainfield A. C. defeated Oscar Nelson's Royal Giants on Hope Common yesterday afternoon by a score of 8 to 1. Slocum, of the winning team, fanned eleven men and was given excellent support, while Mason, who had nine strikeouts, was poorly supported at critical stages of the game. he score:

Berkeleys Defeat Chathham.

The Berkeley Heights team defeated Chatham, yesterday, by a score of 6 to 3. The feature of the contest was the pitching of Long for the Berkeleys. He fanned twelve men and only allowed five hits. Wagoner, who formerly pitched in the Lackawanna-Chatham League, caught for Chatham and also hit the ball well. Bert Trotter, of this city, third baseman for the Trojan A. C., of Elizabeth, caught for Berkeley and put up a good game considering that it was the first one behind the bat this year. The score by innings:

LOCAL CYCLE CLUB RIDERS WILL RACE AT VAILSBURG.

Robert Wood, Joseph Todd and I. B. Hoffman, of the Plainfield Cycle Club, who all won places in the road race at Westfield last week, will enter the novice race at the Vailsburg track Sunday, and a large delegation of club members will ride over to Vailsburg with them Sunday morning to see the races. Robert Guttridge, who rode the mile at Westfield in 2:02 in his heat, will enter the novice race at Cliffton the same day.

Plans are rapidly being completed for the Labor Day races to be held here, and "Jack" Horner announced today that the events will include several match races and some exhibition riding. Nothing definite has yet been announced about the meet by the committee, but it is understood that many out-of-town riders will compete in the various distance races.

St. Mary's Lose Crack Pitcher.

The St. Mary Baseball Club has lost the services of its crack southpaw twirler, Dan Hanna, who has signed with the Scotch Plains team. This change will undoubtedly handicap St. Mary's chances in completing its schedule for the season. During his stay with the team, Hanna lost one game out of four and this was due to poor support. He also won several twilight games on Hope Common against teams composed of members from the best clubs in the city. The highest number of hits made off his delivery in any one game was five.

In Honor of Victors.

American athletes who carried the Stars and Stripes to victory in the fifth Olympiad in London, and for the fifth consecutive time, will be royally welcomed by Trentonians on Saturday, September 5, when under the auspices of the City Association of Junior Baseball leagues and the Y. M. C. A., a carnival of athletic sports will be conducted in Trenton.

Y. M. C. A. Practise Yesterday.

The Y. M. C. A. baseball squad made a good showing in their preliminary practise at Crescent Oval yesterday afternoon, and are in good shape for the game with the Harlem Branch, New York Y. M. C. A. tomorrow afternoon. "Jack" Peacock will probably be used in the box.

The Jr. O. U. A. M. team will play the Laurel A. C. on Hope Common tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

HERE AND THERE.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Ellis and their children, of Park avenue, are enjoying summer life in an ideal way, camping out at Cedar Lake, Denville, which has been called the "Adirondacks of New Jersey." Their camp is located on a ledge of rocks, 1,000 feet above sea level. On a ledge below them is the pictuesque bungalow of Wright Lorimer, famous in the role of "King David," in the well-known play, "The Shepherd King." He owns a large area on the ridge which is to be devoted to an open-air auditorium for rehearsals.

Just across the lake is the unique bungalow of George Donelson, prominently identified with educational work in New York city. Close at hand nestled in a clump of trees near the lake front is the camp of Allen Williams, well-known in New York as a lecturer on natural history. The association has recently erected for the accommodation of guests an attractive clubhouse amid white birches and tall cedars on a point jutting into the lake. The absolute simplicity and freedom of conventionality is the chief charm of the place.

Mr. and Mrs. George O. Stevens, of West Sixth street, will leave Monday for Asbury Park, where they will register at the Grand Central Hotel.

FOWLER GETTING ANXIOUS

Makes Hurried Visit to Plainfield and with Mac Murray Calls on "Uncle Dan."

UNION COUNTY AGAINST HIM.

Rank and File In This County Oppose His Renomination—Want Morris to Pick a Favorite Son.

Having been "tipped off" that the Republicans in Union county, almost to a man, are opposed to his renomination, Charles N. Fowler has been busying himself since last week in obtaining support in the Fifth Congressional district. In addition to visits to his home town, Elizabeth, and to Morris county, he has been solicitious here in Plainfield and has been to Trenton to consult with State Treasurer "Dan" Voorhees, the boss of Morris county.

The Congressman journeyed to Plainfield yesterday, which he visited two years ago, and had a long talk with City Clerk James T. MacMurray, his Union county lieutenant. The two took a train for Trenton and on their arrival hunted up "Uncle Dan." Afterwards, Mr. Fowler gave it out that it was a purely social talk, but as a matter of fact MacMurray pledged himself to Fowler and thereby took a position against the Union county leaders.

"Uncle Dan," in the course of an interview ten days ago, said "Morris county elected Fowler two years ago and I guess we can do it again. This aroused the resentment of the Union county leaders who say that Morris has no right to come into Union and dictate by picking a man from Union against the protest of this county's leaders. The Union bosses declare that while he would undoubtedly win in a Presidential year, the results two years ago shows that he will hurt the county ticket inasmuch as his radical Democratic opponent swept Union, the strongest Republican county in New Jersey.

A singular condition of affairs is presented here by the stand now assumed by the senor member of the MacMurray - McCardell "machine." The factory inspector is a strong supporter of the organization and has openly declared that in his opinion Mr. Fowler's nomination would be disastrous to the party. County Chairman Frank H. Smith today declined to express his views other than to say that he had found that a strong feeling exists in Union against the wisdom of nominating Fowler.

Union county, it is reliably reported, will accept any man from Morris that that county might present. James H. McGraw, of Madison, or John H. Capstick, of Morristown, are preferred in this section but the leaders give it out that any other man from Morris will be as well supported. "Tom" Hillery, they say according to report, would be given a flattering vote in the convention.

The Trenton True American today said: "Congressman Charles N. Fowler, some times of Elizabeth, but more frequently of Vermont—where he owns and operates a rich marble quarry—was a visitor at the State house yesterday, accompanied by City Clerk James T. MacMurray, of Plainfield, his political confidant in the Fifth district. The pair called on State Treasurer Voorhees and were in earnest conversation with him for some time. "Oh, nothing but a social call on 'Uncle Dan;' you know we are old friends," said the Congressman when asked what the mission of his visit to the State house was. Although Mr. Fowler would not admit it, his call in "Uncle Dan" was to find out where the foxy old politician stands in reference to the Republican Congressional nomination in the Fifth district, of which Morris county is a part. Mr. Fowler is busy just now repairing his political fences preparatory to welcoming a renomination which he is seeking only to discover that there is widespread opposition in his own party to his continuance in Congress. "Uncle Dan" Voorhees, when asked regarding the renomination of Congressman Fowler, simply said: "Morris county elected Fowler two years ago, and I guess we can do it again."

"But when one tries to find out why Voorhees is supporting Fowler in preference to some other Union county Republican "Uncle Dan" winks his eye."

Kmosko Is Improving.

Carman Kmosko, of 1219 North avenue, the young man who was injured trying to board the 5:53 train for New York at the North Avenue station, Wednesday night, is getting along well. Since the accident he underwent an X-ray examination at the hospital and it was ascertained that no bones were broken.

LeRoy Hann, of Somerset place, who has been spending a ten days' vacation at Sergeantsville and Lambertville, returns home today.

KEMBLE HELPS CORDOVA

Plainfield Pastor Befriends Unfrocked Minister who Has Paid the Law's Penalty.

A STATEMENT IS ALSO ISSUED.

Trenton Pastor Advises Cordova to Take Julia Bowne to Mexico —Bitter Towards Wife.

After having served thrre years, four months and eleven days of a four-year sentence, J. Frank Cordova, the unfrocked Methodist minister of South River, was released from the State prison at Trenton yesterday morning at 4 o'clock. He is now believed to be seeking work in Philadelphia, to which place he went later in the day.

In order to escape being made a target for newspapermen, Cordova asked Headkeeper George O. Osborne to permit him to leave before daybreak yesterday, and the request was granted.

Shortly before 4 a. m., the Rev. Charles S. Kemble, pastor of Monroe Avenue Methodist church, of this city, and a classmate of Cordova in Drew Theological Seminary, was seen to enter the prison by nearly a score of reporters, who had been watching for Cordova's exit since midnight.

Cordova had no sooner stepped out of the door of the institution than the representatives surrounded him and began to fire questions at him, but he refused to answer. At the invitation of local newspapermen he finally consented to visit the rooms of the Trenton Press Club on East State street, along with the Rev. Mr. Kemble.

"I advised Cordova to take Julia to Mexico with him," said the Rev. J. Ward Gamble, formerly pastor of Hamilton Avenue M. E. church, Trenton, but now of St. Paul's church at Penn's Grove, who has been a close friend of Cordova.

Upon Cordova's arrival at the Press Club, the newspapermen ordered his breakfast. After much hesitancy, he gave out this statement:

"I have been hounded like a murderer, although an innocent man. Why should I be picked from hundreds of men in the prison and tortured as I believe no man has ever been tormented. If I had been a murderer I could not have suffered more anguish. Just to think that I have committed no crime, and yet seemed doomed to torture for the rest of my life.

"All the newspapers have condemned me and hounded me while they have not said a word about prominent men who have been unfortunate enough to be sent to prison. Why does not the press turn its searchlight upon men like Mayor Belcher, of Paterson; a Trenton lawyer, and others who are serving in the place I have just quitted, whose crimes are far greater than mine. I was first to be convicted for the crime with which I was charged, but I am condemned more than if I were the worst criminal the world has ever known.

"I wish to go far away and live in seclusion, where people do not abhor the name of Cordova. I am innocent of any crime, and the person who calls herself my wife was responsible for my downfall and imprisonment. All men have their ideas about the things of life, and I have followed mine as I thought by God's direction. If the public thoroughly understood my cause, there would be praise instead of condemnation.

Straight Life Now.

"In the future I intend to do what is right, no matter what the penalty, and I will fight like a man for my liberty and my rights. When I complete my plans, I will fight to free myself from the public gaze, and if I succeed the world will know no more of me.

"All the time I was in prison, I have never communicated with Julia Bowne, and she has not sent me even a note. I read several interviews purported to be given by her, but I doubt if any of them were authentic. In fact of this, how can I say that I will return to her and my baby."

At this point the unfrocked minister strongly intimated that he would join Julia if she consented, although he would make no direct statement to that effect. "She is mine by divine right," he exclaimed, when it was suggested to him that he return to his wife and children and desert the girl he had ruined. When he mentioned the name Julia his voice was unsteady and his eyes tearful.

"Will you follow the advice of Dr. Gamble and take Julia and return to your former home in Mexico?" the former parson was asked by a reporter.

"I believe Dr. Gamble's advice is very good, but I cannot say what I will do. I do not know even where I am going when I leave Trenton, and have placed myself in the hands

FORT ISSUES A WARNING

Governor Says He Has Told Atlantic City Officials Law-Breaking Must Cease.

MAKES FORMAL STATEMENT.

Calls Violators Cowards—Violators of Law the City's Worst Enemies.

That Governor Fort intends to stop the reported willful violations of laws in Atlantic City all summer was emphasized in a statement which he prepared yesterday at Sea Girt for the press, after giving considerable thought to the matter for several days. The statement was called forth by the condition of affairs developed at the recent hearing of the State Excise Commission, as a result of which both press and people of the State have been putting it up to the Governor pretty strong.

The Governor will probably do nothing further until he sees how the laws are obeyed at the resort on Sunday next. It is reported that everything will be closed up tighter than a drum at that time, and that this condition will continue through the rest of the season. If it does not the Governor will act.

The Governor's statement says:

"So much has been said about the Atlantic City situation since the Excise Commission was there that it seems to be necessary for me to make a statement. I have been writing to some officials in Atlantic county and city, and seeing others, and I am very hopeful that they will, of their own motion, proceed to enforce all the laws.

"My information from Atlantic county is that the public sentiment there, outside of that which is interested pecuniarily in the illegal practices now carried on, is all in favor of the enforcement of the law.

"The situation in Atlantic City is of more importance to the city than its citizens seem to realize. The patrons of that delightful resort have never before been aware of the real conditions that exist there. I do not believe that the popularity of the place is in any sense due to any of the illegal practices or to the illegal sale of liquor. Surely the women and children and a vast majority of the men go to that resort for health and pleasure, and go for no such purpose as those interested in these illegal practices would have us believe. A quiet Sunday in Atlantic City would induce people to go there rather than detract from their going.

"Nor do I believe it is impossible to enforce the law in Atlantic City and county. Violators of the law are cowards, and hence vigorous insistence upon obedience to the law will bring that result.

"I have notified the officials in writing that if they cannot enforce the law I desire them to so inform me and ask for the aid of the State in doing it. In that event it will be a duty, as well as a pleasure, to find means to bring about a complete observance of all laws in the resort. I do not intend to do anything revolutionary or to act in any way that is not safe and conservative and within the strict letter of the laws of the State.

"Those now violating the law, and who are professing to be friends of the city, are in reality its worst enemies, and their evident motive is pecuniary gain through illegal practices."

Preachers for the Local Churches.

The local pulpits will be occupied tomorrow by the following ministers: First Baptist church, Rev. W. T. Dorward, of Stelton, morning and evening; Trinity Reformed church, Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, of New Brunswick; no evening service; First Presbyterian church, Rev. Lewis Bond, morning and evening; Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Rev. Samuel Perry, of Somerville, morning and evening; Hope chapel, Rev. Fred B. Newman, of Trenton, morning and evening; Warren chapel, Rev. Mr. Porter, of Coal Run, Ohio, morning and evening; First M. E. church, Rev. Dr. D. W. Couch, of Brooklyn: no evening service.

Funeral of Mrs. S. E. Riley.

The funeral services of Mrs. Sarah E. Riley, of West Fourth street, were held from the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, yesterday afternoon. The pastor, Rev. J. T. Diggs, was in charge of the service, assisted by Rev. Edward B. Maynard, Rev. J. W. Mitchell, Rev. F. D. Tildon and Rev. M. A. Alexander, of this city; Rev. J. W. Cooper, of Rahway, and Rev. Mr. Robinson, of Newark, all of whom took part. The pall-bearers who were intimate women friends of the departed were Mrs. H. Grobes, Mrs. M. Laine, Mrs. M. Johnson, Mrs. L. Brown, Mrs. S. Wood and Mrs. M. Moore.

APPLY ASPHALTOILENE TO NORTH AVE. ROAD BED

The work of spreading "Asphaltoilne" on North avenue was started this morning under the direction of City Engineer A. J. Gavett. The preparation is being put on the thoroughfare by a force of men from the city street department, and a representative of the company which manufactures it is in charge. The whole avenue will be covered with the material and then shut off for a couple of days to allow it to dry thoroughly. As the street must be shut off for a time, today was considered a good one to begin the work as tomorrow being Sunday the travel is usually light.

The preparation is put on by the use of the street sprinklers. It has the apeparance and a strong odor of tar. It is said that after the thoroughfare is ready for travel there is practically no odor, or not enough to be objectionable. Those who have had experience with the material in other places claim that it not only keeps the dust down, but preserves the macadam and prevents the tearing up by automobiles.

Under the direction of the street department the work of putting tarvia on Park avenue is progressing satisfactorily. It is being extended to Randolph road and may be carried beyond that point a little later.

MRS. LYONS HAS HER IDEAS ABOUT CITY COURT JUSTICE.

Complaining that Joseph Sasslaw, a neighbor, had slapped her four-year-old daughter, Mrs. Mary Lyons, of South Second street, harrangued against the man on this and various other charges of about the same nature in making her complaint before City Judge Runyon at the session of city court today. The "assault" is supposed to have happened Tuesday. The Judge sized up the woman as a "scold" after she had stated her case.

"I don't believe that this amounts to anything but a kid scrapping case, Mrs. Lyons," he said, "and you two can settle tthat out of court. If I had all the cases like this in town, I'd be here in court twenty-four hours a day. Case dismissed."

Sasslaw was willing enough to try and live as an amicable neighbor, but Mrs. Lyons waited after he had gone out. "Well, I must say, Judge, that's a very unfair ——"

"Get out!" shouted the Judge. And she went.

1,500 EXCURSIONISTS ON HOPE CHAPEL OUTING.

The annual excursion of Hope chapel to Asbury Park, this morning, left the city at 7:55 o'clock under favorable conditions, two sections, a total of seventeen coaches being required for the large number of people desiring to spend the day at the shore. The first section, comprising eight coaches, was in charge of Engineer Kohler and Conductor Flanagan, and the second section of nine coaches was in charge of Engineer Smith and Conductor Edward Lake.

The excessive heat of the past few days had a tendency to bring out a large crowd who believed that they would get a little relief by a day along the ocean, and there was every promise that the outing would be one of the most successful in the history of the chapel. The excursionists will leave the Park at 7:55 o'clock this evening.

Peach Exchange Opens Monday.

The Arnandale Peach Exchange will be formally opened for business on Monday and will keep open for five weeks. The officers have decided to have the exchange open each afternoon at 1 o'clock instead of 3 o'clock, as heretofore and if there are any peaches on hand they will be auctioned off.

INQUEST ON KIELY DEATH

The Coroner's Jury at Asbury Park Blames Railroad Company for Neglect.

PLAINFIELDERS AS WITNESSES.

Jury Says Kiely's Carelessness Was Responsible For Fatal Accident —Verdict Reached Quickly.

Inquest into the death of William J. Kiely, of this city, who was killed by being run over at the Asbury Park station, was held yesterday afternoon in the council chamber at Asbury Park by Coroner William E. Macdonald. The verdict reached by this body after about 10 minutes' consultation was in brief as follows:

"We declare that the said William J. Kiely met his death by carlessness on his own part and neglect on the part of the railroad company to use sufficient protection. We recommend that the railroad company erect a barrier between the track and the platform as present conditions only invite further accident and loss of life."

The first witness was Dr. R. S. Bennett, who viewed the body of Mr. Kiely. He testified that the skull was fractured, the neck broken, right shoulder crushed, right ribs all broken, right arm mangled and hand nearly torn away. Expressman Charles Keith, Frank Knight, Harold Everton and George Stevens all gave evidence as having been near the scene of the accident and seen Mr. Kiely on the step prior to his death. According to them he had grasped the hand rails and in losing his grip with one hand swung around and fell under the train.

John J. Kenney, of this city, and one of the members of the excursion committee, said that with his family he had boarded the first section at the siding near Springwood avenue. As it pulled into the station he was on the rear end of the second car.

When it reached the south baggage room Kiely emerged from the crowd and the depot platform and grasped the hand rails of both the second and third cars. He let go with one hand and fell beneath the moving cars. Other Plainfield men who were on the excursion were John Hines, Patrick S. Kiely, chief of police of this city, but no relative to the unfortunate man, Thomas Carty and Thos. Gough, W. J. Kiely's brother-in-law, all of whom corroborated the testimony given before.

The railroad men all testified that the speed of the train was about five miles an hour.

The following letter sent a few days ago by Albert E. Kenney to the Jersey Central management has brought a response that the company will consider the suggestions:

"I beg to call your attention to the fatal accident which we had on our excursion on Thursday last given by the Knights of Columbus, Plainfield. This excursion was free to Sunday-school children of our local parishes, and quite a considerable number of them took advantage of it.

"After the accident in wnich Mr. W. J. Kiely lost his life while attempting to board a moving train, we have come to the conclusion that the arrangements made for taking care of a crowd of people such as excursionists are, are not adequate either at Plainfield or at Asbury Park, and I am calling your attention to the matter so that these deficiencies will be remedied and make your patrons safe on future occasions.

"The committee representing the Knights of Columbus feel very much grieved over this accident, after they had exerted every measure within their grasp to properly care for their people, that one of their patrons in an unguarded moment over which they had no control, lost his life. It is not a wonder that he was killed, but the wonder is that many more do not meet the same fate. It was perfectly natural for this man who was separated from his friends to attempt to board the train on which he thought they were. It is the first instinct for a level headed man to join his friends even when taking a risk. We all do it so often that it is a matter of little concern to us unless it is brought to our notice as it was in this case.

"Asbury Park is esentially a community for excurionists, whether they come in large numbers or in two's and three's, and to think that the feeble arrangements which you have at Asbury Park should be tolerated all these years, is more than I can understand. Either have no excursions or have them properly conducted. There is no ground too valuable at Asbury Park to give up for proper facilities for railroads, and our committee will not let this matter rest until some cognizance is taken of this complaint.

"I would suggest that here be terminal tracks at some convenient

FOUR FIRES IN FIVE HOURS

City's Record for Blazes in a Day are Broken Yesterday Afternoon.

TWO ENTAILED BIG LOSSES.

North Avenue Building Damage $2,000, and Incendiary in West End Causes $1,500 Loss.

Responding to four alarms of fire in five hours, the city fire department had a busy time yesterday afternoon, breaking all records for the number of fires in such a short time. About five years ago, one Fourth of July, the department was called upon to answer eight alarms the course of the day, but yesterday's series of calls beats this record. The alarms were for fires at John Cathcart's house, 745 Grant avenue, at 12:35; lass $50; F. A. Pope's building, 134 North avenue, at 2:10, loss about $2,000; Mrs. Elizabeth Gill's house, 423 Central avenue, at 3:48 and 6:41 o'clock, total loss about $1,500.

Azro Hubbard, who occupied the apartments where the North avenue fire broke out early yesterday afternoon, is the largest loser of the occupants of the building. His loss is total, and he carried no insurance. His apartments were on the top floor of the building. Nothing can be learned of the cause of the fire. Mrs. Hubbard was in the house with her six-year-old daughter, Florence. The little girl was sitting by the front window shortly before the flames were discovered, and Mrs. Hubbard was at work in the rear of the apartment. Smelling smoke, she went to the room where the child was and found the apartment thick with smoke. The child was still sitting by the window.

Opening the door of a closet from which thick smoke was pouring, Mrs. Hubbard found the interior a mass of flames. She rushed to the front window and throwing it up, screamed "fire." She says no one paid any attention whatever to her screams, although several persons looked up. Abut the same time Mrs. G. R. Baird, who occupied the other apartment on the same floor, smelled smoke and came across the hall to Mrs. Hubbard's rooms. Seeing the flames she rushed back and shouted "fire" from her window. No one paid the least attention to the cries of fire, the women say, until Mrs. Hubbard, seizing the little girl, rushed downstairs and met W. L. Smalley, Jr., who immediately turned in the alarm.

A line of hose was stretched into the burning apartments, but Chief Doane says that no hydrant stream was used. "The chemical stream only was employed," he said, "but we used five tanks of chemical before the flames were extinguished."

Before the recall was sounded, water had dripped through the building and was running from cracks in the ceiling of the Monarch Printing Company's plant on the main floor. D. J. Carney, the proprietor, was busy with a force of men, covering his stock and presses with rubber blankets and horse blankets. Although he prevented much loss in this way, Mr. Carney said today that he estimated that the water had done $400 damage.

The tenants in the building were Azro Hubbard and G. R Laird, on the top floor, where the loss was practically total and there is no insurance; S. Jones, no insurance; W. L. Dunn, no loss; Mrs. Sparks, loss trifling; D. J. Carney, loss $400, covered by insurance. The building, owned by F. A. Pope, is valued at $11,000, and Mr. Pope carried $6,000 insurance.

VOTING MACHINES OUT OF SOMERSET.

Bridgewater Township and Bound Brook Give Device Its Final Coup.

Somerset county is now entirely free from voting machines, the elections in the First and Fourth districts of Bridgewater township yesterday being the last. The combined votes of the two districts was 238 against the use of the machine to 22 for them.

Bound Brook voted them out 240 to 40. North Plainfield declared against them two weeks ago.

Enjoying an Auto Tour.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Sandford, of East Front street, and party, left this week on an automobile trip around Rangeley Lakes, Dixville Notch, White Mountains, and thence to Harrison, Maine, where they have been stopping for the past five weeks. They will return to Plainfield about the middle of September and leave on the eighteenth for Albny with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bentley, of Richmond street, and Mr. and Mrs. William M. Sandford, Jr., of Second place, for a ten days' drive through the Berkshire Mountains.

MAID CONFESSES ARSON

Sixteen - Year - Old Dorothy Jones Tried Twice to Burn Mrs. Gill's House.

STARTED FIRES IN CLOSETS.

Colored Incendiary Says She "Had a Motive"—Nellie Donald Also Held—Total Loss $1,500.

Suspected of having made two attempts to set fire to the house of Mrs. Elizabeth Gill, 423 Central avenue, where they were employed as servants, Miss Nellie Donald and Miss Dorothy Jones, colored, were arrested last night after the fire department had been summoned to the house twice within three hours to extinguish fires originating in closets yesterday afternoon, and are held pending examination by Chief of Police Kiely at headquarters today.

Both the girls refused to make any statement about the cause of the fire at examinations held at police headquarters by Chief Kiely last night and today, but late this morning after some rigid "third degree" questioning by the Chief, Miss Dorothy Jones, the younger of the pair, broke down and confessed that she had started fires in the closets on both occasions. She said she had a motive for what she did. The police would give out no particulars.

Both the girls are being held prisoners and will probably be given a hearing before City Judge Runyon late this afternoon.

The arrests were made on complaint of Chief Doane. The loss from both fires will amount to $1,500, covered by insurance.

Both the domestics held are mere girls, the Donald girl being but seventeen years old and her companion a year younger. They have been noncommital since their arrest, and their stories seem to involve the Gill boys in incendiary charges. Mrs. Gill says that they were not in the house at the time, but were playing in the yard. Chief Doane said today that he felt positive that the fires were of incendiary origin.

Mrs. Gill was upstairs with her daughter when the first fire was discovered. Her daughter came to her room from an adjoining one to ask her is she had been burning paper in the heater. When she replied in the negative, the two started to look for fire. The main floor of the house was filled with smoke, but they could not located the flames. Finally one of the servants came to Mrs. Gill in the dining room and opening the closet door, said "Here's the fire." Table linen in the closet was a mass of flames. Mrs. Gill said there were no matches kept there. The alarm was sounded by F. McLnerny from box 35 at 3:48 o'clock, but the fire was extinguished when the department arrived. The loss was about $30, confined to contents of the closet.

A feature of this first fire was the fact that Captain William Addis, of the department, was on the piazza trying to gain admisison to the house to do some work when the alarm sounded. No attention was paid to his ring, and a moment later he heard the box sound. Not knowing that the fire was in the house where he was, he ran to the box but returning again, rendered valuable assistance.

The second fire at the Gill house was discovered at shortly after 6:30 o'clock, when F. A. Dunham saw smoke eddying through the slates in the roof as he passed the house. He called to a passer-by on a wheel to sound the alarm, and the call came in from box 35 at 6:41. Meanwhile Mr. Dunham went to the house and worked until the firemen came. The flames had their origin in a closet on the second floor, where clothing was kept, and had gained good headway before it was discovered. A chemical stream was used as a check and later a hydrant line was laid. The flames had eaten well up into the attic and the firemen had about an hour's work.

The works of the Garwood Foundry and Machine Company, recently purchased by the Thatcher Furnace Company, have been closed. The machinery has been taken to the Newark plant of the Thatcher company. The local property will not be operated again as a foundry. About thirty men are thrown out of work.

Peter Sorensen deserted his wife and family six years ago. Yesterday he returned. Chief of Police O'Neill recognized him and he was arrested. He is now being held to answer to a charge of desertion.

Lloyd Thompson, town clerk, has announced himself a candidate for Assembly on the Republican ticket.

AMUSEMENTS.

The program that will be presented at Proctor's Newark theatre during the week of August 17 is of such uniform excellence that it is difficult to headline any special act. Among the better known vaudevillians who will help further merriment are: Jack Norworth, fresh from his honeymoon with a new buget of "College Boy" yarns and some of his latest parodies; William Woelff assisted by a company of ten trained voices will present a condensed version of "The Chimes of Normandy," arranged by Mr. Wolff and entitled "Old Father Gaspard;" Tom Hanlon, Joseph Watson and company will appear in a sketch entitled "Nearly a Manager;" Bertish, a wonderful athlete, will make his first appearance here by a series of marvelous feats of strength; "The Star Spangled Banner" is a patriotic little melodrama of the late war. Another novelty will be "The Six Little Sailors" representing different nations with the songs and dances peculiar to each. The Gillette Sisters will offer a black face singing and dancing turn; Smith and Heagney will be seen in a comedy singing and dancing sketch entitled "Writing a Hit," introducing artistic piano playing and crisp comedy. A new series of comic animated pictures will round out the bill.

Tells of Mosquito Warfare.

John B. Smith, State Entomologist, of Trenton, gave an address last night before the Kearny Board of Health upon mosquito extermination, in response to an invitation sent to the professor some time ago. The entire board was present, as well as Health Inspector Albert E. Geisler and Health Officer Dr. James A. Exton. Mr. Smith exhaustively outlined the work to be done and told in a terse, clear manner what had been done.

DOING THE MASTER'S WORK.

By REV. T. L. GARDINER

In the Sabbath Recorder.

As I take up my pen hardly knowing what to write and sit a moment in meditation, there comes, wafted through the open window, the sound of familiar songs from the room of the Rescue Mission four stories below. There faithful Christian workers assemble night after night with those whom they are helping to a better life, and sing and pray and tell of the love of God that passeth knowledge. Throughout the days of toil they have been looking for poor souls who need God's help and, so far as they have been able, have induced these to come to the meetings. Some are there who have been rescued from the drunkard's road; and during the winter those who are destitute and hungry are taken into the basement and given a simply, substantial meal. The leaders are working men who mingle with their fellows in the shops and places of toil, and always seem to be on the alert for th oseneeding sympathy and help.

The smile of the true Christian seems to light up the face of the one who has charge of the mission, and you are impressed with his kindly spirit whever you meet him.

Three or four nights a week the sound of gospel songs, and the exhortations of those who love Jesus reach my ears as they come from this little mission. I often think, what a blessed work this is! Who can estimate the far-reaching influences of the thousands upon thousands of similar missions, all through our land, working faithfully to rescue men and women from everlasting ruin.

The evil one would have his own way among the lowly and destitute masses, were it not for such consecrated self-sacrificing workers as those who man these missions. Here is a positive influence strengthened by the ever-present Christ, which in great measure overcomes the power of evil and, wherever men will heed, snatches lost souls as brands from the burning. When we think of the ever-widening influence started by one saved soul, which shall go on through years to bless the world even after that soul has passed from earth, we can place no estimate upon the value of one little mission that may be able to start a score on the way to heaven, and to cheer and help a hundred others who are pilgrims to the celestial city.

Who can estimate the value of those songs sung night after night by that little company of fatihful pilgrims? Some of them were sung by the mothers who rocked their cradles—mothers whose hearts were cheered and strengthened amid life's cares and troubles by their soothing, uplifting influence. Why should they not take strong hold of each heart in that little mission now and srengthen his will, fortify his purposes, and comfort his sorrows.

Why do people on the street who perhaps have not entered a church for years, stop and listen while those songs are being sung? If you look carefully, you will see that people in near-by homes have gone to their windows to listen a moment as the strains of some sacred song float upon the air from that open door.

There is after all a hungering in the hearts of sinful men for just that which these missions offer. And even though the vast multitudes seem borne on by the tides of vice, eagerly searching for worldly and sinful pleasures in order to drown sorrow, they will stop and yield their hearts to the sweet influences of sacred song. In many cases memories of better days are thus started and heart-yearnings for a better life, that bring them to the foot of the Cross. Here they find the rest of soul for which they have sought elsewhere, but all in vain.

Only a few doors away, around the corner, two stenchful saloons are running night and day with all their attractions for men with the appetite for drink. These poor souls cannot pass such places without smelling the fumes of beer for which they crave, and yet which they know is working their ruin. They cannot even look toward the saloon on a hot, thirsty day, without seeing the tempting picture of a foaming cup, placed there on purpose to lure them in. What chance is there for one who is anxious to break away from the degrading habit of drink, if he has to live in a town where he can scarcely walk through the business streets without being thus tempted! His burning thirst for liquor is met at every turn with the fumes from dens of vice that set his very being on fire. These are open day and night. The churches are open only one day and two nights in seven. The saloons have all the advantage: They outnumber the churches; they run every day and every night, and appeal to the ungovernable appetite of their all but helpless victims. What a blessing it is that the Rescue Mission, the Young Men's Christian Association and the Salvation Army do offer such places of refuge for all who want to escape such temptations! It does my own heart good to hear those songs, while I write these lines; they are sung with such unction, and seem so laden with sympathy. What must it be for the soul that has been struggling through the weary day with fearful temptations, to step into this quiet retreat, listen to the testimony of some fellow-mortal who has been rescued, and then as this testimony closes, to join in the glad song which can hardly wait till the story is told.

Relief for Crowded City Hall.

Trenton, Aug. 15.—In a short time the city's official business will be conducted under much more comfortable circumstances than at present. It has been decided that the Weisbrod & Hess building in front of the armory, a part of the new city hall site, shall be utilized at once in order to relieve the embarrassing and uncomfortable congestion that long existed in the present city hall. Plans have been perfected for transferring the offices without delay.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Captain John Truitt, of Bridgeport, is organizing a company to run a line of truck boats from Bridgeport to Philadelphia and make stops at Billingsport. Several farmers have subscribed for stock.

After a considerable delay, material has arrived for a continuance of work on the new hospital building for the Burlington county almshouse at New Lisbon, and operations are now progressing rapidly.

Marshal Biggs and Coroner Charlesworth have run down every possible clue to the identity of the mother of the murdered infant, whose body was found in Union lake, but their efforts have been futile.

Miss Emma G. Steelman, who has taught in the Ocean City public schools for seven years, has resigned on account of ill health. The Board of Education has elected Miss J. Beryle Adams to fill the vacancy.

As there will be no justice in the Supreme Court at Camden next Monday, the hearing on the application of Harry A. Fish, of Woodbury, for a writ of certiorari in the new high school matter will be adjourned for a week.

Charged with cruelly kicking a horse he was driving, William Smith, of Allen's Court, Camden, was arrested yesterday by William McNeir, of the S. P. C. A., and Justice of the Peace Schmitz imposed a fine of $10 and costs.

It has at last been decided by the Salem County Freeholders to replace the oil lamps at the county almshouse, which have been reported unsafe, with electric lights, although the wiring will not be done until after the first of the new year.

Assemblyman F. B. Porter delighted Vineland anglers yesterday when he announced that he would soon receive from the United States Fish Hatchery at Washington a consignment of small bass with instructions to stock the Maurice river through Vineland.

Mary E. Clayton, of Camden, has been granted a divorce from her husband, Flecher Clayton, under the new decree, which is, that the divorce shall become absolute six months from the date of the order unless good reason is shown that another course should be taken.

When Benjamin Lukens, a young plumber of Vineland, was picked up last night his left side and arm were nearly paralyzed. He explained that he had just taken 1,800 volts of electricity and wondered how he had survived. He was standing on the wet grass when the electric wires were handled.

Charged with gross cruelty to his six-year-old son, Joseph Wickel has been fined $1 and the costs of $19, by Justice of the Peace Merchant, in Woodbury. The child was ordered placed in the custody of the Children's Society. Wickel's wife, the little boy's stepmother, was also under arrest and the evidence showed that the boy had been subjected to abuse for over a year.

The Salem County Board of Freeholders has instructed its Insane Committee to visit the State asylum at Trenton to investigate the bills recently presented to the board for supplies furnished patients from this county. In one bill a male inmate is charged with three suspenders and six pairs of stockings in one month, and a female patient with three pairs of shoes in two months.

In accordance with an opinion given by Vice-Chancellor Leaming some months ago, Attorney William C. French, of Camden, yesterday instituted, through Attorney-eneral McCarter, ejectment proceedings in behalf of Thomas J. Gaskill, Arnold Cramer and about 300 South Jersey oystermen against the Sooy Oyster Company, James Gale, Hilliard Gale and Benjamin Chew, who held valuable riparian grants in the Mullica river and Great Bay.

C. B. Williams, assistant superintendent of the New Jersey Children's home Society, deposited in the safe in the society's office in Trenton yesterday a valuable diamond ring, which is to be sold for the benefit of the organization. Mr. Williams spoke in a South Jersey church last Sunday, telling of the needs of the society. After the meeting a handsomely dressed woman approached him, drew the ring from her finger and handed it to him to sell for the fund.

AUGUST RECREATION.

The midsummer number of this popular outdoor magazine will appeal to all. It is very profusely and attractively illustrated, its articles are timely, full of the spirit of the season and most of them very helpful to those who are seeking the different methods of recreation. A few of the leading articles, each one of them well illustrated, are "Canoeing in the Surf," "A Trip Through Liverpool Waters in Canada," "Glimpses of Newfoundland," "Pack Horse Trip to Recreation Lake," "Building Recreation Houses," "Exploring the Wisconsin in a Canoe," "The Future of Wing Shooting," "Motor Boating on the Mississippi," and "Useful Hints for Outdoor People." This number is now on all news stands and is well worth obtaining. Outdoor News Company, New York.

Miss Margaret McWilliams, of this city, has been visiting relatives at Somerville.

One More Week of the ANNIVERSARY SALE.

One more week of the bargains that have created more talk and made us more new friends than our brightest anticipation during all the days of preparation for the event. It was our aim to impress you—at this time particularly—with the advantages in shopping here. A store that is not burdened with the additional expenses of several thousand dollars yearly to the trading stamp "house," nor has the great portion of its capital tied up on its books, can and does offer the most for your money. We have demonstrated this with especial force the past three weeks of our First Anniversary Sale, and are making a strong effort this last week of the sale to have you join the crowds that are praising the Tepper slogan—"no trading stamps nor favors, but more for your money."

George Simmons, of the New Haven team, the heaviest hitter in the Connecticut League, has been purchased by John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, for $1,500. He is a base player. McGraw has sent Paige, the pitcher recently acquired in the South, to the New Haven team.

Clement, of the Jersey City team, has been sold to the Philadelphia Nationals.

Elberfield, manager of the Yankees, is dickering for two new players who would, if obtained, strengthen his team greatly, and they may be signed in a few days.

Clay, of the Reading Tri-State League team, made four hits out of as many times at bat in a game with Wilmington, a few days ago.

The Phillies defeated the world's champion Chicago club twice in one afternoon and are now considered contenders for the National League pennant.

The local Y. M. C. A. team will play the Harlem, New York, branch team at Crescent Oval this afternoon at 3:45 o'clock.

The Clinton Avenues will play at Rahway, this afternoon, and they will be accompanied by a large crowd of rooters.

The Scotch Plains team will play the West Ends, of Somerville, at the latter place his afternoon. It is expected that Jimmie Montross will pitch for Somerville and he hopes to repeat his performance of a few weeks ago when he shut the 'Plains team out.

The High Bridge Gazette in trying to explain why its team lost to Clinton Avenue a week ago today in this city, says among other things that the club had to play eleven men, which includes the umpire; that Umpire Moynihan always favored the home team, and it declares that it was rank injustice to allow High Bridge but ten minutes' practice and then call the game,

Here is a High Bridge Gazette wail: "The result of the game would have been different had Umpire Moynihan been more impartial in his rulings. Several times he called balls on Kraft that everybody saw were strikes."

And another: "Morgan being declared out at second in the fourth inning was an injustice. Morgan reached the base at least a second before the ball. It was a close decision on the part of Umpire Moynihan, but as usual he favored Clinton Avenue."

GOLF.

Out West, Warren K. Wood and Kenneth P. Edwards, despite their recent reverses, are looked upon by many as coming champions. They apparently have all the shots that go to make good golfers. A year ago in the national event at Cleveland Wood lost to Travers in the most brilliantly played match of the championship and if the Western boy can strike any such gait at Garden City he will make them all "sit up and take notice." Edwards has also been scoring consistently well.

There are many other promising young performers both East and West, but they can hardly be reckoned with as having more than an outside chance against those already mentioned, to say nothing of the always formidable veterans like Walter J. Travis and Findlay S. Douglas. As for the title-holder, Travers, he also is entitled to be classed with the younger set, for he only celebrated his twenty-first birthday a couple of months ago. In experience, however, Travers is a veteran. He has always taken kindly to the Garden City conditions, and provided he is on his game, there is no amateur in this country capable of playing the course in lower figures. His 69 at Montclair recently is a sample of what this remarkable golfer is capable.

Then there is H. Chandler Egan, no longer a college boy, to be sure, though fully as brilliant a player as when he won the national title in 1904 and 1905. One has only to watch Egan play and note the easy grace with which he sweeps the ball away, to become imbued with the belief that he is in a class by himself. But like all great players, especially the long drivers, Egan occasionally gets off the line, and in these days of up-to-date side traps, such as appear at Garden City, that means serious trouble.

What Eben M. Byers, the 1906 champion, will do, is largely a matter of conjecture. He unquestionably has been playing better golf this season than last, driving a long, straight ball and putting in deadly fashion. His temperament is a handicap, however, for if things don't go right, he is apt to sulk. Even though Douglas has failed to win a tournament since his success at Lakewood in the early spring, the far-driving Scot is without doubt playing better than ever. He also likes Garden City.

But after all is said and done about youngsters and veterans, champions past and present, the "one best bet" looks like the redoubtable Travis, who is quietly waiting on his own stamping ground for that eventful week in September. It was at Garden City, back in 1900, that Travis won his first national title. He says himself that he is playing four strokes better today than when he won the British title at Sandwich in 1904. It has been figured that in the thirty-six-hole matches that are to prevail in the coming championship Travis yill have a four-stroke advantage over all others.

TRENTON IS ANXIOUSLY AWAITING THE PROBERS.

Subpoenas were issued yesterday in Trenton in connection with the excise inquisition to be opened in Trenton next Monday morning.

An effort is being made to secure the Assembly chamber, at the State house, for the hearings, and it is thought the arrangements will be completed in time for the summons to be served this afternoon. Those to be called before the commissioners include practically all the city and county officials having the remotest authority regarding the enforcement of existing laws. Particularly those having to do with matters of excise are to be examined, and the members of the commission declare there will be some startling revelations.

Mayor Madden, the city Excise Board, City Clerk Salter, County Clerk Robbins, Sheriff Wilbur, the police commissioners, Chief of Police Hiner and the captains of the two police districts are among the number whose appearance sumsummonses are already in shape. Secret agents for the inquisitors have been in the city for several weeks, and the evidence they have amassed is looked upon by the probers as exceptionally sensational.

Owing to the immense amount of work still ahead of the investigators, they will hold morning, afternoon and evening sessions until the local witnesses are examined. Summonses were served today upon the authorities of Burlington and Hunterdon counties, who will follow Trenton in giving an account of how excise matters are conducted in those localities.

JERSEY NAVAL RESERVE GUNNERS FINISH THIRD.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 15.—A wireless message from the United States steamer Prairie, at Gardiner's Bay, Long Island, Wednesday night, says:

The record target work on the various battalions of the naval militia now in rendezvous in Gardiner's Bay was finished this afternoon as soon as the New York State men completed their work with the three-inch rifle. The records show the New Yorkers far in the lead of their nearest competitors. The record follows:

New York, 8.18 hits per minute.
Maine, 6.38 hits per minute.
New Jersey, 4.71 hits per minute.
Rhode Island, 4.30 hits per minute.
Connecticut, 3.04 hits per minute.
Massachusetts, 3.04 hits per minute.

The highest record for an individual gun captain was made by C. F. Purdy, of the Third Division, Fifth Battalion, New York, whose score of 13.04 shots per minute, is said here not to have been equalled on the Atlantic coast.

$21,419 DUTY ON PAINTING.

Famous Van Dyck, Bought by P. A. B. Widener, Invoiced at $125,000 in Philadelphia.

New York, Aug. 15.—The famous Van Dyck recently purchased in Paris by Peter A. B. Widener, and one of the most valuable works of art in the world, was passed at the customhouse Wednesday and delivered at Elkins' Park for examination by critics before final acceptance. According to the sworn invoice the price paid was $125,000, and the government exacted duty to the amount of $21,419.20.

The painting was for years part of the Cataneo collection in Italy, but was purchased by a French syndicate, which sold it to Mr. Widener. It is about ten feet high and seven feet wide and is said to be in excellent condition, despite its age and the perils of ocean transportation.

"BIG STICK" FOR BRYAN."

Nebraska Farmers Present Gourd and Campaign Contribution to Him.

Fairview, Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 15.—Several hundred farmers from Otoe county, Neb., headed by H. H. Hanks, of Nebraska City, who came to Lincoln to attend the notification ceremonies, rode out to Fairview yesterday and presented the Democratic nominee with a "big stick" gourd. They also handed him a campaign contribution of $50 subscribed by fifty of their number.

In accepting the gourd and the contribution, Mr. Bryan assured his visitors that if elected to the Presidency the "big stick" would not be in evidence, believing it was easier to lead people through their love than to control them through their fears.

Alleged Firebugs Held in Belvidere.

Two men, charged with arson, are lodged in the county jail at Belvidere to await the action of the grand jury They are each charged with having set fire to a barn. One of the prisoners was seen hurrying away from one of the fires. They both deny their guilt. William Van Kirk, a farmhand, is charged with having set fire to the barn of Constable Jacob B. Beck, of Knowlton. Andrew Berry, of Hope, who was relased from jail a few days ago because of some irregularity in the commitment papers, is again a prisoner here. He is charged with burning the barn of Mrs. Alice Blaine.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The Baltimore Sun, the leading Democratic newspaper of Maryland, and one of the foremost Democratic papers of the South, has come out strongly in support of Taft for President. In 1896 The Sun antagonized Bryan and the free-silver movement, but in 1900 it supported Bryan and made a good fight for him, but failed to hold the conservative element of the Democratic party in line in Maryland for him.

Before a big audience at the Epworth League assembly Wednesday night at Lincoln, Neb., Senator Robert M. La Follette expressed great admiration and friendship for William J. Bryan, while insisting that he himself was a Republican. The fight against the railroads to secure lower rates and no discriminations, he said, had been started in the seventies by Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota. These policies, he added, were not the product of the minds of either Bryan or Roosevelt. A man in the audience accused La Follette of being a Democrat, but he denied it. The Senator spoke for some time about the Aldrich-Vreeland currency act, which he denounced as viscous. After he had read the Senate roll call vote on this measure, showing that Senator Burkett voted for it, and Senator Brown against it, some one in the audience asked: "What was the matter with Burkett?" "You will have to decide that for yourself, my friend," was the reply. "I simply give you the facts. You will have to draw your own conclusions."

Acting under instructions of the executive committee of the American Federation of Labor, Samuel Gompers has issued an appeal to "organized labor and friends in the United States," to contribute to the Bryan campaign fund. This leaves no doubt that Gompers' endorsement of the Democratic ticket is in accordance with the Federation's wishes.

Governor Campbell has been renominated by the Texas Democratic State convention. The legislature of Texas to meet in January next is pledged to submit a prohibition amendment to the constitution to be voted upon at a special election in 1909. The members of party are to be left free to vote for or against the amendment without calling into question their Democracy.

Chicken Owners Must Pay Tax.

The Board of Health of Bayonne has decided to tax chicken owners $1 and wagons collecting fat from butchers will be taxed $5. Commissioner Benson said that it would be only a matter of a short time before the keeping of chickens, cows and all fowl would be prohibited in the city.

ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS.

Plainfield, N. J., August 15, 1908.

HANDWRITING ON THE WALL.

To again nominate Charles N. Fowler for Congress, in the light of past performances, means that the Republican party will run the risk of seeing a Democrat represent the Fifth district at Washington.

Where in Union county is there a man who will say that Mr. Fowler is the choice of the masses of Republican voters? Where in Union county is there a man who would say that Mr. Fowler would be elected, were James E. Martine, a most radical Democrat, to be named again as his oponent?

Mr. Fowler is not popular with the Republicans in Plainfield. He is not popular with the Republicans of Union county. He is not popular with the Republicans of the Fifth district. A hasty perusal of the last Congressional election returns will amply demonstrate these assertions.

There are many big men in this district who are of Congressional calibre; men who would well and faithfully represent this district and who would be a help rather than a drawback to a ticket in a Presidential year. There is one man in Plainfield, whom we have in mind particularly. There are others in the vicinity and Morris county has a number also. So has Warren.

As an independent newspaper, with "no axes to grind," we warn the Republican party in the Fifth Congressional district that it invites defeat if it again nominates Charle Newall Fowler.

—On Tuesday Neuman Brothers will receive another shipment of Hunterdon county peaches. The fruit will be fine and the prices lower than today.

—The following have been placed in positions in New York city during the past week by the Plainfield Business College: Eleanor Craft, of Whitehouse, as stenographer with the Light Publishing Company; Eleanor Gulberg, in the office of the St. John Company on Leonard street; Laura Tanthum, with Wilkin's Commission House, on Harrison street.

"A Place for You."

Fifth of a Series on Heaven by

REV. DR. CHARLES E. HERRING

"A place for you." That is what your Lord says about your future. It is not somebody else's place that you are to occupy in the other world, but just your place, the place adapted to your need, the place which will satisfy your individual requirements, and in which you will be supremely happy. Our Lord knew the individual needs of His disciples. There were twelve of them. They were of such varied temperaments that they seemed a miniature world. The heaven He would prepare for them must be as different as they were: or they never would be satisfied;—and, if for them, for us, too; for the Bible was written for our inspiration, and one of the fundamental revelations of our Lord was that the human soul is of infinite value in the sight of God. He taught men that God cares as much for one soul as though He had no other care; He values each man's individuality, and our Lord declares that each man's individuality will persist in the next world, for, in that world, you will simply be yourself.

A Brahman of India believes that he will live hereafter, but that his individuality will be lost. He thinks of his life here as a bubble on the great ocean of existence. The bubble is individualized for the moment, but death breaks the bubble and the individual man is lost in this great ocean.

That is not the Lord's message to men. He declares that the angels rejoice over one soul that decides for God. The angels know the eternal value of a single soul in the sight of God. That thought satisfies you as nothing else does. You would not change your identity with the richest and most favored of earth, for you would rather be yourself in eternity when you know that within you there is the possibility of indefinite improvement. Death will be like going to sleep and waking up in the morning.

The interment of a man's mortal remains does not destroy his individuality; we never bury our friends, we bury their bodies. The body is the organ of a man, as a machine is the organ of a dynamo. You can detach the machine but you have not thereby destroyed the dynamo. That can still be attached to another machine. The individual is not dead because you have buried his body.

Someone said when asked about his thought of another life: "I feel as if I am walking on a plank that reaches out into the fog, and I have got to keep walking. I can see ten feet ahead of me possibly. I know that pretty soon I shall reach the end of the plank; perhaps tonight, perhaps next week, perhaps in twenty years. I know not when, and I have not the slighest idea into what. I don't believe anybody else does and I don't like it."

Why does he not like it? Because he longs for the persistence of his individual life. He makes a mistake, however, in saying that nobody else has an idea of the future. The Lord knew and therefore said: "Let not your heart be troubled—I go to prepare a place for you."

Dr. Maudsley when asked his opinion as to personal immortality replied: "As I look over the world and see, not the kind of people we create as ideals, but people as they really are, all the way from bushmen and tramps clear up to the common kind of millionaire, I cannot make it seem worth while on the part of the universe to keep them."

At first sight, it does not seem worth while, but think it over. It may be, as Dr. Savage says: "Some of the millionaires as well as some of the tramps may have germs of possibility within them that some day will come to something really worth while to keep." This is what the Lord teaches us. It is not what a man is,—even the commonest kind of man—but what he may become that He sees, and He sees as man can never see. It hath not yet been manifested what we shall be.

"Death," says Herder, "will burst the bonds of limitation and then God will transplant us like flowers, into quite other fields and surround us with entirely different circumstances. Who has not experienced what new faculties are given to the soul by a new situation; faculties which in our old corner, in the stifling atmosphere of old circumstances and occupations we had never imagined ourselves capable of."

How different this conception of the future from that of the old Greeks and Romans;—the future world was not a very desirable place for them. The future was a shadowy world, where the athlete lost his power and friendship possessed no reality. In this shadowy world men lived in memories of the past and knew not what was going on in the world above. In the odyssey, Ulysses thus addresses Achilles, "As for thee, Archilles, no man lived before thy time nor will hereafter live more fortunate than thou, for while above, we honored thee as if thou wert a god now in these abodes than art ruler of the dead," and Achilles responded: "I would be a laborer on earth and serve for hire some man of mean estate, than reign over all who have gone down to death."

Contrast that with the way Christ glorified death. Death to Him was a portal to a larger life—a life perfectly adapted to each individual taste. Think, then, of all that Christ means to you individually. Paul said of Him that "He brought life and immortality to light." He alone revealed your eternal individual value. You are one in a multitude; but you are as much his care as though naught else existed, and He thinks so much of you individually, that He is preparing "a place for you." What are you doing to prepare yourself for the place?

BEING PRETTY IS NOT EVERYTHING.

Miss Mollie Williams, who plays Anna Held in "The Passing Review," under the management of Jack Singer, in a recent interview said: "At the start of an actress' career it probably is an advantage to an actress to be pretty, more especially if she is going to play in musical comedy; but it is possible that subsequently she may find her beauty a drawback. She may rely too much on her apeparance to win her the success that can really only be attained by excessively hard work. A very pretty girl sometimes secures an engagement so easily that she imagines all she has to do is simply to put on a pretty dress and smile sweetly at the audience. Big salaries are, however, not earned in this easy going fashion. An audience will not pardon stupidity in an actress because she has a pretty face. A pretty actress sometimes runs the risk of her chances of success in her profession being spoiled by too much admiration. You see it cannot be easy for an actress to devote all her attention to playing her part properly when she knows that some dozen men, each of whom wants to marry her, are seated in the front row of the orchestra watching her every movement with the greatest admiration. Do not think I am speaking from personal experience. If, however, a girl is clever and works hard she wil certainly find the possession of an attractive exterior an advantage; the disadvantage of being pretty disappear if an actress does not get the idea into her head that her beauty alone will bring her success, for most assuredly it never will."

Thomas M. Muir, of The Daily Press staff, returned home last night after a vacation trip to Boston and other cities in New England.

George Harper, of Front street, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Harper, at Southhold, L. I.

The encouraging sign of prosperity have not struck town as yet. The Harper mill is shut down indefinitely and the Seeley mill is still working five days a week.

The work of macadamizing Terrill road has been started, a large gang of men working between Second and Front streets.

Mrs. Brown, of Bristol, Conn., has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walpole, of Front street.

The local ball team is playing the West Ends at Somerville this afternoon.

Miss Sadie Lee has returned from a visit with relatives at Raritan.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The annual Catholic picnic to be held this evening bids fair to be even a greater success than that of last year. Elaborate preparations have been completed, and several of the orders connected with the Plainfield Catholic churches are expected to take part in the occasion. Stages will run from Summerset street, Plainfield, to the picnic grounds at short intervals, from 6:30 p. m. until midnight. The proceeds will go towards the building fund.

The pulpit of the Stelton Baptist church will be occupied by the Rev. C. W. F. Attlee Sunday. The Ordinance of Believers Baptism will be observed at the morning service.

Miss Mildred Johnson will lead the Christian Endeavor meeting at the Baptist church tomorrow evening and will take for her subject "Lessons from the Sea."

The South Plainfield ball team will play the married men on the local diamond this evening.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Mrs. Margaret Dealaman and children and Miss Josephine Dealaman are expected home from a week's sojourn at Asbury Park tonight.

Walter Haselton and W. E. Terry are on an extended southern business trip, which will keep them absent from town for several weeks.

Rev. George H. Gardner, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, preached at the Harvard church, Boston, Mass., this morning.

Rev. Henry N. Jordan will preach at the First Baptist church tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

Miss Margaret Beaufort, of Baltimore, Md., is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Robert E. Wood.

Miss Mona Roskell is able to be about again after a week's illness.

REFERRED TO ROOSEVELT.

("I am not a politician"—Excise Prober Fisk.)

When Chief Excise Prober Fisk
Declares in manner brisk
He really never was a politician,
I wonder if he thinks
We'e so troubled with the blinks
We should seek the services of his optician.
Mister Fisk's no politician,
He only has a mission
To raise us common pee-pul (when he can).
He's martyr, quite, for fair
Not a politician rare—
He's just a simple officeholding man.

Nope! You shouldn't say he's just a politician,
He disputes the fact and doesn't show contrition.
He may have private wealth
And hold office for his health,
But, remember, Mayor Fisk's no politician.

No gum shoes wears Mayor Fisk;
He wouldn't take that risk
Of acting like a politician does;
And the Plainfield mayor, he Has never heard a Bee
Come alluring him to office, with its buzz.
Where the excise probers' chief
Obtained his own belief—
He's not a politician—no one knows;
And maybe he opines
That the watermelon vines
Grow best somewhere in Iceland when it snows.

Nope! You shouldn't say he's just a politician;
He says he ain't. It's all a supposition;
To the Annanias club
For the mutt, likewise the dub,
Who risks that Mayor Fisk's a politician.

point, preferably near the present station, and these tracks be used exclusively for excursion trains to load passengers in due form, giving proper time and facilities for such purpose, and these terminal tracks be protected by fences and gates with proper officials in charge, and with proper signs designating the destination and time of each excursion. These terminal tracks could be located on both sides of the main tracks and proper tunnels under the road bed, so that people would not have to cross the tracks and that there would be no cross-overs for trains to make.

"I am taking the liberty of submitting a sketch, which to my mind would be the basis of some such arrangement, and I am not taking into consideration anything except that the proper handling of crowds to secure them from danger, is the paramount feature of Asbury Park and other places of this kind. I think we have a right to look for this as we go out and undertake the handling of these crowds for the benefit of your railroad as much as for ourselves. We gather together large sums of money, in this instance nearly eight hundred dollars was paid to you by our committee, and this should insure every possible accommodation, inasmuch as the same thing is repeated several times during the season by the people of this community. I request your consideration of these matters in behalf of our committee, and I am sure that by placing it in your hands, that it will come to the attention of the proper people in due course, and will get the best results that is in the power of your company to extend. We think that you should co-operate with the people who have to deal with these crowds, and get their views as to what would best suit them rather than construct facilities which are of a more temporary or inadequate nature.

"The same conditions that exist at Asbury Park exist at Plainfield. Women and children are brought to the station amid crowds of regular passengers, several trains pass through and scarcely one of the above know for whence they are bound or when the excursion trains comes along. Consequently there is a danger here. On Thursday morning last a local train passed through this crowd of people on the outside track nearest the platform, some persons standing within a foot of the moving train, and scarcely an officer in charge. For the Plainfield end I would suggest that permanent platforms be located away from the station for the loading and unloading of excursionists. A sketch herewith submitted would show one way to do it.

"Another season should not pass until these dangers will have been minimized to such an extent that only the grossest negligence would result in injury to any person patronizing your road in these occasions."

of my friend, Dr. Kemble, temporarily. I can tell you, to be practically imprisoned in these club rooms is far from pleasant, and you can realize my state of mind after spending so much time behind prison bars.

"I think that after having paid the penalty that was imposed upon me, I should be allowed a chance to rise up from the 'de profundis' where I was, and to begin life all over anew, and to do a man's work in this life. One thing that has been a source of continued distress to me has been the uninterrupted unkind criticism of the press, but one of the several things I have learned during my intense agony has been to be forgiving, having been so misjudged myself, I hesitate to misjudge others. All I ask is for a chance to rise and measure up to the full stature of a man."

Speaks Bitterly of Wife.

Cordova spoke bitterly about his wife, but showed he was devoted to his children. He said he did not want to see his former friends who deserted him, and declared he had but few true friends this side of the Mexican line.

When Cordova looked from the Press Club window and discovered about a dozen newspapermen and photographers waiting below he said: "To think that America is a free country, and yet a man can be persecuted by his fellow being right in the open. Even an appeal to the police for protection would be without avail, as those fellows down there wouldn't hesitate at anything even if a regiment of soldiers was protecting me."

Last Excursion to the Shore.

The last excursion from this city to Asbury Park will be that of Warren chapel on Thursday, August 20, and it promises to be one of the largest and best of the season. The train will leave Plainfield at 8:15 o'clock in the morning and returning leave the shore at 6:10 o'clock in the evening. Plan to go and have a good time as this will be your only chance for an excursion to the Park this year.

Among the recent arrivals registered at the Beach House, Sea Girt, are Mr. and Mrs. George M. Holstein, of Watchung avenue.

THE FORUM.

Fire Houses Lashed.

Editor, The Daily Press:

As a lover of fine horseflesh I would like to utter a protest against the senseless use of the whip by the driver of the hook and ladder in going to last evening's fire.

An examination of the horse after it had reached the fire showed long streaked marks where it had been repeatedly lashed by the driver. None of the horses on any of the other trucks bore any such marks, and from what I can learn the hook and ladder pair are fast and in every way satisfactory.

Had we a strong S. P. C. A. in Plainfield I am sure that they would take action in the matter.

Can you spare an old reader these few lines for a righetous protest?

FARMERS AT SCHOOL.

300 Attend Field Day of Board of Agriculture.

About 300 farmers attended the field day of the New Jersey State Board of Agriculture at the State college farm at New Brunswick yesterday. The visitors inspected the farm and were told by Professor E. B. Voorhees, director of the college farm, that they should send their sons and daughters to the short courses in agriculture which are now provided free by the State.

In speaking of the possibilities of advancement under education Professor Voorhees said that, in 1896, when the college farm became a part of the New Jersey Experiment Station, it was yielding one ton of timothy to the acre. Today the average production is two and one-half tons, due chiefly to keeping the soil constantly in use.

Speeches were made by Franklin Dye, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture; Professor K. C. Davis, the new principal of the short courses; Dr. Lipman, soil bacteriologist; Mr. Blake, of the horticultural department, and F. C. Minkler, secretary of the Live Stock Commission.

F. E. Smith and family, of West Fourth street, are at "The Carlisle," Fourth avenue, Asbury Park, for three weeks.

WHAT WE MUST LOOK LIKE NOW.

A corset establishment in Paris is making a corset cut very low beneath the waist, so that from the bust downward the silhouette of the figure appears absolutely straight. The waist line vanishes; the hips are deprived of contour; the bust no longer exists. Having prohibited the graceful outline of the figure, usually so carefully preserved, the body is swathed in fabric, literally wound round and round it from under the arms to the hips.

Below the hips the material is arranged without a wrinkle, so tightly that tthe wearer thereof can only shuffle in her movements, after which once more several draperies are introduced, so that about the foot there are multitudes of folds, calculated still further to impede easy and natural progress. So madame or madamoiselle is swathed exactly as are the little babies of Della Robbia one sees all over Florence and Italy. No doubt the corset makers got their ideas from these pictures and casts.

If it is found to be impossible to make the waist of the same measurement as the hips, the corset is actually padded to add inches to the circumference of the waist—an extraordinary reversal of the usual order of procedure. The woman, therefore, with nothing to commend her in a race for beauty except a large waist, possessing neither bust nor hips, will surely win in these times when all that is natural and full of bent on painting cadaverous women with necks half a yard long, the couturiers are now becoming morbid and seeking only what seems to fascinate a sickly imagination.

The flowing skirt of liberty, meteor, merveilleuse or crepe de chine—these fabrics are employed because of their clinging qualities—need some repressing influence to draw them down and keep the folds in place and grasping the form close. Every dressmaker has his own method of securing the required result, some by ribbon ties, others by loops of elastic attached to the ankles.

PREPARE TO HAVE WINTER PARSLEY.

Parsley started outdoors in the summer, and covered with straw or other protection in late November, will be ready to pick at the end of March, and will continue to be good until seed planted in early spring is ready for picking in June, says Suburban Life. Parsley seed is very slow to germinate, but it may be hastened by soaking for a few hours in warm water before planting. The latter will keep up the supply until late fall, when it can be potted and broguht in, after cutting back he foliage, to be treated like any other house plant. The best plants result from occasional transplanting and frequent cutting back, but all the leaves must not be removed at one time or the plant will die. This will be in fine shape till the outdoor supply is in condition, the following spring, thus giving parsley the year round.

Besides potting parsley roots there are two other ways of preparing it for winter use. One is to dry it. The whole plant is pulled up and hung in a dry place. For seasoning this is just as good as the fresh leaves. Or it can be pickled.

The cookbook gives the following rule: "Select perfectly curly heads of parsley, wash thoroughly in salt water, drain and shake till dry. Put into jars of cold vinegar, and to each quart allow two tablespoonfuls of chopped horseradish. Cover and stand away for winter use. This is especially nice in winter as a garnish for various dishes.

ALWAYS KEEP ABSORBENT COTTON.

Antiseptic cotton, besides being a toilet necessity, is used in many different ways in the home. Its absorbent qualities are excellent for any kind of skin washing that requires particular care. For instance, when the face is in an irritated condition after burning from the sun a pad of cotton is a much softer agent with which to apply healing lotions and much surface dust can also be removed with it without reddening the skin—a fact worth remembering when it is necessary to bathe the neck or face and dress quickly for dinner.

An antiseptic wash is almost essential for the mouth if the teeth are to be kept in a healthy condition. Very great damage is done to them by natural secretions, and while bicarbonate of soda in solution, used as a wash, is a preservative, something stronger is necessary. For instance, a very weak mixture of carbolic acid, perhaps a grain to a pint of water, is one of the simplest and most efficacious lotions that can be employed and is cooling and refreshing in effect. To use it, rinse the mouth after rushing the teeth. It is a poison if taken internally.

To Remove a Cinder.

If one gets a cinder in the eye and has not an eye-cup at hand to use, the offending particle may generally be removed by rolling up a piece of paper like a lamplighter, wetting the tip and going after the cinder with it. A medicine dropper, too, may be used to advantage, if available. Never rub the eye in which the cinder is; a gentle rubbing of the other toward the nose may start action in the tear ducts and carry off the particle.

Make Use of Old Paint.

Paint that has partially dried is covered with a hardened scum which cannot be dissolved for future use. Instead of trying to dissolve it stir the ingredients together and place the can in a pan of moderately warm water to thin the contents. Get a clean can, cover with an old piece of screen wire and strain the paint through it. It will catch all scum and leave the paint free from all rough sediment.

Won the Money.

"Come now, Pat," said a Cockney tourist to an Irish peasant whom he had encountered in Connemara. "I'll give you a soverign if you tell a bigger lie than you ever told before."

"Faith, sir, you're a real gentleman," Pat responded, and the company unanimously declared the sovereign earned.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"I REMEMBER."

I remember, I remember,
The house where I was born,
And all the old, back-breaking stunts
I did in early morn.
I remember, I remember,
The musty, dusty mows,
Where I would climb to pitch down hay,
For thirty-seven cows!"

I remember, I remember,
The 'tater-patch I "bugged;"
The buck-saw and the old sawbuck,
And all the wood I lugged.
I remember, I remember,
The grindstone that I'd turn,
Ere mother rushed me in the house
To wrestle with the churn!

I remember, I remember,
The plows, the drags, the hoes,
And how I used to follow up
The long, weed-smothered rows.
I remember, I remember,
The corn-hills I would greet (And later rub the ointment on The corns upon my feet!)

I remember, I remember,
The blazing, scorching sun
The callouses upon my hands
Ere working hours were done.
I remember, I remember,
The long, unending day,
And how I nearly broke my back
While pitching loads of hay!

TRIMMED BANDS OF VELVET ARE POPULAR.

The band of black velvet, which is again so popular, is sometimes adorned by cunningly devised embroidery, which adds color to the somber black.

Often the band is decorated with a trailing vine with tiny blue or pink flowers; then, again, it is adorned with a design worked out in beads of glass and china.

When milady is in mourning she wears a taffeta band embroidered in dull jet beads. For evening wear the velvet band may be embroidered with rhinestones. For afternoon dresses light glass beads or ribbon are artistically arranged upon the velvet.

Of course, the colors, when there are any, should always match the dress or the trimming thereof, unless the dress be white. Then the imagination may be put into play to devise a combination of beautiful ...stel shades.

LACE ON ALL THINGS.

Prominent among the most fascinating productions of the present season are the dainty lace coats, which are so delightfully cool for summer wear, and which seem, moreover, to boast a distinctive charm of their own, possibly, no doubt, because of the undoubtedly beauty of the fabric of which they are composed.

Lace stands alone in its unapproachable loveliness, and to its many other virtues it adds that of being always in good taste, at all events where carriage coats and evening wraps are concerned. It stands to reason, for instance, that the smartest and most elaborate gowns in silk, linon, or crepe de chine, mousseline or chiffon, resplendent with embroideries, are only rendered doubly attractive by having their charms temporarily and partly concealed by a beautiful lace coat.

Carried out in ivory-white duchesse lace, with an elaborate applique design, worked on a ground of the finest Brussels net or in Irish crochet, this coat is lined with chiffon, printed with a faint design of mauve and white lilac, and clusters of roses in the palest shade of pink. This lovely lining is visible only when the coat is thrown open in front, as the color is too faint to show through the lace itself. Many prefer it unlined.

A very dainty and effective trimming formed of a wide bouillonnee of white Oriental satin, passes down the sides mousseline de soie, piped with white and front of the coat, and also around the hem, above a flounce of lace, softened the the edge wiwth frills of accordion-pleated chiffon, and finished here and there with chiffon choux.

The cape sleeves are trimmed in the same way with mousseline de soie and satin. A large collar is arranged so hat it comes to a point in the centre of the back, where it has something the appearance of a hood, and where it is bordered with full frills of fine Brussels point, a contrast in dentelle which is most effective. In black lace of a similar kind, lined first with white chiffon, and then arranged over white Oriental satin, this would also make a charming wrap.

DRESSING THE SMALL GIRL.

A stock of aprons, both plain ones for morning wear and pretty ones for afternoons, should be included in every small girl's outfit. They will be found a great economy in many ways.

Aprons cost comparatively little to make, and save dainty "best" frocks from spots of all kinds, while an old and rather dingy frock is immediately quite pretty by an apron of fine lawn or spotted muslin.

In Germany all schoolgirls wear—during lesson time—an all-enveloping apron of black alpaca, and although this may not be exactly bright or pretty for a young child, it has the great advantage of protecting the frock beneath from inkmarks etc., and the child returns from school as neat as when she left home several hours before.

The fashion of wearing the hair dangling over the eyes is not a good one, and many a squint—which develops as the child gets older—can be traced to this cause.

Curls and bows dangling all round the head give a small girl a self-conscious feeling.

It is a noticeable fact that most of the girl scholars who attend the large schools abroad wear their hair neatly plaited and fastened with a bow of ribbon at the base of the tail.

This keeps the hair out of the way when lessons are in progress and is far cooler in summer than having it hanging about the face and neck. It is also an additional safeguard in mny ways.

HOW TO START ROSES FROM CUTTINGS.

Women who like to experiment with roses should beg cuttings from some of their friend's best rose bushes and see what luck they have.

Oddly enough this seems to be one of the forms of gardening in which "the lucky finger" plays an important part.

Women have often written me that they take no further trouble about propagating than to break off a branch of a rose bush, stick it in good sod in the garden, cover with a glass jar and in a few weeks have a strong little plant.

A somewhat surer way is to fill a shallow box, a cheese bos will answer, with sharp sand well packed down. Into this put rose cuttings with a single joint bud and leaf. Insert them almost their full length in the sand and pack it firmly about the stems.

Set the box in a larger vessel containing water, and support it so that the water reaches about a half inch of its depth. Put this dish in a sunny place and watch that the water does not sink below the cutting box and let the sand dry out.

In about three weeks the cuttings will be rooted enough to transplant into tiny pots. o leave them longer in the sand is weakening.

Economy.

"Is your wife economical?" asked the intrusive questioner.

"In some respects," answered Mr. Meekton. "She doesn't believe in wasting money on cigars or expensive lunches or baseball tickets, or a number of other articles that I might mention."—Washington Star.

BETTER THAN THE CIGARETTE.

Medical Man Recommends Chewing of Peppermint as Cure for Habit.

If you have a boy who has begun smoking too early, and whom you wish to cure of the habit, feed him peppermints. Dr. O. Clayton Jones of Silverton, Eng., writing in the London Lancet, is authority for this simple cure. Dr. Jones writes:

"To break the cigarette habit in a youth there is nothing better than peppermint drops. He cannot smoke with a 'bull's eye' in his mouth, and even for some time after it is dissolved tobacco will not blend kindly with the taste that remains. Socially the cure may seem worse than the disease, but from a medical point of view the sucking of peppermints is far less hurtful. A common 'bull's eye' will prevent smoking for nearly an hour, so the amount of sweets used need not be great. It would be a good plan to insist upon the youth who will smoke making his own cigarettes without the aid of a machine."

HAD AT LEAST ALL THE WORDS.

Absent-Minded Minister Substituted Dictionary for Sermon.

The minister was hurrying toward his church, the Sunday morning's service being near, when he was accosted by one of his congregation, whom, in his haste, he had just passed without recognizing.

"We are anticipating an extra fine sermon this morning," said this parishioner, after the first greetings.

"Well, I hope I shall fulfill your expectations," warmly replied the clergyman, smiling. "You see I've my sermon under my arm, as usual!"

"That!" uttered the layman, indicating a big black volume which the preacher carried with him.

"Yes," rejoined the minister, taking out the book. "I—By George!" he then ejaculated, abruptly turning back. "I've brought my dictionary instead!"

Burden of Overeducation.

Is it not ascertaining how to make the best of one's powers, how to arrange one's stores, how to exert a sweet, quiet and fragrant influence throughout life, over all whom one meets? If an advanced education does this for one, then it is the education one should seek, declares a writer in the Woman's Home Companion. Our difficulty is that we cannot allow time enough for seed time and harvest. Mothers are in despair if daughters occasionally drop out of school for six months or a year. We are much too apt to insist on putting all our children, irrespective of their natural bent, through the same educational factory. We do not make sufficient allowance for temperament and tendency, and thus it comes to pass that some of us carry burdens, beneath the weight of which we are crushed.

Not Altogether True.

More than half of the several hundred people taking the courses at Lowell institute under Harvard professors, says a Boston paper, are women, and these courses require an attendance three times a week. And wherever one goes the same thing is true, only as a general thing the proportion of women in such classes would be greater than one-half. This does not look as though women were wasting all their energies in the "debauch of whist." Lots of women play whist and bridge, but it is generally when there is nothing else to do and the mind needs rest from more arduous labors. The majority of bridge players prefer men partners, so that one sex spends about as much time as the other over cards.

Heavy Weights.

"What are those you are storing away in the basket?" asked the man in front of the gas works.

"The biscuits my wife baked this morning," replied the celebrated balloonist.

"Ah! You are going on a long journey and expect to use them as food?"

"No; I am going to use them as ballast. They are heavier than sand."

Doms and Dreadnoughts.

The church having raised 2,000,000 sterling in bygone centuries, built therewith the magnificent Dom of Cologne, which has been a source of inspiration, writes William Stead, in Review of Reviews. The state now spends its 2,000,000 on a Dreadnought, which becomes obsolete in 20 years.

Needed Two.

"Sometimes," said the love-lorn youth as he gazed at the moon, "I feel as though I could live on kisses alone."

"How funny!" laughed the witty girl.

"What's funny?"

"Why, if you lived alone, where would you get the kisses?"

Six Months to Make a Carpet.

There has been placed in the sanctuary of the high altar at Westminster (Eng.) Roman Catholic cathedral a large carpet from Smyrna which, on account of its size—32 feet long by 12 feet wide—had to be specially made in Turkey, the work taking six months to complete.

Stuffing the Box.

"Of course," the British tourist was saying, "I understand that the winning party at your elections is the one that gets out the most voters."

"Not at all," replied the native; "it's the party that puts in the most votes."—The Catholic Standard of Times.

HAIR BEST PHYSICAL INDEX.

Japanese Physician Explains His Theory on the Subject.

Modern medical men declare that the finger nails afford better evidence as to the state of a person's health than the eye or the color or texture of the skin. A very distinct gloss and a rapid growth of the nail are always, they declare, symptomatic of good circulation, digestion and general health. Dr. Matsura, the well-known physician of Tokyo, while admitting the claims of the finger nail to be an index of the health, prefers that of the hair as indicating better than anything else loss and gain in physical well being.

He has established from his observation that the hair grows less in volume in proportion as the health declines. He has even measured the extent of the decline by observing the decrease in the diameter of a series of hairs. Baldness, Matsura, following his theory, declares to be due really to a constitutional weakness which does not, however, always actively declare itself even to the victim. He claims for the result of his investigations that if they do not necessarily serve the interests of pathological science, they cannot but prove valuable in the case of post-mortem examinations, inasmuch as they can decide as to the deceased person's state of health just before death.

GIVE HUSBAND WHAT HE LIKES.

New York Writer Expatiates on the Duty of a Wife.

A woman, discussing how to feed a husband, said she soon cured her husband of fussiness and faddiness about his food. She said that he had to take what he could get.

Now, why should he? His work and money buy every scrap of food which enters the home. It is the husband's right that he should have the food he likes best, properly cooked and served on the table he bought, in the house whose rent he pays, by the wife to whom he gives a housekeeping allowance as a trust fund.

He strives his very best to support his family in comfort and some degree of luxury. His wife should strive her very best to lay out the money he intrusts her with so as to secure health, happiness, and content in the home.

It is a very clear bargain between husband and wife. If a man is "grumpy" at meals there's usually something the matter with the meals. The sourest-tempered male begins to smile when the savory scent of an appetizing dish rises like incense before the altar of his appetite.

Kisses and sentiment do not compensate a man for poor cooking and monotonous catering.—New York Times.

The Mathematical Mind.

A literary worker who wished to do a large amount of reading by proxy advertised for an assistant capable of digesting the contents of a tremendous quantity of books in a very short while. While weighing each applicant's qualifications for rapid, assimilative reading he inquired carefully into his mathematical acquirements. Finally he chose the man who was most skilful at untangling arithmetical problems.

"On the surface that seems an unnecessary accomplishment in this case," he said, "but experience has taught me that anybody who is expert in figures can read any kind of literature put before him with greater accuracy and speed than the person lacking in mathematical acumen."

Saved by Premonition of Danger.

Feeling a premonition that danger was threatening his parents, Jacob Fellman left Providence Square, Montgomery county, Pa., where he had been working. He walked six miles to Norristown, boarded a train and reached his parents' home, at 1533 Germantown avenue, just in time to save them from being burned to death. As he entered the house he heard an explosion, and, running upstairs, found his mother's room ablaze.

A lamp had exploded, and the burning oil spread the flames rapidly. Fellman carried his two sisters, Yetta and Molly, down stairs, while his mother took her five-months-old baby. Then Fellman turned in an alarm.

Toward the Simple Life.

I am strongly of opinion that the next great movement in the world of spiritual and moral reform will be the gospel of the simple life. We seem in some respects to have reached the stage in our habits and morals which was reached by Rome before the final decadence that led to the destruction of the mighty empire which she had created all over the then known world.—T. P. O'Connor, in T. P.'s Weekly.

His Conception of Art.

"That is my celebrated painting 'The Bullfight,'" said the great artist. "Do you admire it?"

"Well, I should say so," responded the visitor.

"Ah, I am glad that you are such an admirer of art."

"Yes, I was just thinking how many dozen juicy beefsteaks could be carved off that hefty bullock."

The Value of Statistics.

"So you think it is a good idea to give your audience much in the way of statistics?" asked one campaign orator.

"Not too much. Just enough to let him rest up and get a little hungry for another anecdote."

DO IT NOW.

Plainfield People Should Not Wait Until It Is Too Late.

The appalling death-rate from kidney disease is due in most cases to the fact that the little kidney troubles are usually neglected until they become serious. The slight symptoms give place to chronic disorders and the sufferer goes gradually into the grasp of diabetes, dropsy, Bright's disease, gravel or some other serious form or kidney complaint.

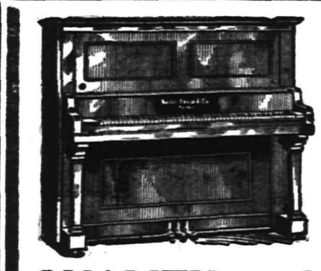
If you suffer from backache, headaches, dizzy spells; if the kidney secretions are irregular of passage and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. Help the kidneys at once.

Doan's Kidney Pils ar especially for kidneys disorders—they cure where others fail. Over one hundred thousand people have recommended them. Here's a case at home:

Albert Naylor, 519 East Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I was afflicted with a dull aching in the small of my back and sharp pains when I stooped or lifted. I was told that Doan's Kidney Pills were a sure cure for such troubles and getting a supply, I began their use. Two boxes fixed me up in good shape and I have often recommended the remedy since to other persons suffering as I did."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.



QUALITY and PRICE

The two vital questions in your piano purchase are, first, quality; second, price. An unsatisfactory piano, in tone and action, is the most annoying article you can have in your home. You dislike to be expending money on it continually to keep it in playing condition.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The latest musical tomfoolery, "The Passing Review," will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre on Friday, August 21. The organization which comprises some fifty artists is under the personal direction of Jack Singer. The book is by Aaron Hoffman, who is responsible for such successes as "Roger Bros. in Panama," "Playing the Ponies," "The End of the World" as played in "Wine, Woman and Song." The music is by Leo Edwards, who wrote "School Days." There is nothing which in the slightest degree might be classed as suggestive. The comedy is real comedy, and the choruses are choral. the ladies who take part in the show are noted for their beauty.

It is the general opinion of theatre-managers here and abroad that William A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer, with their list of ten big stars and of many successful plays, have made no more business-like or popular move than making a star of young Douglas Fairbanks, who will be seen next Monday night in the New Plainfield theatre in the principal role, Harold Jepson, of Rupert Hughes' new play, a society comedy called "All For a Girl." He will have the assistance of one of the most brilliant casts ever assembled in a play of this kind, it is promised. "All For a Girl" will be produced in the Bijou theatre, New York city, on Monday night, August 24, for a run of not less than ten weeks, and will then go on a tour of the principal cities.

Lovers of emotional drama will be interested in the announcement that an exceptionally adequate presentation of the favorite play, "East Lynne," will be given at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night by a company which has been selected with a view to the peculiar fitness of each member for the role assigned. Competent stage management will insure a smooth and harmonious performance and the scenic equipment and accessories will be fully up to the requirements.

A Cohan play, under the management of Cohan and Harris, is booked at the New Plainfield theatre for next Thursday night. It is a rural musical comedy of New England life and is said to be one of the best which clever George M. Cohan has written. The players who interpret the several roles are people with reputations for conscientious work. Joseph M. Sparks, for years leading comedian with May Irwin will appear in the role of "Harrigan," and his song, "Harrigan," has become one of the most popular hits of the day. Clever Suzanne Leonard Westford, sister of beautiful Lillian Russell, and one of the most prominent club women of the day, has the role of the village gossip, while dainty Hazel Lowry, as the village postmistress; Russel Pincus as the "fat boy;" Kathryn Perry, William Bentley, Charles Willard, Walter J. Richardson, Alf Helton, Thomas Emory, Ella Southern, Lester Templeton and Mae Helton are said to be happily placed.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Dumont, of Stelle avenue, are home from a trip abroad.

Miss Lydia Conover, of Somerville, is visiting Mrs. Jeremiah Dilts, of this city.

Mrs. Calvin Judson and daughter, Miss Mary Richardson Judson, are visiting Mrs. Judson's son, John B. M. Judson, of John street.

Mr. and Mrs. Elvain Van Name, of Madison avenue, who have been visiting relatives at Oswego, N. Y., are expected home about the first of September.

Borough Recorder and Mrs. Chas. M. Dolliver and daughter, of Fairview avenue, are on a farm at Belle Mead, Somerset county, for the balance of August. Mr. Dolliver will commute to Plainfield.

Mrs. Frederick Phillips, of West Front street, who has been detained at home by illness for many months, sprained her ankle a few days ago while trying to get about by the aid of crutches and her recovery has been impeded.

NEW THEATRE IN NEWARK.

Judging by the activity which prevails at the Lyric, the latest of new play houses of Newark, it is believed that the opening will take place in the very near future. September 19 is the date named for the opening according to the announcement made by the management.

The Lyric will be one of the finest theatres in the State and will be absolutely fire-proof; re-inforced concrete being used in all the interior. The floors, balcony, boxes and even the rails are of this material. The local firm of architects, Messrs. Backoff & Hughes, are responsible for the design and plan of construction.

The management is in the hands of William H. Currie, the well-known theatrical manager of New York. Mr. Currie was associated with the late and well-beloved Charles H. Hoyt, and later with George H. Broadhurst, the successful playwright and manager. Dr. Aaron P. Ordway, of New York, is the owner and builder of the Lyric.

The attractions are to be strictly high-class vaudeville booked by William Morris, the most popular vaudeville agent in New York. Mr. Morris represents only the higher class of vaudeville artists. An early attraction announced is Harry Lauder, the immovable Scotch comedian.

Rev. W. T. Dorward, of Stelton, will preach at the First Baptist church tomorrow morning and evening.

U. B. Crane will lead the W. C. T. U. gospel meeting tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

OBITUARY.

Chester LaRoy Vail.

Chester LaRoy Vail, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Vail, of 30 Norwood avenue, died yesterday after a short illness. The funeral will be private.

Alexander Flynn.

Alexander Flynn, aged thirty years, died at Muhlenberg Hospital, yesterday afternoon, from tubercular-meningitis with which he had been afflicted for several weeks. He was employed in this city as an agent for one of the local life insurance companies. He formerly boarded on Grove street, but the funeral will be held from the home of his sister, Mrs. George Boyer, 41 Mariners place, Monday morning and at 9 o'clock from St. Mary's church. Mr. Flynn is survived by five sisters, Mrs. George Boyer, Mrs. Edward McGinley, Mrs. John Degman, Mrs. William Reardon and Miss Anna Flynn and two brothers, John and William Flynn.

Mrs. Julia Barker Rushmore.

Mrs. Julia Barker Rushmore, mother of Edmund Rushmore of Sycamore avenue, the borough, and widow of J. Howard Rushmore, died this morning at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., following a long illness. Several years ago she lived in North Plainfield, but during the past ten years has made her home with her son, David Rushmore, at Schenestady, N. Y. On account of a long illness her death was not wholly unexpected. She was a communicant of the Episcopal church and attended the Church of the Holy Cross in the borough, when she lived here. The notice of funeral will appear in the New York Sunday newspapers.

Miss Bessie VanArsdale, daughter of Mrs. J. K. VanArsdale, of De Lacy avenue, has gone to Schroon Lake in the Adirondacks for her summer vacation.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

QUOTH THE ORATOR, "NEVERMORE."

James E. Martine, the "Farmer-Orator" of the Fifth Congressional district, has positively, peremptorily and permanently refused to run again for office. He has, he says, "been made poor by serving his party as its perennial candidate." Nobody can blame him. He has sacrficed far more than any other man in this State for the benefit of his party, and it has, every time, proved ungrateful. Even the last time Mr. Martine ran for Congress, against Charles N. Fowler, is was the Republican vote in Union that gave him a majority in that county, and had the Democrats of Warren and Morris stood by him he would have been elected.

But now that Mr. Martine will not run again, will not subject himself anew to the whims of ungrateful Democrats, another man must be selected. Already an entirely new candidate has come forward, with no little acclaim. This is Joseph A. Sperry, of Roosevelt Manor, Cranford, a man of entirely different stamp from the "Farmer Orator." He is, furthermore, a man who will last even longer than Mr. Martine, if he remains in politics till he is "made poor by serving the party as a perennial candidate."

The new candidate has not been hitherto known as an active politician, but that is no reason why he should not now come forward. He is credited with large wealth and with some degree of forensic ability. If he is nominated on the Democratic ticket James E. Martine can be counted on to speak in his behalf on every rostrum in the district, and the two, uniting their special qualifications in one whirlwind campaign, will stir up the Fifth district as it has not been stirred since the last Congressional election—Newark Evening News.

Fell on Scythe Blade.

Hampton Junction, Aug. 15.—William Riddle, fifty years old, met with a serious accident yesterday on his farm near this place. He was repairing the roof of his wagon-house, when he fell through. He landed on the scythe of a grain cradle. His thigh was gashed in a frightful manner. Dr. Fulper, of this place, and Dr. Smith, of Washington, were summoned, and stopped the bleeding. Mr. Riddle removed from his farm last spring to Phillipsburg. He came up yesterday to do some repairing to the building.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Petitions for filing with the county clerk in Somerset are being circulated in North Plainfield today. All are for the Republican candidates for renomination and are: For State Senator, Joseph S. Frelinghuysen; for Assembly, W. W. Smalley, of Bound Brook; for county clerk, A. G. Anderson, of Bound Brook.

The Union County Board of Elections today at Elizabeth designated the papers in which the primary election notice will be published and received from the respective county chairmen the lists of district election officers. These appointments will be acted upon at a meeting to be held on Thursday morning.

The Union county Democrats so far have not advanced any "probabilities" for the Senatorial and Assembly nominations, but it is expected that tentative slates will be made up on the Democratic outing, August 20.

The Republican league is the name of a new organization formed in Camden for the purpose of furthering the shrievalty candidacy of Under Sheriff William D. Brown and to conduct a campaign of education looking toward the primary election.

Colonel Le Gage Pratt, representative for the Eighth Congressional district, hasn't bolted the Democratic ticket after all, notwithstanding the pehsistent reports that he had. Congressman Pratt now takes occasion to declare that he desires a re-election to the national legislature on the Democratic ticket. While admitting that he was not favorable to the nomination of Mr. Bryan, he says that he will vote and work for the party ticket without exception. "I intend to support the candidates of my party for president and vice-president and to take an active part in this fall's campaign," is the way he expresses his present political sympathies.

According to the Gloucester Democrat "the Avis Republicans are saying that not a man on their ticket either drinks, chews or smokes."

Senator George S. Silzer, of Middlesex, former Senator William C. Gebhardt, of Hunterdon, and Eugene Kinkead, of Hudson, have been made members-at-large of the auxiliary committee of the Democratic State committee.

The auxiliary committee of the Democratic State committee is arranging to open headquarters in Jersey City and Camden. Counties south of Mercer will have headquarters in Camden.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. M. Judson, of John street, are parents of a son, born to them recently.

Mrs. Long, wife of Dr. Samuel Long, of New Brunswick, is stopping for some weeks at their cottage in Washington Valley.

Miss Janet Van Vliet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Van Vliet, of Washington avenue, is spending a few days with friends in Somerville.

FOUR FALL SIXTY FEET IN REFORMATORY.

Scaffolding Breaks While Painting Ceiling—All Sustain Broken Limbs.

By the breaking of a scaffolding, at noon yesterday, in the new wing in course of construction at the New Jersey State Reformatory, at Rahway, four men were precipitated sixty feet to the cellar of the building. The men were painting the ceiling, no floors having been laid. William J. Wright jumped from a scaffold to the one on which five men were at work, breaking a board and four of the men fell to the cellar.

John A. McCoy, of 66 Washington street, had his leg broken; William J. Wright, of New York, had his shoulder dislocated; William Lozier, of Trenton, had his right arm broken, and Samuel Margeran, of Trenton, foreman for the contractors, Prayor & Brock, had his leg broken. The other two saved themselves by clinging to the scaffolding.

It is considered miraculous that all were not instantly killed. Dr. H. Page Hough, the Reformatory physician, was in Trenton, and Dr. John H. Randolph and Dr. Frederick W. Sell treated the injured men.

Lodgemen's Auto Trip.

A dozen members of Benevolent Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., took an auto jaunt to Perth Amboy last night after the lodge meeting in one of Thompson's auto 'buses. The party made the trip by way of Metuchen, returning through Westfield. A stop was made for lunch at Perth Amboy.

At Grace M. E. Church tomorrow morning, the subject for Rev. Dr. Shoop's sermon will be "A Visit from the Master." In the evening his subject will be "Christian at the Wicket Gate."

B. F. HOWELL WILL STAY IN THE RACE

The declaration is made by those who say they know that Congressman Benjamin F. Howell, who for ten years has represented the Third Congressional District, which includes Monmouth, Ocean and Middlesex counties, will not be returned to the House for another term. The organization in his own county, controlled by Theodore Strong, is lining up against him, and upon its action depends the action of the two other counties.

The chances are very bright, as a result of the fight, for Senator O. H. Brown's becoming Mr. Howell's successor. One of the most sagacious politicians in the county yesterday said that the Senator will receive the Republican nomination. He is in close touch with political conditions in all three counties and the statement was unqualified.

When interviewed at his summer home at Spring Lake yesterday Congressman Howell admitted that Theodore Strong controlled the situation in his home county, Middlesex. He also admitted that Strong was opposed to his candidacy.

When asked if he would withdraw his name from the primaries Mr. Howell said: "No; I will not. I will remain in the fight until after the primaries. Then, if it is shown that I cannot secure the nomination I will give way to some other man. I will endeavor to have delegates elected at the primaries who are favorable to me, and will place myself in the hands of the independent voters. I will not make a fight in either Monmouth or Ocean counties.

SITE FOR SOMERSET'S ARMORY.

Freeholders Make Appropriation for Its Purchase—Tract in Somerville Selected.

A new $25,000 armory for Somerset county seems to be assured. The Somerset County Board of Freeholders has appropriated $5,500 for a site. This action was taken after several months' deliberation. Nelson Y. Dungan, colonel of the Third Regiment, National Guard of New Jersey, appeared before the board yesterday and made a plea for decisive action.

For twenty-one years Company M, the only military organization in Somerset county, has been compelled to drill in hired halls. An armory appropriation of $25,000 was secured from the last Legislature.

The site selected by Company M and approved by the Board of Freeholders is on Grove street, facing the new $400,000 county courthouse. The State Military Board, of which Col. Dungan is a member, will be called to Somerville to approve the site at once, and it is expected that work on the new ormory will begin at an early day.

Miss Sara Curry, of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, accompanied by a number of children, will attend and take part in the service at the Scotch Plains Baptist church tomorrow morning.

CLINTON AVENUES WIN

Three Hits in Succession Brought About Defeat for the Rahwegians

SCORE WAS EIGHT TO SIX.

Two Accidents to Players During the Game—Randolph Strikes Out Eleven Batsmen.

Three hits in succession in the first and second innings, netting five runs, to which were added three runs in the eighth inning, gave the Clinton Avenues a victory over Rahway at the latter place, Saturdapy afternoon, by a score of 8 to 6. The Plainfield boys got busy at the start and it is well they did for they certainly did need those five tallies later in the game. Clifford Randolph was, as usual, on the job, and he held the Rahwegians to six hits, besides striking out eleven batsmen and putting out a batter unassisted.

There were two accidents in which the home players figured and which delayed the contest a half hour. Early in the contest Freeman was struck on the knee cap by a foul tip, and after fifteen minutes' delay, he was able to continue. Later O'Loughlin and Armstrong collided at first base, and the latter was unintentionally spiked, receiving two cuts above the ankle. He was game, however, and after another delay, resumed playing.

Rahway scored one run in the third inning, two in the fifth and three in the seventh. It began to look as though they would win, having the lead by a score of six to five, when the Plainfielders through clever work tallied three runs and prevented their opponents from getting any more. The Clinton Avennes gathered eleven hits off of Clark, Brit. Martin, Boelzley, O'Loughlin and Randolph each being credited with two.

Although he caught a good game, Boelzley failed to get a single runner at second base, the Rahwegians being a little too fleet for him. The contest was an interesting one from start to finish and the large crowd of Plainfield rooters made it lively for the home contingent throughout. A little later Rahway will play a return game at Crescent Oval. The score:

Concilmanic Conference.

The fire and building committee will make another attempt tonight to hold a conference of the Councilmanic members regarding the proposed new east end fire-house. Last week it was impossible to get a sufficient number out, so many of the members being out of town. Chairman Hibbard, of the committee, is anxious to obtain the approval of the members of plans for the house before the regular September meeting.

District Court Thursday.

The regular sessions of the district court will be resumed on Thursday, when Judge William Newcorn, who has returned from his outing, will be on the bench. The list comprises about twenty-five cases.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Haynes, of West Sixth street, returned today from Brimfield, Mass., where they have been for the past month.

'PLAINS CALL ACCEPTED BY REV. MR. MATTHEWS

Rev. Franklin Matthews, of Chattanooga, Tenn., who was extended a call to the pastorate of the Scotch Plains Baptist church a week ago, accepted the call at the morning service in the church yesterday, when he occupied the pulpit. The pastorate is to begin the first week in September. Mr. Matthews said, in accepting the call, that during his brief stay at the 'Plains he had been impressed with many features of the work which were encouraging. He then gave a brief talk from the theme: "We then as workers together with Him, beseech you also, that ye receive not the Grace of God in vain."

Afterward the service was given up to Miss Sara Curry and several children from the Netherwood Fresh Air Home.

Mr. Matthews has been pastor of a Baptist church at Chattanooga for two years. Previous to that he was for nine years pastor of the Baptist church at Ridgewood. He was successful in both pastorates and comes to the 'Plains well recommended by various Baptist clergymen of the State. He will succeed Rev. T. Moore-Smith, now of Lincoln.

COLLINS CANDIDATE FOR ELIZABETH'S MAYORALTY

Political circles at the county seat were considerably stirred today, when Colonel Dennis F. Collins declared himself to be a candidate on the Democratic ticket for the Mayoralty of Elizabeth, to succeed P. J. Ryan. Although Col. Collins has been active in politics and is now the chairman of the Union County Democratic Committee, even some of his personal friends were unprepared for the announcement that he intends to seek the office of mayor in his own city. In the light of recent events, especially the State Excise Commission investigation, the announcement is of double interest.

Major W. B. Martin, of Elizabeth, who was a member of the American rifle team that competed for honors at Bisley, and who has recently been talked of as a candidate for the Assembly on the Republican ticket, announced today that he is not a candidate for the office and will not accept the nomination. This put at rest the many rumors about Major Martin that he is seeking office.

LARGE THRONG ATTENDS FUNERAL OF AL. HEDDEN.

The funeral service of Albert Hedden was held at the late home on West Fifth street, yesterday afternoon, and was largely attended by relatives and friends, including many of the older residents of the city who had known Mr. Hedden all his life. Rev. Ora J. Shoop, pastor of Grace M. E. church, officiated, reading appropriate Scripture selections, offering prayer and making a few remarks.

During the service, City Judge William N. Runyon sang "Some Day We'll Understand," and Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar." There was a large number of beautiful floral tributes, including a set piece from the employes of the Hedden stables.

The burial was in Hillside cemetery and the pall-bearers were Louis McIntosh, James P. Homan, J. A. Smith, Adam C. Blair, Frank Hand and Lewis A. Hummer.

Funeral of Alexander Flynn.

The funeral of Alexander Flynn was held at 8:15 o'clock this morning from the residence of his sister, Mrs. George Boyer, on Mariners place, and at 9 o'clock from St. Mary's church. Rev. Father Sciola was in charge. There was a large attendance of members of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, and Plainfield Court, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, of which Mr. Flynn was a member, and the floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. The pall-bearers were Patrick Connolley, John Connolley and John Kelly, of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus; Fred Wilbee, Thomas Monsell and Jules Parent, of Plainfield Court, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters. The burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Misplaced Switch Causes Wreck.

An eastbound coal train ran into a misplaced switch at Bound Brook, early Saturday night, wrecking ten of the heavily loaded cars of coal and blocking the main tracks until nearly midnight. The wreck train from Elizabethport was summoned to clear up the debris. The 11:28 westbound passenger train from this city carried a large supply of sandwiches and coffee from Timbo's restaurant for the members of the wreck crew.

H. H. Coward, of East Front street, has returned from his annual vacation spent in Canada.

TROLLEY MEN INDIGNANT

Slurred by Official Statements Will Themselves Investigate P.S.C. Graft Charges.

TO "CLEAN OUT" DISHONESTY.

Company Maintains That Car Crews Work Together and Motormen Get a Share of "Knock-downs."

The honest conductors of the Public Service Corporation who number practically the entire personnel of their occupation are highly indignant today at the revelations of dishonesty among their midst. These honest conductors have themselves determined to conduct an investigation which will clean from their midst the men who have brought discredit upon them.

"We don't propose to stand for this imputation of dishonesty upon our body," said one conductor today. "The vast majority of conductors employed by the Public Service Corporation are honest men and it is an outrage that these trimmers and thieves have cast discredit upon men who have held honorable records in this corporation for many years past."

Besides declaring that the public was conniving with many of its conductors in robbing the company, officials of the Public Service Corporation have asserted that for every dishonest conductor there was a dishonest motorman, that they worked in pairs, and that the motorman demanded and received half of the stealings of the conductor.

The company admits that the vast majority of its conductors and motormen are honest. These men, the company declares, should not be confused with the 100 or 200 men who they know are robbing them. And while the investigation is on these honest men must necessarily suffer, but the company has decided to take care of them and amply reward them for their honesty.

"Dishonest motormen and conductors have stolen more than $260,000 in the last year from the company," declared Assistant Secretary Stevenson today. Mr. Stevenson told how the company became cognizant of the fact that it was being robbed.

"There was a Swede who had been in this country only a few days when we gave him a job as a motorman," said Mr. Stevenson. "Three weeks went by and he did not come into draw his salary, so the treasurer went out and looked him up and asked him why he didn't come to the office and draw his pay.

"'Why, I got my pay,' said the Swede; 'the conductor has paid me every evening.'

"Then we started an investigation, and we found that not only were the conductors keeping all the nickles they wanted, but that the motormen had a system of keeping tab on the conductor. The motormen watches every passenger, and knows how many are transfer passengers and how many are cash fares. Then he keeps tab on the number of times the register rings, and, by deducting the difference, he knows just how much the conductor has 'knocked down' each trip, and then he totals it up for the day. When the day's work is done he demands half, and the conductor cannot 'knock down' on him. We had one crew up on the carpet, and the motorman accused the conductor of 'knocking down' on him, and the result was that he unfolded much of the crookedness that was going on.

"Our investigations show that most of the dishonest motormen and conductors are not residents of any one place where the Public Service lines run. They are what are known as 'rounders' and travel from one city to another. They work a little while in each place, until they are discovered and discharged and then go to some other city. They travel all over the country that way.

"Of course, these dishonest men bring a great injustice on the three-fourths or more of others, who are honest and who live in Newark, Paterson, Elizabeth or Plainfield, and support their families there. These men have been with us many years, and I doubt if one of them would take a penny. In fact, we have many hundreds of conductors who repeatedly turn in more cash than their registers indicate. They explain that must have collected fares which they did not ring up, and they are honest enough to turn in the surplus they find in their pockets."

The company said that it expected to cause many arrests soon, that the warrants had been prepared already, and that it had determined to drive out of the cities the gang which has been pilfering its nickels.

Among American tourist who signed the register at the Paris office of the New York Herald on Saturday was Lawrence B. Jackson, of Westfield.

CHICKEN COOP ADDITION LEADS TO FAMILY SCRAP

An inter-family scrap, including promiscuous blows and epithets, resulted on Arlington avenue, yesterday, when Louis Bender tried to make an addition to his chicken coop and ran some protecting wire over on land claimed by Hyman Sadler, who lives next door. Bender was digging a post hole near the dividing line when Sadler remonstrated with him. Max Pollock, who boards with Sadler, took his part, and got into a scrap with Bender, the latter using the shovel for a weapon, it is said. The neighborhood gave the alarm, and Patrolman O'Keefe arrested the three.

In court this morning, the Arlington avenue Russian colony was well represented, and with the aid of Morris Deutsch as interpreter, the case was threshed over at great length. A feature was the testimony of Sadler's eight-year-old niece, who was an eye-witness. She lisped out the complete story, including many of the epithets let fall in the course of the conflict. According to her story Pollock was knocked down 100 times in two minutes.

When the jargon was over, City Judge Runyon remarked that the testimony seemed confused. He said that he thought all three were guilty of violating the peace, but rather than make the mistake of unfair sentences, would risk extreme leniency. He dismissed the case.

CHIEF KIELY FIGURES IN SPECTACULAR ARREST

Park avenue pedestrians witnessed a regular story-book police chase and capture early Saturday even ng, when Chief Kiely arrested George Gardner the incendiary who was ordered to leave town last week. The man fought hard against arrest and was only jailed after a hand-to-hand tussle with the Chief following a chase in and out among the Saturday night crowd. At his hearing before Judge Runyon today he was sent "down the road" for sixty days.

Gardner was in an intoxicated condition on East Second street when Chief Kiely passed along at about 7:30 o'clock. At the time he was raising a disturbance by trying to pick a fight with a by-stander. The Chief surprised him and told him of Judge Runyon's order to leave town. "You can't drive me away from here," replied Gardner insolently, and started to move away when the Chief nabbed him. He did not put up much of a struggle, but as he was being led along the street, suddenly slipped out of his coat and darted toward Front street. The Chief set off after him, and the two ran in and out among the pedestrians to Front street, where Gardner was again rounded up.

As the prisoner showed lots of fight even after his capture, the Chief summoned a cab to take him to the lock-up. The door of this equipage was narrower than the entrance to the patrol, which is at present being painted, and it took all the strength of the two officers to get the prisoner inside. The fight was all out of the man today and he did not seem surprised when informed that arrangements would be made for his two month's sojourn in the county jail.

HORSE HAD WILD RUN WHEN SHAFT BOLT BROKE.

Taking fright when a bolt broke, allowing one side of the shaft to fall dangling about its heels, a horse driven by Ruliff J. Fisher, of Dunellen, had a wild run yesterday afternoon from Watchung, and was finally captured at Watchung and Mountain avenues in the borough, uninjured except for cuts and bruises about the legs.

Mr. Fisher, who was driving in a runabout, was thrown from the rig which overturned shortly after the bolt broke, but was uninjured. The horse wrenched the other side of the shafts free and galloped along at full speed, becoming more and more frightened by the rattling shafts, which repeatedly struck against its hind legs. Tired after its long run, the horse was easily captured at the Watchung school, and was later claimed by Fisher, who followed it on foot. The rig was badly damaged up the upset.

Bryan Expresses Thanks.

James E. Martine received today from William J. Bryan a letter expressing thanks for the interest of his friends in New Jersey, and also his feelings of confidence "in this fight of the people."

ATLANTIC CITY WIDE OPEN

Beer Flowed Yesterday in Greater Quantities Than Ever Before on Sunday.

AND MAYOR FISK LOOKED ON.

Head of the Excise Commission Promenaded the Walk But Was Not Looking for Evidence.

The ups and downs of the Atlantic City "lids," about which so many standards of revolt have fluttered and so many official manifestoes have been issued since its fate came under discussion, drew 50,000 additional visitors to the resort Saturday night and yesterday, according to the railroads.

The 50,000 were rewarded, for every place where drinks were disposed was sought with the dawning light, and they purveyed their liquid refreshments with an abundance which gave not a hint of the recent efforts to restrict their activities.

Bartenders were in great demand and extra bartenders were pressed into service. In many cases the proprietors themselves gave assistance.

In the fact of the tremendous patronage given to the saloons, only one man was arrested for drunkenness, and at Police Headquarters it was said that John Hardy, the solitary victim of the defiant open Sunday, had been in possession of his excess of intoxicants before the violation of the Bishops' law began yesterday morning.

The Boardwalk cafes and beach front hotels added to the total of saloon patrons a proportion of the surplus of the crowds which filled them to the walls and doors and left a thirsty, eager line outside.

Proprietors estimated that at least $100,000 was spent for liquid refreshments yesterday. Outside each "side door" could be found a waiting line of perspiring men who sought the entrances in far greater numbers than those inside sought the exits.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city, President of the State Excise Commission, who spent the day at the resort, replied, when asked whether he was seeking evidence, that he had so much evidence already he hardly knew what to do with it all.

The sales yesterday so far exceeded those of other Sundays and were in so much larger proportion to the additional influx that the doubt has been expressed whether a Puritan Sunday can be enforced.

In spite of the attendance at the bars the rest of Atlantic City was closed up tight. The amusements on the piers were the only ones open for the crowds. Noisy attractions, which ran on two of the piers last Sunday, were deserted.

FRESH AIR SERVICE AT SCOTCH PLAINS CHURCH.

The morning service at the Scotch Plains Baptist church yesterday was devoted to the interests of the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp. The meeting was largely attended, and a pronounced success in every way.

Miss Sara Curry was present, together with twenty-five of the camp children. There were a number of songs and recitations by the children, which greatly pleased the audience, and a most earnest talk by Miss Curry, who, in her usual tender way, told of the great good that is being accomplished at the Netherwood Camp, both physically and spiritually, citing instance after instance where the two weeks' stay at the camp has been the means of the conversion of a "mother" or "father," and the complete remodeling of their home on the lower East Side of New York. The offering received at their meeting amounted to $50, and the entire service was especially inspiring and encouraging.

THE DAILY PRESS NAMED AS AN OFFICIAL PAPER.

The Union County Board of Registration and Elections, at Elizabeth on Saturday named The Daily Press as the official paper for Plainfield for the publications of primary and general election notices. The Elizabeth Journal, the Elizabeth Times, the Rahway Democrat, the Summit Record and the Cranford Citizen were also named. The primary notice will appear this week.

A meeting of the board will be held on Thursday morning to arrange for the appointment of election boards in the various districts of the county.

G. O. P. Meets September 1.

The Republican City Executive Committee will hold a regular meeting Tuesday night, September 1, to plan for the coming campaign and dispose of several matters left over from the last meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Williams, of East Front street, are at Papakating, Sussex county.

SCRAPPY POLAKS FINED FOR "PLAYFUL" FIGHTING

Patrolman Payne was standing on West Front street, last night, when a man rushed up to him and said that some Poles were trying to kill each other in the rear of the building at 245 West Front street. The officer pressed John Powers, of the borough, into service, and the two nabbed Joseph Motacki and Stanley Kaszobski whom they found mixing it up pretty well in the back yard of Motacki's home. Joseph Smith, another belligerent, ran into the house, but after the two prisoners had been jailed, Payne returned and found him in the rooms upstairs.

At the hearing of the case today, the three were fined $5 apiece. It appears that the occasion was a Polish christening and after refreshments had been served and many of the guests gone home, the three stayed to finish up a keg of lager. This done they began a fistic exercise in the back yard, designated in court as "playing." To make the "playing" more realistic, perhaps, they called each other names and shouted threats of death by knifing. Judge Runyon seemed to think that such a game ought to be discouraged in this city, and the three had to pay to secure their freedom.

MONSIGNOR STAFFORD GOES TO A NEW PARISH

Rt. Rev. Monsignor John A. Stafford, pastor of St. Paul of the Cross church, Jersey City, and formerly of Plainfield, has been appointed by Bishop O'Connor as rector of St. Patrick's church, Jersey City, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Rev. Lawrence C. M. Carroll.

Monsignor Stafford is at present in Europe, having charge of the Holy Name pilgrimage to Rome, which left Newark several weeks ago. He will take charge immediately on his return.

Monsignor Stafford was for several years president of Seton Hall College previous to his appointment to St. Paul's church. He was made a monsignor by Pope Leo XIII. six years ago.

The appointee is a native of Paterson and received his collegiate education at Seton Hall. He pursued his theological studies at the American College at Rome, where he was ordained. His first charge was at St. Mary's church, this city, going from here to St. Mary's, Jersey City. He was afterward made vice-president of Seton Hall, and was acting president during an extended absence of the president, Rev. William Marshall. After a year's service in St. Augustine's church, Union Hill, Monsignor Stafford returned to Seton Hall as president, where his aggressive policy and methods merited the recognition of his elevation to a monsignorship. Two years ago he was appointed pastor of St. Paul's. A successor to Monsignor Stafford will probably not be appointed until after his return from Europe.

PLAINFIELDERS ENJOY AN OUTING AT MANHATTAN BEACH

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Weed, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Sturtevant, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Cutter, Lester Radford, Walter Hockridge, Fred Kirch, of this city, and Miss Longbottom, of Paterson, who accompanied the party, were among those who enjoyed the fine program arranged by the Prosperity Congress at Manhattan Beach, Saturday afternoon and evening.

There were amateur athletic events in the afternoon with prizes for the men and women contestants, followed by a banquet at the Manhattan Beach Hotel at 6 o'clock, and speeches by prominent men from all parts of the country, including Herman Metz, Lewis Nixon, Judge Moore, of Virginia, and many others. There was also a dance in the evening, the affair concluding with a fine display of Paine's fireworks.

BOROUGHITES TENDERED A BIRTHDAY SURPRISE.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wicht, of Greenbrook road, were tendered a birthday surprise party by a number of their friends Saturday night. About twenty were in attendance and several hours were passed in a pleasant way with music, games and dancing. Supper was served at midnight.

The affair was arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Antone Ammon and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Farbman. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ammon, Mr. and Mrs. Clemuck, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Ball, Miss Lillian Ammon and several others from New York and Baltimore.

NEW OFFICIAL ACCUSED

Inmate of Industrial Home Charges Superintendent With Abuse.

COMPLAINANT IS S. S. VERMEULE

Superintendent Wolverton to Be at City Court Tomorrow on Assault Warrant— Other Complaints.

Accusing Arthur Wolverton, superintendent of the Industrial Home, of throwing him down and roughly treating him, S. S. Vermeule, one of the oldest inmates at the Home, swore out a warrant against the superintendent before City Judge William N. Runyon today. The hearing will be at 9 o'clock tomorrow at the city court, and it is reported that others now at the home will appear to testify about the treatment they receive there.

Mr. Vermeule, who is ninety-two years of age and known by all the older residents of this city, stated in making the formal complaint that several days ago he was roughly handled by Superintendent Wolverton. He said that at that time Mr. Wolverton seized him by the arm, twisted it painfully, and threw him several feet across the room. Mr. Vermeule fell heavily on the floor. It is further alleged that the superintendent has abused other inmates of the Home, and that he is in the habit of sending several of the older and infirm people there out in the fields to do heavy work. Mr. Vermeule said today that he himself was on one occasion sent into the field to bind grain on a sultry day and kept at work for several hours in the hot sun.

Arthur Wolverton, who assumed charge of the Home about August 1, is a son-in-law of Henry Hummer, overseer of the poor in Piscataway township, and came to this city from Newark. He succeeded Israel D. Ten Eyck, who resigned after several years of meritorious service.

FATAL RESULTS MAY FOLLOW HORSE'S KICK

Russell Pyatt, the thirteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Pyatt, of South Plainfield, lies at Muhlenberg Hospital in a critical condition, the result of being kicked in the face by a horse, Saturday night. The lad's jaw was fractured, eight teeth knocked out and he received several cuts and bruises about the face and head. It was reported at the hospital today that the boy's condition is serious and that his injuries may prove fatal.

The accident happened while Pyatt and a company of friends were returning home from Boynton Beach, where they spent the day. When they reached the mill-pond bridge at South Plainfield, one of the team, which Pyatt was driving, became fractious and hard to drive. After repeated efforts to make the horse go, Pyatt got out of the vehicle and attempted to pacify the animal. He was standing close to the horse's hind heels, when it suddenly raised them and let them drive.

One hoof caught the lad full in the face knocking him a distance of several feet. He was picked up by his companions in a semi-conscious condition and taken to his home, where his parents at once recognized that prompt medical attention was necessary. After preliminary treatment the lad was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, where the broken bones were set and he was made as comfortable as possible.

Pyatt appears to suffer greatly from other injuries about the head and it is for this reason that the physicians have doubts as to his recovery. He is now in a conscious but exhausted condition.

Jones Girl Committed.

Miss Dorothy Jones, the sixteen-year-old colored girl who confessed, Saturday, that she had started fires in closets at Mrs. Elizabeth Gill's house on Central avenue twice in three hours Friday afternoon, was remanded to the county jail at Elizabeth after her hearing before City Judge Runyon and will be held to await the action of the grand jury. S. S. Swackhamer has been retained by her as counsel. Her companion, Miss Nellie Donald, also a domestic at the Gill home, who was arrested with her upon complaint of Chief Doane, was freed after Miss Jones' confession Saturday.

Fireman's Vacation Ends.

Fireman William Gaub, of the borough fire department, will resume his duties at headquarters tomorrow after a ten days' vacation. Captain Edward Terry starts tomorrow on his vacation.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Two persons having declined the place of supervising principal of Beverly's schools, it has been offered to Guy E. Albert, of Yardley, Pa.

George K. Ellsworth was taken to Woodbury jail Saturday, accused of burning the house of John Lock at the floodgates near Gibbstown.

Gloucester City Board of Education awarded a number of minor contracts Friday night, the meeting being free from the friction that has marked recent ones.

One of two cows owned by John C. Souders, of Richmond, which escaped from a pasture, was so badly injured by a barbed-wire fence that it had to be killed.

The summer home at Ocean City of George S. Bacon, a Millville glass manufacturer, was robbed while the family were at Atlantic City, of articles valued at $300.

Riverside's Foresters expect 3,000 members in line at their jubilee parade August 22, and have offered substantial prizes for the largest and second largest courts and for the best band.

The first Democratic Club to be organized in Burlington county has been formed in Beverly, with Charles Stokes, president; Samuel Roberts, vice-president; F. J. Smith, secretary, and Hilyard Stokes, treasurer.

Charged with picking pockets during the carnival at Ocean City Wednesday night, Warren Scullen and a man known as "Bonnie" Carter, of Atlantic City, were Saturday committed to jail in default of $800 bail.

Unknown persons again are poisoning dogs and chickens in Beverly. Several dogs have died in the past two days and three dozen of Theodore Merritt's fine chickens were found dead in the coop one morning recently.

There are fourteen cases of scarlet fever in Collingswood at present, a large proportion of them being adults. The spread of the disease, it is thought, has been caused by the germs being carried in milk bottles from house to house.

The potato season is about over, with most of the farmers well satisfied with the result. The average price has been about $2.40 per barrel, and the yield per acre from thirty-five to fifty barrels. The highest price paid in Salem this season was $2.98 to Richard B. Griscom, while several received $2.91.

Over 100 farmers from all parts of South Jersey received prizes for their fine exhibits at the Alcyon Park fair Friday. Warren Atkinson, of Mullica Hill, and John Voorhees, of Woodbury, had the largest and finest exhibits, each consisting of over 100 baskets of truck and fruit, besides melons and other produce.

Aroused by a crying baby, early yesterday morning, Mrs. Joseph Plotnick, of 820 Walnut street, Camden, discovered that thieves had been at work. Everything was topsy-turvy on the first floor, and an investigation showed that the thieves had escaped with two diamonds, a gold watch and other jewelry to the value of several hundred dollars.

The family of Rev. Dr. Alpha G. Kynett, of Philadelphia, who are spending the summer in their cottage at Ocean City, received word yesterday that he had been robbed of $300. Dr. Kynett is the secretary of the Methodist Church Extension Society, and is reviewing missionary work in the West. He was robbed while traveling on a train.

WESTFIELD.

Samuel Schlinier, counsel for Policeman James McCarthy, has signified his intention of carrying the proceedings which resulted in Policeman McCarthy's dismissal from the Westfield force, before the court on certiorari proceedings, on the claim that McCarthy was not given a fair trial and that the testimony did not warrant dismissal.

Bids have been received by Westfield Council for 4,000 feet of grading at the Newer farm, necessary for the preparation of new filtration beds.

Charles A. Smith and Joseph Perry have filed with the town clerk of Westfield their petitions for renomination as freeholders from Westfield.

Rev. and Mrs. Hayes, of Westfield, left Saturday for a trip to Europe.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The local ball team lost another game to the West Ends at Somerville Saturday afternoon by the score of 4-2. The locals lost simply because they could not hit Morton when hits were needed, while Johnson, who was in the box for the 'Plains, had a day off and was easy for the West Ends. The 'Plains team has lost its winning stride of several weeks ago. The team is putting up good baseball but trying out a new pitcher every week is risky work. Several of the decisions of Umpire Daily, it is said, also favored the West Ends.

Miss Curry and about thirty of her little charges of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, were at the Baptist church yesterday, the usual preaching service giving way to a Fresh Air meeting. Miss Curry explained the work and the results obtained. The children also recited and sang several selections. At the close of the meeting a collection for the work was taken.

Frank Weldon and family, who have been boarding in Rahway for several months, have taken possession of their new house on Grand street.

Several from here attended the "Bungalow" dance held Saturday night in the new Lyceum building, Berkeley Heights.

The local ball team and Clinton Avenue team hold another battle royal at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon.

Captain H. B. Saunders, who has been on an extended business trip to Nova Scotia, has returned home.

New Providence defeated Berkeley Heights in the game at Berkeley Heights Saturday afternoon

The "Old Guard" held an outing and clam bake yesterday on the Milen farm, near Glenside.

The B. Y. P. U. meeting was the only evening service held at the Baptist church last night.

Democrat on Excise Board.

Judge Theodore B. Booraem has offered to Charles Deshler a place on the New Brunswick Excise Board to succeed Charles Morris, whose term expires next month. Mr. Deshler has accepted and will serve. The board at present is made up entirely of Republicans. Mr. Deshler is a Democrat. The board has been subjected to considerable criticism recently. It has been alleged that politics dominated it and there have been assertions that the kind of beer and cigars handled by saloon-keepers had something to do with the granting of licenses. Judge Booraem is a Republican.

Rev. H. B. Gibson, of Daytona, Fla., who is spending his vacation in the north, will preach at Faith chapel the next two Sundays. The pastor, Rev. J. W. Musson will be home for the first Sunday in September.

—B. Frank Coriell's new house on Union street, is about completed and ready for occupancy.

PERSONAL.

Miss Estella Kline, of Somerset street, is visiting friends in Brooklyn.

Miss Sarah Smith, of Elizabeth, spent Sunday with relatives in this city.

Dr. and Mrs. Marcus L. Clawson, of Park avenue, are enjoying their annual outing.

Mr. and Mrs. F. V. L. Jones, of Evergreen avenue, are registered at the Ocean View, Bay Head.

Garret Dreier, of New Brunswick, has been visiting his father, Samuel Dreier, of West Front street.

John Arrowsmith, of this city, has been visiting his sister, Mrs. John R. Tingley, of Bound Brook.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Chapman, of Stelle avenue, were recently registered at the Breakers, Spring Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Holstein, of Watchung avenue, have been sojourning at the Beach House, Sea Girt.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Lewin and family, of Watchung avenue, returned home last night after a two weeks' outing.

Miss Elizabeth Sanders, of Orchard place, will take her annual outing the last two weeks in this month, commencing today.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster Johnson, of Grant avenue, have returned from the Adirondacks, where they have been for the benefit of Mr. Johnson's health.

George Van Buskirk and the Misses Maude and Daisy Van Buskirk, of West Seventh street, were recent arrivals at the Lands End hotel, Point Pleasant.

George Van Nest, of Mariners place, has returned from a vacation of one week spent in the Catskills with his family, who are sojourning there for the summer.

James Patterson, Jr., who is manager for the A. & P. Tea Company store at Somerville, is enjoying his annual vacation, spending part of the time here with his parents on Mariners place.

Alfred W. Dunavan, of L. W. Randolph's drug store, will take his vacation early in September. He will visit Detroit, Syracuse, Rochester and several other points of interest during the two weeks outing.

Mrs. Percy W. Vail and daughter, of Pearl street, who have been visiting Mrs. Vail's native home in Denmark for the past six months, are now on their way home. They are expected to arrive a week from today.

Rev. Edwin Shaw, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, left today for Boulder, Col., where he will attend the general conference of the Seventh-Day Baptist denomination. Rev. A. E. Lewis and Rev. T. L. Gardner, of this city, will also attend.

—Use Press want ads. They pay.

—Miss Beulah Boylon, of Regent street, resumed her position this morning as stenographer in the law office of Charles L. Moffett, after a week's visit with friends in the country.

—The Common Council will probably not hold a meeting until Monday night, September 14, as Monday, September 7, is Labor Day and a legal holiday, unless it is arranged to meet some other night during the first week in the month.

FOR THE WOMAN WHO MUST PACK.

For a girl who is going away for a summer vacation should invest a dollar in tissue paper before packing her trunk, for this inexpensive protector will be a saving to her clothes. For instance, sleeves stuffed with tissue paper proper an drolls of it laid between the folds of skirts will keep them in almost pristine freshness, while without these aids they will be so crumpled after packing that they will look dowdy before being worn.

Another essential in packing is to have clothing arranged solidly in the trunk, so that the articles cannot slip, yet unless soft materials are well protected this tightness will work their destruction.

To pack to the best advantage a flat surface on which to fold garments is indispensable.

To fold a skirt it should be spread out smoothly, front and back together, bringing the crease at the sides. These two side folds should be laid over to the back seam, to meet there, and a roll of paper must be placed under each turn. If the skirt is still too wide to go into the trunk, another similar turn must be given to each side, and under the folds rolls of paper must be laid. These will entirely prevent the sharp crease usually seen on garments carelessly packed.

Back Numbers.

"Pop!"

"Yes, my son."

"Are all the hairs of our heads numbered?"

"Yes, my son."

"Well, pop," continued the boy contemplating his father's bald head, "what are the numbers of those two you've got left?"—Yonkers Statesman.

OPEN FRIDAY EVENINGS—CLOSED SATURDAYS AT NOON

Pretty Good After All.

It has been truly said that "Fear is the only thing to be afraid of." In proof of this proverb we cite the conditions that have existed in mercantile circles and the conduct of those engaged in store keeping. Most of us had our doubts and fears and misgivings, and many hesitated, lost courage, and failed to make such effort as the conditions called for. But there were those, and this store among them, that kept a brave heart and forged ahead in an endeavor to overcome the depression and to create opportunities where none existed.

As a result the sum-up of the season just past reveals a really remarkable showing for the past six months, notwithstanding the fact that comparisons are made with the bumper months of 1907, when all past records were far exceeded.

The advantages that accrue to a store handling great quantities of goods such as this one, the selling of only dependable merchandise, the employment of right methods, the selling of goods at fair prices, the giving of the "square deal" to all patrons, almost certainly insures uninterrupted prosperity for any house. But what has been, perhaps, the most vital contribution to our success the past six months has been the effort, unflagging and persistent, and the courage to dare and do.

It is this that has made Hahne & Co.'s the largest and greatest of New Jersey's mercantile institutions, and it is this that will keep it at the head of the procession.

Members of the recently formed Manhattan Golf Club are displaying considerable enthusiasm. They play over the public links at Pelham Bay, and at present a class handicap is claiming attention.

James D. Foot, the Apawamis veteran, who some time ago stated that he was after the tournament record made last year by "Spotty" Bowers, seems likely to win and have something to spare. Bowers took part in thirteen tournaments, while up to date Foot has competed in eleven and has several more in sight.

Play on the links of the Hollywood Golf Club is at its height these days. The women's championship of the organization has been won by Mrs. E. S. Bayer, who defeated Mrs. A. S. Ross, 2 up and 1 to play, in the final round. The last important competition run off at Hollywood was the Metropolitan open championship in 1906.

Up Boston way they have about decided that W. C. Chick may be counted upon to make a strong showing in the national amateur championship at Garden City next month. His 74 in the qualifying round of the Bland Spring tournament last week shows that the Oakley crack is right at the top of his game.

Steward Garner, the Exmoor professional formerly connected with the Garden City Golf Club, has decided not to come East for the open at Myopia. This will be the first time Gardner has missed the national in several years.

LEWISOHN BLAMES JOKERS.

Thinks New York Friends Concocted Report of His "Critical Illness."

Jesse Lewisohn, the New York banker, believes that the report of his "critical illness" was sent out by New York friends as a practical joke. He was in Somerville last Monday evening to keep a supposed appointment with a dentist. By mistake his valet had made the appointment with a veterinary of the same name as the dentist. The arrangement was made by telephone and the mistake was not discovered until Lewisohn had sat for an hour on the front stoop of the dentist, who had gone home at 5 o'clock.

Mr. Lewisohn had ridden in to Somerville on his bicycle from "Diamond Jim" Brady's farm, where he is staying. Tuesday the misunderstanding was corrected and he went to Somerville and kept his appointment with the dentist. It was then he read in the morning and afternoon papers the report of his illness.

GLAD SHE WHIPPED HUBBY.

Jersey City Woman Also Belabored "Best Friend."

Mrs. E. C. Gee, who horsewhipped her rich husband, an electrical contractor of 2 Wall street, Manhattan, and the young woman with him, was calm and happy yesterday in her home at 200 Harrison street, Jersey City. She said she did not expect to be arrested.

"I had a young boy follow my husband on several occasions," said Mrs. Gee, "and what he told me led me to follow him myself Thursday afternoon. I saw him meet the woman in Brooklyn and I attacked them with a long strap. I struck the woman several times, and when my husband interfered I gave it to him good. The worst part of it is that the woman was my best friend and I had trusted her implicity. No, I expect no further trouble."

GRAVESTONE POKER TABLE.

Five Arrested While Playing in Trenton Cemetery.

Joseph Meyer, John Bedsky, Stephen Fuchs, Andrew Notsky and John Kush were arrested at Trenton yesterday on the charge of playing poker in Riverview cemetery, where they were caught using a tombstone for a card table.

To make the case more gruesome, two gravediggers and the superintendent of the cemetery aided in the arrest of the men and they were conveyed to the police station in the cemetery's dead wagon. They declared that they went to the cemetery to gamble because they were afraid they would be arrested anywhere else.

CONNELLY IN A FIX.

Refused as Witness Because Citizen Papers Are in Ireland.

Thomas P. Connelly, of Jersey City, Rotherhamite candidate for Sheriff, cannot show his naturalization papers. He was a witness for a would-be citizen yesterday, and when asked to produce his papers said they were in Ireland. The case was laid over, as Connelly could not testify without them.

Connelly's papers were sent to Ireland by his sister in mistake for the papers of Richard Quinn, which the latter's relatives asked for after Quinn's death here.

Captain Cooke Dies of Burns.

Captain William Cooke, of the Paterson fire department, who was seriously burned in the Snyder livery stable fire at 67 River street Tuesday morning, died yesterday in the General Hospital.

Rev. C. W. F. Attlee, of South Plainfield, will preach at the Seventh-Day Baptist church next Sabbath morning.

FADS AND FANCIES OF THE LATE SEASON.

The styles brought out at the Paris races and which will dominate the late summer and autumn fashions may be briefly summarized:

As to colors, black, gray, beige and tobacco; as to fabrics, satin, chiffon, foulard and soft weaves generally. Suits were of serge and pongee, wraps of satin. The directoire style reigned almost supreme; sleeves were long and tight with deep hand frills, collars high, ruchings wide and thick.

Fashion makers predict that for American taste the directoire skirt will develop into a long, severely plain tunic over another skirt of soft satin or pleated chiffon—in other words, the overskirt.

Cashmere color effects are noted in the newest laces.

The high pointed stock is rounding off its angles a bit and placing these softened points a trifle farther back.

Very smart are tailored waists of net, with large dots, trimmed with bands of the net embroidered in Oriental effects.

Those who go in for extreme fashions are wearing over elaborate sheer gowns coats of cretonne, edged with half-inch black velvet ribbon.

Stiff collars with edge of colars are new.

Negligees have caught the directoire note. Very charming they are, too, of crepe de chine, soft satin or chiffon silk, with long, trailing, clinging skirt and fascinating corsage effect of lace or embroidery.

The smart note in the Dutch collar fad is to create a contrast. If the collar is one of the soft lingerie order, wear a tie in the tailored four-in-hand effect. If the collar is stiff, don your daintiest, laciest or ffluffiest jabot with it.

Gray ooze three-eyelet ties, with mother of pearl buckles, are dainty and smart.

The coat that is looming up for smart wear, if, indeed, it is not already here, has a short, shapeless front, not quite to waist line. From the hip start basques extending in beetle-wing shape or quite straight, half-way down the back. Of lace, it is worn with skirts of crepe de chine, shantung or foulard; or with a lace skirt it will be of cloth or satin.

In fact satin coats are having a great vogue, a very soft satin, made loose, semi-fitting or fitting.

Slipped God's Memory.

Five-year-old Ethel, visiting her aunt in the country, came running up from the grape arbor, holding out a small bunch of the unripe fruit. "Look, auntie," she cried, "here's some peas God forgot to put the pods on."

As Near as He Dared.

A couple of New Yorkers were playing golf on a New Jersey course on election day, when they saw a fine-appearing old gentleman looking at them wistfully. They asked him to join the game, which he did with alacrity. He was mild in speech and manner and played well. But once when he had made a foozle he ejaculated vehemently the word:

"Croton!"

A fe wmoments later when he had made another bad play, he repeated:

"Croton!"

The fourth time he said this, one of his new-made friends said:

"I do not want to be inquisitive, but will you tell me why you say 'Croton' so often?"

"Well," said the old gentleman, "isn't that the biggest dam near New York?"

He was a Presbyterian clergyman from Brooklyn.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

To Make the Arms Plump.

A splendid exercise, and one worth a great deal to the girl who is looking forward with despair to a short-sleeved summer, is the spiral or corkscrew movement. Hold up one arm, slightly bent at the elbow, and with the other hand twist the arm from shoulder to wrist and form wrist to shoulder. This done with energy undoubtedly produces soft, sinuous curves.

The windmill stroke is another capital movement. Advance the left foot, right arm up in the air, left arm hanging down, each held quite stiff; then make a rotary movement to the back and front of the body. Alternate this with right foot in advance and the arms in reversed position.

A New Coat Material.

The crepe de chine coat for wear with lingerie gowns is the newest comer in the field of wraps. It has arrived in the wake of the satin and silk jackets which have been carrying full sail ever since spring fashions first got within earshot.

GOLF.

Willie Anderson, four times national open golf champion and present Western title holder, writes that he will leave the Onwentsia Club for the East on August 20. His objective point is Myopia, where he will take part in the open championship to be decided there August 27 and 28. Since winning the W. G. A. title a few weeks ago, Anderson went off his game a trifle, but he is rounding into form again and hopes to be at his best by the end of the month.

Dave Honeyman, the Arsdale Golf Club professional, has established a new record for that course. Since the new seventh and eighth holes were put in commission Honeyman has only played the course a few times, but even so he had no trouble recently in reeling off 38—37 for a 75 total. This included three balls out of bounds. He expects to cut this down close to his old mark of 69.

The defeat of Fred Herreshoff in the second round of the Ekwanok tournament the other day came as a surprise, as he had become wellnigh invincible over the Manchester circuit. Charles H. Brown, who put Herreshoff out, is a member of the St. Andrews and the Columbia clubs.

THE RAILROAD AT FAULT.

The following editorial in Saturday's issue of the Asbury Park Evening Press is of interest to Plainfielders from the fact that it outlines the views of hundreds of local citizens who visit the shore resort at frequent intervals:

"The coroner's jury in the case of W. J. Kiely, who was killed a few days ago at the Asbury Park station, upholds in its verdict the contention of The Press, that the railroad company is morally bound to provide barriers at the main station for the protection of passengers. The verdict charges the company with neglect and recommends that barriers be erected because 'present conditions only invite accident and loss of life.'

"No other conclusion could be reached by the coroner's jury. Mr. Kiely's death could have been avoided by proper precautions had the railroad company observed the ordinary rules that govern at railroad stations in populous cities. The accident is liable to be repeated any day and next time it occurs the responsibility of the railroad company must be greater and more easily determined. To leave the depot in its present condition, as The Press claimed after the accident and as the coroner's jury states in its verdict, is but to invite 'further accident and loss of life.'

"Neglect in this matter is all the more reprehensible because the cost of a temporary barrier such as would answer the purpose until permanent fences are built would be insignificant. We hope the railroad company will accept the warning of this verdict grounded on equity and thorough comprehension of the public rights and take steps immediately to remedy the dangerous condition."

LIFE ON MAINE'S COAST

Odors of the Pines and Views of Island Dotted Bay as Peaceful as Arcadia.

A Jerseyman, who is spending the summer in a bungalow on the Maine coast, writes as follows of his surroundings:

"Here on my porch under the pine trees I can smell the sea, among other agreeable odors, and can even outline a small section of rippled water through the tree tops.

"Over all is a 'Sabbath calm,' only the chugging of a tiny motor boat and the monotonous chirp of a tree toad breaking the stillness.

"A fitting place to spend an hour off duty, with ability to think connectedly and the charm of knowing that for a little space you can belong quite to yourself. In this busy life these rare intervals of freedom seem too far apart. Down here in this primitive, rocky coast of Maine, overlooking tree-covered islands with their tide-burnished margins, which make a chain of beauty reaching out to sea, one seems to touch the eternal verities.

"Our Jersey coast, with its long stretches of glittering white sand and towering breakers, fretting into foam, has its own peculiar charm which no one can overlook or gainsay; but there is a mysterious and powerful challenge to admiration in the sublimity of rocky stretches of coast, ominous in their possibilities of tragedy and yet so veiled in the loveliness that only lavish verdure can bestow. This last we must go far inland to find on the coast rightly beloved by many summer sojourners.

"The Maine coast abounds in lighthouses, and those who are best acquainted with her water highways have a very sober respect for all signals displayed. The variest tyro who runs a tiny motor boat looks well to his tiller and studies the maps with discretion, for submerged rocks are at most unexpected spots in all the coves and bays and high tide may just cover a dangerous reef.

"As the moth loves the candle, so humans seem to enjoy most that which has a space of danger. The motor boats certainly make rowing look very slow, and the poorest fisherman in these parts goes out for his catch in a tight little boat, carrying a good supply of gasoline. Around the docks one sees youngsters at the age of a New York newsboy oiling up and looking nicely after the machinery of these little craft with all the skill of an old hand. It is jokingly said that all native boys are 'web-footed.' One could well believe, at least, that they count on the ministrations of a 'Special Providence' in their behalf, judging by the abandon of their manoeuvers on the water.

"Our bungalow commanding an extended view of bay and ocean, we have become as familiar with the sight of the motor as we were at home with the motor car.

"The agreeable difference is in an absence of dust and perfume, with the noise refined by distance and atmosphere. Also these roughly dressed and sun tanned chauffeurs show a pretty courtesy which is too often lacking on our boulevards and turnpikes.

"One dory there is in constant use in our neighborhood, that of a man who daily plies his oars between his island and what we will call the mainland, though it is in reality an island, for supplies.

"He and his wife have lived alone on this small island, containing only their modest frame dwelling, for more than a year. They appear quite contented, even enthusiastic over their hermit like existence, though they had to sit up nights by turns during the more vigorous parts of last winter to keep the fires going.

"There were days when they feared being ice locked, but in reality there was never a day when he could not push his boat through the floes, at the noon hour. They patronize extensively the village library, which is of respectable size, and in the quality of its literature puts many a larger community to the blush, and for the rest seem to keep happily occupied with the homely tasks pertaining to the house.

"The island is thickly wooded, and the thought of winter probably puts a good edge on an otherwise dull axe, while the common lot of woman to prepare appetizing viands for hungry man doubtless affords plenty of feminine occupation. It should be noted that they are both city bred and were accustomed to a life of moderate luxury; also that they are no longer young, though seemingly in very vigorous health.

"All of which goes to show that we are not so dependent on modern invention and rich accessories as we imagine. As the quaint old man expresses it: 'They have no landlord to raise the rent and no servants to worry them.'"

A Summer Substitute for Meat.

In the August Woman's Home Companion Fannie Merritt Farmer gives a number of hot weather substitutes for meat. One such substitute consists of cheese and macaroni croquettes:

"Break macaroni in half-inch pieces, there should be two-thirds of a cupful. Cook in boiling salted water until soft, drain in a colander, and pour over two cupfuls of cold water, to prevent pieces from adhering. Add thick white sauce made of two and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter, one-third cupful flour, one cupful of milk, one-fourth of a tablespoonful of salt and a few grains of pepper; then add one-third of a cupful of grated cheese. Spread on a plate to cool. Shape, dip in crumbs, egg, and crumbs again, fry in deep fat and drain on brown paper."

A Dainty Hair Ornament.

Hair ornaments are returning to favor and many of the evening coiffures support huge butterflies in violet and gold. Jet insects, too, are much worn, and they add grace to a Psyche knot. Velvet ribbon is arranged in the hair with a flat bow on the side. This last is particularly used for the theatre and takes the place of a hat. Then, too many women are wearing their hair in huge buns in the back, round which quite broad ribbon is fastened with a bow at the top. This arrangement is far from pretty, but it has become quite popular.

When Cleaning Windows.

When cleaning windows with a brush or mop on a long handle, the water runs down the handle, making the work rater unpleasant. A simple arrangement to obviate this dufficulty is made with an old piece of shie leather. Cut a disc about four inches in diameter, cut a crosswise slit in the centre and push this on the handle to within twelve inches of the brush. It should fit tightly to the handle. It will prevent the water from passing, thus keeping it away from the worker.

Chance for Reform.

TWO KINDS OF BUTERFLIES.

I saw a butterfly, one day,
Come fearlessly, but very still,
And sip from flowers in a can
Which rested on my window sill.

"Oh, tell me, butterfly," I said,
"Why do you seek this lonely spot
When there are gardens where you know
There's so much sweetness to be got?"

The little insect said: "Oh, rats!
Now, why do you in summer go
And seek some lonely place yourself
Where nothing's ever known to grow?

"You're not content to stay in town,
Where things are fresh, but make your plans
To go to some secluded spot
And get your victuals all in cans!"
—Yonkers Statesman.

Making Sure of It.

Enpeck's will was being drawn up by the lawyer. "I hereby bequeath all my property to my wife," dictated Enpeck. "Got that down?" "Yes," answered the attorney. "On condition," continued Enpeck, "that she marries within a year." "But why that condition?" asked the man of law. "Because," answered the meek and lowly testator, "I want somebody to be sorry that I died."—Chicago News.

Embroidered Buttons.

It seems quite certain that embroidered buttons will be widely used this autumn. Therefore the woman who is expert with her needle is covering buttons and touching them up with fancy stitchery.

The drawnwork "spider" is very popular on all buttons. It is not new but it is now considered very good, and it is easy to make.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Russell Pyatt, of Clinton avenue, sustained severe injuries to the lower part of his face from the kick of a fractious horse Saturday night. He went out early in the day as one of a two-horse load of picnickers to Boynton Beach, and after spending a very pleasant day, the party reached South Plainfield in safety, but on reaching the bridge over the Mill dam the horse, which belonged to his father, suddenly became restive. It kicked him in the mouth, breaking three teeth and probably fracturing the lower jaw. He was taken home and treated by his parents, but the pain became so severe that he was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, where he is under the care of the physicians.

Leonard Attlee, of New York city, is spending a two weeks' vacation at the Baptist parsonage.

Gladys Thorne is spending a few days with her cousin, Elsie Ward, at North Orange.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jackson are spending their vacation in the Adirondacks.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Mary A. Myers.

Mrs. Mary A. Myers, widow of George E. Myers, for eight years a resident of East Orange, died this morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. James R. Bryan, on Albert street, following an illness of about eight weeks, during which time she lived here. She was born at Harrisville, and spent many years of her life in this State. She and her husband were both members of the Washington Square M. E. church, New York, where Mr. Myers was assistant superintendent of the Sunday-school and a Bible class teacher for fifty-five years. Mrs. Myers continued her membership in this church until her death. Beside a sister, she is survived by one brother, who lives at Paoli, Ind. Private funeral services will be held from the residence of Mrs. Bryan tomorrow afternoon and the burial will be in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Anna Langerbahn.

Mrs. Anna Langerbahn, widow of Peter Langerbahn, and at once time a resident in the East End of the city, died Saturday night at the Metuchen Home, aged 82 years. She was a member of the First Presbyterian church and a regular attendant there for years. The funeral will be held at the lecture room of the First Presbyterian church, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and will be in charge of Rev. Lewis Bond. The burial will be private and will be in the Plainfield avenue cemetery.

WOMAN MORTALLY BURNED.

Husband and Another Man Severely Scorched in Putting Out the Flames.

Her clothes set afire by flames from a gas stove, Mrs. Elizabeth Moore was fatally burned yesterday morning at her home, 81 East Jersey street, Elizabeth. Her husband and another tenant, John J. Hughes, were badly burned about the arms and shoulders trying to save her life.

Mrs. Moore attempted to extinguish burning gas from the top of the range when her wrapper caught fire. Moore and Hughes finally managed to extinguish the blaze, and an ambulance was summoned. At the General Hospital it was found that Mrs. Moore had been burned about the entire body up to her shoulders. The two men had their injuries treated and went home. The blaze was put out by the fire department with little damage.

MANY ATTEND SERVICE AT MT. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE.

The Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was observed at the new Mount St. Mary's College on the Watchung mountain yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, when Father Miller, of St. Joseph's church, acted as celebrant. A large delegation from St. Joseph's church attended the service, as did about forty members of the Holy Name Society. At the conclusion of the service, opportunity was given for the inspection of the new building by the laity, and many remained to see the college.

There are at present nine sisters at the college, but a score more are to come next month. The college will be regularly opened with formal exercises Wednesday, September 16, when Bishop McFaul, of Newark, and other prominent clergymen of the diocese are expected to be present. Yesterday morning Father Miller acted as celebrant of mass at 7 o'clock.

FOURTEEN PRISONERS AT SESSION OF CITY COURT

Eight police court cases, involving fourteen prisoners, made the session at the city court today longer than it has been in several weeks. Many of the defendants were in trouble because of too freely partaking of intoxicants and most of them were foreigners. City Judge Runyon showed especial despatch in the case of George Gardner, the incendiary, who had been warned to leave town after his discharge last week. As His Honor saw the man arraigned after his arrest by Chief Kiely upon a drunk and disorderly charge, he tersely remarked, "Sixty days," and Gardner was led away.

Arthur Anderson, John Kinniery and John Boyle, who are neighbors on Manson place, took on too much booze Saturday night, and the liquor went to their heads late in the evening. In each case, the intoxicants seemed to effect the pugilistic bump, and the three had a grand mix-up on Muhlenberg place, which was interrupted by Patrolman Saffron, who arrested them all. Each paid a fine of $3 at the session of city court today. Boyle is but sixteen years of age.

Carl Westmore, of South Plainfield, developed a jag at a Front street saloon Saturday night and got thrown out. Patrolman O'Keefe, seeing him try to re-enter, urged him to go home, but he got scrappy and was pulled in. He was penitent when arraigned for a hearing today and sentence was suspended by City Judge Runyon.

Lawrence Hefferman who has Indian blood in his veins, went on the war-path at his home on Lee place. He wanted to fight any and everybody within sound of his voice, but landed in jail. He told the Judge today that he had been drinking whiskey at his work all day Saturday from a flask supplied by his "boss." He said it didn't effect him until night, when it all went to his head. He has not been arrested before in thirteen years, and when he was told that in consideration of this he could go unpunished, he feelingly told Judge Runyon that he would never return.

Disorderly conduct on Westervelt avenue Saturday night brought Stanley Goup to the lock-up. He is an Austrian, but when an interpreter had explained the customs in the United States and the City Beautiful, he seemed penitent and was let go.

HIGH CLASS PRODUCTION AT LOCAL THEATRE TONIGHT

Douglas Fairbanks, the new star of William A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer, comes to the New Plainfield theatre tonight in the new play by Rupert Hughes, called "All for a Girl," in which he will play a role written specially for him by the clever author of "The Triangle" and "My Boy." Mr. Fairbanks has been heading starward the last five years, by virtue of his capital acting in "The Pit," "Fantana," "Abigail," "Frenzied Finance," "Clothes," and "The Man of the Hour." It was his acting in the last-named play that led to Messrs. Brady and Grismer's making a star of him; and they commissioned Mr. Hughes to write a play that would display the attractive and agreeable Fairbanks personality to the best advantage.

The production will be seen in nearby cities for this week and next Monday night goes into the Bijou theatre, New York, for a long run. The performance tonight will be witnessed by many well known metropolitan theatrical men.

Died from Eating Decayed Refuse.

The Metropolitan Grocery Co., of Plainfield avenue, lost a horse valued at $200 Saturday through an act of carelessness on the part of one of the clerks in the store. It had been the custom to throw decayed vegetables, refuse etc., into a barrel which was allowed to stand on the curb in front of the store, that being an easy way of temporarily getting rid of the stuff. One of the company's horses standing near the barrel began eating the stuff. An hour or two later it was taken seriously ill with colic and died before 11 o'clock. The fact was reported by the company as a means of warning to other merchants who might suffer a similar loss through carelessness.

No Picture Matinee.

Owing to the fact that the heavy scenic effects for the production of "Fifty Miles From Boston" will be placed in the New Plainfield theatre Wednesday afternoon, there will be no moving picture matinee on that date. As a result, the only time this week when pictures and illustrated songs will be the offering is Wednesday night.

Christenings at St. Mary's Church.

There were several christenings at St. Mary's church, yesterday afternoon, Father Sciola, the assistant pastor, officiating. Among those baptized was Frank Andrew Sweeney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sweeney, of Park avenue. The sponsors were Miss Sarah Gilmartin and Michael Quigley. Another one was Gerald Herman Phiester, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Phiester. The sponsors were Miss Elizabeth Shay and George Linke. The third baptism was that of John Francis Powers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris F. Powers, the sponsors being Miss Margaret Conway and John J. Dorgan.

Took a Six Mile Walk.

A party of members of the Y. W. C. A. took a six mile "hike" through the Washington Valley road Saturday afternoon, stopping at Moldenke's Castle and eating a basket luncheon at Feltville. Next Saturday it is planned to walk to Washton Rock.

Keller to Be Acting Chief.

Marshal Charles Keller, of the North Plainfield police force, who has just returned from his vacation, will assume his duties of chief of the borough police tomorrow, when Chief Marshal George Weiss will start on his ten days' vacation.

Mrs. Charles Woolston and Miss Catherine Finger, of Park avenue, returned home Saturday night from a sojourn at Asbury Park.

TAKE BETTER CARE OF EYES IN SUMMER.

Colored glasses are not beautifying, but they prevent disfiguring frowns, and for that reason women who have the slightest trouble with their eyes should wear them as a protection against summer sun. Particularly when on the beach is it important to give the sight this protection, for glare is injurious to the organ of sight and will make even a slight frown deep.

It is an interesting fact for persons who are observing to note that it is exceptional to see a child nowadays who has not one or more perpendicular lines between the brows. Whether it is that children of this generation have more nervous organization is a question for discussion, but it is true that formerly frowning lines that were a mark of age now are seen on the foreheads of young children and youthful maidens. In view of these conditions it behooves a women who cares for appearances to watch very closely for these telltale lines, if she has not already developed them. In either case massage and strips of plaster worn at night will do much to prevent their appearance or to keep them from growing deeper.

In applying this treatment every night the forehead should be massaged from the edge of the hair to the rows, as well as between the eyes. Many women life their foreheads constantly, making lines more or less deep across, and these are extremely difficult to get rid of once they are acquired.

Before beginning the massage the face should be bathed to remove all soil, and a generous lump of cold cream placed just above the nose and the messaging begun. To give these motions the first two fingers or either hand should be placed touching each other, then both drawn toward the eyebrows in such manner as to smooth the brow. The stroking is to be continued for five minutes or more, varying it occasionally wtih a rotary motion. The latter is not so good as the smoothing stroke, however.

This portion of the brow treated, the rest of the forehead must be rubbed with cream and then massaged. This movement should be a combination of the rotary and stroke that bears down and off toward the temples. It stands to reason that the flesh must not be made to sag, for it would soon droop over the brows; therefore effort is made to get it to one side, the stroke at the same time strengthening the muscles beneath the skin. This work constantly done at night will accomplish much in keeping the forehead smooth, or preventing lines already there from growing deeper.

After the massage it is well to wipe the skin with a few drops of spirits of camphor. This is astringent, bleaching and refreshing.

If wrinkles are already present strips of adhesive plaster may be used. These, after smoothing the skin, are put over in such manner as to hold the surface smooth.

But the most careful attention at night will be useless if through the day conditions are such as to continue the habit of frowning:

MRS. TAFT'S IDEAS. ON WOMAN'S SPHERE.

Mrs. Taft is reported in the Boston Globe as saying:

"I have always believed that women should vote. I favor bestowing on them every civic right, but I should like to put in a prohibitory clause debarring them from running for public office.

"With women running for office I think the natural scheme would be disjointed and the end and aim of the home destroyed. Their voice is nearly always the voice of wisdom, and I see nothing unwomanly in their casting the ballot and exercising every right of the free citizen, but it seems that for the present it is impossible to dissociate the right to vote from the right to hold office.

"So the women who would never think of any other vocation than that of being good wives and mothers are prevented from taking their rightful share in governing the community through the fear which men have of women stepping down from their pedstal. Except in rare instances, the influence of women on politics is for their elevation.

"It is truly said that communities where women lack civic pride are in worse shape than those where man neglects his prerogative. Women should be versed in every phase of politics, and should know what everything means which has a direct bearing on the ome environment. That is my idea of purifying politics, and I think it the only practical one."

Likely Reason.

The city man was jogging on toward the summer boarding house in a rickety rockaway. The driver was glum and far from entertaining and the city man felt rather lonely.

"Fine field over there?" he ventured after a long silence.

"Fine," grunted the driver.

"Who owns it?"

"Old man Bitt."

"Old man Bitt, eh? Who are those children stacking up hay?"

"Old man Bitt's boys."

"And what is his idea in having them out there in the field on such a hot day?"

"Wal, I reckon he thinks every little Bitt helps, stranger. Anything else you want to know? Get up here, hosses."—Chicago News.

FEEDING THE BABY IN HOT WEATHER.

All careful work will go for nothing and the milk will spoil if it is not kept cold at a temperature of at least 50 degrees Fahrenheit. To keep the milk at this degree of coldness it must be on ice. Now, to put milk on ice does not necessarily mean that a costly ice chest must be bought, for if a woman is ingenious she can easily construct a simple but practical refrigerator from a soap box that will keep a 5-cent piece of ice for twentyfour hours, thus insuring the sweetness of baby's milk.

In fitting out such a home-made ice chest a wooden pail could be set in a soap box, and the box then filled with sawdust. In the pail is placed a thin bucket, large enough to hold the ice. This receptacle should have a cover, and when packed with ice should be surrounded by bottles of milk put in the wooden pail. The whole must then be covered with a newspaper, over which should be spread a piece of bagging or carpet. A bottle may be taken out only as it is required. Nothing else should be kept in this, and milk bottles should not be removed until the infants need them.

As to the care of milk—as soon as it has been modified it should be put into a cold place. It may, however, stand until the first intense heat has evaporated, the botties, of course, being corked. While still warm, and before the germ-laden atmosphere can begin to affect the liquid, the bottles must be jut into the cold storage box.

Though baby's milk is kept constantly cold, it is not to be given to him chilled. Nothing would sooner bring on a diseased condition of the bowels. Instead, this food must be just at blood heat. This temperature is secured by putting the bottles into hot water. The original corks should not be taken out until the rubber nipples are ready to be slipped into their places.

If baby has the slightest tendency toward indigestion when the weather is warm, and he is being fed on milk, his food should be pasteurized. This process of sterilization should be done to all milk fed an infant until he is a year old, and even older.

Another important detail to be remembered is that baby, like a grown person, requires less nourishment in summer, and it is not quantity so much as quality that is to be reduced, for a child always requires a certain amount of liquid on which the digestive organs must act, but they should not work so hard as in winter, when the whole system is stronger. When the liver begins to act too frequently, a slight reduction of the quantity of cream, used in modified milk, adding as much water as cream has been taken away, will sometimes be enough to make baby well. No mother should take chances, though, with dysentery, and the services of a physician must be called without delay.

White Blue Serge.

As a complement to the blue serge suit there is suggested the three-cornered hat of crumpled straw, relieved with two white or pale clover-pink wings, which apparently rest lightly on the front point and form a sole adornment of the hat. The three-cornered hat is about to enjoy a favor that it has not experienced for some time. All the three-cornered hats are not severely simple. Some of them are heavily trimmed with flowers and with ribbons and laces, but the outlines of them are preserved, and these almost without exception are becoming to those who wear them.

THE DERNIER CERI OF SUMMER STYLES.

Sashes are always in. When femininity doesn't wear them plain she drapes them in one way or another. At times she drapes them so peculiarly that no one recognisez them as sashes.

At present the most popular expression of the sash girdle is a moderately wide scarf of very supple satin, weighted at the ends by deep fringe or some sort of pendant ornaments. This is drawn around the waist, crossed in the back and secured there in some fashion so that this fold will clasp the figure closely through the ends are brought back loosely to the front or left front, and knotted carelessly and low.

The latest Parisian examples of the about-town trotteur are made of shining Liberty satin, skirt thickly plaited, but nothing like so short as they are worn here—the Parisienne short skirt reaches to the heels. Its belt is placed very high, and its long cutaway, smoking, or redingote of the same satin is unlined and falls heavily by means of clever weights. Such a skirt is worn over a very limp lingerie petticoat, and shades of khaki that verge on the orange are extremely smart.

The tiny thick ruches of tulle about the throat have been followed by those in silk.

Very smart dressers have taken to wearing very, very narrow ones, quilled thickly like the Watteau ruche, and sometimes, especially with a transparent tulle guimpe, the ruche is made entirely of one row of small small satin flowers tied with a bow at the back, or squarely under the chin. No gown is made with the material running over the neck, throat and arms, and the absolutely transparent effect thus given for all afternoon dresses is a bit shocking to the provincial.

A new pongee motor coat that is very practical has a yoke in the back, cut almost to the waist line, suggesting a bolero. This is cut by two box pleats springing from the neck, Watteau fashion. The fronts are double-breasted, as are most of the models.

All white handkerchiefs are not seen so much as formerly, but in colors there are shades in every imaginable color to choose from.

For instance, gray and white is the latest combination. While 'kerchiefs hemmed with pearl gray or a gray background decorated with white embroideries are much favored.

Another pretty effect is produced by heavy corners of white on a colored foundation. Scallops share popularity with the quarter-inch hem as a finish.

INVEST IN A STEAM COOKER.

There is ecenomy of fuel as well as of time in the steam cookers with which house furnishing departments are supplied. With them an entire meal may be cooked over a single burner of a gas, coal or oil stove, and without the odor of one food permeating the other foods.

The cookers are so made that no steam escapes from the various compartments into each other, nor into the room in which the cooking is being done. The meat or fish, which requires longer cooking than the vegetables, goes into the bottom receptacle. Then over it are put the various vegetables and dessert in the order of time required for their cooking. Corn, peas, potatoes, spinach and other vegetables which require a short time to become tender naturally go on the upper receptacles at the last.

With the steaming process no flavor is lost, as it is bound to be when boiling is done and many of the best cooks always use that process for vegetables. If chicken is to be cooked it may be steamed tender first, and then it may be fried brown or fricasseed afterward. Any meat or fish that is tasty when boiled is equally so cooked by steam. The same time for cooking is wanted for steaming as for boiling.

GALATEA MAKES USEFUL FROCKS.

Among the cheapest of the pretty tub jumper frocks are those made of blue and brown galatea. The material sells at a small price and washes like a collar.

It comes in good tones that do not show soil and comes out of the tub without being faded. Linen makes charming dresses, but every woman cannot afford many linen frocks. The good quality is the only one worth buying, and a frock of it is more or less costly.

When a girl feels she can afford only one, she should get it in rose pink or nile green in order that it may be dressy enough for afternoon wear.

This is the ideal costume for church this summer, at home or on a vacation.

Cotton duck is another material that is excellent for everyday wear, as a whole season of constant service makes little impression on it.

The reason most of these materials were not comfortable before for summer frocks was because of their heat around the neck and arms.

Paradoxical State of Affairs.

"I have written a book that everybody ought to read," said the author.

"I'm afraid it won't do," answered the publisher. "What the public seems to want now is a book that nobody ought to read."—Washington Star.

—Advertise in The Daily Press.

SPEAK TOO LOUDLY IN PUBLIC.

Foreigners Here Do It, and So Do We When We Are Abroad.

"Did you ever notice," he asked, "how foreigners always speak very loudly when talking with other persons of their own country?

"I mean that foreigners traveling about in this country conduct their conversations at the top of their voices. The same is true of them in restaurants, where they discuss the most private matters openly and loudly. They have abundant confidence that no one else will know what they are saying.

"I remember on one occasion being on the street with a young woman who knew Italian much more than I did. We passed several Italians who were walking along and one of them turning to a companion made a remark about the young woman's personal appearance that wasn't exactly flattering.

"From her face I knew that she understood. I turned about angrily, but she put her hand on my arm and asked me not to do anything. So we let it go at that."

"Yes," said the other man, "and if you ever have been abroad you will remember that Americans and English there are quite as free in their way of expressing loudly all sorts of opinions. It looks like a stand-off to me."

HAD HIS HEARERS HYPNOTIZED.

Sawmill Man Evidently Was Something of a Spellbinder.

An anecdote which is amusing on account of the "cheek" it displays, comes from Ohio. It was during a freshet, after a season of protracted drought. A great flood came down the Ohio river, bearing on its bosom haystacks, driftwood, sawlogs, live stock and a few men, women and children clinging to the wrecks of their houses. Hundreds of people came forth to rescue the drowning victims, others sought to save the perishing cattle, horses and sheep, but none so excited as a sawmill man. He had an eye—both eyes—on the sawlogs, thousands of them, and all the property of men 500 miles up stream.

He wanted those logs, but at the same time he did not want to incur any personal risk. So he mounted the head of his logway and attracted the attention of so many of the crowd as were not trying to save life and property, and made an eloquent speech.

The ending was something like this: "And now, fellow citizens and men—if you are men—bestir yourselves and save those logs, and I'll give you half of them!"

They say it is an actual fact that the men "saved" about 100 logs before they realized the absurdity of the offer.

Makeup Deceived the Officer.

A laughable scene was enacted on the stage of the principal theater in Hanover on the evening of the first production there of Wedekind's "The Awakening of Spring." The play had a run of more than 200 nights in Berlin, and the house at Hanover was sold out because there had been much discussion as to whether the censors would allow the production. While the scene in the first act between Frau Bergman and her daughter was on a police officer strode upon the stage and demanded in a declamatory manner to see the license allowing "the child there" to act. The man of the law was not a little surprised to learn that "the child" was an adult and an actress of high standing, whose admirable makeup was an additional proof of her artistic talent.

Dangerous.

"See my knife?" said a New York attorney, holding up a pocket knife with the blade literally burned away to a mere black wire. "And see my finger?" His finger had a red, angry scar, and he proceeded to explain. "About three weeks ago I took a sleeper for Chicago. One of the little electric lights at the side of my berth did not work to suit me, and I took my knife to pry it open or regulate it. Gee! there was a flame shot out, my knife blade melted right down, and I had to have a surgeon attend my finger. The electric current was a powerful thing, perhaps it might have killed me, for being so 'cute.'"

"Yes, electro-cute," suggested his friend.

"Frozen" Fortunes.

If London prices for meat and wool were raised correspondingly with the cost of production all would be well, but, taken over a series of years, the interest made on capital invested in pastoral properties is not by any means high. Pastoralists at present are not unwilling to sell out when they see a chance of getting their money back.—Melbourne Pastoralists' Review.

No Hope.

"They say these new directoire gowns are something wonderful to contemplate."

"Well, I don't think there's any hope that they'll interfere with the wearer's determination to get off a street car the wrong way."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Wanted a Nine-Shooter.

"I want a good revolver," began the determined-looking man.

"Yes, sir," said the salesman. "Six chambers?"

"Why—er—you'd better make it a nine-chamber. I want it to use on a cat next door."

LEAVES SPROUTED ON TABLES.

Additions Not Considered an Ornament by Their Owners.

Green leaves growing on an ornamental parlor table was the astonishing sight that greeted Mrs. John Foy of Meadow street, West Springfield, Mass., one afternoon recently, as she was engaged in the task of dusting her parlor furniture. At first she thought it was a nature fake of the optical delusion variety, but a closer inspection convinced her that the leaves were actually growing from the legs of the table.

A few days ago a peddler sold several of these tables, made of willow in the bark, to Mrs. Foy and some of her neighbors. Mrs. Foy had not looked at hers until the day she made the surprising discovery. Throwing a shawl over her head, she ran to the homes of her neighbors, Mrs. Stephen Verespej and Mrs. Thomas Wright, and found that their tables, too, had begun to flourish like the traditional green bay tree.

The explanation was simple. The willow had been cut while in the bud and immediately wound into the tables without curing, and the moisture in the air the last few rainy days was sufficient to bring out the leaves.

WOMAN TURNED CLEVER TRICK.

Mean Man Defeated for Honor That He Coveted.

A letter written by a woman decided a contest for the office of president of a men's club in New York a few days ago. There were two candidates for the place; one a clerk in a New York financial institution, whose young wife had been a working girl, the other a wealthy manufacturer, with a reputation among his neighbors for "closeness." The day before the election each member of the little club received a typewritten letter, signed by a woman whom all knew, which began with these words: "If what I write you is not true, it is libel." Then she said that the club should not honor its "meanest man" and related some amusing incidents to demonstrate that she was not mistaken in her estimate of the man. In closing she wrote, "what do you think of a man who has his barn painted and says to his wife: 'That's your birthday present.' If you can afford to elect that kind of a man for your president, go ahead!" The alleged "meanest man" was defeated.

"Soupiana Dementia."

Every time John Jenks of Seattle, Wash., sees soup he goes crazy. Vermicelli, consomme, mulligatawny, oxtail or just bean soup—it's all the same to John. Every time he sees soup, or a friend mentions soup, he shrieks and howls, and if he is offered it at table he grabs the dish with a maniacal yell and throws it up in the air. When it's noodles Jenks rubs 'em in his hair, and when it's potato he washes his face in it and yells like a fiend. This is the peculiar case agitating Seattle; and is the ground for a divorce applied for by Mrs. Shehezerde Jenks who fears John's mania will spread. The courts have the matter under advisement and the doctors are diagnosing this case of "soupiana dementia." Meantime polite folks, when John Jenks is invited to dine, make the cat eat the soup downstairs safe away from all suggestion to Mr. Jenks.

Measures Steam Consumption.

A German patent has recently been taken out for a steam consumption meter consisting of a small alternator whose magnet wheel is built into the steam piping, and is rotated by means of turbine blades fitted to its periphery. The voltage so generated in the alternator armature indicates directly on the scale of a voltmeter or frequency meter the pounds of steam consumed per hour, or a continuous record can be taken by means of a train of wheels. In order to correct for variations in steam pressure the resistance in the voltmeter circuit is varied automatically by the action of the pressure gauge.

The Practice.

"Good gracious, Mrs. Riter, what is all that noise and swearing about?"

"Sh! That's my husband, who is furiously angry because I disturbed him in his work to tell him the coal was out and we would have to order more to-day."

"Is his work so important?"

"Yes; he is writing a series of articles for a popular magazine on how always to keep sunshine and cheerfulness in the house."

The Man He Admired.

A number of men on the street were having a discussion as to who was the greatest inventor. Some said Edison, some Watt, some Morse, some one and some another. Finally a pawnbroker got in a word, and said: "Vell, chentlemens, dose vas gread peoples, but I tells you dot man vot invented interest vas no slouch."

"Mother's Day."

A movement, originating in Philadelphia, is rapidly extending throughout the states to set aside May 10 each year as "Mother's Day." Every man, woman and child pledges that day to wear a white carnation "in honor of the best mother who ever lived."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Douglas Fairbanks, the new star of William A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer, comes to the New Plainfield theatre tonight, in the new play by Rupert Hughes, called "All for a Girl," in which he will play a role written specially for him by the clever author of "The Triangle" and "My Boy." Mr. Fairbanks has been heading steward the last five years, by virtue of his capital acting in "The Pit," "Fantana," "Abigail," "Frenzied Finance," "Clothes" and "The Man of the Hour." It was his acting in the last-named play that led to Messrs. Brady and Grismer's making a star of him; and they commissioned Mr. Hughes to write a play that would display the attractive and agreeable Fairbanks personality to the best advantage.

It is estimated that more millions of people have witnessed "East Lynne" than have seen any other play that ever was written. This remarkable truth is explainable by the fact that the attack of the play on the sensibilities is irresistable—it goes home to the heart, and, more surely and truly than any other drama, it "touches the spot." An exceptional presentation of this play will be given in this city by Joseph King's New York company at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night.

That much heralded musical comedy, "50 Miles From Boston," the latest effort of that clever actor-author-playwright, George M. Cohan, will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night, under the direction of Cohan and Harris. Mr. Cohan is said to have furnished a very diverting production in this New England story, with a consistent plot, plenty of dramatic situation, two very pretty love stories, and a number of catchy Cohan songs, which are worked into the play with a master hand. The scenes of the play are laid in quiet Brookfield, about fifty miles from Boston, and the types are all familiar ones, from the demure little postmistress and her sullen brother, to the college lad, the high school girls and boys, and the self-important man of affairs, Tim Harrigan, who "has influence with the Town Council." The character of "Harrigan" is said to bid fair to be as distinctive a one as David Harum or the Uncle Josh of "The Old Homestead." It will be played by Joseph M. Sparks, formerly May Irwin's leading comedian. Mr. Sparks' singing of the famous "Harrigan" song is said to be the best thing he has done in years.

Jack Singer will present at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night the latest musical tomfoolery, "The Passing Review," by Aaron Hoffman, author of "Roger Bros. in Panama," staged by James Gorman, general stage manager for George M. Cohan's attractions. "The Passing Review" is described as a pursuant concord of exquisite colors, fascinating music, rhythmic dancing, brilliant lighting, delightful fun and revelry of all sorts, enveloped and crowned with a wealth of young and bewitching feminine loveliness. It is a production of the most spectacular sort. The first act takes place on the stage of Hammerstein's and during this act the famous impersonations of great stars takes place; including Oscar Hammerstein, Joe Welch, Charles Bigelow, Maude Adams, Anna Held, Montgomery & Stone, Caruso, Fritizi Scheff and Mrs. Leslie Carter. Cliff Gordon, the famous German comedian, Frank D. Bryan's Congress of American Girls and Frank Moore's Land of Cotton, with the ten Dancing Dandies, are a few of the special features. The cast is a prominent one, containing names known to the musical comedy world and includes such well known favorites as Mollie Williams, W. J. Gale, Ned Dandy, The Moores, James C. Morton, Marion Moore, Margaret King.

George Sidney, the funny little comedian, who gave to the stage an entirely new and genuinely funny Hebrew character, has a new comedy vehicle this season, entitled "Busy Izzy's Boodle," and it has already proven one of the brightest musical novelties. Over a hundred clever comedians, embracing some of the leading comedy artists of the profession, assist "Izzy" in his new creation. Extraordinary efforts and lavish expenditures have been made by the management in this season's production, and the best and most talented directors have been employed in weaving together this pot-pourri of music, song and jollity, richly embellished with new and special scenery, handsome gowns and a big chorus. "Busy Izzy's Boodle" will come to the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night.

HARLEMITES WERE EASY

Plainfield Y. M. C. A. Team Defeats New York Aggregation, 9 to 3.

GAME PLAYED ON THE OVAL.

Visitors Came to Town Shy of Men But Were Helped Out by Conover and "Jack" Payne.

The Y. M. C. A. nine had an easy thing with the Harlem association team at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon, winning by the score of 9-3. The local team made a good start and had five runs marked up before the visitors started to score in the fourth. The Harlem team landed in town with only seven men, two having got misplaced en route. Manager Listman, with true association fraternalism, offered them the necessary players, and Conover went in the box, while Patrolman "Jack" Payne went out in right garden for the Harlemites. Manager Listman himself went into the game, playing in right field for the local team. He made up for his error by a clean single which helped more than the misplay harmed. Harlem gathered tallies in the fourth and ninth, when they managed to bunch hits on Scott, and Graham's three-bagger helped materially.

On the slab Scott proved more effective than Conover, fanning ten and giving no passes. Conover had seven waving the air in the nine innings and gave four bases on balls. Ralph Schoonmaker fattened his batting average by making a safe hit each of his five times at bat.

PLAINFIELD A. C. TEAM WINS FROM COMPANY M.

The Plainfield A. C. defeated the fast Company M team at Somerville, Saturday afternoon, by the score of 4 to 2. Both teams played an excellent game at the bat, and in the field; but inability to connect with Slocum's curves, when hits meant runs, tells the story. Slocum pitched a steady game, striking out eleven men. He allowed but one free pass, while Will Russell, the fast twirler for Company M, fanned nine batsmen and gave four free passes.

A feature of the contest was the smashing two base hit to the left field fence by Thompson, and the clever catching of Mullen. The local team deserves credit for its good showing, as Company M has defeated several of the strongest teams in this vicinity this season. A return contest will be played on the Clinton Avenue grounds Labor Day afternoon. The score:

E. E. GANO DEFEATS MISS LOIZEAUX, 1 UP IN 25 HOLES.

In the weekly competition for the President's, club and challenge trophies a large field was attracted to the Park Golf Club, Saturday afternoon. The weather conditions were perfect for play and many good scores were returned. For challenge trophy No. 1, Walter C. McNaughton, holder, defeated W. R. Faber, challenger, by 7 up and 6 to play; for challenge trophy No. 8, E. E. Gano, challenger, defeated Miss Lydie E. Loizeaux, by 1 up in 25 holes. This was the best match of the day and was watched by a large gallery. For challenge trophy No. 5, W. V. Byard, challenger, defeated R. V. Carpenter, by 6 up and 5 to play.

These scores were posted for the President's and Golf Club cups

Miss Lydie E. Loizeaux, 99, 15-84; W. V. Byard, 95, 10-85; Willott Gano, 86, 0-86; Walter C. McNaughton, 93, 7-86; R. V. Carpenter, 106, 20-86; W. E. Lough, 107, 21-86; E. E. Gano, 88, 1-87; Dr. A. W. Anderson, 101, 8-93; Charles B. Morse, 103, 9-94; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 103, 7-96; W. R. Faber, 107, 9-98.

QUIET SEASON OF GOLF AT THE COUNTRY CLUB.

Owing to the fact that so many members of the Plainfield Country Club are away on their vacation, there was practically nothing doing on the course Saturday. A four-ball foursome was scheduled for the day, but there were so few entries the golf committee decided to call it off. With the first of September activity in golf will be resumed and from that time until snow flies there will be many attractions on the course each week.

Although there was nothing of importance on the course, there were plenty of social features at the clubhouse during the afternoon and the weekly dinner-dance attracted the usual large number of members and friends in the evening. The dancing was continued until 11:30 o'clock.

Somerville Wins the Series.

"Smiling Jimmie" Montross had the Indian sign on Scotch Plains at Somerville, Saturday afternoon, when he pitched for the West Ends and scored his second victory over the 'Plains team this season. The score was 4 to 2. Montross held the visitors to five hits, while nine safeties were made off of Brewer's delivery. It was a spirited contest and decided the three-game series between the two clubs in favor of the West Ends. The score by innings:

LOCAL MAN THIRD IN BIG SWIMMING CONTEST

Charles Hurtt, of this city, who is one of the life-saving guards at Asbury Park, finished third in the swimming race yesterday from Pier 4 in the East river to Coney Island, a distance of thirteen miles, and pressed the leaders very hard for first place. As a reward for his excellent work he received a prize valued at $150. From the time that he entered the water at Pier 4, until he left it at Coney Island, Hurtt maintained a good steady pace and finished the race in good shape without any help or assistance from those who managed the affair. The fact that he competed against a large field, comprising thirty-two crack swimmers, including two women, his performance is considered remarkable, especially in view of his heavy weight. He tips the scales around the 200 mark.

The race was won by Johnny Forester, of Harvey's crew at Coney Island. He covered the thirteen miles in four hours forty-five minutes and thirty seconds. That is thirteen minutes and thirty seconds behind the record for the course, but it won the United States Vounteer Life Saving Corp's seventh annual endurance swim from thirty-three competitors.

DUNELLENITES WERE EASY FOR HIGHLAND A. C. NINE.

The Dunellen nine were no match for the Highland A. C. team, Saturday afternoon, and were defeated by a score of 12-6 in a one-sided game played on the Dunellen grounds. After the Plainfielders had scored three runs in the second and third, the Dunellenies banged in five in their half of the third; but the lead was of short duration for five Highland players crossed the plate in the next batting session for the local team and after that the home nine could score but once. Mullen, Brokaw and Newmiller excelled in the field for the Highlanders. The lineups and score:

Highland A. C.: Hurst, 1b; Mullen, ss; Higgins, cf; Brokaw, 2b; Kyle, lf; Harding, rf; Newmiller, 3b; Scheller, c; Conshay, 6. Dunellen A. C.: Giddes, ss; Fagley, 3b; Gardner, 1b; Abbott, 2b; Miller, p; Hamley, rf; Garretson, cf; Dodwell, c; Lake, lf.

Struck out—By Miller, 7; Conshay, 5. Bases on balls—Off Conshay, 3; Miller, 2. Double play—Gardner.

EVANGELIST JACOBS AT NETHERWOOD CAMP

The largest and most appreciative congregation of any of the season's services at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp filled the open air auditorium, yesterday afternoon, on the occasion of the annual "Jacobs' Day" service, when Rev. F. H. Jacobs, the evangelist, spoke on "Child Life" as it appealed to him in his recent European tour. His talk clearly showed the advantages given the children in this country as compared with those afforded their brothers and sisters on the continent, speaking in a most interesting way of the humor and pathos of the life of children abroad.

In connection with the service Mr. Jacob's singing was a special feature and his rendition of the gospel hymn, "Make Me to Understand," was especially well received. The singing evangelist led the chorus singing by the children, in which more than 200 of the little New Yorkers took part. Mrs. von Brakle, organist at the Park Avenue Baptist church, was at the melodeon, assisted by E. H. Guest, cornetist, and the Misses Marjorie and Arline Brown, violinists. Elsie and Nellie Tudor, two of the camp children, sang "Peace, Sweet Peace" as a duet.

Mr. Jacobs, who is especially interested in the work Miss Sara Curry is doing among the New York poor, made a strong appeal for financial aid and the collection amounted to $41. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Franklin Matthews, the recently called pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church. George E. Hall, J. M. Hawkins, Herbert Henry and John H. Harrower acted as ushers.

PERSONAL.

Miss Adelaide Roberts and niece, Miss Helen Roberts, of West Second street, returned Saturday after a month's stay at Scranton, Pa., and left later for Ocean Grove to spend two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Wesley Holland, of West Seventh street, left last week for Europe to spend six weeks. They will be accompanied home by their daughter, who has been touring the continent for the past month.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sandford, of East Front street, and Mrs. L. S. Penfield, of Park avenue, left Saturday for Narragansett Pier, where they remain for a time. From there they will go to the White Mountains.

Mrs. W. A. Gahagan, Miss Daisie Gahagan and E. F. Gahagan, of Belvidere avenue, left today in their automobile for a tour of the Jersey Coast. Their destination is Atlantic City, where they will remain for several weeks. W. A. Gahagan will join the family later.

Camp Mohegan at Lake Hopatcong is a popular resort. Among guests and recent visitors from this city stopping there are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Emmons, the Misses Marion and Helen Emmons, Floyd Emmons, Mrs. Maria L. Lunger and Miss Bertha Swackhamer, who is spending several weeks at the camp.

PROBERS NOW AT TRENTON

Witnesses Tell Excise Commission of Liquor Sales to Princeton Students.

NO ATTENTION PAID TO AGES.

The Domination of Breweries at the Capitol City One of the Facts Brought Out.

The domination of local breweries in the liquor business in Trenton was one of the principal facts brought to light by Governor Fort's excise investigation committee, which met at the State House yesterday to inquire into the condition in Mercer, Burlington and Hunterdon counties. In general, it was shown, that little or no attention was paid to the age of students in Princeton University to whom liquor was sold; that the Trenton breweries controlled nearly 50 per cent. of the saloons in Trenton; that the action of the police in reporting violations had not been taken cognizance of by grand juries, and that the breweries exerted powerful influence in controlling the licensing of saloons.

As far as violations of the excise laws are concerned, it was admitted by the committee that its investigations had shown the city of Trenton to be one of the cleanest in the State. Stealthy traffic in liquor had been practically done away with by the local authorities some months before the passage of the Bishops' law.

Captain J. Cleary, of the Trenton police force, told the commissioners that he had submitted evidence of violations in eleven cases to the October grand jury. These resulted in only one indictment, although the captain considered that the evidence was conclusive in each case. He said that in his district there was reported to be two houses of prostitution where liquor was sold. Captain Cleary knew of a number of social clubs in the city, but had no evidence that they violated the excise laws. He said there were a number of saloonkeepers in the business who, he thought, were not fit to have licenses.

Prosecutor William J. Crossley expressed the belief that the county contained few violators of the excise laws. He admitted that there had been some differences between the police of the city and the county authorities as to the sufficiency of the evidence upon which complaints had been made to grand purors.

Charles H. Gallagher, a former member of the Trenton Excise Board, said he could have had $5,000 from a brewery for casting the deciding vote to license a saloon in the vicinity of the Second Regiment Armory. The license was not granted. He had protested vainly against granting licenses to persons who had violated the law or who ran objectionable establishments. Mr. Gallagher told the committee he could give it more information about affairs in Atlantic county than it had obtained, but he was promptly checked by the commission. It was shown that of 307 licensed saloons in the city, 124 were under brewery control.

The commission produced two bottles of whiskey which they said had been purchased in Trenton on Sunday. It began its session by inquiring into the enforcement of the law in Princeton and the conditions surrounding the sale of liquor to the student body. The questions of Chairman Fisk indicated that he was quite familiar with the subject, although the answers he elicited from the Princeton witnesses were in many instances neitther satisfactory nor responsive.

Mayor Harvey L. Robinson, of Princeton, said there were eight retail and two wholesale liquor establishments in the borough, and only a few violations had been complained of since the Bishops' law took effect. Mr. Fisk inquired whether in selling to students saloonkeepers were particular about their age. The Mayor replied that they sold to students the same as to other persons, but he supposed they were reasonably careful in ascertaining that they were twenty-one years old. Mr. Fisk persisted that it was generally understood that the age of students was not made a subject of inquiry by saloonkeepers, but Mayor Robinson said he was not aware of that fact.

When asked about general conditions, Mayor Robinson said there were a number of student clubs indirectly connected with the university, but no complaint of illegal sales had ever been made against them. He could not say whether these clubs were conducive to the good of the city, nor was he aware what steps, if any, were taken by the university authorities to regulate the attendance of students at saloons.

Following the investigattion of affairs in Princetnn, Mayor Isaac D.

BUTCHER'S HORSE, TAKING FRIGHT, RUNS TO STABLE

A spirited horse owned by William L. Smalley, Jr., the Park avenue butcher, and in charge of Grover Schuck, ran away at 8:30 o'clock this morning from in front of a Vine street house, where the driver stopped for an order. After a long run through Lincoln place, Washington and Rockview avenues to the home of Mr. Smalley on Greenbrook road, the animal was caught near the stables. Its legs were considarably cut and bruised, the harness was broken and the butcher wagon, although badly damaged was still fastened to the horse.

The animal was frightened into running away by several boys who were running a small express wagon up and down the sidewalk. The lad who was doing the steering lost control of the wagon which veered off the walk, striking the horse in the legs. The animal took fright, and breaking the hitching strap, started at a lively gallop through Vine street into Lincoln place, and thence to Mr. Smalley's home, running across the fields by the stable. Schuck came out of the house a few minutes later, only to find his rig had disapepared. The damage to the wagon will amount to about $75 and the horse was badly cut about the legs during the wild run.

FAIRBANKS PLEASING IN NEW SOCIETY COMEDY

Douglas Fairbanks, a virile young actor who recently gained great success by character portrayals in "Clothes" and "The Man of the Hour," was presented to Plainfielders as a star last night. He appeared at the New Plainfield theatre in a new play, "All For a Girl," written for him by Rupert Hughes, the well known music critic and magazine writer, and which is produced by William A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer. The performance was witnessed by an enthusiastic audience made up of local society folk and a big delegation of the young star's fellow members in the Lambs Club. Emphatic approval was placed on the entire production and there were no less than six curtain calls at the close of each of the four acts.

Mr. Fairbanks is to the stage today, in the opinion of many critics, what John Drew was in the early days of his service under the late Augustin Daley—an ideal actor of polite young men. "All For a Girl" is a society comedy and while the title appears to be a misnomer because the developments seem to be "all for a man,' it affords capital opportunities for the talents that earned his rise to stellar heights. His work throughout the piece was spontaneous and with the help of effective "lines" he soon had the good will of the audience. He was ably assisted by Miss Adelaide Manola, the heroine, who is a daughter of the well remembered Marian Manola.

Others in the supporting cast included Jane Corcoran, Harriett Otis Dellenbaugh, Robert A. Fischer, Percy Plunkett, W. J. Consantine and John Brennan, who was the original "Hi Holler" in "Way Down East."

The gathering in the orchestra seats, last night, comprised many well known theatrical lights. Managers Brady and Grismer viewed the play throughout as did also Miss Blanche Bates, star of "The Girl of the Golden West" and Miss Phoebe Davis, the original "Anna Moore" of "Way Down East." Mr. Hughes watched proceedings from a box.

Following five additional performances in this State, "All For a Girl" goes into the Bijou theatre, New York, next Monday night. It is booked for a long run and will in all probability meet all expectations.

GOLDEN EAGLES TO HOLD DISTRICT MEETING.

A delegation of members of Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, to the number of twenty, paid a fraternal visit to the New Brunswick Castle, last night, at which time the New Brunswick Castle entertained the grand vice-chief and his staff. After the meeting the knights were invited to a banquet provided by the New Brunswick members.

The grand vice-chief and his staff will visit Freedom Castle in this city tonight and a program of interest to every member will be arranged. There will also be a meeting of the past chiefs of district No. 10, when a candidate for grand sir herald will be selected to be presented at the annual meeting of the grand castle to be held at Trenton on Labor Day. A banquet will follow the meeting tonight.

LOCAL MAN STAYED PANIC

Broadway Magazine Says Alexander Gilbert Saved Country from Disaster.

STEADIED MONEY SITUATION.

Used Vast Powers of Clearing House Association to Root Out Group of Scheming Speculators.

The current number of the Broadway Magazine contains a number of sketches of prominent men and women, in one of which former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, of this city, is made a subject. The article deals with Mr. Gilbert's knowledge of banking methods and gives him credita for arresting the financial panic of 1907, as the following will show:

"Who arrested the panic of 1907 and really saved the country from disaster? It is popularly believed that a few public-spirited money kings of Wall street did the trick. Bankers, who know, however, give entire credit to the New York Clearing House Association, which by protecting the solvent members and promutly rooting up the evil through which a group of speculators were able to use a chain of important banks for the promotion of personal ends, steadied the financial situation and made recovery possible. The man who is at the head of an association which is the arbiter of the great volume of the commercial credit that grows out of the business transactions of the country, the most important fiscal institution of the country, must be an executive of more than ordinary calibre. Alexander Gilbert, president of the Market and Fulton National Bank, was elected president of the association in 1906, and through the trying days of the panic, concentrated his efforts and used the vast powers of the association to avert disaster. How this was accomplished is now a matter of history.

Mr. Gilbert is the only banker now surviving among those who were present at the first meeting of the New York Clearing House Association, which he attended in 1863. His experience through a number of panics was absolutely invaluable to the committee, of which he was a member during the last panic. Coupled with his experience in the Clearing House, Mr. Gilbert has a banking career of half a century. When he entered the old Market Bank as cashier before the Civil War in 1859, he had the distinction of being the youngest bank officer in New York. He was then just twenty years old, for he was born in Elizabeth, New Jersey, in 1839, and received his education there and in New Haven. His entire career has been centerel in banking, though for a period of six years he was Mayor of Plainfield, New Jersey, where he makes his home.

His wide acquaintance with banking affairs and his intimate knowledge of men and events, supplemented by careful study of banking and business problems, have made Mr. Gilbert one of the foremost authorities in banking circles and many of his utterances have a permanent place in American financial literature. Personally Mr. Gilbert is the most democratic banker in Wall street. He is at all times accessible to callers. He does not dislike being called old-fashioned, for he believes in safety as the first consideration, and in progress, only when safety is assured."

Will Repair County Roads.

Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur, of Westervelt avenue, who is spending the summer at Lake Hopatcong, came down yesterday to attend a meeting of the road committee of the Union County Board of Freeholders at Elizabeth. The meeting was called chiefly to consider certain repairs and improvements to Morris avenue and two or three other thoroughfares near Chatham. After going over the matter thoroughly the committee decided to recommend that the work be done and it will be reported at the regular meeting of the freeholders on Thursday, September 3.

Last Excursion to Asbury Park.

Don't forget that the excursion of Warren chapel to Asbury Park on Thursday will be the last this season from Plainfield and if you want to enjoy a fine day at the shore plan to go along. The train will leave Plainfield in the morning at 8:15 o'clock and returning leave the shore at 6:10 o'clock in the evening.

—One hundred baskets of Hunterdon county peaches displayed by Neuman Brothers this morning were sold by noon time. Tomorrow another shipment of 100 baskets will be shown. Prices, 50c, 75c and $1.

GARDENER WON'T LEAVE

So Professor Groszmann Has Again Asked Aid of the Borough Police.

TROUBLE AT WATCHUNG CREST.

John Carrar, Discharged, Refuses to Move His Large Family From the School Barn.

Unless John Carrar, a French gardener discharged last week from the employ of Professor M. P. E. Groszmann at the Groszmann School, Watchung Crest, leaves the school premises before Constable William H. Pangborn can be secured to arrest him, he will be apprehended and prosecuted to the full extent of the law as a trespasser. This is the situation at Watchung Crest, where on so many occasions, the proprietor of the school has besought North Plainfield police protection. Justice of the Peace Smalley decided at a hearing last night that the man is now a trespasser.

Carrar, who lives in the school barn with his family, was "fired" last Monday, but claiming that he would continue to draw pay until the end of the month, remained on the premises. To Professor Groszmann he made the "preposterous claim" that his wages were coming to him, asking that if the money was refused him, he be furnished with his moving expenses and be supplied with a place to live—prepaid—until he could get another job. He has been a gardener at the school for the past six weeks, moving up on the mountain to take the job with his grandmother, his wife, daughter and two sons.

Mr. Groszmann stated today that part of the agreement under which he got the job and the home in the barn was that his wife be cook at the school, his daughter assist in the sewing department, and his two sons help their father around the place. Mrs. Carrar "struck" after cooking three meals, the daughter backed out of her alleged agreement and the father and sons haven't done a stroke of work, Mr. Groszmann says, since last Monday.

Considering the man a trespasser, but powerless to make him leave the premises with his family, Dr. Groszmann appealed to the law and brought the case before Justice Smalley last night. Carrar is reported to have said at that time that he would leave the premises by 10 o'clock. But at 10 he seemed more at home than ever. Dr. Groszmann urged him to remember the "Judge's" decision, but—"nothing doing." Accordingly Waldemar Groszmann was commissioned to look up the constable, who had said that he would be on hand to see that the order was obeyed. Mr. Groszmann came down to the borough and searched around for the law-enforcer, but could not find him. At noon Carrer, his grandmother, his ex-cook wife, his ex-sewing-teacher daughter, and his two ex-gardener sons were still in the barn.

County Committee Meets at Elizabeth

An unimportant meeting of the Union County Republican Committee was held in Elizabeth last night. The secretary was instructed to notify the officers in each election district who had failed to make all of their appointments to do so at the earliest possible date so that the list may be complete. James White announced that County Chairman F. H. Smith would leave tomorrow for a six weeks' stay at Long Lake, in the Adirondacks, and the best wishes of the committee were extended to him for a pleasant vacation and the return of health and strength. There was an informal discussion regarding the Congressional situation, but nothing important came out of the talk.

Water Officials May Be Indicted.

Officers of the Middlesex Water Company, consisting of John Whalen, Hamilton Kean, United States Senator Kean, ex-Governor Voorhees and Frank Bergen, may face the charge of violating the game laws of the State. They recently built a large reservoir in Clark and Westfield townships, near Rahway, and to destroy the vegetable matter along the banks have been using blue stone or crystalized vitoral, which is said to have killed thousands of fish in the resevoir.

Russell Pyatt May Recover.

Russell Pyatt, the thirteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Pyatt, of South Plainfield, who was kicked in the face by a horse Saturday night, sustaining a fractured jaw and the loss of eight teeth, was reported at the hospital today as being slightly improved and with chances for recovery. He had a comfortable night and this morning the physicians discovered that his condition was not as serious as at first believed when he entered the hospital.

FIRE HOUSE CONFERENCE

Councilmen Hold Lengthy Session Without Reaching an Agreement.

PROPOSITION NOW HELD UP.

Cost of the Building As Outlined at Present the Principal Obstacle in the Way of Progress.

Because the members of the Common Council cannot agree on the amount of money which should be expended for the erection of a firehouse on South avenue in the Netherwood district of the city, little or no progress was made at the conference of the members called for last night by the fire and building committee. There was just a quorum present and the whole evening was given up to a discussion of the firehouse proposition, and sketches as presented by Chairman H. D. Hibbard.

There is no question at all as to the need of greater fire protection in the East End, but whether it is sufficiently urgent to erect a building at once and equip it and the cost are important points that the members are not agreed upon. It was suggested that if the West End house was good enough for that end of the city and had answered the purpose in that thickly-populated section, a similar one should be good enough for the East End. A majority of the members appear to be opposed to spending a lot of money for a fire-house in the Netherwood district mainly for the reason that the city cannot well afford it at present.

The proposition is now held up pending further information, it being the purpose of the members to ascertain definitely, if possible, how the improvement can be made at a reasonable cost and to get plans that will answer the request of those favoring the building.

There is determined opposition on the part of some of the members to placing a show house on South avenue. They do not think that this is necessary even in the Netherwood district. If it is decided to build at all, the structure will probably be a plain one, yet large enough to meet the growing needs of that part of the city for many years to come.

There are various opinions as to what the house should cost, figures ranging from $6,000 to $10,000 being suggested as reasonable. The question of the expense of equipping the house has not been considered at all, it being the desire of the members to first dispose of the cost of the building. As stated last week, there is a feeling that the fire department is costing the city a sufficient sum now and if this is materially added to there will no doubt be protests from the taxpayers.

Failing to reach any definite decision, an adjournment was taken subject to the call of the chair for another meeting. Mr. Hibbard is especially anxious to have the matter settled before the regular September meeting so that a definite report can be made at that time and some action taken.

Funeral of Mrs. Anna Langerbahn.

The funeral service of Mrs. Anna Langerbahn, widow of Peter Langerbahn, who died on Saturday at the Metuchen Home, was held this afternoon from the chapel of the First Presbyterian church, of which she was a member for many years. Rev. Lewis Bond, of Kensington avenue, officiated and spoke in a eulogistic manner of the Christian life of the departed. The burial was in the Plainfield Avenue cemetery.

Delayed Decision a Dismissal.

City Judge Runyon, who reserved his decision in the joint complaint case of Morris Zagoria and Simon Hirsch after the testimony received last Tuesday morning announced at court today that he would dismiss the case. He said that he felt that both parties in the fight which arose over Zagoria's wages were in the wrong.

Finance Committee to Meet.

The Councilmanic finance committee will hold a meeting tomorrow night to consider several matters which will be presented at the regular meeting of the Common Council which will be on Tuesday night, September 8. The rules provide that when a regular meeting falls on a holiday it shall be held the following night.

Dr. Dundon Buys a Home.

Dr. A. H. Dundon has purchased the residential property which he occupies at 55 Somerset street, and has plans out to thoroughly overhaul and remodel the dwelling, making it modern in in every respect. The property was owned by Mrs. Emily H. Cory. The consideration is not known.

EXPRESSMAN INJURED WHILE GIVING A "LIFT"

Joseph English, employed by the Hand Storage and Express Company, and engaged with a large gang carting iron for the Public Service Corporation's new gas-holder being being erected on Watchung avenue, received a bad injury to his leg and foot about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon which will detain him at home for a few weeks.

He had been working with Hand's gang unloading iron at the gas plant, when another gang employed by the company asked him for a "lift" to move some iron sheets. While lifting one of the heavy pieces of iron he missed his hold and it fell on his leg and foot. Had the full weight of the iron, which weighed about two tons, fallen on his leg, it would have crushed it beyond help.

English was taken to the home of Dr. H. M. Lowerie on Park avenue, where the leg was examined and temporary treatment given. So far as the physician was able to determine there were no bones broken, but the man suffered intensely from the effects of the blow. He was later removed to his home on East Front street, refusing the offers to take him to Muhlenberg Hospital. English formerly lived in Newark and has been employed by the Hands only a few weeks.

WOVERTON CASE PUT OVER FOR TWO WEEKS

The hearing of Superintendent Arthur Wolverton, head of the Industrial Home, against whom charges of abuse have been made by S. S. Vermeule, a ninety-two-year-old inmate, was adjourned for two weeks in the city court today at the request of W. G. DeMeza, counsel for the accused. The complainant came in a carriage to the court-room, arriving promptly at 9 o'clock. He is not represented by counsel.

The charge, as read by Judge Runyon, alleges that on August 1 the superintendent abused the old man, at the home, seizing him roughly by the collar and arm and throwing him down. According to Mr. Vermeule's sworn statement, he was bruised by the fall and sustained a cut on the knuckle of his right hand. The superintendent did not put the case into the lawyer's hands until early this morning, so that his counsel's request for an adjournment was readily granted.

At the hearing this morning were Councilman W. L. Gloak, Overseer of the Poor Aleck Ayres and City Physician C. B. Lufburrow. Mr. Ayres said that the case should not properly come up in the city court, stating that the proper channel for such a charge was through him to the Common Council.

SWACKHAMER IN FAVOR OF LOCAL OPTION LAW.

Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, of the borough, who is being mentioned as a Democratic possibility for Congress in the Fourth District, is heartily in favor of a local option law, and he is anxious everybody should know it. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Swackhamer addressed Hunterdon county farmers at Clover Hill on the subject, and made a vigorous plea for the proposed legislation.

"I wish to make my position on this question plain," said the former Assemblyman. "I feel strongly on it, and I am moved to speak my convictions in no uncertain way. I wish I could address the whole State on it."

FINDS GEMS IN BIRD'S NEST.

Brooklyn Girl Gets a Diamond Ring Valued at $350.

Miss Anna Dodge, of Brooklyn, who is visiting friends in Caldwell, while in the woods of that vicinity with friends yesterday, found a diamond ring valued at $350.

Her attention was drawn to a bird's nest at the foot of a tree, and thinking it had been wantonly thrown to the ground by some small boy, picked it up. In the nest was the ring.

It is set with four diamonds of rare brilliancy. A jeweller said it is worth $350. The nest was that of a blackbird and it is supposed the bird carried the ring there.

Executors of Hedden Estate.

Louis D. McIntosh and Jacob Blimm, Jr., were named as executors of the estate of Albert Hedden in his will which was made just previous to his death.

John Maltbie, a well-known citizen of Dunellen, who has been seriously ill at Muhlenberg Hospital since the first of August, does not improve and there is little hope for his recovery.

ENDS LIFE WITH BULLET

John Britton, in Despondent Mood, Kills Himself in Vacant Lot.

PASSERBY WITNESSES THE ACT.

Ambulance Carries Wounded Man to Hospital But Death Ensues In Twenty Minutes.

Despondent over his business affairs, John Britton, of Orange place, blew out his brains with a .38 calibre revolver in the vacant lot at Church and East Front street at about 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and died twenty minutes after his arrival at the hospital in the ambulance. The suicide was witnessed by an Italian named Mike Marsigo, who was passing the corner at the time and who summoned Patrolman Dobson and the ambulance. Mr. Britton, who was sixty years old, was on his way to the skirt factoy of Nat Levy & Co., where he has been employed for the past two years as night watchman. The revolver with which he killed himself was the one he carried while at work.

Some time ago Mr. Britton bought an express business, placing it in charge of his sons, Edward and William Britton. They paid but little attention to, it is said, and the father was compelled to secure a manager. He had two horses and wagons, but one of the horses died only a short time ago. Yesterday he closed a deal for the sale of the business to J. T. Boylan, of Regent street, and afterward remained down town for some time with his sons. He was much disappointed, it is said, over the failure of the two to make a success of the venture.

The fatal shot was fired when the man was about in the middle of the lot, crossing to Church street. The suicide held the weapon to his right temple and pulled the trigger. Marsigo heard the shot and turning, saw the man stagger and fall. Dr. Browning and Dr. Pittis came with the ambulance, but the suicide's aim had been true, and death came in a few minutes.

Britton, who has been a resident of this city for the past eighteen years, lived at 302 Orange place. He was born at Everettstown, and later lived in Neshanic for several years. He is survived by a widow, two sons, Edward and William, and a daughter, Mrs. Frank Mason, who lived with her parents.

Mr. Britton was a great sufferer from facial neuralgia and it is believed that the pain, together with depression about his business, drove him to commit suicide. He was a member of the First Baptist church, and belonged to the P. O. S. of A. and the Somerville Lodge of Odd Fellows. The funeral will be from his late home on Orange place Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and will be in charge of a delegation from th Somerville lodge of Odd Fellows.

A coincidence in connection with the fatality is the fact that Mr. Britton's predecessor as watchman at the skirt factory also committed suicide. He was John Witteman, who shot himself as he sat in the boiler room of the plant one morning just before the employes began to arrive for their day's work.

MRS. ANNIE OSBORN DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Mrs. Annie C. Osborn, widow of Joseph T. Osborn, and mother of Mrs. E. S. Ovens, died at the home of the latter in the Lincoln Apartments on West Fourth street, yesterday, after a long illness. She was born at Princeton and was seventy-one years of age. She formerly lived at Middletown. After the death of her husband she made her home with her daughter and for several years resided on Mercer avenue, North Plainfield. Four years ago the family moved to New York, returning to Plainfield a year ago, where they have continued to reside. Mrs. Osborne was a woman of strong Christian character and many lovable qualities. She was a member of the Church of the Holy Cross and until illness prevented was a regular communicant there. The only surviving member of the family is the daughter, Mrs. Ovens.

The funeral service was held from the home of the daughter at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, Rev. G. A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, officiaating. The remains were taken later to Red Bank where tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock another service will be held in the chapel at Fairview cemetery, where the burial will take place.

Mrs. W. D. Manning and daughters, the Misses Bertha and Florence Manning, of Randolph road, and Miss Bertha Peck, of East Second street, are spending a week at the New York Hotel, Asbury Park.

The Clinton Avenues will entertain the Scotch Plains team on Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon, and the fans may be assured of a good contest. There will be no fighting or quarrels to mar the pleasure of the game as ample police protection will be arranged for by the management.

No pitcher has a prettier or freer swing than Nep Rucker of the Brooklyns.

The Clevelands have a heavy infield, but one that is not wanting in agility.

Pretty nearly every day is Cy Young day when the grand old man goes in to pitch.

At playing the bound of the ball to a nicety, Bill Bradley has all the third basemen faded.

In his last four games Mike Donlin has whaled the pellet for two home runs, a triple, a double and a single.

Pitcher Johnson, the smooth working youngster of the Washingtons, is now mowing 'em down as he did last year.

Four of the games in the major leagues last Saturday represented a total of forty-six innings. There were four extra inning battles.

And now the prophets are beginning to declare that the American League race is between Detroit and Cleveland and not between Detroit and St. Louis.

First class catchers are more numerous than they used to be. Look at this list of classy ones: Criger, Clarke, Spencer, Kleinow Sullivan, Bresnahan, Dooin, Kling, Bergen, Gibson, Schlei and Bowerman.

McIlveen, the new outfielder of the New York Americans, is a graduate of Pennsylvania State College. He was a good football player when at college and will coach the eleven at Pennsylvania State this fall.

Beals Becker, outfielder on the Little Rock club, has been sold to the Boston Nationals and will join them in Chicago this week. Becker was with Pittsburg earlier in the season and was sold to Little Rock.

Jack O'Connor, scout for the St. Louis Browns, has bought a couple of young players, according to word received from Joplin, Mo. One is Paul Cobb, a brother of the famous Ty, for whom $3,000 was paid, and the other is a shortstop named Wanner.

The Chicago Cubs have been bumped hard by the other first division teams this season. The New Yorks, Pittsburgs and Phillies have all made lots of trouble for them. The outlook for Murphy's men would be brighter if they had shown more strength against the stronger teams.

There never has been a 30,000 crowd at the Polo Grounds, but there may be if the increased capacity to be provided there permits it. In that case it may come this year if the New Yorks keep on winning. Should the New Yorks take part in the world's series the 30,000 crowd is no more likely to be then before, for the increased prices at world's series games will keep some away.

The New York American League club is showing a good deal of enterprise in digging up young players, on whom, by the way, the future welfare of the club largely depends. Seven recruits have been rounded up within the last week: McConnell, pitcher, from Buffalo; Warhop, pitcher, from Williamsport; McIlveen, outfielder, from Newark; O'Rourke, second baseman, from Bridgeport, and Wagner and Parkins, pitchers, and Mercan, shortstop, from Binghamton.

GOLF.

A kickers' handicap will be the scheduled attraction at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday. After the first of September there will be a number of events every week to attract the members and their friends.

Despite the warm weather and that many are away from home, the attendance each week at the Park Golf Club keeps up remarkably well. The weekly competitions for the Presidents' and club cups, as well as the challenge trophies, is a strong feature.

Royal Phelps Carroll was the winner of the cup offered by President Lispenard Stewart, of the Newport Golf Club, for an eighteen hole medal play tournament, Saturday. He returned a score of 93, 23—70.

The social features at the Plainfield Country Club this season have been a source of great pleasure to the members and friends. The attendance at the Saturday night dinner-dances has been large.

The absence of several players at the Plainfield Country Club, during the past month or so has been noted, while the occasional play of Robert Abbott has been greatly missed this summer. It is expected that in the fall F. O. Reinhart, W. Lester Glenney, Dudley H. Barrows, as well as many other young players, will be prominent in the competitions planned.

A great many improvements and the constant care and attention given has made the Park Golf Club course one of the best in this part of the State. To be sure it is only nine holes, but those who have played on it as well as the Plainfield Country Club links declare it to be the hardest of the two to negotiate in the fewest number of strokes. It is considered a sporty course by all who have played there.

Several important tournaments are scheduled for this fall in the East and Plainfield golfers are quite likely to be found competing for honors.

The Plainfield Giants were defeated Saturday at Garwood by a score of 3 to 2, twelve innings; by the Garwood A. C. The Giants will play at Newark on Sunday. The Giants lined up up as follows Saturday: C. Moore, p; Garner, ss; Warrick, 3b; Vandivier, c; Perkins, 1b; Marshall, cf; Hatchett, rf; Johnson, 2b; McClain, lf.

The Iola Baseball Club will play Co. M at Somerville on Saturday afternoon. This will be the first contest in three weeks as on the two previous Saturdays the clubs scheduled to play the Iolas forfeited by failing to appear on the grounds.

Gabel, of Bordentown, told of conditions in his town, which is in Burlington county. There are ten saloons there and a population of 4,300. Mayor Gabel said there had been many violations, and they were prosecuted whenever detected. Complaints of selling to minors had been made and in one or two instances the witness thought the juries had failed to perform their full duties.

WATER SUPPLY IS ASSURED.

Tuberculosis Sanitarium Turcatened with Dearth Until Workmen Place New Pipe.

Because of the extremely dry weather in the central part of the State, the springs on the site of the State Sanitarium for Tuberculous Diseases at Glen Gardner, which supply that institution with water, have been so low that its use has been restricted during the last two weeks, and fears were entertained that a water famine was inevitable.

So serious was the condition that last Monday A. L. Beavers, of Glen Gardner, a member of the board of managers, ordered a pump and pipe from the city, a gang of men were set to work digging a trench and laying pipe, and by Saturday none more than 1,500 feet of pipe has been laid to a stream near Rocky Run and a stream of water was flowing in the reservoir at the rate of eighty gallons per minute. The fluid is of purest mountain spring water, and is said to be never-failing. There are now about one hundred patients at the sanitarium, and the sanitary rules of the institution require a great deal of water.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Paul Rogers, of 320 Cumberland street, Gloucester, was accidentally shot in the left arm while at work in a shooting gallery at Washington Park Saturday night.

"Farmer-Orator" James E. Martine will be the principal speaker at the big Democratic massmeetiag to be held in the courthouse, Mt. Holly, next Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Maggie Mick was burned about the face and hands by the explosion of a gasoline stove at her home in Glassboro Saturday. The house caught fire and the kitchen was badly damaged.

The Clayton police are looking for two men with gunshot wounds, reported shot by farmers, who have been so annoyed by foragers, especially Saturday nights, that they now sleep with their guns handy.

For the second time within a few weeks thieves, Saturday night, invaded the stables at the State prison, and got away with a valuable set of silver-mounted harness belonging to Head-keeper Osborne.

Bonaparte Park, Bordentown, was visited Sunday by women parishioners of St. Vincent's parish in Germantown, Pa., to see the students of St. Vincent de Paul's College, who are spending the summer there.

Governor Fort was the guest of the Bay Head Yacht Club Sunday and got a reception at the yacht clubhouse. Governor Fort motored down from Sea Girt, accompanied by a few friends. The yacht club made it a gala day, with yacht races, music and dancing.

Accused of arson, L. D. Phifer, fifty years old, of Blenheim, near Blackwood, was committed to the Camden county jail by Justice of the Peace Pine, of Blackwood, yesterday, on complaint of A. B. Ayer, agent of a building the defendant is alleged to have burned.

Differences as to how to make a salad resulted in a duel with butcher knives between two chefs in the kitchen of the Ocean Avenue Hotel, Atlantic City, Saturday. The men are Joseph Pernahia and J. Grener. The duelists, who were badly cut, were taken to the city hall and held for a hearing.

A thief entered George Whiting's residence, at 347 Summit avenue, Jersey City, yesterday and stole $38 in currency and a signet ring. He left anunsigned note on the kitchen table reading as follows: "I didn't want much, but I wanted it quick and got it. The man who catches me has got to be slick, as this is my trade."

After attending the horse races Saturday afternoon, Jefferson Smallwood was challenged by a farmer to a road race while going to Glassboro for a load of ice. Mr. Smallwood was handicapped by the ice wagon, but easily distanced the farmer. While loading the ice the horse had a hemorrhage and died before they could get him out of the shafts.

George Frantz, a youth, of 107 North Van Pelt street, Philadelphia, who is summering with his parents in a cottage at Pleasantville, may die as result of injuries received Saturday, when he was struck by a car of the Shore Fast Line at Pleasantville. The boy was rushed to the City Hospital, Atlantic City, in a special car, but the surgeons fear that his skull is fractured and that he cannot recover.

John Guild Muirheid Carter, of Trenton, a young business many is reported to be mysteriously missing from home since last Monday when he kissed his bride of a year goodby and told her he was going to Wilmington on a business trip. His accounts at Trenton are straight and no reason can be assigned for his continued absence. His wife fears he has met with an accident or four play, and is prostrated.

Charles Mather, a Trenton mason, who was recently knocked unconscious by the fall of a heavy rope, had a narrow escape from death Saturday, when he slid from the roof of a four-story building where he was engaged in pointing an old chimney. In his slide he managed to grasp a dead elelectric wire and to this he clung until he could swing himself to a scaffold, after which he lost no time in getting to the ground. Then he knocked off for the day.

PISTOL FIRED INTO FACE.

Perth Amboy Girl May Be Totally Blind from Boy's Reckless Act.

Sarah Diamond, twelve years old, of North Brunswick avenue, Perth Amboy, may become totally blind as the result of the discharge of a blank cartridge in her face by fourteen-year-old Herman Young, last night. Dr. Meinzer has little hope of saving her eyesight.

The girl had been to a picnic of a Hebrew school, and, returning last night, heard her sister protesting against the rough treatment of the boy. Sarah Diamond ran to her sister's aid, and declares when she demanded of the boy that he cease his actions, he thrust the pistol in her face and pulled the trigger. Her face and eyelids were terribly burned. No complaint has been made against Young.

Clarence Francisco, of West Second street, left last night for Atlantic City to spend a week.

THE FORUM.

The Atlantic Cable.

Editor, The Daily Press:

It will be of interest to many readers to be reminded of the fact that today is the fiftieth anniversary of the successful transmission of the first telegram across the Atlantic ocean. Cyrus W. Field, as far as known, was the first to conceive the idea that such a thing could be done, and for at least four years, from 1854 to 1858, he gave the matter his earnest and unflagging attention, although his project was opposed and even scoffed at by many learned and scientific men, both in Europe and America. But he persisted, and in 1854 succeeded in organizing a company for the purpose of establishing telegraphic communication across the Atlantic. The company was organized with a paid up capital of one million dollars, of which he subscribed himself two hundred thousand. The meeting at which this company was organized was held at Mr. Field's house in March, 1854. The well known and venerable Peter Cooper was made chairman of the meeting and during the session, because so enthusiastic and his faith so strengthened, that he pledged himself to stand by Mr. Field in his undertaking until it became a success. That meeting was not large but was composed of well known and responsible men. Their names are as follows: Cyrus W. Field, David Dudly Field, Peter Cooper, S. F. B. Morse, the telegraph specialist; Marshall O. Roberts, Daniel Huntington, Chandler White, Wilson G. Hunt and Moses Taylor. A fine painting of this group, by Daniel Huntington in 1896, now hangs in the Chamber of Commerce in New York. The committee appointed later for carrying out Mr. Field's suggestion regarding the painting, was composed of Morris K. Jessup, Abram S. Hewitt and William E. Dodge.

The news of the first successful cablegram was heralded wherever the telegraph could reach throughout the civilized world, and never before or since have been held such extended and universal exhibitions and demonstrations of rejoicing as was witnessed fifty years ago today and tomorrow.

The writer was then a resident of Westerly, R. I., and remembers with delight the public demonstrations carried out there, never before or since witnessed it is believed in that wide-awake town.

WARRANT SERVED ON THOMAS.

E. R. Thomas, who is confined to the Monmouth Memorial Hospital at Long Branch, with a fractured knee received in Friday night's automobile accident, was served with a warrant yesterday issued in behalf of the city, charging him with reckless driving. Mr. Thomas furnished cash bail for his appearance at a hearing fixed for Monday, Sept. 21.

Counsel for Daniel Connelly, the coachman, whose collarbone was broken in the accident, was instructed today to bring suit against Thomas for $10,000 damages. A suit for $1,000 damages will also be brought by Emil Seelig, whose team was killed and victoria wrecked.

Thomas' condition is good. Dr. Brewer, chief surgeon of the Roosevelt Hospital, New York, was among his callers yesterday. In company with two trained nurses the turfman will be taken to his country home at Holmdel tomorrow.

COIN SPENT FOR DRINKS

Revenue Department Gives Figures for North Jersey Which are Interesting.

Increased consumption or production of beers and liquors tobacco and even snuff in Northern New Jersey during the last year is shown in an interesting compilation of internal revenue tax returns for the fifth district, New Jersey, the main office of which is in Newark. The business depression was held responsible for a falling off in receipts after January 1 last, but that the times are improving is indicated by the recent increase in consumption of such products as come within the ken of the revenue department.

While the total revenue receipts of the country for the past year aggregated something like $250,000,000, this amount was $20,000,00 less than was collected during the previous twelve months. The reduction was attributed to the spread of prohibition laws, the closing of breweries and distilleries in the South and to the hard times. Despite this fact the local district jumped its receipts $92,112.68 over the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907. Its total receipts were $6,566,290.62.

Newton H. Porter, chief deputy to Collector Herman C. H. Herold, has had the figures compiled for the annual report of the office, and aside from showing the increase in total receipts, thus placing the fifth district about twelfth in the list of the sixty-six districts in the country, tthe figures are interesting. The report, for instance, demonstrates that the Northern New Jersey district leads the United States in the quantity of snuff manufactured.

After a depression of several months, the sales of beer, cigars and cigarettes, tobacco and snuff took a sudden jump in June, according to the revenue returns for the thirty days which ended the fiscal year.

A comparison of the various tables set forth in the report shows that the sale of beer and snuff fell off noticeably during the first six months of 1908, and that less cigarettes and cigars were smoked. The tobacco output during the same period increased, which is taken to mean that the pipe replaced the cigar to a large extent. The consumption of oleomargarine increased almost two hundred per cent. during the year, but in June the sale of this stuff took a big drop. Despite the hard times there were more playing cards made during the dull months than for the same months a year ago.

The revenue tax on beer is $1 per barrel, and the table below shows that the brewers in the fifth internal revenue district produced 3,029,403 barrels, or 43,641 more than during the previous twelve months. In June alone 305,290 barrels were brewed, or 40,673 barrels more than was turned out in May. As dealers figure about 500 glasses of beer to the barrel, the figures mean that 152,645,000 glasses were supplied during June. This record is only 2,607 barrels behind June, 1907.

The table of the revenue office, showing the beer tax collections during the past two years, is as follows:

	1906.	1907.
July	$311,559	$358,485.00
August ...	315,613	335,114.00
Sept.	271,228	268,465.00
October ..	236,920	253,343.50
October ..	236,920	253, ...
November .	223,888	227,166.50

April	229,199	219,479.00
May	276,614	245,963.00
June	307,897	305,290.00
Totals	$2,985,762	$3,029,403.00

Although the revenue receipts for beer increased $43,361 for the whole year, a decline in beer sales is indicated as compared with the previous year from January to May last, with the exception of February. In February the receipts were over $2,000 more than for the same month in 1907.

The slump in the cigar and cigarette trade began last October and in March the factories took a spurt, only to fall back until last month and then jump ahead in payments of tax over June, 1907. The loss during the year in tax receipts was $57,243.57. The tax on cigars' is $3 per thousand and on cigarettes $1.08 and fifty-four cents per thousand, according to grades. The comparative table of collections for cigarettes and cigars is as follows:

July ...	$103,870.41	$101,563.32
August .	113,744.66	115,490.59

May ...	98,290.86	87,524.56
June ...	97,176.27	106,063.05
Totals .	$1,262,012.19	$1,204,768.62

The total increase of tobacco tax amounted to twice as much as was lost on cigarettes and cigars. There was a dropping off last November and December, and thereafter a big increase is credited to every month. The tax on tobacco is six cents a pound. The American Tobacco Company has several factories in the fifth district. The receipt of $1,584,069.43 in taxes shows that more than 25,000,000 pounds of tobacco were put out by the factories in the fifth district during the twelve months. The table showing the tobacco receipts follows:

	1906.	1907.
July	$129,167.36	$134,950.20
August ..	133,430.14	138,401.39
Sept. ...	124,331.86	122,532.82
Oct.	130,916.92	136,975.21
Nov.	132,323.06	108,174.02
Dec.	115,658.15	108,127.22
	1907.	1908.
Jan.	119,126.49	136,820.00
Feb.	109,624.80	138,888.72
March ..	124,163.48	141,215.38
April ...	124,191.53	141,827.81
May	129,701.72	126,984.82
June	121,390.61	139,171.68
Totals,	$1,484,026.07	$1,584,069.43

All of the tax collected for spirits was for the distillation of fruit brandy. A charge of $1.10 proof gallon is made on the liquor. Although the spirit tax receipts vary the percentage of increase in the fruit brandy taxes is greater than any other tax levied by the department. For instaance, last month the brandy tax receipts were $5,766.20, while in June, 1907, $63.63 was collected by the revenue officers for similar taxes.

This is the largest snuff district in the country. The snuff tax is six cents per pound and production fell off in sales from October until last month, when the makers paid $3,000 more than in June last year. The total receipts for taxed snuff for the year were $438,252.18, or $3,527.66 more than the previous year.

In the special taxes or excise tax for saloonkeepers, oleomargarine dealers, cigar dealers, etc., a reduction is shown since last November in the comparison of the two years, but a general gain of $9,173.99 is made on the year. The total collections for special tax was $244,134.25.

A tax of two cents a pack is charged for playing cards. This industry gave $17,815.70 revenue to the Government last year, or $9,715.70 more than its predecessor. There is only one card factory in the district. The card tax collections averaged $1,484 per month.

The sum of $3,279.64 was derived from the exaction of one-fourth of a cent a pound on oleo uncolored, or $1,792.98 more than for the fiscal year of 1907. When artificial coloring is used ten cents per pound tax is levied. There is very little colored oleo made in this district. Only $23.10 was collected from this source but this is a gain of $5.10.

The collections of penalties for failure to pay taxes promptly, fines, compromises, etc., amounted to $6,199.47. This was $32,295.83 less than the pervious year.

The following recapitulation shows the total receipts at Dr. Herold's office for each month of the year:

	1906.	1907.
July	$723,906.46	$756,042.12
Aug.	616,257.56	642,061.32
Sept. ...	546,439.62	572,529.49
Oct.	547,844.97	574,657.22

	1907.	1908.
Jan.	487,658.63	468,396.12
Feb.	413,289.32	466,331.33
March ..	484,880.97	514,582.31
April ...	505,153.22	497,843.83
May	536,265.73	502,394.96
June	641,158.25	669,209.44
Totals,	$6,474,177.94	$6,566,290.62

most popular of all dramas, "East Lynne," by Joseph King's New York company.

From all accounts, George M. Cohan has scored another big hit in his latest play entitled "Fifty Miles From Boston," which is to be presented at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night, under the management of Cohan and Harris. Mr. Cohan has delivered many laughable and interesting stage productions to the American people in the past, and he is always sure of a hearing especially in this city where his friends are legion, and they will be glad to know that in writing "Fifty Miles From Boston" he is said to have turned out the best play of his career. The immense success of "Fifty Miles From Boston" is probably due to the fact that the play itself is said to have much merit, but the players who people its cast must certainly have contributed their share, for of a surety no play from Mr. Cohan's pen, or produced by Messrs. Cohan and Harris has ever been favored with such a really fine list of artists as may be found in the cast submitted. For proof of this read the names: Joseph M. Sparks, Suzanne Leonard Westford, Hazel Lowry, Russel Pincus, Kathryn Perry, Thomas Emory, Ella Southern, Chas. Willard, Mae Helton, Walter P. Richardson and Lester Templeton.

New Jersey's Greatest Mail Order Organization.

We are justly proud of our mail order system. We feel that it is one of the strongest links in the chain of this great store's success. We want you to use it—test it thoroughly and allow us to demonstrate its many splendid advantages. The Bamberger mail order system is not the result of a day, but the culmination of years of painstaking effort. In fact, this branch of our business is so perfectly organized that you may shop as quickly by mail as in person. There are no delays—no errors—satisfaction is snugly packed with each parcel we send out. If you are not a patron (which is highly improbable) send in a trial order and you'll quickly realize the truth of the foregoing statements.

of them while in Europe. The book was written by Aaron Hoffman, author of "Rogers Brothers in Panama" and the music by Leo Edwards, author of "School Days" and other big hits. The production was staged by James Gorman, who staged the George M. Cohan success. The first act takes place on the stage of Hammerstein's and during this act the famous impersonations of great stars take place, including Oscar Hammerstein, Joe Welch, Charles Bigelow, Maude Adams, Anna Held, Montgomery & Stone, Caruso, Fritzi Scheff and Mrs. Leslie Carter. Cliff Gordon, the famous German comedian, Frank D Bryan's Congress of American Girls, and Frank Moore's "Land of Cotton" with the ten Dancing Dandies, are a few of the special features. The cast is a prominent one, containing names known to the musical comedy world and includes such well known favorites as Mollie Williams, W. J. Gale, Ned Dandy, The Moores, James C. Morton, Marion Moore, and Margaret King.

That funny little fellow, George Sidney, is registered on the list of attractions, and will arrive at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday. It goes without saying that his numerous admirers and many who have not yet seen him to admire, will be present to give "Busy Izzy's Boodle." Mr. Sidney's new vehicle, a send-off worthy of all merry people. It is also safe to predict that "Busy Izzy" will not hesitate to make the occasion one long to be remembered as an event in amusement circles. For several seasons, "Busy Izzy" has been busy with his store and hotel—last season he took a real recreation in "Busy Izzy's Vacation"—no limit was placed upon his expenditures, and the best costumers and scenic artists were given carte blanche, and instructions to produce the best effects in color and surroundings. This year the same rule has been applied to "Busy Izzy's Boodle," the result of which is better seen than described. "Izzy" will not be alone, for over a half hundred clever and merry companions accompany him to enliven the "affair" with frolic, fun and song. A big beauty chorus will also be present and mingle with others in making "Busy Izzy's Boodle" an incident of importance, with all old notions discarded and replaced only by the latest and up-to-date article in fun, ingenuity and spectacular effects.

SUMMER LUNCHEONS.

"A hearty luncheon salad may be made of peas and hard-boiled eggs," writes Fannie Merritt Farmer in Woman's Home Companion for August. "Cold boiled peas unseasoned or canned peas may be used. If canned peas are used, see to it that they are thoroughly rinsed with cold water and allowed to become reoxygenated. Marinate peas with a French dressing, cover, and let stand in a cold place one hour, and then mound on a salad dish. Arrange alternately around the base of the mound halves of hard-boiled eggs cut lengthwise, and crisp lettuce leaves. Garnish with mayonnaise dressing.

"Dried chipped beef is an excellent substitute for fresh meat when made into hebbein dried beef. Finely chop cold boiled potatoes; there should be two cupsfuls. Add three-fourths of a cupful of dried chipped beef cut into small pieces and three canned pimentoes finely cut. Season with pepper, and add more sale if necessary. Cut fat salt pork into small cubes, and try out, then drain there should be one-third of a cupful of fat. Put the fat into a frying pan, add the potato mixture, and stir until thoroughly mixed with the fat. Cook slowly until all is thoroughly heated and browned underneath. Fold and turn on a hot platter the same as an omelet or hashed browned potatoes. Garnish with parsley and serve very hot."

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Ewart, of Fairview avenue, have purchased the lot on Fairview avenue, formerly owned by C. W. Krausse, of Vine street, and they have accepted plans for a new home to be built there.

HEARD IN THE NIGHT.

The man in the upper berth leaned over the edge, and, jamming his frown firmly down on his brow, cried in a harsh, coarse voice that was audible for a considerable distance:

"Hi, you, down there! Are you rich?"

"Heh?" ejaculated the man in the lower berth, almost swallowing his Adam's apple. "What's the matter?"

"I say, are you rich?"

"What's that, sir? Rich? What do you mean by waking me up in the middle of the night to ask me such a question as that?"

"I want to know—that's why."

"Well, then, confound you, I am rich. Now, I hope your curiosity is satisfied."

"Very rich?"

"Millionaire. Now, shut up, and—"

"Well, then, why don't you hire a whole ship to do your snoring in?"

Soon.

The day draws near,
You must allow, sir;

PRETTY SUITS FOR THE MID-SEASON.

The popular suit of the midseason is the coat and skirt of separate colors, if not fabrics. It is suspected by the many that this combination will be the smart one for the autumn street suits. Daring combinations will not be allowed.

A smart new one shows a gored skirt of dull blue, brown and black, shadow plaid or invisible stripe, with a long cutaway coat, single-breasted, of dull blue cloth. Round brass buttons are used like those worn by the army and navy.

Another suit has a skirt of blue and green soft-toned stripes, with a cutaway coat of green cloth also fastened with gilt buttons. The collar is of blue velvet, and the long sleeves have a design of blue velvet ribbon worked around the wrist and up the back of the sleeves to the elbow.

For cool days in the early fall there is a most servicesable coat suit which has a skirt of blue silk voile and a smart single-breasted coat of blue taffeta, with pockets trimmed in broad blue silk braid.

Mr. and Mrs. John Torney and daughter, Miss Margaret Torney, of New York, have returned home after spending six weeks with Mrs. Torney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, of Jackson avenue.

LEGAL NOTICES.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1908.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 6.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved (the House of Assembly concurring), That the following amendments to the constitution of this State be and the same are hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and House of Assembly, the said amendments shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months prior to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county, to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State:

1. Strike out paragraph 3 of section I, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

3. Elections for members of the Senate and General Assembly shall be held every two years on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten, and every second year thereafter; and the two Houses shall meet separately on the second Tuesday in January in each year, at which time of meeting the legislative year shall commence.

2. Strike out paragraph 1 of section II, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

1. The Senate shall be composed of one Senator from each county in the State, elected by the legal voters of the counties respectively, for four years.

3. Strike out paragraph 2 of section II, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

2. As soon as the Senate shall meet after the first election to be held in pursuance of this constitution they shall be divided by the Senate as equally as may be into two classes. The seats of the Senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year; of the second class, at the expiration of the fourth year, so that one class may be elected every second year and if vacancies happen, by resignation or otherwise, the persons elected to supply such vacancies shall be elected for the unexpired terms only; provided, that the Senators having the longest period of time still to serve at the time of making said division shall be entitled to the longer terms.

4. Strike out paragraph 1 of section III, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

1. The General Assembly shall be composed of members elected by the legal voters of the counties, respectively, every second year, beginning on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten, who shall be apportioned among the said counties as nearly as may be according to the number of their inhabitants. The Legislature shall, in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten, and at its first session after each United States decenial census hereafter, and not oftener, divide and arrange each county of this State into a district or districts for the election therein of a member or members of the General Assembly. Each Assembly district so constituted shall contain, as nearly as practicable, an equal number of inhabitants, and shall consist of convenient and contiguous territory in a compact form, but no county, or part thereof, shall be joined with any other county, or part thereof, in any such district; provided, that each county shall, at all times, be entitled to at least one member, and the whole number of members to be chosen shall never exceed sixty.

The Court of Last Resort, by whatever name known, is hereby invested with exclusive original jurisdiction and with full power, under such procedure as it may by rules prescribe, to review any division and arrangement made by the Legislature into Assembly districts of the counties of this State for the purpose of determining whether such arrangement and division, or any part thereof, is in accordance or in conflict with this section, and, if in conflict herewith, to adjudge the same, or such part thereof as may be in conflict herewith, null and void. In case said court shall determine such arrangement and division, or any part thereof, to be null and void the Legislature shall proceed to make a new arrangement and division, entire or partial, as the action of the court may require.

5. Strike out paragraph 3 of Article V and insert in place thereof the following:

3. The Governor shall hold his office for four years, to commence at twelve o'clock noon on the third Tuesday of January next ensuing the election for Governor by the people, and to end at twelve o'clock noon on the third Tuesday of January four years thereafter; and he shall be incapable of holding that office for four years next after his term of service shall have expired; and no appointment or nomination to office shall be made by the Governor during the last week of his said term.

6. Strike out paragraph 6 of section II, Article VII, and insert in place thereof the following:

6. Clerks and surrogates of counties shall be elected by the people of their respective counties at the elections for members of the General Assembly. They shall hold their offices for six years.

7. Strike out paragraph 7 of section II, Article VII, and insert in place thereof the following:

7. Sheriffs and coroners shall be elected by the people of their respective counties at the elections for members of the General Assembly, and shall hold their offices for four years, after which four years must elapse before they can be again capable of serving. Sheriffs shall annually renew their bonds.

8. Add to section 2 of Article VII, three paragraphs to be known as paragraphs 12, 13 and 14.

12. All elections for Governor, members of the Senate and General Assembly, sheriffs, coroners, county clerks and surrogates of counties and all other officers now or hereafter necessary to be chosen by the electors of the whole State, or of any county thereof, shall be held every second year, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten.

13. All elections for justices of the peace and all and any municipal officers, as distinguished from State and county officers as hereinbefore provided, now or hereafter necessary to be chosen by the electors of any city, borough, town, township, village or subdivision thereof, or any municipality of this State, except counties, shall be held every second year on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and eleven.

14. Except as herein provided with relation to the office of Senators, all officers filling any elective office at the time these amendments take effect shall continue in the exercise of the duties thereof according to their respective commissions or terms of office, and until their successors may be elected and qualified under the provisions of these amendments, and all officers whose terms of office would expire after these amendments take effect and prior to the election and qualification of their successors in office, at the election for the respective offices first held under the provisions of these amendments, shall continue in office until their successors can be elected and qualified, at the election for such office or offices to be held next after these amendments take effect, according to the provisions hereof.

The Legislature shall pass all necessary laws to arrange the terms of office of all statutory elective officers so that said terms may be in harmony with these amendments, and to carry into effect the provisions hereof.

These amendments, if adopted, shall take effect and go into operation on the first day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ten.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1908.

ASSEMBLY CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, NO. 4.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved, (the Senate concurring), That the following amendment to the Constitution of this State be and the same is hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and to the House of Assembly, the said amendment shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays taken thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months previous to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State, payment for such publication to be made by the Treasurer on the warrant of the Comptroller.

First—Strike out Paragraph 10 of Section VII of Article IV, and change the numbers of the following paragraphs to correspond:

Second—Change Paragraph 10 of Section V so to to read as follows:

10. The Governor or person administering the government, and four citizens of the State appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall constitute the Board of Pardons. The members of said Board, or any three of them, of whom the Governor or person administering the government shall be one, may remit fines and forfeitures, and grant reprieves, commutations, pardons and paroles, after conviction in all cases except impeachment. The four members specially appointed shall hold office for five years, and receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during the term of their appointment.

Third—Change Section 1 of Article VI so as to read as follows:

SECTION I.

The judicial power shall be vested in a Court for the trial of impeachments, a Supreme Court, County Courts, and such other Courts, inferior to the Supreme Court, as may be established by law, which inferior Courts the Legislature may alter or abolish as the public good shall require.

Fourth—Strike out all of Section II, IV, V, VI and VII, of Article VI, change the number of Section III of Article VI to Section II, and insert the following sections in Article VI:

SECTION III.

Any judge of any of the Courts of the State may be removed for disability continuing for one year, or for refusal to perform the duties of his office, by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate and of two-thirds of all the members of the House of Assembly voting separately, after a hearing before both Houses in joint session.

SECTION IV.

1. The Supreme Court shall be organized in three divisions, namely: the Appeals Division, the Law Division, and the Chancery Division. It shall consist of a Presiding Justice of the Appeals Division who shall be styled the Chief Justice, a Presiding Justice of the Law Division who shall be styled the President Justice, and a Presiding Justice of the Chancery Division, who shall be styled the Chancellor, and eighteen Associate Justices, which number may be increased by law.

2. The Appeals Division shall consist of the Chief Justice, and six other Justices of the Supreme Court to be assigned by the Governor. A Justice of the Supreme Court assigned by the Governor to the Appeals Division shall serve in said Division until the end of his term.

The remaining Justices shall be assigned by the Supreme Court to the Law or Chancery Division, as the business of the Court may require.

3. Whenever the number of causes before the Appeals Division shall be so great that the Division cannot promptly hear and determine them, the Governor shall, when authorized by statute, temporarily assign five of the Justices of the other Divisions to sit in the Appeals Division, which shall thereupon sit in two Divisions for the hearing and decision of causes pending at the time of such assignment.

4. Four Justices shall be necessary to constitute a quorum on the final hearing of any cause in the Appeals Division, but the Supreme Court may provide by rule for the making of interlocutory orders by a lesser number of justices, or by one justice; such orders to be subject to revision by the Appeals Division.

On the hearing of a cause in the Appeals Division, no Justice who has given a judicial opinion in the cause in favor of or against the judgment, order or decree under review shall sit at the hearing to review such judgment, order or decree, but the reasons for such opinion shall be assigned to the Court in writing.

5. A majority of all the members of the Supreme Court, to be presided over by the Chief Justice, shall constitute a quorum for the assignment of justices, and for the appointment of officers, and the enactment of rules.

6. The Supreme Court shall appoint one or more reporters not exceeding three, to report the decisions of the Court, and shall by rule define his or their duties and powers. The reporters shall hold office for five years, subject, however, to removal at the discretion of the Court.

SECTION V.

1. The Appeals Division shall have and exercise the appellate jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Court of Errors and Appeals, the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Supreme Court on writ of error, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Prerogative Court on appeal, and by the Ordinary on appeal, and such further appellate jurisdiction as may be conferred upon it by law, together with such original jurisdiction as may be incident to the complete determination of any cause on review, saving, however, the right of trial by jury.

2. The jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Supreme Court and the Justices thereof not hereby conferred on the Appeals Division, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Circuit Courts and the Judges thereof, and such further original jurisdiction not of an equitable nature, and such further appellate jurisdiction from inferior courts, as may be conferred by statute, shall be exercised by the Law Division of the Supreme Court and by the several justices thereof, in accordance with rules of practice and procedure prescribed by statute, or in the absence of statute, by the Supreme Court.

3. The jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Prerogative Court and the Ordinary, not hereby conferred on the Appeals Division, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Court of Chancery and the Chancellor, and such further original equity jurisdiction as may be conferred by statute, and such further original jurisdiction as is now conferrable on the Prerogative Court shall be exercised by the Chancery Division and by the Chancellor and the several justices of said Division in accordance with rules of practice and procedure prescribed by statute, or, in the absence of statute, by the Supreme Court, but the Justices of that Division shall be under such control and supervision by the Chancellor as shall be provided by the Supreme Court.

4. Terms of the Supreme Court presided over by a single Justice of the Law Division for the trial of issues joined in or brought to the Law Division of the Supreme Court shall be held in the several counties at times fixed by the Supreme Court. Until so fixed, such trial terms shall be held at the places and times now fixed by law for the holding of the Courts of Common Pleas in the several counties.

5. The Supreme Court may provide by rule for the transfer of any cause or issue from the Law Division to the Chancery Division, or from the Chancery Division to the Law Division of the Supreme Court, and from the County Court to the Law Division or the Chancery Division of the Supreme Court, and for the giving of complete legal and equitable relief in any cause in the Court or Division where it may be pending.

6. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the alteration, by law of any statutory power or jurisdiction conferred upon any Court or Judge since the adoption of the Constitution in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-four, and nothing herein contained shall prevent the Legislature from conferring upon any inferior Court which may hereafter be established such power or jurisdiction as was exercised by or which may now be conferred upon the inferior Courts mentioned in Section 1 of Article VI, of the Constitution of 1844.

SECTION VI.

The County Courts shall have and exercise, in all cases within the county such original common law jurisdiction concurrent with the Supreme Court, and such other jurisdiction heretofore exercised by courts inferior to the Supreme Court and the Prerogative Court as may be provided by law. The final judgments of the County Courts may be brought for review before the Supreme Court in the Appeals Division. Until otherwise provided, the jurisdiction heretofore exercised by the Courts of Common Pleas, Orphans' Courts, Courts of Oyer and Terminer, Courts of Quarter Sessions, or by the Judges thereof, shall be exercised by the County Courts pursuant to rules prescribed by the Supreme Court. The justices of the Law Division of the Supreme Court shall be ex officio Judges of the County Courts. All other jurisdiction or authority now vested in any Court, Judge, or magistrate with jurisdiction inferior to the Courts in this section mentioned, and not superseded by this article, shall continue to be exercised by such Court, Judge or magistrate until the Legislature shall otherwise provide.

SECTION VII.

This amendment to the Contitution shall not cause the abatement of any suit or proceeding pending when it takes effect. The Supreme Court shall make such general and special rules and orders as may be necessary for the transfer of all suits and proceedings to the appropriate Division or Court created by this amendment. Matters pending when this amendment takes effect shall be decided by the judge or judges to whom they were submitted, and the order, judgment or decree made or advised by said judge shall be entered as that of the Division or Court to which the suit or proceeding shall have been transferred.

Fifth—Strike out Paragraphs 2, 5 and 8 of Section II of Article VII, and substitute the following paragraphs in place of Paragraphs 1 and 2, and change the numbers of the paragraphs following 5 to correspond:

1. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, the President Justice of the Law Division, the Chancellor and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court shall be nominated by the Governor and appointed by him, with the advice and consent of the Senate. They shall not be less than thirty-five years of age and shall have been practicing attorneys in the State for at least ten years. They shall hold office for the term of seven years; shall, at stated times, receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during their term of office, and they shall hold no other office under the Government of the State, or of the United States, and shall not engage in the practice of law during their term of office. The Chancellor and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and the Vice Chancellors and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, in office when this amendment takes effect, shall be Justices of the Supreme Court until the expiration of their respective terms.

The Circuit Court Judges in office when this amendment takes effect shall be continued in office with the powers of the Justices of the Supreme Court at the Circuit until the expiration of their respective terms. They may hold the County Courts, subject to assignment by the Law Division of the Supreme Court.

2. The Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint one Judge of the County Court in each county, and such additional County Judge or Judges in any county as may be authorized by law. The County Judges may hold court in any county subject to the control of the Supreme Court. The County Judges shall not be less than thirty years of age, and shall have been practicing attorneys in this State for at least five years. They shall hold office for the term of five years; shall, at stated times, receive for their services such compensation, which shall not be diminished during their term of office, as the Legislature in its discretion shall fix for each county, and they shall hold no other office under the Government of the State or of the United States, and shall not engage in practice of the law in the courts of the county where they hold court during their term of office. The judges of the Common Pleas, in office when this amendment takes effect shall be the judges of the County Courts until the expiration of their present terms.

3. This amendment shall take effect on the first Monday in February, in the year next following its adoption by the people.

4. The Legislature shall pass all laws necessary to carry into effect the provisions of the constitution and this amendment thereof.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1908.

ASSEMBLY CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, NO. 9.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved (the Senate concurring), That the following amendment to the constitution of this State be and the same is hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and House of Assembly the said amendment shall be entered on their journals, with the ayes and nayes taken thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months prior to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county, to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State:

Amend by striking out paragraph seven, section four, article four, and insert in place thereof the following:

7. Members of the Senate shall receive, annually, the sum of one thousand dollars, and members of the General Assembly shall receive, annually, the sum of ten hundred dollars during the time for which they shall have been elected and while they shall hold their office, and no other allowance or emolument, directly or indirectly, for any purpose whatever. The President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the General Assembly shall, in virtue of their offices, receive an additional compensation, equal to one-third of their allowance as members.

EVERYBODY SWEARS BY HIM.

"Who's the best known man in this township?" queried the advance agent for the medicine show.

"Well, young feller," answered Uncle Silas Seaver, slowly, as he carefully packed tobacco in his black pipe; "Jake Seymour holds that record about now, by eatin' the fust new potatoes from his own garden, tho' Hank Calkins is a close second with his new peas. Aunt Sarah Stanton is attractin' considerable attention with her flock of 18 light brahmas, with an egg record of 12 dozen in eight days, the same bein' writ up in the Smithville Banner. An' Wallis Weaver's buildin' a new hip-roof barn. But I guess, everything considerin,' 'Squire Hamilton's about the most popular man about these parts now. Everybody seems to swear by the 'squire, seein's he's jest been elected assessor."—Judge.

to offset any shortage. The signaler had the right, the justice of the peace said, to stand where he chose, so long as he signaled when the machine passed the signal post. Housell declares he has the farmers and freeholders back of him and does not intend to be scared or bluffed. He has paid $850 to the State in fines during the past two months.

HEALTH ORDINANCE NOT LEGAL, SAYS ROBINSON

Claiming that the Board of Health ordinance requiring garbage wagons to be metal lined and closely covered is not legal, Peter Robinson, a colored garbage collector, held forth upon the rights of his calling in a highly Socialistic way at the city court today, but was fined $5 for violating the ordinance by City Judge Runyon. "Lock me up 'til I pay it," was his only comment when he heard his fate, and he was led back to a cell.

Robinson was arrested by Patrolman Dobson on West Fifth street early Saturday afternoon, and had a verbal go with the officer when he was "pulled in." Brought to police court, he was discharged and told to return yesterday morning. He arrived at the station several hours after court adjourned, and his case was laid over until today.

When the charge of having a leaky wagon, improperly covered, was brought against Robinson, he stoutly pleaded "not guilty" and proceeded to argue his case. Health Officer O'Brien read the ordinance, but the prisoner claimed it was illegal.

"That ordinance," he said, "does not emanate from the right source. There was an ordinance passed by the Common Council about garbage wagons in 1897, and they have no power to pass anything over that." Asked if his wagon leaked, he replied: "Certainly it leaks, now. Coming here this morning, I had to drive like Sam Hill to get to court in time, and all the caulking jarred out. How can I or any other fool in this business afford to have a special wagon made to order? It would cost me $25 to have a metal lined wagon built. Where can we garbage collectors make any money? The law sets a rate we shall charge; then the law says we must drive only good horses and attached to expensive wagons."

"Five dollars," interrupted Judge Runyon, and the oration ended with this anti-climax.

TRAPS UNFAIR, AUTOISTS SAY.

Assert That Test Distances Were Short—May Challenge Housell's Fines.

So many automobilists have complained to the New Jersey Automobile Club of the way evidence has been obtained against supposed speeders who have been fined by Justice of the Peace William J. Housell, of New Brunswick, that today the club announced it had made an investigation. As a result of this the club hopes to prove persons have been fined who have not broken the law.

Housell placed two speed traps on the highway between Metuchen and New Brunswick, and in these many automobilists have been timed, caught and fined on charges of exceeding the speed limit. The traps were said to be a quarter of a mile long, but careful measurement by surveyors' instruments, it is alleged, show that one trap, the only one now used, is several hundred feet short of the quarter. It is contended that if many autoists who have been fined had been timed for the correct distance it would have been shown they were not lawbreakers.

Objections have also been made to the way in which this trap is operated. A boy, it was learned, stood at one end, and as a car whizzed by he dropped his handkerchief. This was a signal for the watcher at the other end to start to time by use of his stop-watch. Members of the club who secretly watched the boy said that in at least one instance he waited until an auto had gone several yards into the trap before dropping the handkerchief.

No definite action toward having the cases of fined automobilists reconsidered has as yet been taken, but such action, it is said, is contemplated by the club.

Justice of the Peace Housell, replying to the reported charge of the automobile club that his traps are short, declared today that he had nothing to do with laying out the courses. That was up to the constables, and they had, he said, the certificates of Josiah Tice, of New Brunswick, as to their correctness. The course specifically referred to had been little used, and in each of the three convictions thereon the autoist had been given enough leeway

STABS BARTENDER WHO REFUSES TO SELL DRINK.

William Curry, who is employed as a barkeeper in Bernard's Inn Cafe, Bernardsville, was severely stabbed by an unidentified Italian Saturday night in front of the establishment.

Three men from Mendham entered the bar-room in an intoxicated condition, and, upon being refused more liquor, became abusive. One of the trio raised a beer glass to throw it at Curry, who had refused to serve him, whereupon Curry stepped from behind the bar and ejected the three men. They lingered on the sidewalk, making a disturbance, and threatening to break the hotel windows, until Curry reappeared at the door, when one of the men, who had hidden behind a pillar which adorns the front of the building, reached out and drove a knife into the bartender's abdomen. They ran away as their victim fell to the sidewalk.

A posse, headed by Justices of the Peace Diehl and Guerin, spent Sunday and yesterday searching the woods for the would-be assassin, and all outgoing trains are watched. No trace of the man has been found, but he is believed to be one of a contractor's gang working at Mendham.

BEGINS CHURCH CENSUS

Rev. W. A. Therrell Now Canvassing the Borough for Religious Statistics.

CLERGYMEN BACK OF PLAN.

Information Gleaned Will Be Made Use of By the Local Pastors in Building-up Congregations.

Rev. W. A. Therrell, who has been appointed by the Plainfield Ministers' Association to take a church census of the city and borough, began his house-to-house canvass in North Plainfield yesterday, and will visit every home to secure statistics in accordance with the movement inaugurated by the clergymen to start a campaign for the Christianization of "The City Beautiful." Mr. Therrell, himself an efficient and faithful minister of the gospel, feels keen interest in the work he has undertaken, and has been successful in similar census-taking in various other cities, where much good has been derived by learning just how many and just who the people are who do not go to church.

Mr. Therrell has been supplied blanks containing certain census questions which he will fill out for each family. Aside from the name and place of residence, the language and nationality, Mr. Therrell will find out how many there are in each family, what denomination they are, how many attend church and Sunday-school, how many are communicants and how many children under sixteen years of age there are in the household.

In case the family is not identified with any church or religious body, Mr. Therell will endeavor to find out what church there seems to be a particular leaning toward, and this part of the census will be particularly valuable in the movement to get Plainfielders to identify themselves with some church home. As the answers to this question are received, the names will be turned over to the pastor in charge of the church specified so that an effort may be made to secure the family's identification with the congregation. At the conclusion of the census, the records will be filed for the use of the various ministers, who will keep in touch with their following more closely in this way.

Picnic at Washington Rock.

A party of seventy-five children from the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, some of whom were accompanied by their mothers, spent yesterday at Washington Rock on a picnic. The affair, which was most keenly enjoyed, was arranged by Harold Robert, of Martine avenue, who has been especially interested in Miss Curry's work among the New York poor, and the day was spent with games in the grove near the rock. A basket luncheon was served at noon and candy and fruit were distributed among the children. The trip to and from the rock was made in a large stage.

Two Good Dramatic Offerings.

"Paid In Full," the most pronounced dramatic success in New Yark last season, will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre on Thursday night of next week. The production is under the management of Wagenhals & Kemper, the original producers, and comprises a company of prominent players. The new European sensation, "The Devil," over which two New York managers are now waging a legal fight, will be seen at the local playhouse the middle of next month. It will be the Savage production.

Filed Thirty Mortgages.

Isaac P. Runyon, of this city, representing Clara Biddle, today filed thirty mortgages in the office of the county register, Elizabeth, covering several properties located in Plainfield and vicinity.

PYTHIANS PREPARING FOR ANNUAL FIELD DAY

The local K. of P. lodges have been notified that the annual Pythian field day will be held at Schentzen Park, Union Hill, on Labor Day, and that plans have been made to make it the most successful gathering of recent years. The day's program will include a parade, competitive drill and athletic games. Perseverance and Unity lodges and Crescent Company, Uniformed Rank, will send big delegations.

The committee appointed to apportion prizes for competitive drills by companies of the Uniform Rank decided as follows: Should four companies enter, first prize, $50, second, $30, and third, $20; for three companies, first prize, $50, second, 30; for two companies, one prize, $50. If but one company appears for drill it will give an exhibition drill and will be awarded $25. The competitive drills will begin at 3 p. m.

The games committee reported having arranged the following program, open to members of the order only: One hundred yard race, 440 yard race, standing broad jump, fat men's race, three-legged race, obstacle race and a 220-yard dash for members of the Uniform Rank, with full equipment.

There will be a fifty yards' race for boys under 12 years of age, and one for girls, potato race, shoe race and other games, and appropriate prizes will be awarded the winners in each event.

Supreme Representative Rev. De Witt C. Cobb, of Salem, who was elected to the office of Supreme Prelate at the convention of the Supreme Lodge in Boston last week, will attend the field day exercises and hold his first public reception since his election. Supreme Representatives P. Frank Shanley and John H. Conger and the Grand Lodge officers of this State and New York will also be present.

CITY ENGINEER DISCUSSES THE STREET PREPARATIONS

Under the direction of City Engineer A. J. Gavett the work of putting "Asphaltoilene" on Park avenue, between Fifth and Seventh streets, is being continued today and it is the plan to use the preparation on the avenue beyond Randolph road, where there is considerable automobile and carriage travel. In speaking of the improvement today, Mr. Gavett said that he is not convinced as yet which is the better preparation of the two, Tarvia or "Asphaltoilene," that only time would prove the merits of the two.

In speaking of the relative cost of the work, Mr. Gavett said that Tarvia is the cheapest for the reason that the street gang is putting it on, while in the case of "Asphaltoilene," the city pays the company so much a yard for spreading the material, which is done under the supervision of a representative of the company, and the street gang is used to do the work, thereby making a double expense. However, he was not sure but that this preparation might prove to be the best in the long run. He feels sure that either one or the other will be a decided improvement and will eventually reduce the cost of sprinkling the streets by water, which is an expensive method of keeping the dust down.

The preparation used on North avenue is in reality a liquid asphalt and it forms a coating similar to asphalt when placed on a thoroughfare. The spreading of sand on top of it is said to be a benefit in that it forms a cushion. There seems to be no doubt but that in addition to keeping the dust down it also preserves the macadam. Equal benefits are claimed through the use of Tarvia. The work planned for will probably be completed this week.

By Wheel to Boston.

George Adams, of Netherwood avenue, a member of the Plainfield Cycle Club, started yesterday on his bicycle for Boston. He expects to ride the entire distance, adopting this method of spending his vacation of two weeks. He will take his time, not attempting to break any records for long distance riding. He will return home by boat from Boston.

Dr. D. C. Adams Called South.

Dr. D. C. Adams, of Grove street, was summoned to Knoxville, Tenn., yesterday afternoon on account of the serious illness of Mrs. John Honeyman, the family desiring the doctor to join in a consultation of physicians regarding her illness. Mrs. Honeyman is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Elizabeth A. Parse and Mrs. D. C. Adams, of Grove street.

—At Neuman Brothers' tomorrow morning, 100 baskets of choice white and yellow peaches will be an offering. Low prices will prevail.

IS IT A MINERAL SPRING?

Water of Deepened Well on Chatham Street Now Has Salty Taste.

ON G. R. SCHLERETH PROPERTY

Owner's Friends Claim It Has Medicinal Value, So Some of It Is Being Analyzed.

George Schlereth, of West Second street, is much interested in the discovery of what is believed to be a valuable spring of "mineral water" into which contractors broke while deepening a well in the rear of his property at 24 Chatham street, the borough. The water is being used by several of Mr. Schlereth's friends for drinking purposes, and is declared to be beneficial. A small quantity of it is now being subjected to chemical analysis.

The water from the well, which is in the rear of the house occupied by Frank Kesselring, has heretofore been the ordinary, non-medicinal kind, cool and thirst quenching. The supply ran low some weeks ago, however, and at that time, Mr. Schlereth had the well dug deeper. After digging about three feet, abundant water was located, but the quality of it is so decidedly "different" that the "strike" aroused the owner's curiosity and he believes he has located a mineral flow.

The water has a decided salty taste, and also seems "thick" and inclined to be oily. It is clear as crystal and even colder than the water drawn from the well before it was deepened. It seems of unlimited quantity and utterly free from foreign particles. The well contractors say that there was nothing unusual about the structure of the ground through which they dug in deepening the well, and do not attribute the taste to any mineral salt or oil in the soil.

A relative of Mr. Schlereth who is troubled with rheumatism now drinks the water regularly and declares it is beneficial, and the majority of people who sample the stuff declare it nauseating enough to be medicinally beneficial. Mr. Schlereth at first believed that the taste of the water was due to a condition of the pump pipe, and hundreds of gallons of the salty fluid were pumped off in an effort to change the taste. The water remains the same and the owner of the well says that he believes it is even improving his horses, three of which tenanted in a barn nearby drink freely of it.

MAKING DWELLING OUT OF OLD MEETING HOUSE

The meeting-house property of the Orthodox Society of Friends, located on East Front street, has been sold by Christopher Thorp, acting as an agent, to William D. Bird, formerly of West Front street, but now of Westfield. The new owner, who is a carpenter, is now completely remodelling it with the intention of transforming it into a modern dwelling for his own occupancy. A wide veranda will be built, extending arross the front and around the sides of the building and it will be equipped with all the improvements.

The meeting-house, although not as old as the one on Watchung avenue, was built many years ago by the Orthodox Friends in this city. They were few in number and as they did not affiliate with the Hicksite Friends it was not long before they ceased to hold meetings there. At one time it was used by John Dalzell as a manual training school, but this did not pay and he gave up the school and went to California. Since then the building has not been used for anything. It was known to be in the market for sale. Because it belonged to a religious society the city did not impose any tax, but recently the owners were informed that as the dwelling was not being used for religious purposes it would have to stand assessment. This led to the sale of the property to Mr. Bird.

Adam Dunham Leaves Hospital.

Adam Dunham, of West Third street, who attempted to commit suicide a week ago by cutting his throat with a razor, was discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital Monday afternoon and returned home. He has recovered from the injury to his throat and expects to return to work soon.

Russell Pyatt Improving.

Russell Pyatt, the thirteen-year-old boy from South Plainfield, who was kicked in the face by a horse on Saturday, is much improved today, the physicians in charge believe he will be able to return home in the near future.

GIRL GUEST BREAKS LEG BY FALL FROM HAMMOCK

While swinging in a hammock under a tree on the lawn at the home of John McGrogan, of Manning avenue, where she was calling, last evening, Miss Edna Hummer, niece of Charles L. Force, of Mountain avenue, broke her right leg near the ankle when the hammock broke and she was thrown heavily to the ground. The girl landed nearly on a board several feet from where the hammock was swung, and her foot was forced under this walk as she fell, breaking the leg.

The ambulance was summoned but the injured girl was not removed to the hospital. Dr. Albert Pittis and Dr. G. W. Endicott were summoned and it was decided best to keep Miss Hummer at the McGrogan home until the limb could be set. This was done last night and today she was removed to Mr. Force's home.

Miss Hummer is the daughter of Joseph Hummer, of South Bend, Indiana, and was visiting her uncle. She had planned to return home Saturday, but the injury will keep her East for several weeks longer.

WILLING WORKERS HOLD A "SEVEN-CENT" SOCIAL

Under the auspices of Class 30, "Willing Workers," of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school, of which Horace J. Martin, Sr., is the teacher, held a very successful "sevent-cent" social in the lecture room of the church, last night, the proceeds being for the painting fund of the church. The patronage throughout the evening was generous and a substantial sum will be realized as profit.

The plan adopted by the class for holding the affair was a novel one. Ice cream, cake, peaches and candy were served; there was an "art gallery" and a prize package department. The purchase of an admission ticket for seven cents entitled the holder to a plate of ice cream and if one desired cake or peaches each dish was seven cents extra, making the cost for ice cream, cake and peaches twenty-one cents. In the prize package department each person was blind-folded and allowed one grab for seven cents. The packages contained some very useful and pretty things, well worth the price. The admission to the "art gallery" was also seven cents. This was amusing and delighted all who entered the mysterious place. During the evening Harold Cook rendered a program of piano selections that added to the pleasure of those present. The net receipts will be between $20 and $25.

Horace J. Martin, Sr., as teacher, had general direction of the affair and planned it. He was assisted by all the members of the class who are the following:

Mrs. Lafayette Rosenstiehl, Mrs. R. V. Kinney, Mrs. Roy DeCamp, Miss C. Anderson, Mrs. Frank Platts, Miss Estelle Boss, Mrs. John Abbott, Mrs. Oscar Woolley, Mrs. I. N. Wyckoff, Mrs. John Higgins, Mrs. Charles Coddington, Miss L. Scheelein, Miss A. Scheelein, Mrs. Wherry, Miss M. Siedentop, Mrs. William Lindsay, Miss Jean Lindsay, Miss Ella Conover, Mrs. Kirk Wiggins, Mrs. H. J. Martin, Sr., Miss Bertha Swackhamer, Mrs. Charles Butler, Mrs. Elmer P. Wheeler, Mrs. Frank Stillwell, Mrs. Wortman, Miss M. Wyckoff, Mrs. A. Hansen, Mrs. P. Minton, Mrs. George Scribner, Mrs. Steurer, Mrs. M. Friehauf.

WELL KNOWN ACTRESSES TO SEE LOCAL PERFORMANCE.

Lillian Russell, the well known actress and star of the comedy drama "Wildfire," wired the management of the New Plainfield theatre today to reserve a box for her at tomorrow night's performance of "Fifty Miles From Boston.' She stated that she is coming to Plainfield with a theatre party that will include Miss Blanche Bates and several other prominent stars in the dramatic firmament.

Miss Russell's interest in "Fifty Miles From Boston" is due to the fact that her sister, Miss Susanne Leonard Westford, is a member of the cast. She interprets one of the most important roles but this is the first opportunity Miss Russell has had of witnessing her portrayal, which is said by New York critics to be her best bit of character work. Miss Bates was in Plainfield Monday night to see the premiere of "All For a Girl." She and Miss Westford are intimate friends.

Miss Helen Meyers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Meyers, of East Sixth street, was takn to Muhlenberg Hospital, last night, suffering with acute appendicitis. An operation was performed by Drs. Hedges and Tomlinson and she was reported today as doing nicely.

DEMOCRATS WANT CLARK

County Leaders Will Ask Somerville Man to Run for State Senator.

BELIEVE HE CAN WIN OUT.

Friends Say He Has All the Qualifications to Wage a Successful Campaign.

Since the return of former Congressman Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville, from the Thousand Islands on Monday, the influential Democrats of Somerset county have been busy planning for a conference to be held early next week, when they hope to persaude Mr. Clark to accept the nomination for state senator. They look to him as the one man in the whole county who can lead a vigorous fight in the coming campaign.

His friends declare their belief that if he should accept the nomination he would be elected over Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, who is to be the Republican nominee. They say that he has all the qualifications for the office, is broad-minded, liberal, well trained and would in every sense be an ideal representative of the county in the upper part of th Legislature.

Those who are interested in his candidacy visited the borough a few days ago for the purpose of conferring with prominent citizens there as to the probable acceptance of the nomination by Mr. Clark, and it is understood that they were urged to get him on the ticket if possible. With such a unanimity of opinion it is believed that Mr. Clark may decide to again enter the political arena and make the fight. It is said that the fact that Mr. Frelinghuysen, a fellow-townsman, is practically certain to get the Republican nomination, would have no weight with Mr. Clark should he desire the office.

Mr. Clark served one term as Congressman and he made an excellent record of which every one of his friends are justly proud. One prominent Democrat, a close friend of Mr. Clark, said today: "There is one thing certain, that is Mr. Clark is the only man in Somerset county who has a chance of defeating Senator Frelinghuysen. My only regret is that he is a resident of that county. He is too big a man to be buried and allowed to remain in private life. A man with such capabilities should hold some high office, where the people would get the benefit of his wide experience."

It is not known whatt day the conference with Mr. Clark will be held, but the leaders will appoint a time in a few days after consulting Mr. Clark's pleasure.

HANDICAP TROT TO BE FEATURE OF RACE MEET

One of the big features of the matinee race meet to be held at the driving park, Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of the Fair Acres Driving and Riding Club, will be a handicap trotting race, the first of the kind ever given in this city. The club will use the system of handicapping employed at the Readville track, in the races for large purses. The horses will be handicapped on past performances, starting from scratch. Six entries have been received and the race promises to be closely contested.

Another feature will be a running race, half-mile, with post entries. There will also be two other trotting races, 2:25 and 2:35 classes, a large number of entries being received in each one. Owing to the strong card to be presented the club will charge a nominal admission fee. Stages will meet all the trolleys on Park avenue, during the early part of the afternoon, taking people direct to the driving park. The club is now planning for a big race meet on Labor Day afternoon, when money purses will be offered in each class. The entries for Saturday's meet are as follows:

Handicap Race—Ben, Butler, H. Uhrhahn; Joe McGregor, George Forgerson; Zip, William Huda; Aron B., Adam C. Blair; Sidney Leland, Chas. Brower; Lady Onward, William Gross.

William Pearson, of Liberty street, who has been detained at Muhlenberg Hospital with a severe attack of dysentery, is improving nicely and will soon be able to go home.

GOLDEN EAGLES HEAR OF ORGANIZATION'S GROWTH

Stating that the growth of the Knights of the Golden Eagle has been especially gratifying during the past year, Grand Vice Chief Sydney Hall, of Millville, took opportunity to compare this record with the membership figures of other fraternal organizations which have shown a decided falling off in membership as well as finances, at a reception to several of the grand officers of the state in connection with the regular meeting of Freedom Castle, No. 12, last night.

In speaking of the competition for new members in which the various castles in the State are engaged, Mr. Hall called attention to the fact that Millville Castle has a record of sixty-three initiations in a single night. Referring briefly to the objects of the organization, Mr. Hall took occasion to commend the work of the local lodgemen's degree team, referring to it as one of the best equipped and best drilled teams in the State. After the remarks by Mr. Hall and various visitors and officers of the local castle, a banquet was served and the meeting concluded with a jolly social hour.

At a meeting of the Past Chiefs of District No. 10, Rev. Percy Ferris, of Asbury Park, was evidently the choice for Grand Sir Herald of the district, and will be strongly supported at the election to be held Labor Day at Trenton. If elected he will succeed Horace J. Martin, Sr., of Freedom Castle, elected last year.

Announcement was made of the fraternal visit to be paid to the Perth Amboy castle next Tuesday night. A committee from the local castle has secured a special car to take the members to Perth Amboy, and the car will leave the trolley stand at 7 o'clock. The members are enthusiastic about the visit, and it is probable that a large delegation will make the trip.

ARMED MEN WITH CARRAR AT WATCHUNG CREST BARN

John Carrar, the discharged gardener at the Groszmann School, Watchung Crest, has secured the protection of three armed men to prevent any dispossess action by Professor M. E. Groszmann, whose barn he still occupies at a home, in company with his grandmother, wife, daughter and two sons. Waldemar Groszmann stated this morning that the man absolutely refused to lave the place, and that he could not get Constable William H. Pangborn, of the borough, to come up to the Crest and arrest the man as a trespasser, in accordance with the ruling of Justice of the Peace Smalley at a hearing of the case Monday night.

Mr. Groszmann says that one of Carrar's friends has a shotgun which he carries with him perpetually, and he believes that the other men have revolvers. He could not understand why the North Plainfield police authorities have not given attention to the matter, declaring that he has always had trouble in securing police protection. He is much discouraged because of the attitude of the constable toward his requests to have the gardener ousted.

According to the school authorities' story, Carrar was discharged ten days ago because of his failure to abide by an alleged agreement about some work his family was to do about the place. He was given until Saturday to leave the premises, but would not go. Justice Smalley ordered the Frenchman off the place at the hearing of the trespass complaint in North Plainfield Monday night, but Carrar seems a fixture there. He claims that he has a right to stay until his month is up, and alleges that the Groszmans owe him a month's salary. He has retained John P. Owens as his counsel and it is reported that he will begin action for the recovery of this salary.

1,200 Miles Without a Puncture.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Besler, of Rockview avenue, have returned from a 1,200-mile auto tour in Pennsylvania. Mr. Besler, who recently bought the car he made the trip with, drove it himself and returned to town with the same "City Beautiful" air in the tires that he had used in their inflation before he started. The entire trip was made without sustaining a puncture.

Fast Train Hit Tie.

A section gang, putting in new ties on the east-bound tracks of the Central Railroad at Cranford, yesterday placed one tie too close to the rails. A Philadelphia express struck the tie, splintering it. The train was stopped, with no damage except to the pilot of the locomotive. After a careful examination the train proceeded.

MRS. KURZHALS INJURED

Local Woman Taken to New York Hospital After Accident in the Street.

PROBABLY STRUCK BY A CAR.

Details of the Affair Not Made Known to Relatives—Was On Shopping Trip.

Mrs. Theodore Kurzhals, of West Sixth street, is in the New York Hospital, New York, suffering from injuries received in an accident while shopping in that city yesterday. Just how the accident occurred or the extent of her injuires is not known by the family here.

All that has been learned is that Mrs. Kurzhals left the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Poor, relatives whom she was visiting at 259 West Twentieth street, to purchase a few articles, intending to return soon for dinner, as the family had planned to take a pleasure trip in the afternoon. She had been gone about a half hour, when someone called at the Poor home and informed the family that a woman, who had given their name as reference had been injured on the street and had been removed to a hospital. They immediately made inquiry at St. Vincent's Hospital; also St. Francis' Hospital, but Mrs. Kurzhals was not there. It was then decided to try and find her through the assistance of the local police precinct. There they were told that Mrs. Kurzhals had been taken to the New York Hospital and she was found at that institution.

Word of the accident came to Mrs. Kurzshals' family early in the afernoon, when it was understood that her condition was not serious. As far as can be learned she was struck by a surface car not far from the place she was visiting; probably becoming confused in crossing a street. She was taken care of by a policeman on that beat, who summoned an ambulance and had her removed to the hospital.

The physicians in charge of Mrs. Kurzhals at the hospital were unable to give any definite statement yesterday as to the seriousness of her injuries, but the family feels sure that her condition is not critical or they would have ben informed of the fact.

Mrs. Kurzhals is about sixty years old and is quite stout. For these reasons she might easily become confused in a city street where there is a great deal of constant travel. She is of a nervous temperament and no doubt is suffering as much from the shock attending the accident as anything else. During the day the family expect to learn more definitely of her condition.

MRS EMELINE STROBELL DIES AT DAUGHTER'S HOME.

Mrs. Emeline Strobell, widow of Edward C. Strobell, and daughter of George Opdyke, who was Mayor of New York city during the Civil War, died at her home in New York, yesterday, of heart failure. She had been an invalid for a great many years and her death was not unexpected. Mrs. Strobell was a sister of George F. Opdyke, of West Eighth street, and was an occasional visitor to this city.

Mrs. Strobell was born in New York, but lived for many years on Clinton place, Newark, where her father built a house. She was a faithful member of the Collegiate Reformed church, New York. She was married in 1858 to Edward C. Strobell, who for years was a prominent dry goods merchant in New York. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Edward A. Sheppard, of Montclair, and Miss Ella Strobell, of Madison avenue, New York; also three brothers, William S. and H. B. Opdyke, of New York, and George F. Opdyke, of this city.

The funeral service will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning from the residence of the daughter, Miss Ella Strobell, in New York, and the burial will be in Mt. Pleasant cemetery, Newark.

C. B. Morse's New Position.

Charles B. Morse, of Franklin place, formerly publication manager of the Ingersoll-Rand Company, and more recently of the Campbell Art Company, is now associated with the Robert L. Stillson Company, of New York. The company, whose office is located at 122 Centre street, New York, is engaged in the printing of advertising literature.

Westfielders Refused Injunction.

Vice Chancellor Walker at Trenton yesterday refused the application of several citizens of Westfield for an injunction against H. L. Fink, of Westfield, and the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company in the case arising out of the building of a subway by the telephone corporation.

WESTFIELD.

At Monday night's meeting of Council a sharp discussion was started between Councilmen Middleditch and Hohenstein, when the former announced that it was too late to have an election on the voting machine, and that the First ward would have to vote by machine at the coming election. Hohenstein charged him with bad faith in holding up the necessary resolutions until it was too late. W. H. Weldon was awarded the contract for grading the new sewer beds.

Councilman Robert Hohenstein introduced a resolution to instruct the town attorney to bring suit against Councilman H. L. Fink to compel him to pay for the surplus dirt that had been removed from the streets to his property. Mayor Alpers refused to entertain the motion, and on an appeal from the chair the Mayor was sustained by one vote.

Arguments will be made before Vice-Chancellor Walker at Trenton on the injunction obtained by Westfield property owners restraining H. L. Fink and the telephone company from disposing of excess dirt from the town streets.

Garwood Council Monday night awarded the sewer contract to an Atlantic City firm. Plans for a borough hall are to be submitted at the next meeting of the Council.

W. H. Abbott is having plans prepared for a three-story brick building for the corner of Broad and Prospect streets to be erected this fall.

At the meeting of Westfield Council, Monday night, the town attorney was directed to prepare an ordinance to license billboards.

Powers' Hotel at Westfield has been sold to Walter Merrily, of Roselle Park, who will take charge September 1.

FLOUR WILL BE HIGHER.

Vice-President of Washburn Company Predicts an Advance.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 19.—Flour is going up and bread with it, according to an interview given out by John Washburn, vice-president of the Washburn-Crosby Milling Company, in his office in the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce yesterday. This rise, according to the Minneapolis bakers, will bring the price of a fourteen-ounce loaf of bread up to six cents.

Concerning the advance of flour prices, Mr. Washburn said: "From present indications it is safe to believe that the general range of quotations on all grades of flour will run higher than even last year."

DOUBLE RUFFLE PETTICOATS.

Among the very pretty things in lingerie that Paris has sent out is the fine muslin petticoat with its double ruffle.

It is made in this way: The skirt is gored and finished at the hem with a three-inch lace-edged ruffle. The first flounce is fifteen inches deep, of colored taffeta, edged with a pinked ruffle. This is attached to the foundation, with buttonholes over tiny pearl buttons.

Over this silk ruffle is one of fine muslin, which is attached by sewing to the underskirt. It is headed by an inch insertion of lace ,and is trimmed with groups of fine tucks and a lace edge.

The introduction of the colored silk flounce under the sheer white one is a very good touch, and one that a bride who is preparing her trousseau could very well take advantage of when she is making up her petticoats at home.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Material is on the ground for the $9,000 improvement to the Atlantic County Surrogate's office.

Joseph Selb, in his loft at Gloucester, yesterday, captured a carrier pigeon bearing a band marked "T Y 3398".

Charles Horner, who farms the Robeson place, near Beverly, has raised a watermelon which tips the scales at seventy-five pounds.

Fire destroyed a barn belonging to Mrs. Harrison, 79 Westervelt place, Passaic, last night. The origin of the flames is unknown. The loss is about $500.

Franklin, the eight-year-old son of William F. Davis, proprietor of the Franklin Hotel at Glassboro, has had his leg broken three times since July 29.

Eleven Camden women are contesting for the honor of being Queen of the Carnival at a three-day circus which opened at Parkside last night. It is for the benefit of the fire department pension fund.

Henry M. Paxson, a retired Philadelphia wholesale dry goods merchant, died suddenly from old age at his home in Ocean City, yesterday afternoon. He was born in West Chester September 7, 1811.

Zenos H. Bunting, one of the best known business men of Trenton, dropped dead yesterday of heart failure. He was at work at the time in a printing establishment on Hudson street. His wife died in the same manner about two years ago.

John N. Martin, a Millville merchant, yesterday attempted to board a moving electric train at Newfield, reached for the hand-rail, stumbled and fell between the trucks and the platform. He lay still until the train had passed and escaped injury.

An automobile owned and operated by Edwin A. Travers, of Passaic, ran into rocks on the side of the road between Tuxedo and Sourlfields on Sunday afternoon. The machine turned turtle and the four occupants were thrown out. The owner's wife had her leg broken. Travers and two women friends escaped injury.

Rev. Daniel Bishop, assistant pastor of Florence Baptist church, on Sunday night caught two burglars breaking into the parsonage, which is unoccupied, as the regular pastor, Rev. E. I. Case, is away on a vacation. The culprits pleaded so hard with the dominie that they were allowed to go, promising to do better in the future. No names were given out.

Impressive ceremonies were held yesterday afternoon over the body of Captain William G. Cook, who lost his life a few days ago in the Snyder livery stable fire, in River street, Paterson. Every fireman in the city who was off duty attended the funeral, which was held in the Broadway Reformed church. All officers of the fire department were present, as were the police and fire commissioners.

The disappearance Saturday of Charles Koenig, of 5032 Germantown avenue, Philadelphia, was solved yesterday by the finding of the body about a quarter of a mile below the Rio Grande bridge in the back channel, near Wildwood, where he had gone in a small boat to fish. The body was found by Lafayette Sharpless. Dr. N. A. Cohen, coroner's physician, said the cause of death was apoplexy, the presumption being that Keonig was attacked and fell overboard.

Justice of the Peace Carver, of Ellwood, stopped Dr. Julius Shenkin, of Third and Lombard street, Philadelphia, at Ellwood, on June 28, and imposed a fine of $10 and costs, a total of $13.90, for speeding in his auto. Dr. Shenkin was short of change, and borrowing one of Carver's checks on the Egg Harbor Bank, Philadelphia, and made out a check for the amount required, making it payable to J. B. Smith, State automobile agent. When the check was presented it was found that payment had been stopped, and when Agent Charles Pedigree called on Dr. Shenkin yesterday and asked for an explanation he was told that payment had been stopped because the doctor had not violated the speed laws.

ASK PAY FOR SLAIN FOWL.

Petitioners to Elizabeth Council Cite Old Law Making Municipality Responsible.

A novel application was made to the City Council at Elizabeth last night by Peter F. Steell, J. D. Magie and George W. Wilcox, all well-known residents of Elmora, the newly annexed suburb of Elizabeth. It was a petition asking the city to reimburse them for the loss of twenty-eight chickens, valued at sixty cents each, making a total of $16.80, and twenty-three younger chickens, valued at fifty cents each, or $11.50, making a combined total of $28.30. These fowl, they allege, were killed by a vagrant, untagged dog, whose owner, if the animal has any, is unknown, and the petitioners claim that under an old law, enacted in the eighteenth century and never repealed, the municipality where the killing was done is responsible for the damage. The application was referred to the Law Committee, with instructions to report at the next meeting of the Council.

WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING.

Mrs. Shelby M. Collum, despite her many years, is still a figure in social doings and philanthropic work in Washington.

Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan, has been investigating German institutions for workingmen in Berlin.

Mrs Clara Clemens, the daughter of Mark Twain, has made her appearance as a singer in London. Miss Clemens has studied under Mme. Marchesi and Mr. Leechetizzky and has sung in public in America during the past two years.

Among astronomers of her sex Maria Mitchell, for many years professor at Vassar, has remained without a peer. She was born in Nantucket, Mass., in 1819, and the people of the town recently dedicated a memorial observatory in her honor.

Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, the venerable founder and head of the Christian Science Church, recently reached her 87th year, but beyond congratulations from members of her household and officials of the church there was no observance of the event.

Mrs. Florence Kollock Crooker recently celebrated the thirty-second anniversary of her service as a minister of the Universalist Church and the fourth anniversary of her pastorate of St. Paul's church, Jamaica Plain, Boston. She is the wife of the Rev. Dr. J. H. Crooker.

The new kingdom of Norway has sent to this country one of the prettiest women Washington has seen for some time. She is Mme. Gude, wife of the new Minister from that kingdom Mme. Gude is a Dane by birth, but she speaks a number of languages besides her own and Norwegian, among them English

Beverage for an Invalid.

Lemon oatmeal drink is one of which invalids rarely tire. Mix a tablespoon of fine oatmeal into a smooth paste with cold water; then pour over it three pints of boiling water, stirring well all the time. Place in a saucepan, and boil until the quantity is reduced to two pints. Set it aside to cool, and then pour the clear gruel away from the sediment. Add to this the juice of a lemon and a small quantity of powdered sugar. This may be served hot or cold, and it is good either way.

Real Daintiness.

Nothing more quickly marks the refinement of the young girl than the care she takes of her toilet articles, especially her comb and brush. If these are kept scrupulously clean by frequent washings, it is the hallmark of neatness.

A CURIOUS STORY ABOUT THE "LAST SUPPER."

Moldering away on the wall of the old monastery in Milan, Italy, hangs the famous "Last Supper" of Leonardo da Vinci. Like every masterpiece, the painting required many years of patient labor, and as a result of that labor it is perfect in its naturalness of expression and sublime in its story of love. In addition to these qualities, it has an incident in its history that contributes not a little toward making it the great teacher that it is.

It is said that the artist, in painting the faces of the apostles, studied the countenances of good men whom he knew. When, however, he was ready to paint the face of Jesus in the picture he could find none that would satisfy his conception. The face that would serve as a model for the face of Christ must be dignified in its simplicity and majestic in its sweetness. After several years of careful search the painter happened to meet one Pietro Bandinelli, a choir boy of exquisite voice, belonging to the cathedral. Being struck by the beautiful features and tender manner that bespoke an angelic soul, the artist induced the boy to be the study for the painting of the face of Jesus.

All was done most carefully and reverently, but the picture was as yet incomplete, for the face of Judas was absent. Again the painter, with the zeal of a true lover of his art, set about in search of a countenance that might serve for the face of the traitor. Some years passed before his search was rewarded and the picture was finally completed. As the artist was about to dismiss the miserable and degraded wretch who had been his awful choice the man looked up at him and said: "You have painted me before." Horrified and dumb with amazement, the painter learned that the man was Pietro Bandinelli. During those intervening years Pietro had been at Rome studying music, had met with evil companions, had given himself up to drinking and gambling, had fallen into shameful dissipation and crime. The fact that now was the model for the face of Judas had once been the model for the face of Christ.

A Sense of Propriety.

"So you stole this man's ax," said the judge.

"Yessah. I reckons dar ain' no use tryin' ter spute de facts."

"What did you do that for? He said he would have been perfectly willing to lend you the ax."

"Yes; but you see, jedge, dat man's on'y jes' moved in de neighborhood. I doesn't know him well enough ter go 'roun' ter his house borryin'."—Washington Star.

Another shutout victory for Mathewson, his seventh this season.

The nearest the Browns have come to a victory on this trip is a ten inning tie with the Athletics.

Johnny Kane, the Reds' featherweight outfielder, was a giant with the bat against the Brooklyns, making two home runs in two successive days.

The Cardinals have made a lot of trouble for McGraw's men this season, having won eight games out of nineteen—better than the Cubs have been able to do.

Leon Ames hasn't made any howling success of it since be rejoined the Poloists, but it is believed he is all right and will soon begin to win his share of games.

It has been so long since the New Yorks beat the Clevelands that the victory is outlawed. The Clevelands have downed the hillmen in the last ten games between them.

The Highlanders didn't show much hustle in running to first base yesterday, moving as if they thought they had done their duty when they hit the ball. An exception, however, was a dashing slide by O'Rourke trying to beat Stovall to the bag.

What is said to be the oldest baseball in the United States is on exhibition in a local show window at Mount Vernon, N. Y. It was used by the Newburg team and the old Eclipse A. C. team on June 20, 1862. Ex-Gov. Odell's father played with the Newburg team. The ball has been gilded and inscribed with its history. It is now the property of Dr. Philip Siexas, of Mount Vernon.

The Clevelands have landed a couple of new outfielders. One is Wilbur Good, formerly a pitcher for the New York Americans. Good has been playing the outfield for the Akron, Ohio, team this season and has been a sensation with the stick. The other is Briscoe Lord, who played centre for the Athletics not long ago. Elmer Flick is improving and may go into right field for the Naps when they get back home. It is not likely that Terry Turner will be used in the infield again this year. It is Manager Lajoie's intentions to give Turner's arm a rest for the present season.

GOLF.

Those who have the good fortune to compete in the invitation tournament of the Deal Golf and Country Club on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week will find the course more inviting than ever. It has frequently been said of the Deal eighteen-hole circuit that it was difficult to score on chiefly because of its unusual length, but this criticism will hardly hold good in future for the reason that new traps and bunkers have been added on no less than ten holes.

New and enlarged tees have likewise been put in commission, so that excuses for poor drives will be decidedly out of order. Briefly, the improvements to the course are as follows:

First hole—Sand traps placed to left and rear of green.

Third hole—Sand traps to rear of green.

Sixth hole—Sand traps to left of green.

Ninth hole—Sand traps to left and right in front of green to catch pulled or sliced approach.

Tenth hole—Bunker to left of fair green to catch pulled drive.

Sixteenth hole—New bunker to catch topped second shots.

Eighteenth hole—Water hazard in front of green.

When the entry is announced the chances are that another long list will confront the committee, although it will hardly be as formidable as the record crowd that took part a year ago. The conditions making eligible only those with Metropolitan ratings of nine or better insures a high class lot of starters.

By the end of the present week there will be a general exodus of Metropolitan district professions, Myopia being the objective point. Jack Hobens, of Englewood, who made such a determined bid for three rounds in the national open at Philadelphia a year ago, is playing steadier than ever. He has had several rounds of 72 recently, and the other evening went out in the remarkable figures of 32. Darkness then put a stop to further play, otherwise he would have probably lowered his record of 70.

Leighton Calkins, secretary of the Metropolitan Golf Association, is spending a short vacation down East and as he put it, enjoying some good golf every day on the Bass Rocks links. He intends to remain away until after the open and will, of course, be on hand at Myopia.

In a recent round of the Massapequa links Will Smith, one of the most brilliant golfing products of Carnoustie, had no trouble in establishing a new record of 36. The course is comparatively short, covering a playing length of about 2,500 yards.

Rev. Dr. F. W. Lockwood, of Pittsfield, Mass., will occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist church Sunday morning and night.

Plainfield, N. J., August 19, 1908.

Union county correspondents have been nominating "Farmer Orator" Martine for every office on the ticket and with each nomination he comes out with a statement that he wouldn't take the office if it had a $100,000 salary attached to it. Martine is now wholly concerned in the election of his old friend, William Jennings Bryan and even if Mr. Bryan should be elected he would not accept a place on the cabinet. Mr. Martine is good to the newspaper boys, taking them up to his pretty home now and then and giving them a blow out and furnishing them with lots of good copy the year round. So it is natural that the boys should want to give him some honorary nomination in return.—New Brunswick Times.

Jealousy, that's all.

DIES VICTIM OF WIFE'S SHOT.

Negro Who Killed White Mate in Duel Succumbs in Hospital.

After fighting like a madman all night, Randolph Reilly, a negro, who when shot in the abdomen by his wife, Hattie, a white woman, Monday, hacked her to death with a razor at the W. N. G. Clark residence, No. 912 Sunset avenue, at Asbury Park, died in the Ann Hay Memorial Hospital, Spring Lake, yesterday.

Though closely watched at the hospital he tried to jump from one of the third story windows of the ward and fought desperately the attendants who put him back in bed. Jealousy caused the quarrel that led to the double tragedy.

Anticipated.

BOSTOCK LION "BALTIMORE" KILLS A CINNAMON BEAR.

A fierce fight yesterday between the lion Baltimore and a valuable Russian bear in the Bostock animal inclosure at Coney Island ended in the death of the bear. After the lions of Rinaldo's group were driven into the passageway behind the dens for the performance in the arena an attendant entered the bear's den to clean it, leaving the door open. A fight started between Baltimore and another lion at the arena entrance and was not stopped until Rinaldo had emptied two revolvers in the face of the lions.

Baltimore became enraged and turned suddenly, but instead of attacking Rinaldo, bolted into the passageway toward his den. The door of the bear's den was open and blocked the passage. The lion bounded into the bear's den and the attendant left there immediately, closing the door.

The bear, a fine specimen of the giant cinnamon, arose on its hind legs and fought. The contest was furious, the lion biting and clawing and the bear biting and hugging. The attendants rushed to the front of the den, but iron bars were futile. The fight was to the death. The lion was master throughout and took advantage of every opening, wounding the bear terribly. The bear finally dropped to the floor exhausted, and two vicious bites broke its neck. Baltimore was driven from the bear's den sore and ill tempered, but was made to go through his performance later in the day.

"KISSING TRAIN" THE LATEST ON THE COAST.

The week-end commuters along the New Jersey seacoast are responsible for the institution known as the "kissing train." Seashore historians differ as to whether the Central or the Pennsylvania railroad ran the original "kissing train," but each road has one, and it leaves New York about 1 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. Everything goes smoothly until Long Branch is reached. Here several dozen happy wives greet their husbands, whose business has kept them in the city all week, with resounding smacks that make a city man feel glad he is a commuter and married. This is encountered at almost every station.

But it is at Asbury Park that the real kissing is seen, for as the train pulls into the station the number of waiting wives runs into the hundreds. Occasionally one or two women, with a sad look on their faces leave the station when they discover that their hubbies are not on the train. The recalcitrant husbands arrive on a train about two hours later, however, each one with a box of candy or a basket of fruit under his arm, which, he has confided to the conductor, is to "square himself" with his lady-by-the-sea for an extra hour or two spent with the boys.

Justly Indignant.

"Yes; she thought she was pining away from a broken heart and the doctor diagnosed her case as indigestion and cured her."—Houston Post.

HERE'S A RECIPE FOR THE FAMOUS OLY-KOOKS.

Beat to a cream one cup of butter and two of sugar. Break in two eggs, beating vigorously, add half a cup of hot milk, half a teaspoonful of salt and sifted flour to make a stiff batter. Beat well. Add a cup and a half more of hot milk and two sifted flour, until the batter is as stiff as can be beaten with ease. Cool to lukewarm, add a yeast cake dissolved in a cup of water, a little more flour and then beat until the batter blisters. Cover and set in a warm place about twenty-four hours to rise. If set about 10 in the morning it will be usually well risen by 9 the next morning. Dredge the molding board with flour and turn the batter on it, remembering the dough must be as soft as can be handled, and the less handling the better. Roll the dough in sheets about three-fourths of an inch thick and cut in round cakes.

Now, with a sharp, thin knife, cut a slit in each cake and insert in the centre a plump raisin, in a bit of sliced citron and a lump of sugar, or a teaspoonful of any rich preserve. Wet the edges of the slit and press together closely. Let the doughnuts rise for half an hour, or until quite light, and cook in a kettle of smoking hot fat. This may be lard or lard drippings. It should be hot enough to color a bit of bread a light yellow as soon as it is dropped in.

The oly-kooks take about ten minutes to cook—longer than ordinary doughnuts—on account of the fruit in the centre. This should be a tender, golden brokn when done. Lift out with a skimmer, drain and lay on soft brown paper to absorb the fat. Roll in powdered sugar, and when cold set away in a stone cake jar. Old-fashioned cooks sometimes soak the oly-kooks in a little Santa Cruz rum and serve them with preserved peaches. In some old Knickerbocker families they are often served during the holidays with vanilla ice cream.

Mrs. Melle Hylkema, her child and sister, Miss Cruser, of Ravine road, left today for Asbury Park, where they will spend the rest of the week.

The Plainfield contingent at the Surf House, Asbury Park, has been increased by the arrival of B. F. Carrell, E. F. Underhill and John J. Hines.

Louis Mulford, of Grant avenue, who underwent an operation at Muhlenberg Hospital for appendicitis, is much better and he hopes to return home soon.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

By a vote of twenty-six out of the twenty-nine who turned out to the special voters' meeting called by the Board of Education, it was decided last night to appropriate $1,000 to fit up a room in a private house south of the railroad and to engage a teacher to be in charge of a beginners' class to be started in the fall. The meeting was called by F. R. Wynkoop, of the Board, and J. Newton Apgar was chosen chairman; A. T. Hamley acted as clerk. R. M. Apgar and G. Johnson were the tellers. Two votes were against the proposition, and one ballot was blank. The appropriation to secure the room was made necessary by the over-crowded condition of the Whittier school.

A special public meeting of the Board of Health will be held Friday evening to give the public an opportunity to express views on the sanitary code, framed by the Board. The ordinance will be proposed for its third and last reading at that time.

David Davis, of Roselle Park, who has been appointed the superintendent of the local schools to succeed Lester Meseroll, will receive a salary of $1,000 for the first year. Mr. Meseroll will begin his duties as head of the Bernardsville school.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson and daughter, of Dunellen avenue, left today for Success, California, where they will make their home in future.

Mrs. Josephine Dunham left yesterday for a two weeks' sojourn at Asbury Park.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Extensive alterations are being made to the Sunswick Poultry Farm. Albert Manning, W. Payne, Turton and Clarke are respectively engaged in replacing the gutters, readjusting the masonry and retinning the different roofs, in preparation for an enlarged business.

The regular meeting of th Middlesex Volunteer Fire Company will be held Friday night at 8 o'clock. Members are earnestly requested to attend all meetings.

The Young People's Social Club will meet for special business tomorrow night at the home of LeRoy Clawson.

Miss Nellie Manning has returned home from a two weeks' stay to the Northfield Conference.

Miss Oscar Thorne is visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. E. Winship, of New York.

John Goff, the infant son of Samuel Goff, continues to improve.

TWO YEARS' PRISON TERM FOR VALESKA BARTSCH.

Mrs. Valeska Bartsch, charged with robbing Mrs. Alfred Schwartz, who resides on Mountain avenue, Somerville, of $20 in cash and jewelry valued at $850, and with having committed numerous thefts in and about New York city under the guise of a servant who offers her services through employment agencies, was arraigned before Judge Schenck in the Somerset Court yesterday morning and pleaded guilty to the charge of robbing the Schwarz residence. She was sentenced to serve two years in the State prison.

On hearing the sentence Mrs. Bartsch broke down and was taken from the court by Sheriff Ross in a hysterical condition. Counsel for the prisoner told the court a pathetic story of the woman's life, and made a plea for mercy. Mrs. Bartsch, he stated, had made a full confession of her thefts and expressed a desire to throw herself on the mercy of the court.

The prisoner, he said, was a widow of a journalist who was formerly connected with a German newspaper of Newark and also served as secretary of the German Consul.

She moved in good society up to the time of her husband's death. After she had been a widow a number of years she married a man who soon squandered the little property she had left and then deserted her. After this she was compelled to work in factories and as a domestic to earn a livelihood.

ABOUT THE AVERAGE MAN.

He doesn't go to church more than once a month, and always looks uncomfortable in his go-to-meeting attire. He is about five feet six inches to five feet seven inches tall. The dude calls him a "jay." In some circles the average man is known as an easy mark—in capital letters.

He would walk half a dozen miles to see a train wreck, and would run the same distance to see a fire, where he would help all he knew.

There are more men engaged in agricultural pursuits than in any other occupation, says the London Saturday Journal. There are, as a matter of fact, in Great Britain 1,071,040 working in the fields and farms and gardens out of a total of 12,134,259 men employed in the land.

So, despite the fact that for years the procession of country sons toward town houses has been maintained, the average man is still an agriculturist.

SOLD LEMONADE TO AID THE BABY CAMP FUND

The City Union, King's Daughters' baby camp fund was increased today by $1, that sum having been received from the Misses Gladys and Dorothy Lee, of Grove street. The money was the profit from the sale of lemonade at a stand conducted by the young girls at their home.

The total amount to date received by The Daily Press for the Netherwood and City Union Camps is $232. These subscriptions for the baby camp are acknowledged:

PERSONAL.

The family of T. S. Sullivant, of Watchung avenue, has gone to Bay Head on the New Jersey coast.

The Misses Charlotte and Jean Davie, of Manning avenue, have gone to Gloucester, Mass., to spend two weeks.

Dr. P. B. Cregar, of Grant avenue, accompanied by Mrs. Cregar, is stopping at the Majestic, Asbury Park, for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Colton, and daughter, Miss Colton, of East Sixth street, are spending some weeks at Bailey's Island, Maine.

THE RAINY-DAY COATS ARE GROWING FRIVOLOUS.

At what extravagancies the rainy-day coat will arrive is not established, but it seems likely that luxurious ladies may yet brave the elements clad in rubberized garments of point lace, probably buttoned with diamonds!

A rain-coat was once merely an ungainly rubber-scented garment known as a waterproof or mackintosh. Through various stages it progressed to silken texture of delicate fineness. Rain-coats of shining satin—fabric once reserved for clothing queens—walk the wet streets on every working girl who can afford the not exorbitant price at which they are sold.

The latest addition to the list is the crepe de chine rain-coat. It is so lightweight and delicate that only a triumph of the rubberizing process has made it thoroughly proof against rain.

It is only a step from crepe de chine to lace and velvet, so it seems not impossible that these fabrics may be the next to be converted to wet weather uses.

HINT FOR A GIFT.

Something convenient for the work basket can be made with a few cheap articles. One of my readers gave me one with a description for making same: Get an empty spool and fill the thread space with beeswax. It will be necessary to slightly heat it to fill the spool evenly and smoothly. Cover one end of the spool with a disc of red or green felt with tiny notches extending a few inches beyond the rim. It should be firmly glued in place. Fill the spool cavity with emery and attach three discs of felt, threaded together with baby ribbon, to the opposite end. This makes the beeswax handy for the thread, emery at hand for rusty needles, and the convenient little felt discs furnish a place for needles, all this in a tiny package.

Buds Age with Parent Tree.

According to a government botanist at Washington there is reason to believe that buds share in the growing old of the parent plant. He illustrates his meaning in this way: Suppose the average life of an individual plant—say a tree—to be 100 years, then a bud removed when the parent plant is 50 years old will also be virtually 50 years of age, and if transplanted by grafting will be able to live on the graft only 50 years more.

How Tears Soothe Pain.

An abstraction of water and of albuminoid and chemical substances, at the immediate expense of the cerebral blood, takes place in the act of shedding tears. This produces the effect of a slight local loss of blood, dulling the nerve centers to pain for some instants and bringing relief to the weeper. This is the way in which tears come to the aid of the suffering soul.—Paris Cosmos.

Hanging Scaffolds.

With the modern skyscraping office building has come a new form of building scaffold. Instead of constructing the scaffold from below, which is impossible in the cases of buildings ranging from 10 to 50 stories high, platforms are suspended from the steel girders above. On these swinging platforms the bricklayers work and the scaffold is raised as the work progresses.—System.

Insect Chemists.

Failing to bite sugar from several lumps, some marked bees under observation of Gaston Bonnier, a French naturalist, flew away, returning in an hour or two with other workers, after first visiting a fountain. Settling on the sugar, they were seen to pump water from their crops, when they sucked up the syrup so formed.

Wisdom and Satire.

A New York judge says that one of the noblest bits of political wisdom he ever heard was from an Italian constituent who was overheard saying to a compatriot in district politics the other day: "You eata da fish, and you talk less."

Generally He Is.

"When a man axes me foh advice," said Uncle Eben, "I doesn't throw out my chest an' feel flattered. De chances is dat de man who axes foh advice is simply goin' around to everybody he knows tryin' to celebrate hisse'f as a topic of conversation."

She Surely Did.

A little, fatherless boy was told by his nurse in a solemn manner that his mother was going to be married again. He received the impression that something was about to happen to his mother, and asked, in an agitated whisper: "Does mamma know?"

Use Much Sheep Gut.

An investigation of the sources of supply of the materials entering into the manufacture of musical instruments in Germany has revealed the fact that nearly 70,000 pounds of sheep gut are used annually for strings.

Vigorously Moribund.

People say that the English Christmas is dying out. But one has a suspicion that people always talked that way. Anyway, if the English Christmas is dying, it is surprisingly vigorous still.

Climb Higher.

The struggle to climb to a higher place in life has strength and dignity in it, and cannot fail to leave us stronger for the effort, even though we miss the prize.—Success Magazine.

In Life and in Death.

Envy will exert itself against a competitor, while life remains; but when death stops the competition, affection will applaud without restraint.—Pericles.

Antwerp Ivory Market First.

The ivory market at Antwerp, organized but a decade ago, has become the largest one in the world—larger than the two other great markets—those of London and Liverpool.

An Oversight.

The Youngster—"There's no doubt about it. I was cut out for an orator." The Old Man—"Pity you were never made up."—Illustrated Bits.

Aphorism Worth Remembering.

A wise man hath said: "It is better that people have good habits than good laws." Bear the aphorism in mind, it won't do a bit of harm.

Finishing by Quick Dispatch.

A New York girl drank two quarts of varnish, which is quicker than going to a finishing school.—New York American.

As a Rule.

The man who makes big money is likely to be pretty careful about his small change.

Few Deaths on Holland Railroads.

The railroads of Holland are so well managed that the deaths by accident on them average but one a year.

No New Discovery.

An English author assures one that a woman is not naturally vain, like a man.

Vice of the Great.

Montaigne: Ambition is not a vice of little people.

FOR THE WOMAN OF DEFT FINGERS.

White for Elderly Women—White is more and more worn by people who have arrived at the dignity of two score and ten.

Dimity on Underwear—Cross barred dimity is being much used for the hand embroidered chemises and corset covers. It has the virtues of wearing well, of being easily laundered and easy to work upon.

Neck Bows Now Match the Hat—Now if one would be quite up-to-date she must wear a neck bow to match the distinctive color of her hat.

Figured Dimity for Underwear—White dimity, with tiny rosebuds, is a favorite material for dainty underwear.

Serviceable Traveling Coats—Attractive coats for traveling are made of black pongee and trimmed with taffeta in black and white stripes. These are sometimes finished at either side with three pockets, one on top of the other.

The Ribbon Chain—The ribbon chain, with slides of either rhinestones or diamonds, is now the climax of stylish accessories. The ribbon is a half-inch black moire and from it may depend vanity box, watch or other ornament.

For New Shoes—New boots often do not take a good polish. They will do so if they are rubbed over with a cut lemon before they are blackened. A cut raw potato may be used instead of the lemon if the latter is not to be had.

THE FAMILY CAT.

Before going away for the midsummer holiday a family should look out for the cats which they befriended during the winter months.

Some people buy cats, some are given cats and some have cats thrust upon them. Those who buy will either take them away with them or board them for the summer with reliable people. The same may be said of those to whom cats are given, but the majority of the Newark families, and backyards, have cats thrust upon them. Poor strays, who clamber over fences, who dart through pickets, away from a pursuing dog or small boy, and to whom a cup of milk is offered in the moment's pity. Sometimes such cats adopt a home, and we give them, reluctantly, platters of fishbones and milk that are not needed, in order to still insistent mewing. We do not actually entertain the waifs, but temporize, before shooting them off, with food which merely quiets their demands.

If one is going away, and there are one or more such incumbents, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals should be notified by telephone for advice concerning its fate, but the cat should never be turned adrift. After being domesticated it cannot forage for itself.

The presence of mangy, diseased cats is a blot on a community as well as a menace to its health.

Don't be thoughtless about this, believing that the abandonment of one or more cats is not going to matter very much in the economy of a great city. Put yourself in the cat's place. Meditate on mercy for two minutes and think out a plan for its maintenance. The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will mercifully put it to sleep if you cannot provide otherwise for it.

Especially Then.

Sillicus—I suppose second thoughts are always best.

Cynicus—Yes, especially in a case of love at first sight.—Philadelphia Record.

Furnace troubles are very real. A cold, uncomfortable house is a menace. You are risking colds—possibly pneumonia—and your coal bills are higher than they would be with a clean, bright fire. The will keep your house warm in every nook and corner. Never clog, leak gas or dust, and use only three-quarters of the coal with one half the trouble. Have any dealer in Boynton Furnaces explain their many superior points.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

A Necessary Quality.

We require a certain firmness in all circumstances of life, even the happiest, and perhaps content is to come in order to prove and examine this; and, if we can only determine so to use them, the very effort brings back tranquillity to the soul, which always enjoys having exercised its strength in conformity to duty.—William von Humboldt.

Rely on Yourself.

All things come to him who hustles while he waits. Don't sit down with folded hands or stand with arms akimbo set until the occasion tells you what to do; don't wait for something to turn up or somebody to come along and take you by the hand to lead you up, without any labor on your part, to the heights others have gained by push and perseverance.

The Sphinx.

The Sphinx was hewn out of the natural rock, with the exception of trifling additions in masonry here and there to complete the shape. The excavations of Mariette in 1852 practically redeemed the colossal figure from the sands, so that it stood forth in its full dimensions, 172 feet in length by 56 feet in height.—New York American.

Good Work Has Slow Growth.

Bancroft spent 26 years on his history and Webster 36 on his dictionary. 'Tis the same with the great inventions. It took years of study and experiment to perfect them. Everything must have a foundation, otherwise it cannot stand, and the more solid the foundation the safer is the structure.

Fat in Food a Necessity.

Many minor ills of the body would be avoided if only care were taken to include a sufficiency of fat in the diet. Fat, we know, is about the most compact form of fuel which we possess, while it exercises a favorable effect upon the processes of the intestinal tract.

Perseverance Essential.

There is a certain point of proficiency at which an acquisition begins to be of use, and unless we have the time and resolution necessary to reach that point, our labor is as completely thrown away as that of a mechanic who began to make an engine but never finished it.—P. G. Hamerton.

Ceylonese Land Leeches.

Land leeches are plentiful in Ceylon. These bloodsuckers hang on bushes and trees and lurk in the grass. The only way to get them off one's body is to squeeze a few drops of lemon on them. Then they fall to the ground.

Craving for Occasional Change.

Something in human nature demands the introduction of the element of novelty into existence from time to time. The person is exceptional who can be content in the same routine, day in and day out, for months and years.

Baker's Dozen.

There used to be in various countries heavy penalties for short weight in bakers' goods, and the bakers, in order to avoid all risk of incurring the fine, used to give a surplus number of loaves, 13 for a dozen.—New York American.

A Labor-Saving Scheme.

"John," said the newly married business man. "Yessir," responded the office boy. "Call up my wife every 15 minutes, and mumble lovey-dovey, tootsey-wootsey, about seven or eight times." —Exchange.

The Fireside Diplomat.

"I don't want to be nagging at you," Mrs. Marryat began, "but it's the little things that bother me most—" "Ah!" interrupted her husband, sweetly. "I suppose you're going to tell me you haven't a decent pair of shoes."

Curious Lantern Fly.

Among the curious insects of the Malay peninsula is one called the lantern fly, which is remarkable for its sudden leaps, made without the aid of its wings.

Where Autos May Travel Fast.

There is no speed limit for autos outside the city of Shanghai, China. Within the city 30 miles an hour is allowed.

Life's Most Important Factor.

I have come to see that cleverness, success, attainment, count for little; that goodness, or character, is the important factor in life.—G. J. Romanes.

In Praise of Labor.

Little do you know your own blessedness; for to travel hopefully is a better thing than to arrive; the true success is to labor.—R. L. Stevenson.

Happy Thought.

The habit of happy thought would transform the commonest life into harmony and beauty.—Success Magazine.

Life More Than a Treadmill.

Life ought not to be a treadmill, and when it appears to be such there is something wrong.

Generally.

The man to whom it is necessary to give the benefit of the doubt generally ends by needing more.

How Few Do!

Italian proverb: Happy is the man who does all the good he talks of.

REFLECTIONS OF UNCLE EZRA.

Why is it a manicurist is always a woman?

It rained cats and dogs the other day and they had veal stew for dinner at the huttel.

You kin tell a carpenter by his chips and, by gravy, you kin tell a poker player the same way.

There ain't no style about some fellers. Abner Hanks of our town drives around in his spring wagon until 'way late in the fall.

If they ever adopt that elastic currency in this country I suppose a feller will have plenty of money to buy suspenders with.

If there is any job more ticklish than climbin' through a barb-wire fence it is that of expressin' your honest opinion of your wife's folks.

A picture postal card arrived in our midst from Paris, France, last week and nineteen citizens have announced their candidacy for postmaster.

Miss Euphemia Mudge of our village says she is in love with her Art, but, by ginger, we ain't been able as yet to find out what Art's last name is.

Mrs. J. Frothingham Butts, our society leader, has sent to New York for some of that pink tea she has read so much about in the society columns.

One difference between a balky hoss and a balky wife is that you can unhitch a balky hoss without hirin' a lawyer to prove incompatibility of temperature.—Judge.

SAYS THE CYNIC.

It's a good plan to face the backbiter.

It doesn't take an actor to make up for lost time.

Patience is a virtue when it isn't simply laziness.

A great deal of modesty is merely on the surface.

You can't always tell when a gun is loaded, but you generally know when a man is.

The time may come when the spendthrift won't have the cents he was born with.

Beauty is as beauty does. The derrick isn't handsome, but it has an uplifting influence.

There are people so constituted that they couldn't find happiness with a fine-tooth comb.

It's a fine thing to be a leader, but it is better to follow a good example than to set a bad one.

If matches are made in heaven, it is evident that they are not to be made light of.

It isn't always because they are fond of flowers that people throw bouquets at themselves.

MUSINGS OF A BACHELOR.

It's cheaper to be married than to be engaged.

In the game of hearts when in doubt always lead diamonds.

If you are not prepared to diet don't attempt to live on love.

A man will try to marry the girl he loves—a girl will try to love the man she marries.

The foolish girl sighs to be the first in a man's life; the wise ones seek to be the last.

Even though a man thinks the world of a woman he should remember that there are others.

A good man often burns the candle at both ends in order to throw more light on the subject.

Women rarely know what a contempt they have for society until they find themselves cut by it.

When you stand on the doorsteps of Love always get past into the hall before you give the belle a ring.

There is only one man to whom women can be crueler than to the one she hates—that is the man whom she loves.

CURBSTONE PHILOSOPHY.

It is easier to hit a lion than a hare.

A bird in the hand catches no worms.

An iron will needs analyzing. It may be pig-iron.

Even the Kohinoor had to be cut and polished.

The fresh consider themselves the salt of the earth.

Take care of the pennies and somebody else will take care of the dollars.

No man was ever truly wise. Even Solomon took more than one wife.

The world is usually willing to step aside for a man who knows where is is going.—Success Magazine.

HA-HA! I TOLD YOU SO.

"You took 'em off last week, ha! ha!
And now you shiver in the breeze;
Your eyes are red, O you're a sight;
Go it, old boy! enjoy your sneeze.
Oh, that's a frightful cold you have,
But I've no sympathy, Oh, no!
You took 'em off—ha, ha! old man,
I told you so!

"Excuse me if I have to smile,
It really tickles me to see
That you are suffering this way.
You should have given heed to me.
It's all your fault, you were a fool,
The fiddler you must pay, you know;
Still you'll remember, if you think,
I told you so.".

"I know I've got an awful cold,
By head is stuffed so bery tight,
I caddot speak a siggle word,
Ad I can't eben sleep at dight.
But I could stand de cold, by Gub!
Widout complainig ob by woe,
If I could dodge the fools who say
'I told you so.'"

"No, I have not, but I knew you had been with her, and I see there's some red on your coat!"—Yonkers Statesman.

Spiteful.

Mrs. Bacon—Does your husband use a safety razor?

Mrs. Egbert—Yes, he does.

"Does he like it?"

"No, I don't think he does; I think he only uses it to spite me. I can't cut my corns with it at all."—Yonkers Statesman.

A Little Misunderstanding.

"Don't give me any rosy fairy tales about the business," said the proprietor of the musical show. "I want a bald statement of the attendance."

"Oh, it's all right about the front row," said the business manager, absently.—Baltimore American.

Those Seasick Sounds.

The Landlubber—Captain, did you ever hear me sing "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep?"

The Captain—No, sir; but the first days aboardship I heard you make a lot of other funny sounds with your throat.—Yonkers Statesman.

Of Course.

"What is the first thing a young lady should do at a formal reception?" asked the fair debutante.

"Arrange her back hair, of course," remarked her father, who had overheard the conversation.—Detroit Free Press.

Out of the Dim Past.

Samuel Woodworth had just written "The Old Oaken Bucket."

"Nothing in it!" he muttered as he read it over and reflected upon the probable price it would bring.

But posterity evidently found something in it.—Chicago Tribune.

BLOCKADED.

Every Household in Plainfield Should Know How to Resist It.

The back aches because the kidneys are blockaded.

Help the kidneys with their work.

The back will ache no more.

Lots of proof that Doan's Kidney Pills do this.

Mrs. Anna Holmes, New Market, N. J., says: "Some years ago I gave a statement for publication regarding what Doan's Kidney Pills had done for me and I now willingly confirm what I then said. Sharp pains in my head, back and sides made me miserable. If I sat down for any length of time or attempted to rise quickly from a reclining position, the trouble would always be more severe. I gradually grew worse and my work became a burden. Having Doan's Kidney Pills brought to my attention, I procured a box from Randolph's Pharmacy and was helped from the beginning of their use. I improved steadily from that time on and was soon entirely relieved."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

George M. Cohan has written another play and it will be revealed at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. It is entitled "Fifty Miles From Boston," and comes to us with the stamp of success; in fact, it is said to be the very best output from the prolific workshop of this strenuous young author-actor-playwright. "Fifty Miles From Boston" is rural in its atmosphere, inasmuch as all of the scenes are laid in the little village of Brookfield, Mass., and the characters in the play are all drawn from types of the inhabitants of that village. Cohan and Harris have assembled a most remarkable cast and a large and vocally perfect chorus for the correct presentation of the Yankee Doodle comedian's newest play. The important names in the cast submitted would be evidence of the merit of the play if we had not already been told it was Mr. Cohan's most ambitious effort up to now. Besides Joseph M. Sparks, there are Suzanne Leonard Westford, Lillian Russell's sister; Hazel Lowe, Russel Pincus, Kathryn Perry, Wilmer Bentley, Charles Willard and many others, who are all players whose personality would add distinction to any company and they all have most congenial roles in the new Cohan play, it is said.

Jack Singer will present at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night the latest musical success, "The Passing Review," and the song hits of the year. Surrounded by a clever cast of players and with a book written by Aaron Hoffman, author of "Roger Bros. in Panama," a pleasant evening is bound to be looked forward to. Leo Edwards, who wrote the music is responsible for "School Days" and other hits, while James Gorman, general producer for the Geo. M. Cohan's attractions, staged the piece. The first act takes place on the stage of Hammerstein's and during this act the famous impersonations of great stars take place, including Oscar Hammerstein, Joe Welch, Chauncey Olcott, Maude Adams, Anna Held Montgomery and Stone, Caruso, Fritzi Scheff and Mrs. Leslie Carter. Cliff Gordon, the famous German comedian, Frank D. Bryan's Congress of American Girls and Frank Moore's "Land of Cotton" with the Ten Dancing Dandies are a few of the special features.

With new music, new ensemble and new faces, George Sidney will come to the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night in his new, refreshing musical comedy, "Busy Izzy's Boodle." Mr. Sidney is well known to the theatre-going public and much interest will undoubtedly be taken in his engagement here. The scenic setting, the costumes and electrical effects are a wealth of beauty and color, offset by a beauty chorus of thirty.

In this day of stage realism when the most unpretentious of attractions boasts of some innovation as a thriller for its theatre patrons it is a continuous battle between rival managers to produce each season something new, and the announced attraction for next Wednesday afternoon and night at the New Plainfield theatre, "The Ninety and Nine" will offer a splendid bit of stage realism incidental to a well acted and well staged drama. The particular mechanical effect is a reproduction of a high modern high speed locomotive running at the rate of a mile a minute through a terrific forest of a very considerable newspaper notice. The original New York cast which appeared in the run of the piece at the Academy of Music has been engaged.

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE DEBUTANTE.

A well-known society woman offers these suggestions to the debutantes of the season: Don't get too many gowns at once. The day has gone by when getting a new dress was a matter of several weeks. It can be put through very quickly now and it is much better to have an entirely fresh frock at intervals than to start with many gowns, which all, sooner or later, have had the bloom taken off them. Don't start out with the idea that all the attention shown you is a tribute to your beauty or charm. At least half of it comes from the desire of people to repay social obligations owing to your family. Even the young men who hover about you may often be actuated by the feeling that it is good policy to be attentive to old Mr. So-and-So's daughter. All this may be a blow to your vanity, but it will save you from more of a shock later on. Be careful to show yourself grateful for kindnesses shown you by older women. This is not only a matter of good feeling but a bit of real worldly wisdom. Next year you will not be that important personage a "bud," and then you will feel the benefit of having made the right kind of friends.

SUMMER DESSERTS.

Nectarine Mousse and Russe—To each cup of nectarine pulp allow a heaped teaspoonful of gelaine—two cups of pulp make a generous quantity. Dissolve the gelatine in a third of a cupful of cold water, then place over steam to dissolve, and strain into the nectarine pulp. Sweeten well, add a tablespoonful of lemon juice and a little raspberry or strawberry syrup. Coat the lining of a fancy mould with a tablespoonful of melted gelatine, then pour in the mousse, pack well, cover with ice, and freeze for six hours.

Make the russe in a similar manner, but fold in at the last a pint of whipped cream and the grated rind of a lemon instead of the lemon juice. Use also a little almond flavoring. The russe may be used as a filling for a mould lined with vanilla ice cream.

Apricot Souffle—Peel and rub nine or ten fully ripe apricots through a sieve; stir into them a cupful of powdered sugar and the beaten yolks of three eggs. Whisk together for eight minutes. Set aside until the whites of six eggs are beaten stiff, then fold carefully into the apricot and egg mixture; turn the whole into a souffle dish, sprinkle with sugar and bake in a brisk oven for six minutes.

Sherried Nectarine Pudding—Line a dish with stale sponke cake dipped in sherry, and heap on this halved and pared nectarines. Spread a meringue over teh top and brown quickly by placing the pudding dish in another which is partly filled with ice water. In this way the top will brown without heating the nectarines. Serve with cream.

ABOUT WHITE GLOVES.

White cotton or lisle gloves for wearing with shirtwaists are cool and convenient because they may easily be kept clean.

In theory one should have enough pairs to have gloves done up on wash day; in practise most women know what it is to find just before starting out that their gloves are "sights" and not a clean pair to be found.

If the discovery is made early enough the gloves may be washed out at once and hung in an open window to dry. If even this short warning is not given the gloves may be washed on the hands with plenty of soap and rinsing and allowed to dry out on the road.

It is surprising how quickly this is done, with the heat of the hands, especially on a hot day. Cold rarely results.

Care must be taken while the gloves are wet not to touch anything or to take hold of the railing of the cars when stepping on, or the last state of those gloves is worse than the first.

Baseball and General Sports

BASEBALL.

Baseball sharps hereabouts believe the Detroits capable of giving the National League pennant winners, whoever they may be, a harder fight in the world's series than any other club. The seasoning and experience the Detroits got last fall ought to help them a good deal this year. They firmly believe they will do just as the Cubs did—come back and win a world's series after losing one.

The New York and Boston Americans made a trade yesterday whereby Harry Niles goes to Boston and Frank Laporte comes to New York. Laporte will be on hand today and is returning to the club on which he played his first big league ball. He played here last season and figured in the three cornered deal by which New York got Glade, Hemphill and Niles from St. Louis and St. Louis got Hoffman and Williams from New York and Ferris from Boston.

PLAINFIELD MAY HAVE TO PLAY NEWARK AGAIN

Newark came one game closer to the local Y. M. C. A. team in the association league race Saturday by taking a forfeited game from the Elizabeth nine, and now has a record of seven wins and two defeats to the Plainfield nine's eight victories and two defeats. There is still one game to be played in the league, the disputed game between Orange and Newark terminated by rain after three innings at Orange on July 25. The executive committee of the league decided that the game must be played over, but no date has been set for the contest. The game is to be played at Orange.

If Newark wins this Orange game, the nine will tie with the local aggregation for the State championship, for each team will have a season's record of .800 per cent. Manager George L. Listman of the local nine, who is chairman of the league executive committee, said today that he thought the Orange boys would trim the Newark aggregation. "In case Newark wins, though," he continued, "I think Plainfield can best Newark in a post-season game, which I will try to arrange to take place at Crescent Oval. I flatly refuse to play at Newark in case such a game is necessary, for the Newark diamond is very poor. I am willing to play off the deciding game which may be necessary on any other of the league diamonds except Newark."

Manager Listman has not been with the team at either of the two games where the local nine was defeated and thinks the Plainfielders are due to land the pennant. "I've never seen Plainfield lose a league game," he said, in speaking of the chances of the team in the case of a post-season game, "and I don't believe the team can lose. I've got relatives in Missouri."

Asked about the Elizabeth team and the forfeits claimed, Mr. Listman said that he had never received official notification from the Elizabeth manager that the team was no longer in the league. "They didn't win a game all season," he said, "and were defeated five times. I guess they thought it would be better to quit, although it seems that as chairman of the league committee, I should have been notified. I shall not dispute the right of the Newark team to take the forfeit, because I believe the Newark nine could have beaten them easily if the two teams had come together."

ELLIS R. MEEKER IS VERY ILL IN ELIZABETH.

Former Assemblyman Ellis R. Meeker, author of the anti-spring election law, lies dangerously ill at his home on Elm street, Elizabeth. He has been sick since July 23, and instead of improving his condition has grown worse.

His ailment is neuritis, an affection of the nerves leading to the brain. He has lost much flesh and looks very wan. Mr. Meeker was one of the most popular members of the two Legislatures in which he served. His sickness dates from his visit to attend Governor's day at Sea Girt, when he caught cold. It was hoped he would be able to be at his real estate office this week, but another change has taken place in his illness which greatly alarms his friends.

Mrs. James C. Manning, of Dunellen avenue, is spending a month at Bethlehem, N. H., in the White Mountains. She is accompanied by her brother, E. R. Leland, and Mrs. Leland, of Sandford avenue.

Mrs. Harry I. Broadbent and sons, of Parkville, Brooklyn, are spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. J. Angerbauer, Sr., of East Third street, where Mr. Broadbent will spend the week end as he did the week previous.

CITY'S FIRST SCHOOL BUILDING STILL INTACT

There are few local citizens, even among the oldest inhabitants, who realize that Plainfield's original village school building is still standing and in an excellent state of preservation, yet such is a fact. It is a double house and is located on the east side of Church street, near East Second street, opposite Bartle's stone yard and belongs to the estate of Catherine Webster, deceased.

The building was erected about 1845 by William Davidson. He had previously occupied the back basement of the old First Presbyterian church, while Thomas Wallace occupied the front basement. A rather bitter rivalry always existed between them. Davidson long afterward became demented and in this condition was a conspicuous character about town for many years. During the Fremont campaign he crawled into the flimsy transparency in front of the Republican headquarters over Griffen's store on East Front street, plunged through it and landed in the street, somewhat surprised, considerably bruised, but without breaking a bone. He was an excellent teacher, loved and respected by the children, but always a little "queer."

The old church was moved to Fourth and Washington streets and cut into two dwellings. It was through a chance conversation with Jeremiah A. Moore, of West Fourth street, and J. R. Morrison, of Duer street, that it was learned that this building was used as the first school in this city. The dwelling still has the distinguishing mark of "Village School" on it, these words being found on a "riser" used for the steps leading to the area way in the basement. It formerly was used as a sign on the front of the building. The announcement of this fact will undoubtedly bring to the minds of the oldest inhabitants early recollections concerning the school. Since those early days the building has been converted into a double house, a partition having been placed in the centre. The old-fashioned wainscoting is still to be seen around the rooms, six inch boards being used for the purpose. Of course, it has been repaired from time to time as the necessity demanded, but other than that it is said to be practically as it was when the limited number of boys and girls in the village went there to be instructed in reading, writing and arithmetic.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Frederick O. Lindsley, of East Orange, has announced that he is a candidate for Freeholder and will contest with Wallace M. Ougheltree, who has held the office for many years, and will also vie with David A. McBride, who will probably receive the New Idea indorsement. It was at first believed that Mr. Lindsley would be a candidate for City Council against Andrew W. Baigrie, who was in the Council before the reform wave swept him and several others out of their City Hall berths, and who is now mentioned as a candidate once more. Now that Baigrie has about made up his mind to get back in the old job again, the reform man, Harry J. Burr, will put up another fight against him.

There are two new aspirants in the field for Mayor of Elizabeth. One of them is a "dark horse," who is said to represent the views of the local optionists in the Republican party. The other is John S. Sauer, a business man and member of the City Council of Elizabeth. He may oppose General Dennis F. Collins for the Democratic nomination.

The Republicans of Morris county started their campaign in Morristown last night by a banner raising. A meeting was held in Republican headquarters, at which former Governor Edward C. Stokes, Colonel Charles W. Fuller, of Bayonne, and Thomas J. Hillery, president of the Senate, were the speakers. William H. Thompson fired a howitzer during a fireworks exhibition. Grinnell Willis, president of the Morris County Club, presided.

The Republican convention of the 6th Congress district, comprising Bergen, Passaic and Sussex counties, will be held in Paterson on September 29. Bergen wanted the convention held in Hackensack. That county will have more delegates than Passaic and Sussex combined, and a Bergen county candidate may be chosen, though the leaders of Bergen seem to favor Judge Henry Hueston, of Sussex.

Representative Eugene Leake, of Jersey City, the Democratic Representative of the 9th New Jersey district, will begin stumping for Taft and Sherman, the Republican national nominees, on September 10. Mr. Leake has repudiated Bryan, and in a letter sent to Mr. Taft offered to stump for the latter and his running mate. He will make several speeches, and will probably speak first before the Hudson League Club, a Republican organization in Jersey City.

Baggagemaster Jeremiah Garretson, who recently resumed his duties at the North Avenue station, is again confined to his home on West Fourth street by illness.

WELL-KNOWN DUNELLENITE DIES AT THE HOSPITAL.

John Maltbie, for many years a well-known resident of Dunellen, died this morning at Muhlenberg Hospital, where he was taken two weeks ago in a critical condition. He was sixty-five years old and was born at Irvington. For years he was a prominent merchant of Newark, being engaged in the wholesale produce business on Broad street.

Mr. Maltbie moved to Dunellen about twenty years ago, purchasing a farm there. During the past few years he lived in retirement devoting his time to the care of his farm. He was a man of strong personality and highly esteemed by a large circle of friends and acquaintances. He was a communicant of the Episcopal church and a regular attendant. It has been his custom during the past few years to spend the winter with his daughter, Mrs. N. G. Read, in Jensen, Florida. He was also a Mason, being a member of a Newark lodge.

He is survived by a wife, two daughters, Mrs. S. T. Perrin, of West Seventh street; Mrs. N. G. Read, of Jensen, Fla., and one son, Robert Maltbie, who lives at home. A private funeral service will be held from the undertaking parlors of A. M. Runyon & Son, on Park avenue, at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, will officiate. The burial will be in the family plot at Suffren, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Weaver, of this city, are at the Marlborough, Asbury Park.

G. M. Rittenhouse, of Sandford avenue, is registered at the Coleman House, Asbury Park.

DEMOCRATS ON OUTING

Jeffersonian Followers May Fix County Slate at Witzel's Grove Today.

LOCAL POLITICIANS THERE.

Democratic City Committee, After Last Night's Session, Ready to Talk About the Candidates.

Union county Democrats are at Witzel's Grove today on their annual junket, and between athletic attractions and the big fish dinner which will be a feature of the outing, will discuss "The Peerless One" and his chances of being Roosevelt's successor, when November rolls around. Local Jeffersonian followers, headed by "Farmer Orator" James E. Martine, are much in evidence, and county politics are also coming in for active discussion. It is probable that the county slate will be made, for the party heelers have in many instances held preliminary meetings in the various cities and are said to have their minds made up about the county candidates. Those who made the trip from here are Walter L. Hetfield, S. H. Schlief, P. J. Reville, Joseph Harrigan, J. V. F. Dilts and John Gill. M. Leichtentritt, formerly of this city, came down from Somerville to accompany the Plainfielders.

The Plainfield delegation started for Elizabeth on the 8:46 train today, and the buzz of political talk had already begun when they were at the North avenue station. The Democratic City Committee had a meeting last night at the Hotel Kensington and tried to start a boom for James E. Martine as Mayor Fisk's successor. The Cedar Brook man, however, has positively refused to oppose the present executive for the office. County candidates were freely discussed, and it is reported that the Plainfielders have made up their minds about the ticket.

A reception committee, headed by Owen Farrelly, met the excursionists at the Burkley Hotel at Elizabeth, on the arrival of the train. The Elizabeth delegation was a strong one, and on the train came seventy-five members of the Springfield Democratic Club, headed by the Irvington fife and drum corps. The out-of-town politicians, accompanied by the Elizabethans, marched to the wharf to martial music, and there boarded the steamer Sirius and steamed to Witzel's Point View Grove, on Long Island. Upon their arrival at the grove, the politicians were photographed on the grandstand at the athletic field, and later a fine dinner was served at the hotel.

"Farmer Orator" Martine delivered an after-dinner address, and other speakers were Congressman Ollie James, of Kentucky; Congressman James L. Hamill, of Hudson county; the Hon. James Smith, Jr., of Newark; Mayor Jacob Haussling, of Newark; Hon. Frank S. Katzenbach, of Trenton; Charles F. X. O'Brien, of Hudson county; Johnston Cornish, of Warren county; Surrogate Peter F. Daley, of Middlesex county; Martin P. Devlin, of Mercer county; Senator George Silzer, of Middlesex county; Senator John Hinchcliffe, of Passaic, and Charles Gallagher, member of the State committee of Mercer county.

After the dinner all hands retired to the athletic field to either take part or witness the set of games arranged by Hugh Boyle. The winner of each event was presented with a gold medal. There were a fat man's race, an obstacle race, a three-leeged race, a hundred-yard dash, a tug-of-war and a baseball game between the Elizabeth and the Plainfield delegations.

The survivors will start for home about 7 o'clock. Off Coney Island the boat will lay to for a while in order to give the excursionists a chance to witness the illumination of the place. It is expected that the vessel will reach Elizabeth at about 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Kurzshals Leaves Hospital.

Mrs. Theodore Kurzhals, of West Sixth street, who was struck by a trolley car in New York city, Tuesday, has been removed from the New York Hospital, where she was taken in an ambulance, to the home of Mrs. George Porr, the relative she was visiting at the time of the accident. Meagre details have been received by Mrs. Kurzshals' family here, but it is understood that her injuries are not serious. She crossed the street behind a trolley car and was struck a glancing blow by another, coming in the opposite direction. Her arm and leg were bruised by the fall, but it is expected that she will return to this city tomorrow or Saturday.

Chimney Fire In West End.

A chimney fire at 336 Clinton avenue brought No. 3 hose wagon out at 11:21 this morning in answer to a telephone alarm. The blaze was extinguished without damage.

APPENDICITIS FATAL TO MRS. SARAH F. STRYKER

Mrs. Sarah F. Stryker, widow of John H. Stryker, of Somerville, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William J. Hamilton, on East Seventh street, where she had lived for the past two years. Although she had been ill for the past two months, her death was due to a recent severe attack of appendicitis, which did not respond to the treatment given. Owing to her advanced age, being sixty-eight years, it was not thought advisable to perform an operation.

Mrs. Stryker was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ames, and was born at Canaan, Wayne county, Pennsylvania. Mr. Ames was for several years an instructor in the Military Academy at West Point, while her grandfather, Col. Schenck, was a prominent figure in the Revolutionary War, forming a company and equipping it at his own expense. Mrs. Stryker lived in Somerville for many years and while there was a member of the Second Reformed church, of which Rev. Dr. E. G. Read is the pastor.

Following her husband's death she made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Hamilton, who then lived at Dunellen. Two years ago the family moved to this city and Mrs. Stryker bought the property where they resided on East Seventh street. After coming here Mrs. Stryker identified herself with the First Presbyterian church, where her daughter and husband were members. One daughter, Mrs. Hamilton, and a son, John H. Stryker, of Providence, R. I., also a sister, Mrs. E. H. Annin, of Somerville, and a brother, J. H. Ames, of Hawley, Pa., survive.

The funeral service will be held at the late home Saturday afternoon, at 1 o'clock, and it is expected that Rev. Dr. Read, of Somerville, will assist. Efforts will be made to have Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, officiate.

WITNESSES APPOINTED FOR HERRON EXECUTION

In less than three weeks Archibald Herron, of Metuchen, is to be electrocuted for the murder of Rev. Samuel B. D. Prickitt at Metuchen, unless Lawyer Cowenhoven, counsel for Herron, secures a stay. The lawyer declares that the electrocution will not go on.

Keeper Osborne, of the State prison, is making the arrangements for the electrocution. At his request Judge Booraem, of New Brunswick, has forwarded to him the names of the six official witnesses, three named by Sheriff Church and three by Prosecutor Berdine, who are to attend the electrocution. Keeper Osborne names the other witnesses. The men selected from Middlesex county are: Dr. J. Warren Rice, a physician; Enos Fouratt, marshal of Metuchen, who arrested Herron; Frank Hoffman, county detective; Deputy Sheriff William Carman; Charles H. Rogers, jail warden; John Wilcox, policeman.

These men will be summoned to report to the keeper of the prison. The electrocutions usually take place soon after sunrise.

It is believed now that Lawyer Cowenhoven will not apply for a writ of error just yet, but will ask Governor Fort for a reprieve until the Court of Pardons is in session. Then he will present the case to the court of pardons and will ask that the sentence be commuted to life imprisonment. Then the prisoner can be kept under restraint for the remainder of his life. If he is insane he can be sent to the asylum for treatment and when he improves he can be returned to prison, but not discharged.

Judge Cowenhoven believes that the man should be kept under restraint and at the same time he thinks that he is insane upon the question of murder. Herron, according to the lawyer's theory, is laboring under the delusion that he had a right to kill the minister.

While Herron talks rationally upon most subjects, upon this one he talks in a mysterious way. He declares that if the Metuchen people are satisfied with what has occurred he is satisfied, meaning that the whole responsibility rests with them.

Telegraph Company's Attorney.

Counsellor Louis Olson Barton has been appointed local attorney for the American Telegraph Company, of New York city, and is now in charge of the legal affairs of the firm in this part of the State.

New West End Fire Box.

Fire alarm box No. 86 was installed today at West Fourth street and Monroe avenue, and No. 1 steamer, No. 1 truck, No. 1 and No. 3 hose wagons are to answer alarms from it.

LUMBER FIRMS ORGANIZE

Dealers Along Jersey Central Will Weed Out Undesirable Customers.

AGREE ON METHODS OF CREDIT.

Meeting in This City Last Night Followed By Banquet at Hotel Kensington.

For the purpose of protecting their interests and weeding out the undesirable and irresponsible contractors who have been their customers in the past, the lumber dealers along the line of the New Jersey Central, between Roselle and Somerville, met at the Hotel Kensington, this city, last night, and by mutual agreement formed a credit association in an informal way. No officers were elected, but it is probable that another meeting will be held in a short time to perfect permanent organization.

In the meantime the dealers will be governed by informal rules suggested last night regarding the method of giving credit. It was admitted by all of the dealers present that they have in the past been victims of irresponsible contractors and in consequence lost considerable money. It was stated that there are contractors who take work for practically the actual cost of a building and failing to make any profit, the lumber dealer is usually the first one to get hit. It is with a view to stopping this practice that the dealers have combined for their own protection. They hope, within a short time, to get full information as to who are responsible and who are not among the contractors in this part of the State.

Following the meeting last night the dealers enjoyed a banquet at the Kensington. The following firms were represented: J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company, Boice, Runyon & Co., McDonough Brothers, of Plainfield; J. S. Irving and Tuttle Brothers, of Westfield; Bachman-Vechte Lumber Company, of Roselle; L. D. Cook & Co., of Bound Brook, and Sargeant Brothers, of Somerville.

COLORED EXCURSIONISTS GO TO BELLEWOOD PARK.

Three special trolleys took a delegation of about two hundred local colored church people to Bound Brook this morning, where they took train for Bellewood Park on the annual outing of colored Sunday schools in this vicinity. Aside from the Mount Zion and Calvary Baptist churches from this city, the Ebenezer Baptist church of Rahway, and Westfield, St. Thomas' church of Somerville will be at the park.

The desire to be in plenty of time for the specials brought a crowd of the local excursionists to the trolley stand before 8 o'clock, although it was nearly 9 when the cars started from there for Bound Brook. The excursionists arrived at Bellewood at about 11 o'clock and will leave on the return trip at 6 o'clock, arriving in this city at about 9. Rev. John T. Diggs is chairman of the general committee, which comprises Rev. E. B. Maynard, John Jones, S. P. Kelly, Alexander Stills, J. W. Bailey, Oliver Floyd, C. E. Jefferson, A. P. White, Alfred Wilson, Major Selby and C. W. Hamilton, from the Mt. Zion church; Rev. J. W. Cooper Rev. C. V. Aaron and James Parker, of Rahway; Rev. W. D. Robeson, of Westfield, and Rev. J. W. McDonald, of Somerville.

James E. Martine For Mayor?

A mayoralty boom for "Farmer Orator" James E. Martine was launched with great enthusiasm at a meting of the Democratic City Committee held at the Hotel Kensington last night. "Jim" is on the party outing at Witzel's Grove today, but it is understood that he will not consider the nomination, because of his previous statements that he would not run against Mayor Charles J. Fisk. The county candidates were discussed freely by the loyal Jeffersonians who gathered at the meeting, and this discussion was preliminary to the county politicians' outing today, when the ticket will probably be made. Preliminary meetings similar to the local one were held in various places last night, and if slate talk is started on the outing, the politicians will be ready to announce their choice.

New Ordinances In Effect.

Three new borough ordinances went into effect in North Plainfield this morning. They are concerning fire-arms and other edadly weapons, concerning the distribution and depositing of papers and rubbish, and concerning the limits of the third election district. The ordinances passed their third reading, after slight changes in the first named, at the August meeting of the borough fathers, held August 7.

EIGHTEEN HOUSES TO BE ERECTED ON LOCAL TRACTS

There is a building boom on in the thact of land owned by the Central Park Realty Company, formerly the Martine property; also in the Netherwood section of the city, and eighteen houses are to be erected at once by Miss Clara Biddle, of Philadelphia, who, through her attorney, Isaac P. Runyon, of this city, filed thirty mortgages in the Union county register's office yesterday, covering the property to be improved.

The building of these houses will be in charge of Ernest T. Sharpe, of the Central Park Realty Company, and they are to be modern in every respect. Mr. Sharpe formerly lived in Baltimore before coming to this city, and it is through his acquaintance with Miss Biddle that she decided to build several dwellings in this city. It is expected that eventually the total number of houses to be erected will reach thirty, at least. The work on the first eighteen will be started at once.

TWENTY FIVE CASES BEFORE DISTRICT COURT

Judge William Newcorn, who has been spending his vacation at Atlantic City, returned home last night, for the purpose of presiding at the session of the district court, this morning. There were about twenty-five cases on the list and, as was to be expected, a number of them, not ready for trial, were put over until the next session of the court which will be on Thursday, September 3.

Several cases were disposed of this morning. In the case of Elois Hodgskin against W. C. Chamberlain, claim of property, Attorney Ezeriah Beekman, of Somerville, who represents Mr. Chamberlain, failed to appear, and by agreement the case was put over until September 3, the latter paying the accrued cost. W. S. Angleman is counsel for Mrs. Hodgskin.

The famous mule case of John Brennan against Ferdinand Brown was also scheduled to be tried today, but owing to the desire of Walter L. Hetfield, counsel for Mr. Brennan, to attend the annual outing of Union county Democrats today, the case was adjourned to September 10. The plaintiff seeks damages from Mr. Brown, owner of the mule, for injuries received. The animal, it is claimed, kicked Brennan in the face, knocking out several teeth and otherwise disfiguring his looks.

Judgment for $88.46 was given the plaintiff in the case of the J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company against Titus Laury, on proof of claim. Isaac P. Runyon represented the plaintiff.

Judgment for $92.75 was given the plaintiff in the contract case of J. L. Paul against Robert Johnston. Francis J. Blatz represented the plaintiff.

In the landlord and tenant case of E. H. Bonnell against Frank Felici, possession was given, the defendant not appearing. Similar decision was given in the landlord and tenant cases of J. E. Curtis against Harry G. Matton and Mary Hines against Mrs. Elizabeth Gill. In addition to those cited as being postponed, nine other cases were laid over until September 3. The dates for sessions of the court in September will be the 3d, 10th and 24th.

COUNCIL COMMITTEES BUSY WITH CONFERENCES.

This has been a week of Councilmanic committee meetings, the fire and building committee holding a session Monday night, the public affairs Tuesday night, while the finance committee convened last night for the purpose of going over the financial condition of the city and making provisions for the meeting of certain notes and other expenses which will be due for action at the September meeting of the Common Council.

There was nothing of any special importance diseussed and as Chairman Herbert Buxton is still away, some matters had to be laid over until his return. As in the case of the previous committee meetings this week, there was just a quorum present. It is difficult this month to get a full attendance of the members as a majority of them have been or are still away on their vacation. It is not expected that much business will be accomplished until after the first of September, when all of the Councilmen will be in town.

County Election Board to Meet.

Robert M. McAdam, of Elizabeth, a member of the Union County Board of Elections, was in Plainfield yesterday on business. The board will meet in Elizabeth today and will probably appoint the various election officers for the county so that they can organize on August 25, as required by law.

CARRAR REIGNS SUPREME

French Gardener Remains Safe in His Stronghold at Watchung Crest Barn.

SCHOOL AUTHORITIES BAFFLED.

Armed Men Have Gone, But Constable Pangborn and the Borough Police Won't Help Groszmanns.

John Carrar, French gardener, is still king of the Groszmann School barn at Watchung Crest, although his defenses have been weakened by the voluntary retirement of his standing army of three armed men, who came to the barn Monday to protect him against ejectment by the school authorities. He and his wife, his grandmother, his daughter and his two sons keep pretty close to their stronghold day and night and Professor Groszmann has as yet been unsuccessful in his efforts to have the discharged employe leave the place.

Constable William N. Pangborn, in a communication to The Daily Press today, states that he has no authority to flash his star on the "trespassers," and does not seem anxious to help out the school authorities, who, he declares, have scored him for laxness in discharge of his duty. He declares that he has no authority to act, and suggests that Mr. Groszmann apply to the courts for a writ of ejectment.

Waldemar Groszmann was in the borough yesterday, discussing the situation with Justice of the Peace Smalley and looking around for Constable Pangborn. Mr. Groszmann said today that he is at a loss to explain the actions of the borough police, as he alleges that he was told on the occasion of a similar trouble at the school several weeks ago that if there were any further trouble, the North Plainfield officers would serve. He is looking around for another constable, but up to noon had been unable to locate one.

"The man is still in the barn," said Mr. Groszmann to a Daily Press representative, "but he won't stay there long. We are going to do everything legally, you know, and that will take some time. I have a scheme now that I think will work successfully, but am not ready to say anything about it yet. While I am about it, I am going to go to the very bottom in this matter of police protection at our school, and find out just how we can get a representative of the law when we need one."

Borough Marshal Charles Keller, who is acting Chief of the North Plainfield police in the absence of Chief Marshal Weiss on his vacation, was asked about the matter today. "I don't see where the Groszmanns get the idea that it's the duty of the borough police to help them out. The police here are paid by North Plainfield taxpayers, and have no right to go to that school, which is outside the borough limits, in North Plainfield township, to arrest a man. We wouldn't have the legal power to do it, anyway, and the officer who made the arrest would get into trouble in case Carrar wanted to go to law about the thing."

LAUREL A. C. TO CAMP AT LAKE HOPATCONG.

The Laurel A. C., of this city, leaves Monday to spend two weeks in camp at Lake Hopatcong.

The party will consist of George Taylor, Martin Welch, John Kyle, Harry Pasch, Edward Kyle, Thomas Harding, Danny MacAfee, Thomas Fosbre, George Fosbre and John Caulfield, and will be joined the second week by others. They hope to be able to play a few games of ball around the lake, and a great time is being looked forward to. Harry Pasch will be the chef.

Working His Way Through College.

Joseph Jones, colored, of this city, a graduate of the Plainfield High School, and now a sophomore at Oberlin College, is devoting his summer vacation to the sale of a set of excellent books, as a means of obtaining money to help him through college. He carries a letter of recommendation from Rev. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and thus far has had good success. He evidently hopes to study medicine and make that his life work.

Returned From Europe.

H. Russell Voorhees, of Carlton avenue, traveling manager of a New York advertising house, has returned from Europe. Mr. Voorhees has been abroad several months on a business trip, introducing American advertising ideas, and has visited the principal cities in Great Britain, France, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Austria, Switzerland, etc. He states he has had a pleasant and interesting trip.

PETITION OUT FOR MR. TOLLES' RENOMINATION

That it is the intention of President R. I. Tolles to seek a renomination as Councilman became known today, when former Mayor J. F. Buckle presented his petition among the voters of the First ward for signatures. There was no doubt but that the friends of Mr. Tolles intended to present him as a candidate for Councilman in the First ward. He has represented that ward in the Common Council for several terms and his record is one of which his many friends feel proud. He is thoroughly conversant with every detail of the city government and his experience makes him a valuable official.

Other members of the Common Council whose terms expire this year are Henry D. Hibbard, of the Second ward; Duncan W. Taylor, of the Third ward, and Frank DeWitt Randolph, of the Fourth ward. Mr. Taylor and Mr. Randolph will seek a renomination, the former now serving the unexpired term of W. S. Tyler. His friends believe that it is only fair that he should be given a full term. Mr. Taylor's petition made its appearance today.

Like Mr. Tolles, Mr. Randolph has served the city in the Council for several terms and he has many friends who will endeavor to return him for another term. Nothing as yet has been heard regarding the intention of Mr. Hibbard, in fact it is not known whether he wants to go back. It has been hinted that in case he fails to get the renomination from the "regulars" he may be taken up by the New Idealtes and placed on their ticket.

Freeholders S. P. T. Wilbur and J. Hervey Doane have both complied with the primary law and filed their petitions as required. Thus far there has been no sign of opposition to their candidacy and it is not believed that they will have much difficulty in a re-election to office. Tax Collector William R. Townsend has also filed his petition with County Clerk J. C. Calvert and it is doubtful whether he will have an opponent in the coming election.

ATTENDED REUNION OF THE WHITON FAMILY

Mr. and Mrs. John Hilton Whiton of Central avenue, returned yesterday from Antrim, N. H., where on Sunday they attended a reunion of the Whiton family held in celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the installation of Rev. John Milton Whiton, grandfather of Mr. Whiton, as pastor of the Presbyterian church at that place. Interesting open air services were held on the hill, where the old church stood, and at that time Rev. Dr. James M. Whiton, brother of Mr. Whiton, and editor of The Outlook, read a historical sketch of the church and pastorate. About 500 people attended the service, including twenty-three members of the Whiton family.

Rev. John Milton Whiton was the first settled pastor of the church at Antrim, the congregation being composed of Scotch-Irish people. In those days it was the custom for the townsmen to call a pastor and this was done at a town meeting called for the purpose. Mr. Whiton had a successful pastorate there, his service extending through a period of stirring times. He was pastor of the church for forty-four years.

TRIED CIRCUS STUNT.

Carpenter Swallowed Nails and May Die As Result.

Ware, Mass., Aug. 20.—John E. Hoyt, of New York city, foreman of a gang of carpenters on a big contract in Ware, after watching a professional sword swallower and tack eater apparently swallow a handful of iron, attempted to emulate him. Dr. J. H. Carmichael removed a number of iron nail heads from his stomach in Wesson Memorial Hospital. The operation will be continued today in the hope of saving the man's life, though he is dangerously low. Hoyt is 30 years old. The nails he swallwed remained in his stomach and caused inflammation. Hoyt has lost forty pounds since his foolhardy act.

Enjoyed An Automobile Ride.

Mrs. William L. Smalley, Sr., of Craig place, who has been visiting relatives at her native home at Liberty Corner for several days enjoyed a treat today, when she was given a delightful automobile ride by Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Besler, of Rockview avenue, who especially made the trip to Liberty Corner for that purpose. After a ride through the country which is familiar to Mrs. Smalley, she was brought to her home in the borough. She is in the eighty-first year of her age.

SAYS AFFINITY 'BUTTED IN'

George Wieda So Charges in Petition Against His Wife for a Divorce.

ASKS AN ABSOLUTE DECREE.

Alleges That Albert Grieb, a Former West Ender, Is the Soul Mate Who Intruded at His Home.

A petition for divorce has been filed in the Court of Chancery at Trenton by George E. A. Wieda, of Race street, the borough.

In his petition Mr. Wieda charges that he was married at the German Reformed church in North Plainfield on June 28, 1899, by the Rev. George Hauser, and that he lived with his wife at 64 Race street until December 15, 1907, when she suddenly left his house and he later learned that she had gone to New York. He charges that she has ever since remained in the metropolis with Albert Grieb, and that Grieb was her "affinity" and that he "butted" in his home just about the time she left and that ever since she left she has been living with Grieb at 67 West 101st street, New York, as his wife.

Wieda charges his wife with a statutory crime and names Grieb as co-respondent. The petitioner says that he has two children and he asks for their custody and for an absolute divorce from his wife. Mrs. Wieda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Melcher, of Race street.

Mr. Wieda is well known in the city and borough. He is a confectioner by occupation and formerly conducted a business on West Front street.

Albert Grieb, who is named by the petitioner as the soul-mate of the defendant, is also well known to local people. He is a young man who resided in the West End until a short time ago.

REV. DR. M'CREA RETURNS FROM INTERESTING VISIT.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. A. C. McCrea, of Central avenue, who have been spending the month at Carlisle, Pa., returned home today, although Dr. McCrea's vacation will not be concluded until the first Sunday in September, at which time he will occupy his pulpit at the First M. E. church. During his absence from home Dr. McCrea has been called upon to preach a few times. Last Sunday he occupied the pulpit of Grace M. E. church, at Harrisburg, Pa., which has quite a history.

About five years ago when the State Capitol at Harrisburg was destroyed by fire, Grace church was used for two years as the seat of State government, both branches of the Legislature convening there as the necessity demanded. The edifice is an unusually large one, seating more than two thousand people and being close to the old capitol building, the location was ideal for State purposes.

Rev. Dr. Isaac L. Wood, who is pastor of Grace church, Harrisburg, will preach at the First M. E. church on Sunday for Dr. McCrea, and as he is one of the strongest preachers in the denomination, he is assured of a large congregation to hear him. During the remaining two weeks of his vacation Dr. McCrea will enjoy a number of short trips, including a visit to the seashore.

Last Excursion to the Shore.

Ideal weather conditions attracted a large crowd of people to the Warren chapel excursion to Asbury Park, this morning, it being the last one of the season from this city. In all there were thirteen coaches well filled with excursionists. The first section was comprised of eight coaches and a baggage car, while five coaches of the second section of eight were filled. The remaining empty three cars were dropped at Roselle. The excursionists got away about 8:15 o'clock, on scheduled time, and reached the Park before 10 o'clock. The return journey tonight will be started at 6:10 o'clock, arriving home about 8 o'clock.

Hurt in Fall Down Stairs.

As she was coming down stairs at her home on Craig place late yesterday afternoon, Miss Margaret Summers missed her footing and fell down several steps, gustaining a severe injury to her right leg and bruises, which will keep her confined to her home for several days. A physician was summoned and an examination showed that no bones had been broken, but the limb was swollen considerably and it is said that several of the tendons have been wrenched.

—Choice plums and muskmelons are included in the fruit display at Neuman Brothers'. An especially fine lot will be offered tomorrow.

NOTICE. This store opens at 8:30 a. m. and closes at 5:30 daily, Saturdays excepted, when we close at 10 p. m. Patrons will please govern themselves accordingly and shop between these hours.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

RARITAN.

The members of the St. Rocco and St. Donato societies, comprising nearly all the Italian residents of Raritan and Somerville, have completed arrangements for the thirteenth annual celebration of St. Rocco Day, on Friday and Saturday of this week, and they have now begun to decorate several streets with Neapolitan oil lamps and Venetian lanterns. A band from Brooklyn has been engaged to play in Raritan and Somerville. A grandstand and bandstand is being erected on Second avenue, and after a parade on Friday evening, a concert will be given. The celebration will be continued Saturday morning by a parade. At 1 o'clock a concert will be held at Main and Thompson streets, followed by another parade. At 3:30 solemn vespers will be held in St. Ann's church. The celebration will come to a close Saturday evening with a concert and fireworks.

Misses Jennie G. Cahill, Agnes McWilliams and Margaret P. Burns, left on Saturday for a ten days' trip to Portland and other points on the coast of Maine.

Miss Mayme Brightbill and Eva Rhinehart, of Allentown, Pa., have returned to their homes after spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. George H. Brightbill.

Miss Sadie Sisser, who has been spending a month with Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Sisser, has returned to Havana, Cuba.

Rev. Asa R. Dilts, of Chelsea, Mass., is a guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Asa R. Dilts, in Raritan.

Miss Grace Chamberlain, of Plainfield, has been spending this week with Mrs. Ralph Young.

William C. Bridgewater has returned from Neshanic, where he has spent a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schwartz have been visiting S. D. Opie at Neshanic.

Miss Grace V. Kelley is spending two weeks in New York.

SOMERVILLE.

Lincoln Chemical Engine Company has purchased a lot on Main street, near the corner of Warren street, and running back to its present building on Warren street. The intention of the members of the company is to build a firehouse on the Main street site in order to be more effective in case of fire. The present three-story building will be kept for investment purposes. The company intends holding a fair during Thanksgiving week in order to provide itself with funds for its project.

Miss Friel, of Franklin Furnace, formerly head nurse at Somerset Hospital, has been visiting Mrs. Hayes in Somerville.

Emile Moosebrugger has returned to his home here, after spending a month at Vailsburgh with his aunt.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Apgar have returned from Gloucester, Mass., where they spent two weeks.

Mrs. Edward Ramsey and son have returned from New Durham, where they have been visiting.

William H. Taylor, cashier of the First National Bank, is spending two weeks at Atlantic City.

Newton O. Dunster, Lewis A. Bellis and Joseph Barras are spending a week at Atlantic City.

Postmaster John G. Gaston has had placed in the postoffice a large new electric clock.

Mrs. Sarah Van Zandt is visiting her sister, Mrs. Philip Van Arsdale, at Pluckemin.

Mrs. James U. Case, of Bridge street, is a guest of relatives in Pluckemin.

NORTH BRANCH.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry V. Davis, of North Branch, have been entertaining Mrs. William H. Ayers, of South Bound Brook, and Mrs. James F. Hageman, of Newark, for a few days.

The Sunday-school connected with the Reformed church in this place will go next Wednesday on a picnic to Chimney Rock. The journey will be made in carriages.

Miss Bessie Herder has returned to her home in South Somerville after a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Peter P. Van Pelt, at Readington, during the past week.

Miss Anna Labaw, of Neshanic, is a guest during the week at the home of Peter Q. Hoagland, at Frankfort.

Mrs. F. O. Webster, of Plainfield, is spending a week with relatives in North Branch and Pluckemin.

Miss Sadie Stryker, of Bound Brook, is visiting at the home of William Neary, at Neshanic.

Peter Brown, of Readington, has gone to Perth Amboy to visit his father for a few days.

John Barrett, a resident of North Branch, is reported to be very ill from heart disease.

WESTFIELD.

Westfield Attorney P. Q. Oliver has been directed to bring suit against the Public Service Corporation for damages done to trees on the streets by electric light wires. The company has been notified to remedy the trouble, but has paid no attention to the complaints.

A meeting of Westfield Democrats was held Tuesday night at the office of County Chairman W. E. Tuttle, Jr. Those at the meeting said it was nothing but a campaign conference. A slate for town nominees was partly made up.

Westfield Council has passed ordinances vacating a part of Kimball avenue and extending the sewer system on Euclid avenue.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

George M. Cohan's musical comedy success, "Fifty Miles From Boston," will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

The latest musical tomfoolery, "The Passing Review," will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. The organization which comprises some fifty artists is under the personal direction of Jack Singer. The book is by Aaron Hoffman, who is responsible for such successes as "Rogers Brothers in Panama," "Playing the Ponies," "The End of the World" as played in "Wine, Woman and Song." The music is by Leo Edwards, who wrote "School Days." There is nothing which in the slightest degree might be classed as suggestive. The comedy is real comedy, and the choruses are choral: the ladies who take part in the show are noted for their beauty. Manager Singer having just returned from Europe, where he has succeeded in gathering a company of international dancers that it will be impossible to duplicate. The scenery is magnificent and the costumes of which there are over two hundred used are marvels of the modiste art. Of course the famous sheath gowns are used and the sixteen sheath gown girls are the best looking and dressed of any of the similar numbers.

George Sidney, the funny little comedian who has always been a welcome favorite here, will come to the New Plainfield theatre, Saturday afternoon and night. He will be seen in a new success, "Busy Izzy's Boodle." It is a rollicking musical satire on the same lines as all of the Sidney shows, but with distinct novelty as the reigning features. The scenery is all new, and the costumes were made from the latest designs and most expensive fabrics. The cast embraces some of the most prominent and pleasing comedians and a large proportion of the half hundred in the organization are vivacious, dancing and singing girls: in fact, it can well be termed a veritable "whirl of girls," set to music and the poetry of grace and motion. All are bent upon unrestrained recreation and everybody is kept busy. The dances all go with a vim and dash, costumes are changed every minute, jokes fly fast and furious, and the entire productions is a kaleidoscope mass of color and music, sparking with nonsense. In fact, "Busy Izzy's Boodle" combines such a variety of fun elements that the most fastidious or sober theatregoer will find it impossible to keep a smile from playing tag with their mouth and eyes. Many big musical numbers and catchy songs are introduced by different members of the company, Mr. Sidney having several new parodies which he will sing.

Ramsey Morris, to whom the patrons of the popular priced theatre are indebted for the beautiful scenic drama, "Ninety and Nine," which will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday afternoon and night, has introduced a character that draws a vivid contrast mid the surroundings in which he is selected to dwell. The character in particular is a transplanted street urchin of the congested East Side tenement district of New York and he is a seven day wonder in the sleepy old Indiana village. His love of New York and frequent declaration that "it's de only place on de map" furnishes a portion of the comedy of the play. Master Pincus, who plays the part, created it in the original Academy of Music production which enjoyed a run of five months at that new York playhouse.

The Congregational church will be closed the remaining two Sundays in the month. Rev. C. L. Goodrich, the pastor, is expected home to preach the first Sunday in September.

"Jimmie" Montross still has the goods when he can defeat Scotch Plains twice within a few weeks, one contest being a shut out.

The Clinton Avenues will play the West Ends of Somerville at the latter place, Saturday, August 29, when they hope to score another victory.

It is possible that later in the season a game may be arranged between Clinton Avenue and Bound Brook. The latter club is playing fast ball this season.

Jimmy Sheckard is a great believer in the spitball, but he is not so enthusiastic about the delivery when a spitter strikes him out with the bases full.

Cincinnati is going to tour Cuba after the close of the season. Many believe that the pleasure trip of the Reds from the middle of April to early October is long enough to satisfy most players.

Ball players say that Umpire Rudderham is all of that except the first two syllables of his name.

Owner Ebbetts will be greatly pleased if Tim Jordan wins the popularity contest, while he would look on disinterestedly if Jordan would win a pennant for Brooklyn.

Pitcher Marquard, for whom $11,000 was paid by the Giants, is losing regulary since the sale. Nobody would dare suggest that McGraw ordered the pitcher to save his arm for the Giants.

Rube Waddell may be crazy, but he has enough lucid moments to throw the harpoon into the Athletics.

August Herrmann will fight shy of contract jumpers. He reinstated Pitcher Doescher and at the same time he soaked Brooklyn with a fine. Then he signed Doescher, and the latter to show his appreciation to Herrmann for getting him back in the major jumped the Reds.

In one respect Jiggs Donohue has something on every first-sacker in the country. He is afflicted with appendicitis.

Connie Mack has signed a southern player named Salve, who is said to be there strong with the Mexican.

It is said that Larry McLean, of Cincinnati, will go on the stage at the close of the season. Klaw & Erlanger want him for the star part in "His Souse in Order."

It is the hope of local baseball fans that on Saturday the Clinton Avenues will defeat Scotch Plains and the friends of the team will be out in large numbers to root for them.

Randolph will pitch for Clinton Avenue Saturday against Scotch Plains on Crescent Oval. Manager Frentz has not yet announced the name of his slab artist. The 'Plains

"Golf."

Alec Smith, one of the most prominent professional golfers in the country, has been engaged by the Wykagyl Country Club to fill the place recently vacated by Seymour Dunn. This announcement will come as a keen surprise to many of the followers of the game, as it was generally believed that Smith would be loath to sever his connection with the Nassau County Club, where he has been engaged for the last eight years.

Ever since Dunn departed from Wykagyl, more than a month ago, a number of the prominent "pros" have been after the place. Only a week ago Alec Smith and his brother, Will, played an exhibition match at Wykagyl, and it was then intimated that possibly Will had become tired of his Mexican engagement and stood ready to settle down once more in the States. In the match in question Alec defeated his brother by 1 up.

At the national open championship to be held at Myopia on August 27 and 28 Alec Smith will be one of the favorites. The last time the event was decided here, in 1905, he finished second to Will Anderson, and over the same course in 1901 Smith only missed landing the title after a play-off of a tie with Anderson. The former's greatest achievements were recorded in 1906, when he won both the national and Western open championships and then annexed the Eastern Professional Golfers' Association title.

The Nutley Golf Club is the latest organization of its kind to spring into existence, and, according to plans announced, the club will have a nine-hole course, extending from 3d, River and Chestnut streets, across Passaic avenue to Avondale Road. Some ten years ago there was a flourishing organization known as the Nutley Golf Club, but shortly afterward its members, becoming ambitious to have an 18-hole course, formed the Yountakah Country Club, and afterward left the old site for the new, about a mile further north. The original course was then abandoned.

Chadwick Sawyer has shaved another stroke from his record over the Salisbury links at Garden City. His latest effort, made in a four-ball match, resulted in 73, all the more creditable from the fact that he began with a 7 at the first hole. He went out in 38 and returned in 35.

Freak shots are constantly being recorded these days. Not long since an Arsdale golfer made the short fifth hole in one. The first hole at Fox Hills was recently made in two, a drive and a cleek. This hole is 386 yards. The 285-yard ninth was also made in two, a mashie being used for the second shot.

PRIZE LISTS PROHIBITED.

It is no longer possible for the Daily Press, or any other newspaper, to publish lists of prize winners at any euchre party, fair, or game of chance, nor even to announce such affairs in advance. This is on account of an amendment to the postal rules and regulations, which was adopted about a year ago, forbidding the publication of such matter under pain of being barred from the mails, and now strictly enforced. Nearly every day the Daily Press receives such notices, but dare not publish them, as debarment from the mails would mean the end of any newspaper, and we respectfully ask all clubs, parties and associations to bear this matter in mind in the future, and not to feel aggrieved if notices of euchres, or lists of prize winners at these, or drawings of any kind, do not appear in our columns.

Following is a portion of Section 499 of the Postal Laws and Regulations on unmailable matter, which prevents us from publishing such matter: * * * "Nor shall any newspaper, magazine, pamphlet or publication of any kind containing an advertisement of any lottery, or gift enterprise of any kind, offering prizes dependent upon chance, or containing any list of prizes awarded at the drawings of any such lottery or gift enterprise, whether said list is of any part or of all of the drawing, be carried in the mail or delivered by any postmaster or letter carrier."

Disbarment from the mails is not the only punishment prescribed under the above section, as any person who deposits in a mail box, or offers for delivery, any such matter as described above is guilty of a misdemeanor, which is punishable by a fine of $500 or one year's imprisonment or both. Uncle Sam is a relentless individual and not to be trifled with in cases of this kind, so the Daily Press must refuse to publish all such matter.

HUDSON TUBES TO BE READY BY JANUARY 1

From officials of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company it was learned yesterday that the entire chain of New York and New Jersey tunnels known as the McAdoo system will be completed and in operation by January 1 or before that date.

On the Manhattan side the work will be practically finished within ninety days. The tunnel in Sixth avenue is now completed up to Twenty-seventh street. From that point to Thirty-third street, the northern terminus, the excavation work will be done in a short time, and it is altogether probable that trains will be running between Herald Square and Hoboken before Christmas. No definite plans are announced concerning the terminal structure at Thirty-third street.

The south tubes between the Cortlandt street terminal and Jersey City are practically finished under the river and the work of concreting and laying tracks under Cortlandt and Fulton streets is progressing at the rate of twelve feet a day. Contractors in charge of this part say they will have all the work done and the streets repaved before Thanksgiving. Trains will then be run from Cortlandt and Fulton streets to Jersey City.

On the Jersey side less than half a mile of tunnel remains to be built between Hoboken and Jersey City. This section extends along the river front and takes in the Erie Railroad station, which is nearly finished. At the present rate of progress it was stated that inside of four months all of the work between Jersey City and Hoboken would be completed, when trains may make the entire circuit, taking in Manhattan points from Cortlandt street to Herald Square and tapping all of the railroads between Hoboken and Jersey City on the Jersey side.

THE FORUM.

Mr. Pangborn's Statement.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to correct the statement that I refuse to arrest John Carrar who is on the Groszmann premises. I beg to state that on August 17, a complaint was made before David Smalley, justice of the peace, and a warrant was issued for the arrest of John Carrar charging him with trespass. I made the arrest and he was arraigned before the justice and notified to leave the premises the next morning. I did my duty as a constable and made the arrest, and it ended right there. I want to say that I have taken advice on this matter and that there is no law which gives me the right to go there and remove Carrar or any one else. If Mr. Groszmann proceeded in the right and legal way he no doubt would have no trouble in getting a constable to do his duty, but he cannot get me in trouble, as I know my rights in the matter. Why does he not apply to the courts for a writ of ejectment? He then can remove them without much trouble. I am always ready to do my duty, if the transaction is straight and legitimate.

W. N. PANGBORN,
Constable.

GOVERNOR'S AUTO PARTY STOPPED FOR SPEEDING.

To arrest the Governor, former Supreme Court Justice Bennet Van Syckel and a young son of Quartermaster General C. Edward Murray, was an action that fell to the lot of Constable Van Note at Point Pleasant yesterday afternoon. It seems that the notables were in an automobile driven by young Murray and the constable's action followed hard on his decision that the machine was exceeding the speed limit.

Upon the declaration of Governor Fort that he was on urgent official business, Sheriff Jeffrey order his release along with the others in the car.

It seems that Van Note did not know the Governor when he stopped him, but did know Mr. Van Syckel, who presented the constable to the Executive. The Governor commended the constable for his vigilance. He explained that only a short time before he and his associates had been halted he had cautioned the driver of the machine to go slower, and that he (the Governor) did not think the auto was traveling in excess of the speed limit. Van Note had timed the machine over a laid-out course of a tenth of a mile and reckoned that the speed was about twenty miles an hour.

Governor Fort added that there was no reason, because of his position, why he shouldn't be stopped.

New York Bank Clerk Dies.

Albert Eugene Miller, a well known Rahway resident, was found dead in bed yesterday morning. He had been clerk in the Fourth National Bank, New York, forty-two years. He was a member of the Bank Clerks' Association, of New York, also of the Rahway Board of Trade, Rahway Business Men's Club and the Ancient Order of United Workmen. He was sixty years old. His wife and four children survive him.

LAZNICKA OUT ON BAIL.

Bergen Authorities Satisfied He Did Not Kill Mullens.

Frank Laznicka, the motorman on the Pike line of the Public Service, charged with the murder on Sunday of his friend, Peter Mullens, was taken to Hackensack from the Hudson county jail yesterday afternoon and released by Judge Demarest in $500 bail.

Mullens was fatally hurt in a trolley car riot when a crowd of North Bergen firemen refused to pay their fares. Laznicka and Mullens were passengers, and proceeded to help the crew. The Bergen authorities do not believe Laznicka struck his friend. The real culprit may be arrested tomorrow.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The fact that this is an "off year" in the mayoralty election and also because none of the members of the Borough Council have terms expiring this year, has made the Dunellen political situation most lethargic. The county ticket is attracting the most attention and there is no united activity as yet to support any of the candidates. Bryan is creating interest among some few, who have voted for him before, but the majority of the boroughites will cast the ballot for Taft, if the local political talk in any way reveals the situation.

JERSEYMEN SHOOTING WELL.

Second Regiment Leading in 1,000-yard Match.

Camp Perry, O., Aug. 20.—Private Minervini, of the Fourth Regiment, Jersey City, took second prize, $25, in the Leech Cup match of the National Rifle Association tournament here yesterday, with a score of 98, and Lieutenant-Colonel Arthur Rowland, of Newark, had a score of 94. The Second New Jersey Regiment is now leading in the 1,000-yard regimental match, the finish of which will be shot Friday, with a score of 520. The Sixth Massachusetts, winner of last year and the year before, is second, its score being 519. The Second Massachusetts leads in the Herrick match, 800 yards, today, with a score of 579. New Jersey is 542. Major W. H. Price was high for New Jersey, with 71. The team scored as follows:

Lieut.-Col. W. A. Lewis	69
Lieut.-Col. Arthur Rowland	64
Capt. W. A. Baker, Fourth	63
Maj. W. S. Price, Third	71
Capt. A. Pfeil, Third	70

TWO WARRANTS OUT FOR ARREST OF E. R. THOMAS

By direction of Commissioner Smith, in charge of the State's motor vehicles, warrants were sworn out yesterday on two charges for the arrest of E. R. Thomas, who in his auto ran into the carriage of Mr. Cohen and injured several members of his family at Long Branch. Thomas was driving a 120 horse power Hotchkiss car, registered in the name of Harry Levy, of New York. Mr. Smith announces that the registration for this car will be summarily revoked.

The two charges against Thomas are for driving at an illegal speed and running without a driver's license. According to the inspector's report, Thomas was going seventy miles an hour, and was driving the big car, though he has not a driver's license. Other complaints have been filed against Thomas for overspeeding.

The action taken by Mr. Smith is the most drastic in the history of the department. Following the swearing out of the warrants, the Commissioner ordered a new policy to govern the registration of high-power cars. He notified all State agents that no car above sixty-five horsepower shall be registered except after personal application to the Commissioner.

Mr. Smith referred to the inadequacy of the penalties in the motor vehicle laws for these serious offenses and said he regretted that the Legislature had not included in the law the "arrest without warrant" feature, at the same time insuring a fair trial by jury.

NOT IDENTIFIED AS STABBER.

Man Suspected of Being Assailant of Bernardsville Bartender Held in Custody.

A man answering to the description of the assailant of William Curry, bartender of Bernardsville, formerly of Morristown, who was stabbed at Bernardsville Saturday night, was arrested yesterday afternoon on the Morristown road, at the bridge over the Passaic river which marks the line between Somerset and Morris counties.

He was observed by William Tyack, who lives near there, acting strangely, and finally he accosted Tyack to inquire if he had seen John Hoffman, the Mendham contractor, for whom Curry's assailant is said to have worked. Tyack reported the man's actions at Bernardsville and Norman Day headed a party who arrested the man. He was taken to All Souls' Hospital, but there Curry was not positive in his identification, so a Hungarian, from Bernardsville, who claimed to know the man wanted, was taken in an automobile by Detective Totten, of Somerville, but he failed to identify the prisoner. The latter is being held, however, to await further evidence. Curry, though slightly improved, is still in a critical state.

DROWNS IN HOPATCONG.

Peter Burns, Wealthy Mining Man, Steps Into Water in Darkness.

Peter Burns, a wealthy Californian, who was visiting at Old Point Comfort-on-the-Lake, walked overboard in the darkness and was drowned at Lake Hopatcong last night. Peter Burns, Jr., a nephew of the drowned man, recovered the body, and three surgeons worked more than two hours in a vain effort to resuscitate him.

Mr. Burns had just left Assemblyman Braun on the porch of the Quigley Club, a camp owned by his sister, Mrs. Margaret Quigley. In the darkness he missed his footing and fell into the lake. Mr. Burns is said to have made a fortune in mining in Alasaka. He was sixty-seven years old.

SEEK 13-YEAR-OLD GIRL.

Parents Believe She Eloped With Boy of Nineteen.

The police of Paterson are searching for Jennie Avolio, 13 years old, and Amelio Scagliano, 19 years old. The parents of the girl believe the pair have eloped. The couple have been paying marked attention to each other for more than two years, and the girl recently requested her parents to permit her to marry the youth. They took her to Justice of the Peace Romano, who told her to go home and "forget it."

For some time past she has been employed in the Hopper & Scott silk mill, and left her place at 3 o'clock Tuesday with a youth who was seen loitering in the neighborhood. From descriptions placed in the hands of the police this youth is believed to have been Scagliano.

Clue to Trunk Mystery.

Statements indicating that he looks for an early solution of the trunk murder mystery were made by Assistant Prosecutor of the Pleas Wolverton, of Camden, after he had conferred for three hours with County Detective John S. Smith. Exactly what this new clue is the officers refuse to say.

SUGGESTIONS FOR A BARN DANCE PARTY.

Some young people never seem to get enough exercise out of dancing until they try the barn dance on the lawn to the inspiring rhythm of a hurdy-gurdy. And some pretty women look so bewitching in sunbonnets and shortened skirts that it seems a pity they don't live in the country.

For such as these a rustic festival has become a favorite with hostesses who have pleasant home grounds on which to entertain.

For invitations use manila paper cut in squares and printed by hand in red or green ink. If there is an artist in the family a few barn swallows would look seasonable in one corner of the card, as the barn dance and mayhap a barn refectory will be the leading features. The orthography for these notes should be pronouncedly "reformed" in character, the following being a hasty specimen:

"Dere Sue—Al the folks hereabouts air goin' to convene and jine in a farmers' festival up to my house on the afternoon of Thursday, August 6. I hope you kin come. If so, plese ware your sunbunnit, caliker dress and apren. We don't want any city fixin's if we kin help it. It's goin' to be a gennywine country frolic. Your affectionate "TILDY."

As the invitations suggest, only country costumes are worn. The girls look bewitching in their gaily tinted sunbonnets and Dutch necked dresses of ankle length, made gay with ruffles or little tea aprons.

The men will, of course, wear blue jeans, coarse shirts and broad-brimmed hats of rough straw, with boots for the courageous.

To give color to the scene there should be several couples dressed as milkmaids and dairymen, says the Philadelphia Press, with buckets of rosy apples or cider "to piece on."

If given late enough in the summer a hay stack, half filled, should be sent for such of the guests as do not object to being seen thus en route.

The amusement is dancing and games, with a specially erected platform for those who cannot manage it on the lawn. Polkas, reels and country dances are preferred to waltzes. A portion of the program at least should be made up of these.

The supper is a real rural "spread." Candles in candlesticks made from large carrots form part of the table trimming. For side dishes to hold the relishes hollow out large cucumbers and line with tinfoil.

Fried chicken and waffles make a delicious main course for a rural menu. When, however, it is impracticable to serve hot dishes out of doors substitute cold sliced chicken, bread and butter, milk biscuit, cottage cheese, honey, jam and jelly, doughnuts, home-made cake, cookies, milk, buttermilk or cider.

The Sweetest Sonster.

Over breakfast, Miss Dorothy, the enthusiastic ornithologist of the boarding house, discussed the merits of the nightingale, lark, thrush, and so forth.

"And which, Mr. Hunker," exclaimed Miss Dorothy, "which, of all the songbirds, are you fondest of?"

"I prefer the hen, Miss Dorothy."

"But the hen isn't a song-bird at all!" objected Miss Dorothy.

"Well," replied Hunker, tapping another hard-boiled egg, "it's the only bird whose lay I care for!"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Paulsboro Bank has more money on deposit now than at any previous time, due to the heavy deposits of farmers.

The old soldiers of the section will be entertained by former Coroner S. S. Ledden at his home near Glassboro with the annual basket picnic tomorrow.

Lying unconscious and alone all day, after a fall downstairs, Mrs. Edward Evans, who lives on a farm near Sewell, is still in a precarious condition.

The schooner Amelia, loaded with 700,000 king crabs, for the phosphate works at Paulsboro, sank in Delaware Bay at Ship John Light Monday night. An effort will be made to raise her.

The annual convention of the State Camp, Patriotic Sons of America, was begun in the Criterion theatre in Bridgeton yesterday. The members of the State Camp are the guests of the local camps.

Stepping from his sulky after having driven his horse a fast mile on the Trenton Driving Park track, Daniel C. Marvin, a well-known Morrisville, Pa., horse trainer, fell dead. Apoplexy was the cause of death.

Fourteen-year-old Max Warren, whom the Philadelphia Children's Aid Society apprenticed to a Vineland farmer, proved too sharp a financier for the native Jerseyman. Warren secured the farmer's mail from the postoffice and indorsed the checks for his own use.

In attempting to alight from a moving electric train of the W. J. and S. R. at Newfield yesterday, Mrs. Aaron Seitzick, proprietress of a large millinery establishment here, was thrown violently to the platform and seriously injured. During the excitement she lost a considerable sum of money.

Protests are likely to be made by the business men of Atlantic City over the proposed bond issue of $2,500,000 to buy piers and beach front for public parks purposes. The Board of Trade, Hotel Men's Association and Business Men's League, it is said, are to hold a massmeeting with this object in view.

Arnold Van Wyck, of 86 Keen street, Paterson, went to Little Ferry yesterday on a fishing trip. He put up at a clubhouse there and during the evening received injuries that compelled him to return home. A lamp exploded, and in hurling it out of a window, Van Wyck had both hands severely burned.

Thomas Eagan, foreman of the Reading Railway, yesterday seized the hose which is used for filling the tanks of the engines at Williamstown, when, through a misunderstanding, the water was turned on suddenly. Eagan was hurled twenty feet in the air, and landed near a fence, with one rib broken and several others splintered. He was taken to his home, at Mullica Hill, and his condition is serious.

The annual summer meeting of the State Horticultural Society was held yesterday at the famous Repp farm, just outside of Glassboro. Delegates to the number of 600 were present, and the farm was crowded. Several speeches were made by prominent members, among whom were Professor E. B. Voorhees, of the State Agricultural Society; John B. Smith, State entomologist, and several others.

Narrowly escaping death when the trolley repair wagon on whose elevated top they were riding overturned by the wheels catching in a switch, James Bagley, thirty-four years old, of 818 Pine street, Camden, sustained a fracture of the right leg and was internally injured, and George Dieser, thirty-five years old, of 1083 Lewis street, got off with such slight injuries that he was able to leave the hospital soon after the accident.

Crazed by attacks of swarms of mosquitoes, James Ryder, of Philadelphia, an employe of the Standard Oil Company, was found wandering in the woods near Absecon yesterday, and taken to the county asylum. Ryder had made his way into the deep pines while under the influence of liquor and was so badly stung by the pests that he was unable to move when found. Philadelphia friends have been notified and will come here to take charge of the man.

DOG BITES OFF THUMB.

Strange Beast, Supposedly Mad, Attacks Farmer Walking Along Road Near Whitehouse.

Jacob Landon, about thirty years old, a farmer who lives near New Germantown, was bitten yesterday by a dog supposed to be suffering from rabies.

Landon was walking along the road on his way to work when he met a strange shepherd dog, which suddenly sprang for his throat. He threw out his right arm to ward off the beast, which bit the end of his right thumb off. About an hour later the animal was shot by Philip Auble along a spring run, a mile from where it had attacked Landon.

After it was learned that Landon had been bitten the head of the animal was cut off and Landon took it with him to the Pasteur Institute in New York, where he went for treatment last night. Landon has a wife and three small children.

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE PORCH FLOWER BOX.

We are always cautioned against the use of fresh manure in setting out plants, writes Mrs. M. C. Marshall, a Pennsylvania correspondent of Floral Life. Our box was a long one, reaching from post to post on an eastern porch, and about ten inches deep and wide, and is set on brackets screwed to edge of porch. I made numerous drainage holes and covered them properly and then engaged a man to fill the box one-third way up with the black soil from under a large manure heap, intending to fill it up with the clay and sand available.

Well! when I came back to look at my box it was nearly half full of fresh manure from the horse stable. What to do was a puzzle, but I packed it down tight, covered it over with about two inches of finely-broken pine charcoal and filled up with the best soil available and set in my plants—in the pots at first—for fear of rost.

As soon as it was safe weather the plants, pot-grown geraniums, coleus and begonias, were slipped from their pots into the soil of the box. A late frost did spoil them after all, but in time they recovered from that, and the way they did grow and the continuous wealth of bloom till fall frosts, was a joy and delight to us all, if it didn't last forever.

An Eye-Opener.

Sleepy Guest—Halloa! Is it 7 o'clock? I declare I am so sleepy that I can't open my eyes.

Head Waiter (who has knocked at the door)—I'll bring you your bill, sir, if you like.—Tit-Bits.

Life's Hollowness.

"That feller is a false friend."

"Why do you say that?"

"He don't care no more for me than I do for him, and I know it."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 23, 1908.

By REV. S. L. DOYLE.

Topic.—Vacation religion. Mark vi, 30-44.

Christ recognized both the need and the justice of rest. The apostles had been out doing missionary work. In their absence John the Baptist was put to death by the infamous Herod. When they heard of it they gathered together and buried him in a tomb. Then they returned to Jesus "and told Him all things, both what they had done and what they had taught." They had labored faithfully and now made their reports. The death of John and its manner would naturally fill them with great distress of heart and mind. The Master, who could read the heart as well as the outward lives, realized all this and with it that they needed and deserved a rest; hence He said to them, "Come ye yourselves out into a desert place and rest awhile, for there were many coming and going, and they had no leisure so much as to eat." Thus Christ recognized that he who labors deserves a rest, a vacation, as we call it today.

The apostles were therefore to have a vacation and with Jesus with them. Oh, that Christians today in larger numbers sought the quieter places for rest and recreation and took Jesus with them! How much more profitable physically, spiritually and mentally their vacations would be! Instead of the noise and dissipation of "the madding crowd," to go into "the desert place" and be with Jesus! But the tendency is just the opposite. The crowded places are sought. Conduct that we would not practice at home is freely indulged in. Jesus is left at home. The Bible is in a secure, safe place, while light and often immoral literature take its place. Religion is left at home, and flirting and dancing and drinking are the gods most frequently worshiped. Rest? Recreation? It is neither. Riotous living would come nearer to describing many vacations than rest.

That there is a vacation religion different from religion itself is an absurdity. Yet many believe it. How many say, "In Rome do as Rome does," and their consciences are quieted? But a religion that won't be in Rome or any other place the same is no religion. Rome went to ruin, and with it those who in Rome lived the sinful lives of the Romans. It is eminently proper when in different places to follow the customs of these places in so far as they are right, but when they are wrong the line of the Christian at least should be drawn. Where no moral question is involved it is courteous to do in a strange place what others do, but when morality is involved no such obligation rests upon us, no more than if in China because we followed the custom of the Chinese in riding in a jinrikisha we must also bow down before Chinese idols.

Christ and the apostles teach us that vacation religion should be religion, not irreligion. They went to a desert place to rest, but the people followed them, and they administered both to their physical and spiritual wants. How many of us follow their example? We should, for they are our examples in all things if we are Christians.

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. ii, 1-3; Ex. xx, 8-10; Eccl. ii, 22-25; iii, 11-14; Jer. vi, 16; Matt. xi, 28; Phil. iv, 8, 9; I Pet. ii, 9-12; Heb. viii, 1-12.

Making Homes More Glorious.

Vice President Fairbanks paid the following tribute to Christian Endeavor in his speech at the Seattle convention:

"This Christian Endeavor society is a practical society. That is one of the things I like about it. It takes concern not only of the future, but of the present also. Wherever it is found it makes for all those things which most distinguish a high order of civilization. It is making better the community, the state and the country. And above and beyond all else it is making more glorious and more sublime the homes of our countrymen. The work it has done is great. Before it is a work greater still to be done. The twentieth century, upon which we have entered with such splendid promise, is in God's providence to be the greatest century since the stars first sang together, a century in which science will flourish as never before, a century in which literature will make splendid advances. And I believe that before the sun of the present century has passed its meridian we shall accomplish the greatest victory in the history of the world, and that will be the triumph of peaceful settlement over war itself. My friends, all honor to the Christian Endeavor society of the United States! Yes, all honor to the Christian Endeavor society throughout the world! I thank you all."

A Great Service.

Rev. Jacob W. Kapp, counselor of the Cincinnati union, says in the Christian Endeavor World that Christian Endeavor societies will do a great service for the kingdom if they will do these two things: Seek if possible to win back the lapsed young people of our churches. Secondly, push the adult movement in the Sunday school.

A Christian Statesman's Word.

Hon. Alfred Deakin, prime minister of the commonwealth of Australia, in a recent address said, "Christian Endeavor is a worldwide movement which answers to a worldwide need."

In Missionary Lands.

The Irish Endeavorer is authority for the statement that there are more than 100,000 Endeavorers in missionary lands.

BLACK BEAR AND CARIBOU

BY THEODORE ROOSEVELT

[Copyright, 1893, by G. P. Putnam's Sons. Published under arrangement with G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York and London.]

ONCE in September I was camped on the shores of Kootenai Lake, having with me as companions, John Willis and an impassive-looking Indian named Ammal. Coming across through the dense coniferous forests of northern Idaho we had struck the Kootenai River. Then we went down with the current as it wound in half circles through a long alluvial valley of mixed marsh and woodland, hemmed in by lofty mountains. The lake itself, when we reached it, stretched straight away like a great fiord, a hundred miles long and about three in breadth. The frowning and rugged Selkirks came down sheer to the water's edge. So straight were the rock walls that it was difficult for us to land with our batteau, save at the places where the rapid mountain torrents entered the lake.

We had come down from a week's fruitless hunting in the mountains; a week of excessive toil, in a country where we saw no game—for in our ignorance we had wasted time, not going straight back to the high ranges, from which the game had not yet descended. After three or four days of rest, and of feasting on trout—a welcome relief to the monotony of frying pan bread and coarsey salt pork—we were ready for another trial; and early one morning we made the start. Having to pack everything for a fortnight's use on our backs, through an excessively rough country we of course traveled as light as possible, leaving almost all we had with the tent and boat.

We walked in single file, as is necessary in thick woods. The white hunter led, and I followed, each with rifle on shoulder and pack on back. Ammal, the Indian, pigeon toed along behind, carrying his pack, not as we did ours, but by help of a forehead band, which he sometimes shifted across his breast. The traveling through the tangled, brush choked forest, and along the bowlder strewn and precipitous mountain sides, was inconceivably rough and difficult.

An hour or two before sunset we were traveling, as usual, in Indian file, beside the stream, through an open wood of great hemlock trees. There was no breeze, and we made no sound as we marched, for our feet sunk noiselessly into the deep moss.

Suddenly the hunter, who was leading, dropped down in his tracks, pointing upward; and some fifty feet beyond I saw the head and shoulders of a bear as he rose to make a sweep at some berries. He was in a hollow where a tall, rank, prickly plant, with broad leaves, grew luxuriantly; and he was gathering its red berries, rising on his hind legs and sweeping them down into his mouth with his paw, and was much too intent on his work to notice us, for his head was pointed the other way. The moment he rose again I fired, meaning to shoot through the shoulders, but instead, in the hurry, taking him in the neck. Down he went, but whether hurt or not we could not see, for the second he was on all fours he was no longer visible. Rather to my surprise he uttered no sound—for bear when hit or when charging often make a great noise—so I raced toward the edge of the hollow, the hunter close behind me, while Ammal danced about in the rear, very much excited, as Indians always are in the presence of big game. The instant we reached the hollow and looked down into it from the low bank on which we stood we saw by the swaying of the tall plants that the bear was coming our way. The hunter was standing some ten feet distant, a hemlock trunk being between us; and the next moment the bear sprang clean up the bank the other side of the hemlock, and almost within arm's length of my companion. I do not think he had intended to charge; he was probably confused by the bullet through his neck, and had by chance blundered out of the hollow in our direction; but when he saw the hunter so close he turned for him, his hair bristling and his teeth showing. The man had no cartridge in his weapon, and with his pack on could not have used it anyhow; and for a moment it looked as if he stood a fair chance of being hurt. As the beast sprang out of the hollow he poised for a second on the edge of the bank to recover his balance, giving me a beautiful shot, as he stood sideways to me; the bullet struck between the eye and ear, and he fell as if hit with a pole axe.

Our prize was a large black bear, with two curious brown streaks down his back, one on each side the spine. We skinned him and camped by the carcass, as it was growing late. To take the chill off the evening air we built a huge fire, the logs roaring and crackling. To one side of it we made our beds—of balsam and hemlock boughs; we did not build a brush lean-to, because the night seemed likely to be clear. Then we supped on sugarless tea, frying-pan bread, and quantities of bear meat, fried or roasted—and how very good it tasted only those know who have gone through much hardship and some little hunger, and have worked violently for several days without flesh food.

The morning after killing Bruin, we again took up our march, heading up stream, that we might go to its sources amidst the mountains, where the snow fields fed its springs. It was two full days' journey thither, but we took much longer to make it, as we kept halting to hunt the adjoining mountains. On such occasions Ammal was left as camp guard, while the white hunter and I would start by daybreak and return at dark utterly worn out by the excessive fatigue. We knew nothing of caribou, nor where to hunt for them; and we had been told that thus early in the season they were above tree limit on the mountain sides.

Until within a couple of days of turning our faces back towards the lake we did not come across any caribou, and saw but a few old signs; and we began to be fearful lest we should have to return without getting any, for our shoes had been cut to ribbons by the sharp rocks, we were almost out of flour, and therefore had but little to eat. However, our perseverance was destined to be rewarded.

The first day after reaching our final camp, we hunted across a set of spurs and hollows, but saw nothing living. The next day we started early, determined to take a long walk and follow the main stream up to its head, or at least above timber line. The hunter struck so brisk a pace, plunging through thickets and leaping from log to log in the slashes of fallen timber, and from boulder to boulder in crossing the rock-slides, that I could hardly keep up to him, struggle as I would, and we each of us got several ugly tumbles, saving our rifles at the expense of scraped hands and bruised bodies. We went up one side of the stream, intending to come down the other; for the forest belt was narrow enough to hunt thoroughly. For two or three hours we toiled through dense growth.

Then we came to a spur of open hemlock forest; and no sooner had we entered it than the hunter stopped and pointed exultingly to a well-marked game trail, in which it was easy at a glance to discern the great round footprints of our quarry. We hunted carefully over the spur and found several trails, generally leading down along the ridge; we also found a number of beds, some old and some recent, usually placed where the animal could keep a lookout for any foe coming up from the valley. They were merely slight hollows or identations in the pine-needles; and, like the game trails, were placed in localities similar to those that would be chosen by blacktail deer. The caribou droppings were also very plentiful; and there were signs of where they had browsed on the blueberry bushes, cropping off the berries, and also apparently of where they had here and there plucked a mouthful of a peculiar kind of moss, or cropped off some little mushrooms. But the beasts themselves had evidently left the ridge, and we went on.

After a little while the valley became so high that the large timber ceased, and there were only occasional groves of spindling evergreens. Beyond the edge of the big timber was a large boggy tract, studded with little pools; and here again we found plenty of caribou tracks. A caribou has an enormous foot, bigger than a cow's, and admirably adapted for traveling over snow or bogs; hence they can pass through places where the long slender hoofs of moose or deer, or the round hoofs of elk, would let their owners sink at once; and they are very difficult to kill by following on snowshoes—a method much in vogue among the brutal game butchers for slaughtering the more helpless animals. Spreading out his great hoofs, and bending his legs till he walks almost on the joints, a caribou will travel swiftly over a crust through which a moose breaks at every stride, or through deep snow in which a deer cannot flounder fifty yards. Usually he trots; but when pressed he will spring awkwardly along, leaving tracks in the snow almost exactly like magnified imprints of those of a great rabbit, the long marks of the two hind legs forming an angle with each other, while the forefeet make a large point almost between.

The caribou had wandered all over the bogs and through the shallow pools, but evidently only at night or in the dusk, when feeding or in coming to drink; and we again went on. Soon the timber disappeared almost entirely, and thick brushwood took its place; we were in a high, bare alpine valley, the snow lying in drifts along the sides. In places there had been enormous rock-slides, entirely filling up the bottom, so that for a quarter of a mile at a stretch the stream ran underground. In the rock masses of this alpine valley we, as usual, saw many conies and hoary woodchucks.

The caribou trails had ceased, and it was evident that the beasts were not ahead of us in the barren, treeless recesses between the mountains of rock and snow; and we turned back down the valley, crossing over to the opposite or south side of the stream. We had already eaten our scanty lunch, for it was afternoon. For several miles of hard walking, through thicket, marsh, and rock-slide, we saw no traces of the game. Then we reached the forest, which soon widened out, and crept up the mountain sides; and we came to where another stream entered the one we were following. A high, steep shoulder between the two vallyes was covered with an open growth of great hemlock timber, and in this we again found the trails and beds plentiful. There was no breeze, and after beating through the forest nearly to its upper edge, we began to go down the ridge, or point of the shoulder. The comparative freedom from brushwood made it easy to walk without noise, and we descended the steep incline with the utmost care, scanning every object, and using every caution not to slip on the hemlock needles, nor to strike a stone or break a stick with our feet. The sign was very fresh, and when still half a mile or so from the bottom we at last came on three bull caribou.

Instantly the hunter crouched down, while I ran noiselessly forward behind the shelter of a big hemlock trunk until within fifty yards of the grazing and unconscious quarry. They were feeding with their heads up-hill, but so greedily that they had not seen us; and they were rather difficult to see themselves, for their bodies harmonized well in color with the brown tree-trunks and lichen-covered boulders.

The largest, a big bull with a good but by no means extraordinary head, was nearest. As he stood fronting me with his head down I fired into his neck, breaking the bone, and he turned a tremendous back somersault. The other two halted a second in stunned terror; then one, a yearling, rushed past us up the valley down which we had come, while the other, a large bull with small antlers, crossed right in front of me, at a canter, his neck thrust out, and his head—so coarse-looking compared to the delicate outlines of an elk's—turned towards me. His movements seemed clumsy and awkward, utterly unlike those of a deer; but he handled his great hoofs cleverly enough, and broke into a headlong, rattling gallop as he went down the hillside, crashing through the saplings and leaping over the fallen logs. There was a spur a little beyond, and up this he went at a swinging trot, halting when he reached the top, and turning to look at me once more. He was only a hundred yards away; and though I had not intended to shoot him (for his head was not good), the temptation was sore; and I was glad when, in another second, the stupid beast turned again and went off up the valley at a slashing run.

Registry AND Election NOTICE.

Charter, Municipal and General Election
NOVEMBER 3D, 1908
COUNTY OF UNION.

Pursuant to an act entitled "An Act to Regulate Elections" (Revision of 1898), approved April 4th, 1898, with the amendments thereof, and other acts, concerning elections, and the constitutional provision concerning the right of suffrage," notice is hereby given that the District Boards of Registry and Election in and for each and every Election District in the City of Elizabeth, will meet on the

at one o'clock in the afternoon, at the places in their respective Election Districts where the City Clerk shall designate, and continue in session until nine o'clock in the evening, for the purpose of registering the names of all legal voters in the manner prescribed by law, and who are entitled to the right of suffrage at the next election.

The District Boards of Registry and Election in and for the City of Elizabeth, will also meet for purposes of registration at their respective places, on between the hours of 1 and 9 p. m.

And the Boards of Registry and Election in and for each and every Election District in said County of Union, outside of the City of Elizabeth, will meet on to elect one of its members as judge, who shall be chairman of said board, and another of its members as inspector. Also on at ten o'clock in the forenoon, in their respective Election Districts where the next election will be held shall proceed to ascertain and truly and accurately enter in canvassing books, to be provided for that purpose, the names and residences and street numbers, if any, of all legal voters within their respective election districts entitled to vote therein, by making actual inquiry at every dwelling house, etc., in the manner prescribed by law, and shall continue such enumeration until the same is completed; provided, that such enumeration shall terminate on or before the Friday next succeeding.

The District Boards of Registry and Election, outside of the City of Elizabeth, will also meet for the purpose of registration, at their respective places, on between the hours of 1 and 9 p. m. for the purpose of registering the names of all legal voters in the manner prescribed by law, and who are entitled to the right of suffrage at the next election.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 8TH, 1908,
—AND—
TUESDAY, OCTOBER 27TH, 1908,

Notice is further given that a Primary Election will be held on between the hours of 1 o'clock and 9 o'clock p. m., in the various election districts, wards, boroughs and townships in the County of Union, for the election of delegates to conventions of political parties, or for making nominations or for both, as the case may be.

Ballots, to be used at said Primary to be furnished to District Boards of Registry and Election by the different city, borough and township clerks in the County of Union.

GOLF.

Jerome D. Travers, the national amateur champion, who has not appeared in public since the Wykagyl tournament, is keeping in practice with occasional rounds at Montclair. The other day he reeled off two 71's. He frequently spends an hour putting with Tom Anderson, the professional, and although old Tom is pretty good at the short game, he is always glad to break even with "Jerry."

A new professional record of 70 for the links of the Sound Beach Golf Club has been established by "Bob" Peebles. He went out in 37 and home in 33. Probably his most brilliant effort this season was made during the round in question, when he holed the 420-yard ninth in 3.

BASEBALL.

St. Mary's baseball team will cross bats with the Plainfield A. C. Saturday afternoon and is confident that it will be able to defeat them as they did last week, thereby putting a stop to their winning streak.

ELIZABETH GIRL ELOPES.

Married in Auto By Jersey City Peace Justice.

James F. Desmond, of Port Jervis, N. Y., and Miss Martha Pollock Slade, of 6 Broad street, Elizabeth, eloped Tuesday night, so they said, from Elizabeth in a large touring car, and were married in the car by Justice of the Peace Fischer in front of his office in Pavonia avenue, Jersey City.

Desmond said he only met Miss Slade a fortnight ago, and that it was love at first sight, and on leaving he planned to elope with her. He said Miss Slade's parents are wealthy and opposed her marrying so young. She gave her age as 18. Desmond is 36.

Escape From State Home.

Five inmates of the State Home for Girls at Trenton escaped Tuesday night. They got a key to the door of their room and got out while the attention of their guards was engaged elsewhere. About 9 o'clock four of the number, Mary Pollie, 20 years old; Lewella Bennett, 18 years old; Lena Slone, 15 years, and Ethel Johnson, 15 years, were discovered in the woods around Fernwood, several miles from the home, by Railroad Detective Roland Fitchell, and were captured. The other girl, Nellie Mount, is still at large.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight and act on several propositions.

SOME FORERUNNERS OF THE FALL HEADGEAR.

The ostrich plume will undoubtedly be as much thought of for fall as ever, but it will be used in combination with other feathers, especially aigrettes. The way trimmings tower high and far above the crowns of the hats is one of the most distinguishing features of summer millinery. The result is a far taller structure than the bare model promises.

The uncurled ostrich feather is seen again, but in better finish than when it first came out a year or two ago. A new wrinkle is to arrange a handful of such feathers in fan shape. They come mostly in black for white hats and in white for black hats.

Along with the rage for expensive feathers there is a vogue for simple flowers, such as grow in old-fashioned gardens and orchards and in the fields—clovers, apple blossoms, jasmine, lilies of the valley, moss roses, clematis and the like.

The newest thing in feathers for the coming season is a large wing mixed up with aigrettes, the hairy barbs projecting under each feather and softening it wonderfully.

The white owl is a fad of the moment, and since Paris is wearing it now with great delight we shall probably see it here for the next three months at least.

TRIMMINGS MADE AT HOME.

One of the most effective and the cheapest sort of trimmings may be made by using bias bands of Arabian satin sewed up on the machine over thick white cord. It is then twisted in different shapes, for it is very supple, so that it forms bow knots and circular designs for the evening or afternoon gown. Of course, the satin is too dressy to wear on a suit or morning dress, but with a coat of filet net a more attractive trimming could not be found. The same idea is carried out in footing, which is shirred very full over a cord. This will sometimes take the place of braid.

Another inexpensive trimming is to embroider cotton canvas in a cross stitch, which takes a very short time to do. When finished it may be applied in many attractive ways to summer gowns.

DISPUTATION.

De locus' an' de katydid
Done had er ahgument.
De locus' clum a tree an' hid
An' sang all day—da's whut he did—
An' 'lowed dat he were sent
To tell de folks dat summer time
Were only risin' to its prime.
"No matter how much heat you get,"
Says he, "it will be hotter yet!"

De katydid tuned up an' said,
"Look out foh fros' some night!
It gwineter come"—da's what he said—
"Dat locus' ain' strong in de head
An' nebber gits things right!"
An' still de weather goes its way,
Not noticin' a word dey say,
Dey's jes' like folks dat whoop an' shout
An' don't know whaf dey's talkin' 'bout!

—Washington Star.

Backing Up Grandpa.

A court-martial was held, with grandma as president.

"Johnnie," she said, "who destroyed those flowers?"

Johnnie thought a moment. Then: "Sister Kathleen," he said.

"Now, then," reproved grandpa, "be a man! Tell the truth! Say I did it."

A beaming smile of relief illumined Johnnie's countenance.

"Oh, yes," he cried, "that's right. Grandpa did it!"—Philadelphia Record.

Clever Noah.

Brown—"I say, Jones, can you tell me who was the greatest financier that ever lived?"

Jones—"No, I can't."

Brown—"Well, it was Noah."

Jones—"How do you make that out?"

Brown—"Well, Noah was able to float a company when the whole world was in liquidation. See?"—Philippine's Gossip.

Non-Reversible.

Lang—Didn't you tell me that you made yourself solid with Mrs. Vane by asking her if she was herself or her daughter—couldn't tell 'em apart, and so on?

Strang—I did. What about it?

Lang—Why, I tried the same gag with the daughter, and it didn't go for a cent.—Boston Transcript.

Former Assemblyman Clauss Dead.

Henry Clauss, a former Assemblyman and member of the Elizabeth City Council, died yesterday at his home in Elizabeth. In his younger days he was a Republican and worked zealously for the party. He was born in Germany in 1836.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford A. Braider, of Sandford avenue, will take their vacation during the first part of September.

Patrolman John Kelly has returned from his summer vacation and is again on duty in the business section of the city.

Dr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Giddes, of Grove street, left today for Friends' Lake, in the Adirondacks, to spend two weeks.

Miss Anna Warnock, of Craig place, has been spending the past week with relatives at Rockaway, Morris county.

J. I. Lyle and family, of West Seventh street, are registered at the West End, Asbury Park, for the remainder of the month.

The Misses Amy and Elsie Moore, of West Fourth street, returned yesterday from a three weeks' visit with relatives at Carbondale, Pa.

Miss Mayme Preston, of Avoca, Pa., has returned home after spending two weeks at the home of her aunt, Mrs. A. M. Henry, of Netherwood.

Miss Clara Sheppard, one of the bookkeepers at Neuman Brothers' grocery, is enjoying her annual vacation, which she is spending at various points of interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Reed, of Myrtle avenue, who have been spending the summer at "The Frontenac," Frontenac, N. Y., are expected home about the first of September.

Captain Christian Frederickson returned to duty at police headquarters last night after a two weeks' vacation. Patrolman Charles Flynn is now enjoying a respite from duties.

Mrs. Albin Trojan, of East Front street, who has been detained at home the result of injuries from being thrown off a horse she was riding, is much improved and is able to leave the house again.

Rev. Charles Fountain, of this city, who completed his course of study at Crozer Theological Seminary last spring, has been spending the summer at home. He expects to be settled during the fall or early winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter B. Hodge and son, Raymond Hodge, of Plainfield avenue, have returned from Asbury Park where they spent two weeks' vacation. They made the trip both ways in their automobile and had a fine time.

Mr. and Mrs. William Debele, of Somerset street, will leave Monday on an extended pleasure trip to California, including a trip to the Yellowstone Park and other interesting sights in that part of the country. They will be absent several weeks.

Patricide Declared Sane.

Dr. William M. Moore and Dr. J. W. Rice for the defence, and Dr. J. W. Suydam for the State, examined Lawrence Messerole at the county jail at New Brunswick yesterday. Messerole is charged with killing his father, Isaac Messerole. The physicians declared him sane.

New York Man Dies on Jersey Train.

A man believed to be Lawrence D. Burns, of Manhattan, died on a Central Railroad of New Jersey train at Communipaw yesterday morning. Papers in his pockets served to identify the man, but the number of his home in 18th street was not learned.

ALL SORTS OF FLOWERS ADORN SEASON'S HATS.

Flower-trimmed hats continue to enjoy a remarkable vogue, and there are but few blossoms which have not been pressed into the service of Madam La Mode this season.

Sweet peas of every shade, always very decorative, with their blossoms of quaint form, their waving tendrils and their delightfully soft and harmonious colorings, are high just now in fashion's favor. They look best of all, perhaps, when they are massed closely on a wide-brimmed hat of white crinoline, so that the white sweet peas mingle with those in several shades of pink and purple, deep violet and pale mauve. The chief charm in this kind of arrangement lies in the way in which the flowers are deftly placed, each blossom standing erect on its stem, so that they look almost as though they were still growing.

The perfection to which the making of artificial flowers has been brought this season helps the illusion immensely, of course, and it is quite possible to arrive, as, in the case of sweet pea blossoms, at many delightful contrasts and combinations of tint, and yet to keep well within the limits of those colors which Nature herself provides.

FOR LOUNGING WEAR.

Those girls who like all manner of dainty, fluffy garments for room wear are sure to like the empire matinees, which are made of many kinds of sheer muslin.

One of dotted swiss is very pretty. It is put into tiny tucks at the shoulders and hangs full and loose to the knees. The edges are finished with a deep ruffle of plain muslin bound with pink silk ribbon.

Around the figure, under the arms, is a line of deep buttonholes worked in the material, and through these is run a four-inch band of pink ribbon, which is tied with a bow in long ends at front.

There is a turnover collar of muslin edged with ribbon and loose, pointed sleeves of swiss, edged with ribbon and muslin.

If you are wondering what to make as a gift to a bride or a debutante decide on this. There is no doubt that it will be received with ecstatic delight.

Not a Safe Place.

Bullyrag Lawyer—Now, I want you to answer this question very carefully. Was your father (when your mother struck him with a rolling pin) under the influence of drink?

Juvenile Witness—No, sir. He was under the kitchen table!—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Hurt By Splintered Rock.

While searching for samples of stone near Cushman's quarry, three miles from Lakeview, Tuesday, James Mooney, 23 years old, of Jersey City, was struck by flying pieces of stone and badly injured. He got near the quarry when a blast was exploded.

The Unitarian church on Park avenue which has been closed all summer, will be reopened early in September upon the return of Rev. A. C. Nickerson, who with Mrs. Nicherson, has been spending the season in New Hampshire.

YOUNG WOMAN MISSING

Police Alarm Sent Out for Miss Haskin, Patient at Cooley Sanitarium.

ELUDED NURSE IN STORE.

Is the Daughter of American Tobacco Company's Auditor and Has Now Been Gone Three Days.

Miss Minnie M. Haskin, 20 years old, daughter of H. M. Haskin, an auditor for the American Tobacco Company, who has been a patient at Dr. J. H. Cooley's sanitarium on Westervelt avenue for several weeks, disappeared from the city Tuesday afternoon, while on a shopping tour to the Woodhull & Martin Company store, in company with a nurse from the sanitarium. The matter was reported at once to Dr. Cooley by the nurse and he has made every effort to find the young woman, but without avail. Today a general alarm was sent out from police headquarters in New York instructing the departments in the various cities to keep a lookout for the missing woman.

Miss Haskin was being treated at Dr. Cooley's sanitarium for nervous trouble. Her condition was not considered serious and she was not violent in any way. In consequence she was allowed a certain amount of freedom, being permitted to go and come at will, but was always in the company of a nurse. She frequently visited the Plainfield stores for shopping purposes, and Tuesday afternoon expressed a wish to make some purchases. As usual, she was accompanied by a nurse. The two visited Woodhull & Martin's store, where Miss Haskin bought a few things. After paying for them the nurse went toward the clerk to get the change that was due Miss Haskin and during this brief spell the young woman disappeared from the store and despite diligent search the nurse was unable to find her anywhere in the vicinity. She then notified Dr. Cooley and steps were taken at once to inform the police authorities with a view to locating the woman.

According to a report received from police headquarters, New York, today, Miss Haskin is believed to have taken a trolley car to Elizabeth Tuesday afternoon, and then had been traced as far as the home of her uncle, J. H. Cline, at 53 Kelly street, New York. At that point all trace of the woman was lost and despite the continued efforts of Mr. Cline and a brother of Miss Haskin they have been unable to find her. They then reported the disappearance to police headquarters with the request that a general araIrm be sent quest that a general alarm be sent

Miss Haskin is described as being an attractive young woman and her actions would not denote anything strange about her condition. While at the sanitarium she was considered an excellent patient and seemed to improve under the treatment.

Rahway Girl Finds Trip Ticket.

While enjoying an outing on the Watchung Mountains with a company of friends, Wednesday afternoon, J. A. Powlison lost a fifty-trip ticket on the New Jersey Central, belonging to his partner, Frank W. Jones. While removing his coat the ticket fell out and he did not miss it until he reached home. After the company departed for home, a little girl from Rahway, who was enjoying a ramble over the mountain with friends, happend to find the ticket. When she reached home her father wrote to Mr. Jones inquiring if the ticket belonged to him, and if so he would forward it. He replied at once that it did and he has since received the lost article.

Fire on Railroad Siding.

Fire supposed to have been started by a spark from a passing locomotive caused about $25 loss by partially destroying the railroad siding trestle on the P. S. . C. property at Watchung avenue, near Fourth street, last night. An alarm was sounded from box 21 at shortly before 9 o'clock and the flames were quickly extinguished by the chemical stream.

CRANFORD REPUBLICANS FAVOR FOWLER'S RETURN

Reslutions endorsing Congressman Charles N. Fowler as a candidate for re-election from the Fifth district were unanimously passed at a meeting of the Cranford Taft and Sherman Club held in the Township rooms at Cranford last night. In the resolution, Mr. Fowler is referred to as "a man of exceptional influence in directing legislaion and enforcing the just claims of his constituents, known and honored throughout the land as the exponent and champion of financial and currency reform, the great leader of a great cause." Resolutions endorsing Robert Kirkland for Sheriff and James E. Warner, of Cranford, for township clerk, were also adopted.

The meeting room was "packed to the doors" and President Edwin G. Woodling was in the chair. He was re-elected to head the organization during the coming campaign, and these officers were also named: B. A. Towl, vice-president; B. C. Austin, secretary, and G. M. Hendricks, treasurer. An executive committee of twenty-one members was elected.

Arrangements have been completed for securing a large campaign banner, bearing portraits of the Republican candidates and the inscription "The People Do Rule" to be hung near the Cranford depot about September 1.

BOROUGHITES TALK OF NEW DISTRICT CANDIDATES

If the North Plainfield voters elect W. L. Smalley, Jr., to succeed Councilman Clifford A. McGee, the third election district of the borough, created by a Councilmanic ordinance which went into effect yesterday, will be represented by two Councilmen, as will the First and Second districts. There is no imperative legal provision about the apportionment of Councilmen from each district, but it is a co-incidence that the present Council, in the two-district days, was composed of three members from each district.

Of the six members of the Borough Council, C. L. Nichols, Morris Van Ardsdale and C. L. Nichols are from the old First district, and E. P. T. Smith, L. B. Woolston and B. K. Waldron are the representatives of the old Second district. When the new district was formed, Mr. Woolston became a Third district man, because of his residence place. Mr. Smalley, who lives on Green brook road, is sure of the party support, and in the event of his election, the co-incidence of equal representation by districts will still be preserved.

The Democrats are booming Frank Mobus, of the Third district, as Cuncilman McGee's successor, but no petition has yet appeared. There is also considerable talk about former Councilman Frank Krewson for the vacancy by borough Jeffersonians, but his formal acceptance as a candidate has not yet been recorded. Councilman Smith has been persuaded to be a candidate for re-election, but the boom for Frank Rowley as county clerk is not so active since Sheriff Anderson's petition for re-election has been circulated among party heelers over the brook.

KNOCKED "BOSS" OFF BIKE, TRYING TO COLLECT SALARY.

Roused to pugilistic rage by the sight of his "boss," John Nathanson, a painter and paper-hanger with a store on Watchung avenue, Benel Perlman, who claims that Nathanson owes him money, rushed out from the sidewalk on Front street this morning and accosted him for the money. He pulled Nathanson off his bicycle and upon his refusal to pay, began to "beat him up," and the scrap was interrupted in the nick of time by the arrival of Patrolman John Kelly, who arrested both men.

At police court they tried to explain matters, but the Hebraic jargon was unintelligible because of the great stress of excitement existing, and Perlman was locked up, while Nathanson was released on his own recognizance to appear before Judge Runyon at the session of court tomorrow morning. A good-sized crowd of pedestrians witnessed the scrap, which was near Somerset street.

Will Walk to the Rock.

Members of the Young Women's Christian Association are invited to bring their friends and join the Outing Club tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the rooms on East Front street. They will take the trolley to Dunellen and from there will walk and climb by a new way to Washington Rock. Each one is asked to bring her own basket lunch for supper on the mountain. A refreshing, jolly time is anticipated.

CORDOVA WRITES OF HIS PRISON AGONIES

In a letter written to a friend in Newark and forwarded yesterday from Annandale by his classmate, Rev. C. S. Kemble, of this city, J. Frank Cordova, the unfrocked pastor, tells of the "agonies" he went through while serving his sentence in the State prison. He declines to disclose his whereabouts, because he is surrounded, he says, by many who wish him evil.

"You cannot imagine," he write, "what it is to suffer the agonies that I have for the last three years and a half, and then to have it come to a close in such an exciting manner as that wild automobile race, but what is the use to complain? It is merely a continuation of the past, for, indeed, I do not believe that there is another man living or dead who ever encountered what I have."

Cordova complains of being persecuted more than any other man. He cites the case of Mayor Belcher, of Paterson, and of the Rev. Jere Cook, who deserted a wife and family and eloped with Floretta Whaley, as instances in which the peresecution ceased in a short time, and then he continues:

"I sincerely thank God that I have lived through it all and that, though for one whole year I did abandon myself to worry and grief, I have lived through it and that I am not a wreck of my former self.

"During that time the mental agony became so intense that I forgot even my multiplication tables. I had to turn them over and over for the first time in my life and, thinking that there is nothing better than mathematics as a sort of mental gymnastics, I went in for them with very gratifying results, but it was hard. At one time I seemed also to have lost my power to spell, and I could hardly write at all, but it came by and by, though not as well as figuring, as this poor letter shows."

The unfrocked min ste' then described some of the persons he met while in prison. Some he referred to as:

"The incarnation of the lowest form of meanness to whom nobility was an unattainable thing. These men were a riddle and an enigma to me. I could not understand how such traits cna be contained in a human body. But to judge all the rest by such, as the public is prone to do, is unfair and a great error. There are many men there with marked traits of nobility. Oh! that the world was more charitable."

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT JOHN BRITTON'S FUNERAL

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, including delegations from Plainfield lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., and Washington camp, P. O. S. A., of this city, and Somerset lodge, No. 43, I. O. O. F., of Somerville, at the funeral service of John Britton, which was held at his late home on Orange place, yesterday afternoon at 2:30. Rev. Ora J. Shoop, pastor of Grace M. E. church, officiated at the house, while the Odd Fellows conducted their ritualistic service at the grave

There was a profusion of floral tributes, including large set pieces from Mr. Britton's employers, the women employes of the skirt factory, where he was employed as a notght watchman, from the two lodges of Odd Fellows, a horseshoe from Washington camp, P. O. S. of A., a pillow from the widow, bearing the word "Husband," one from the three children, bearing the word "Father," and several smaller pieces from near neighbors.

The pall-bearers, all Odd Fellows, were James Clarkson, Peter Doeringer, Charles F. Meyer, Casper Waglow, John Becker and John Krineу. At Hillside Cemetery, where the burial took place, Harvey Schmeyer acted as noble grand for the lodge and Fred Becker as chaplain. They conducted the Odd Fellows' service, according to the ritual of the lodge.

Entertained Sunday-school Class.

Miss Edith Roseberry, a teacher in the primary department of Hope chapel Sunday-school, entertained about a dozen members of the class at her home on West Front street yesterday afternoon. The children were given a royal good time, and features of the afternoon's pleasures were a peanut hunt and a donkey party, for which prizes were awarded. Late in the afternoon refreshments were served in the dining room, where the predominating color scheme was red and white. Among those present were Hugo Hartpense, Peter Cowling, Harold Ackerman, Clifford Edmunds, Ralph Brown, Charles Bradford, Rufus Larew, Peter C. Sweeney, Mrs. Rufus Larew, Mrs. Claude Roseberry, the Misses Helen, Edith, Margaret and Ida Roseberry and Miss Maida Larew.

BOROUGH RATABLES JUMP

But Tax Assessor Cooley Says the Tax Rate Will Certainly Be Lower.

THE INCREASE IS 30 PER CENT.

Support of Movement by Somerset County Assessors Raises Borough Property to Full Valuation.

In accordance with a general movement on the part of tax assessors throughout Somerset county, Assessor Justus H. Cooley, of Nortn Plainfield, announced today that North Plainfield ratables would be subjected to an increase of 30 per cent on their present value when the next tax bills come out. He emphatically denied the rumor that this would cause an increase in the tax rate. "The borough tax rate," he said, "will be lower than last year, but because of the fact that more money will come into tht county, there will be a larger school money apportionment under the Perkins law."

"The property valuation in North Plainfield," Mr. Cooley continued, amounted last year to more than three millions of dollars. With this increase of 30 per cent, we will be figuring up nearly five million dollars' worth of ratables when making the assessments. This is the true valuation rate of the borough.

"Two years ago several counties raised their valuations a good deal. In some cases this increase amounted to a doubling of the county ratables. This means that these counties now are getting larger apportionment of the school money. Throughout Somerset county, the assessors have been told of this plan of increasing the ratables and have all fallen in line. The county apportionment is always according to th e ratables and borough valuations are now based on true valuations.

"I cannot say now what the new tax rate in the borough will be, but it will be lower than the present rate. This is because of the money we will receive for the schools from the railroad law. Former Mayor Smalley and m yself were at Somerville last Tuesday at the meeting of the county assessors, and the increase in ratables is universal. The borough book have been left there for examination and we are to meet again the second Tuesday in September, after which time it will be possible to figure quite accurately on the probable tax rate."

DR. DUNDON IMPERILED BY CRAMPS WHILE BATHING

Dr. A. H. Dundon, of Somerset street, who is spending his vacation at Atlantic City, in company with his friend, Dr. Richard English, of Danbury, Conn., had a very narrow escape from drowning while bathing in the surf yesterday off Virginia avenue. The doctor was a little venturesome and was swimming out beyond the ropes when he was suddenly seized with a cramp in the left leg.

Dr. English, who was s wimming close by, notices his companion's condition and hastened to his rescue. Although a good athlete and a strong swimmer he had considerable difficulty in bringing his friend to shore and then he was obliged to work fully fifteen minutes before the cramp disappeared. The doctor was thoroughly frightened by his experience and declared that when he goes in the water again he will remain in the safety zone.

Entertainment at Bethel Chapel.

Charles Smith assisted by Miss Marie Smith, gave an excellent musical and literary entertainment at Bethel chapel, last night, for the benefit of the chapel. The program included vocal solos, recitations, duets, a character sketch and selections imitating Anna Held, Della Fox, Vesta Victoria, and concluding with "Darktown Melodies." The entertainment was attended by a large audience and each number received an encore.

Ascended Trinity Church Steeple.

Clarence Mundy, the local "steeplejack," who has on various occasions climbed to dizzy heights, notably the old city flag pole, performed an equally hazardous task on Wednesday, when he climbed to the top of the steeple on Trinity Reformed church and repaired a broken lightning rod. The break was noted by Chief T. O. Doane and at his suggestion the church engaged Mr. Mundy to fix it. The feat was accomplished without a mishap.

"KING" CARRAR HAPPY; GROSZMANN BAFFLED

Peacefully smoking a short pipe as he walked along Somerset street toward his "fort," "King John" Carrar, still "lord" of the Groszmann School barn at Watchung Crest, looked anything but belligerent today when spied by a Daily Press reporter. The "King" had his pockets bulging with newspapers, and in his hand held a copy of the Daily Press, reading as he walked. "I just show you I am no pr-risoner," he said, "for I come down from ze barn to buy all these papairs. I lak to read about me and my family in ze barn."

"We are now all ver' happy in ze barn," he continued, "and go out to buy our food whenever we want. Last night, Mrs. Groszmann she try stop my daughtaire, my Lizzie, when she come pas' ze school on her way back from work. My daughtaire she work by ze nee-dle factory, near ze gas-house, and las' night when she come home, zat Mrs. Groszmann plant herself right in ze way and shout to her, 'You cannot come pas' here, zis private ro-ad.' My Lizzie she ver' quiet go up on ze grass and walk aroun' dat woman and come to me and ze others in ze barn.

"I mek no fight, but ve all sta-ay there, you know. Me and my family we live in zat barn 'til come August 31, then I collect my month's wages and I go, 'cause I gotta job near Gr-een Broook. I think I get my money, too. John Owens, he my la-awyer and we have a suit start for my month's money, ze twenty-fi' dollaire. That Groszmann he can't put us out-a ze barn. I live there by ze con-tract for ze barn—my house."

Mystery veils a move about to be made by Professor M. P. E. Groszman in a supreme effort to get the obstinate gardener, out of his barn, where he is still supreme master of the situation with his family. Mr. Groszmann told a Daily Press reporter today that it would be but a short time now before the "trespasser" was removed. "We are going to act first, and talk about it afterwards," he said, "and I do not care to state at this time what we will do. John Carrar is merely an incident of something we are trying to prove here at the school—that we have no police protection."

FORMER BOROUGHITE STILL KEPT IN JAIL

Furman Long, the former well known North Plainfielder, who was arrested a few months ago, charged with embezzling money by Phil Weigel, jr., for whom he worked, is still detained in jail at New Brunswick. While he will not talk for publication it is known that he feels that he is being wronged in being detained.

His friends have been trying to straighten out the muddle in which he has found himself, but the process is slow. It is understood that he could have secured bail long ago, but that he refused to leave on bail, preferring to have his case disposed of.

The Grand Jury has been in session several times since he was jailed, but it did no t conclude his case, if it took it up. It is understood that friends of the man have been trying to settle the case with Mr. Weigel, but that they cannot come to terms as to the amount of the shortage.

It is likely that nothing will be done in the case until the next term of court.

Warren Chapel Excursion a Success.

The annual excursion of Warren chapel to Asbury Park, yesterday, which was the last one of the season from this city to the shore, was a success as to number, and while all returns have not yet been made, the committee believe that the outing will prove a financial success as well. While the excursion was not as large as the one last year, twenty coaches were required. Nearly 800 people made tht trip and enjoyed a delightful day at the shore. There was a strong sea breeze all day and the bathing was particularly fine. The excursionists arrived hime at 8 o'clock last night. There was not a single accident to mar the pleasures of the day.

Stone Wagon Driver Fined.

George Totten, who drives a stone wagon for the Watchung Stone Company, was arrested yesterday afternoon for driving a wagon from which the stone was dropping on Somerset street. At his hearing this m orning Borough Recorder Charles M. Dolliver imposed a fine of $2 and suspended sentence. Acting Chief Charles Keller, who made the arrest, warned the man about his wagon several days ago.

CEMETERY THIEVES STEAL FLORAL TRIBUTES

The repeated practice of the desecration of graves at the local cemeteries reached a culmination in the dispicable theft of floral tributes on the grave of Albert Hedden at Hillside Cemetery, Sunday night, soon after the interment.

The theft was committed after nightfall, when the ribbons and inscriptions were taken from several handsome floral tributes. As the flowers were left on the grave and as there must have been considerable work involved in unwiring the inscriptions and untying the broad ribbons in each case, it is believed that the desecrations must have been deliberate and involved considerable patient work. In some cases the flowers also were taken.

Discovering what had been done at the grave of his father, Frank Hedden complained to the care-taker of the cemetery, who had not previously known of the desecration. The latter stated he had kept a careful watch for such marauders until dark, in accordance with a regular custom. The plot is so situated that a person might easily work at the grave, even with a lantern, and still not be observed from the road. Complaints of similar desecration have been made before, both at Hillside and some of the other cemeteries and it may be necessary to adopt the plan of having a patrol in the grounds.

BLINDS WOMAN WITH PEPPER TO STEAL GEMS

In a desperate effort to steal a diamond ring from the jewelry store of Nathan Schwartz, No. 1422 Third avenue, New York, yesterday, a yung man giving his name as William Armstrong, of this city, dashed red pepper into the eyes of Mrs. Schwartz, temporarily blinding her.

Armstrong entered the store and asked to be shown a diamond ring at a price not greater than $125. Mrs. Schwartz spread out several rings before him and then showed him one worth $145.

"That looks like a pretty good stone," he said. "I'll put the glass on it." He reached into his pocket, but instead of a lens he drew forth a can of red pepper and dashed the contents into Mrs. Schwartz's eyes. At the same instant he grabbed up the stone and ron out of the door.

Screaming for help and blinded by the pepper, Mrs. Schwarz managed to reach the sidewalk. The thief by this time was 100 feet away. Her cries, however, drew the attention of hundreds on the street, including Detectives Sydecker and Vose, of the East Twenty-eighth street Police Station. They saw the fleeing man and ran after him. He led them up Eighty-first street, across Lexington and Park avenues, and finally, as he was rounding the corner of Madison avenue, they overhauled him.

In spite of the long run he had made, the fellow was still able to put up a hard fight. The ring was found upon him. In the Yorkville Court he was held in $1,000 bail.

Armstrong gave his age as 20 years, but refused his address in Plainfield. The city directory contains no William Armstrong and inquiry has failed to locate him.

The injury to the eyes of Mrs. Schwarz was very painful, but is said not to be dangerous.

CHILDREN REALIZE $14 FOR KING'S DAUGHTERS CAMP

For the benefit of the City Union King's Daughters' baby camp on the mountain a successful sale of lemonade, cake and candy was held at the home of Mrs. F. C. Lynn, on Gran' avenue, yesterday afternoon. The affair was planned by her daughters, the Misses Dorothy, Marion and Ruth Lynn, assisted by their mother and their two brothers, Russell and Clawson Lynn; also Miss Lillian Cronkite and Miss Agnes Brennan, neighbors.

In addition to the sale of lemonade, cake and candy, the boys made a considerable sum by giving children short rides in an express wagon and also on a rocking horse. In all $14 was cleared as profit for the baby camp and this amount will be forwarded to the treasurer of the King's Daughters.

MARTINE UP FOR SHERIFF

County Democrats Prevail Upon Him to Agree to Nomination.

TENTATIVE SLATE GIVEN OUT

Jere A. Kiernan, Frederick Ricke and William F. Brower the Probable Assembly Nominees.

For Sheriff—James E. Martine.
For Assembly—Jere A. Kiernan and Frederick Rieke, of Elizabeth, and William F. Brower, of New Providence.
For Coroner—Dr. Otto Wagner, of Elizabeth.

Such is the tentative slate fixed up by the Union county Democrats on their outing to Witzel's Point View Grove, yesterdayfi the greatest political excursion that ever drew away from Elizabeth. Twelve hundred party followers were on board the steamer and the situation and chances for victory in the fall were discussed for hours.

The slate given is not merely a guess, but the formal announcement made by County Chairman William E. Tuttle, Jr., speaking for the committee. The nomination of Martine, for that is what it amounts to, is a complete surprise. The farmer orator declared only three days ago that he would positively not accept the Shrievalty nomination, nor any other for that matter. The committee had to use all the persuasive powers at its command to get him to change his mind, and finally succeeded.

Mr. Martine declared that, although he accepted only after being pressed hard, he meant to go into the fight to win and would wage the most strenuous campaign he know how. It means one of the stiffest fights ever seen in Union county, for Martine carried the county against Fowler for Congress by over 200 votes, and is sure to give Robert J. Kirkland, who will be the Republican candidate, the run of his life. Before this Kirkland's election was unanimously conceded. It is understood that General Dennis F. Collins had much to do with bringing about the naming of Martine.

The Assembly ticket was decided upon also after much palavering. Naming two men from Elizabeth is something of a departure for this county, but was probably done in view of the expected nomination of two by the Republicans. John P. Owens, of Plainfield, was in the fight for awhile, but Frederick Ricke, one of last year's candidates, was ultimately substituted. Jere A. Kiernan an Elizabeth lawyer, was induced to run only by much persuasion.

No man was slated for the nomination for State Senator, for the simple reason that no candidate was available. Martine had been mentioned for this, as he had for almost every other honor. William E. Tuttle, Jr., had been spoken of for Sheriff extensively, and there was some use of his name yesterday in connection with the Senatorship, but he has said that he will not run for any office.

The boom of General Dennis F. Collins for Mayor of Elizabeth was much in evidence. It was, in fact, the most conspicuous thing on the excursion. Most everybody wore a Collins button. A great banner bearing his portrait had the most conspicuous place in the dining-hall, overshadowing that of William Jennings Bryan. Everywhere the opinion seemed to be that his nomination was a foregone conclusion. Nevertheless, the outlook is that he won't get it without a fight, for the indications are that John S. Sauer, chairman of City Council's finance committee, will enter the field against him.

The excursion carried Democrats from every part of the county, most of them workers in the ranks, and the feeling seemed to be that this is going to be a Democratic year. "I believe," said Chairman Tuttle, "that we will swing Union to the Democratic side of the ledger this fall, because the rank and file is dissatisfied with present conditions."

There were, of course, the usual excursion diversions, and the big iron steamboat Sirius didn't get back to Elizabeth until about 10:30 p. m., after having gone round Coney Island on its way home to give the crowd a chance to view the illumination.

Funeral of John Maltbie.

The funeral service of John Maltbie, of Dunellen, was held from the undertaking parlors of A. M. Runyon & Co., of Park avenue, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, being attended by relatives and immediate friends. Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, officiated, using the Episcopal service. The body was taken later to Mahwah, Bergen county, where burial was made in the family plot.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

A public meeting of the Dunellen Board of Health will be held tonight to consider the sanitary code which has been produced in the local paper for the past two weeks, so that every boroughite may become familiar with it. At the meeting an opportunity will be given for free discussion of any clause of the ordinance which meets with objection, and amendments will be suggested before the voting is done. The adoption of a health ordinance marks a distinct epoch in the growth of Dunellen.

Tomorrow afternoon the local nine will cross bats with the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team. The Plainfielders are practically winners of the State association league, and have a record of thirteen wins out of sixteen games. Miller and Dodwell will be the points for Dunellen, and Scott and Schoonmaker will be the battery for the visiting nine.

William W. Giddes will preach morning and evening at the Methodist church Sunday. His topic in the morning will be "Great Assemblies," and in the evening he will speak on "Finished Work."

Mrs. G. H. Gardner and daughter, Miss Ruth Gardner, are spending the week at Ocean Grove. They are registered at The Arctic.

Mrs. Charles E. Mosher, of New York, is visiting at the home of her cousin, Mrs. George Churchill.

Miss Gertrude Banks, of Elmira, N. Y., is visiting a few days with her cousin, Miss Alice Pierce.

Professor Fred C. Gaskill is spending a few days with friends in Bridgeport, Conn.

Mrs. Harry Piddington and two daughters are sojourning at Long Branch.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The local ball team play its old rival at Crescent Oval tomorrow. The series of games between the two teams stands, 'Plains 2 victories, Clinton Avenue 1. Game will be called at 3:30.

Miss Minnie Hosinger, who has been spending her two weeks' vacation with Miss Caroline Lent at Palmyra, N. Y., will return home the first of the week.

Frank Anson, of Plainfield, has rented the Murphy property on Park avenue and expects to open a candy and cigar store the first of the month.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strong, of Boston, are visiting Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Westcott, of the borough.

The prayer-meeting at the Baptist church tonight will be in charge of the deacons of the church.

George Archbold, of Newark, is visiting relatives and friends in Washington Valley.

Mrs. Richard Duyckinck, of Plainfield, was the guest of friends in the borough yesterday.

BURGLARS AT NOLAN'S POINT POSTOFFICE.

The postoffice at Nolan's Point, Lake Hopatcong, was entered Wednesday night and the safe dynamited. Several dollars' worth of stamps, all there was of value in the safe, were taken.

The burglary was discovered yesterday morning when William Richards, the postmaster, who is also station agent for the Central Railroad, came to open up for the day. He found the window forced, the safe door off its hinges, and the office well wrecked. The postoffice was in the station building, two hundred yards from any other house.

Nothing was left to serve as a clue to the burglars. No one heard any explosion Wednesday night. No attempt was made to rob the ticket office of the railroad company, in the same building.

DRIVER INJURED WHEN TRAIN SMASHED WAGON.

While crossing the tracks of the Long Branch Railroad at Pine street, Elizabethport, at 4 o'clock yesterday morning a wagon belonging to the Alderney Dairy Company was struck by the newspaper train from New York, bound south.

The wagon was demolished. The milk flooded the tracks. The driver, Peter Conroy, twenty-one years old, single, and boarding at 952 Broadway, Elizabeth, was badly injured. He was cut about the head and bruised about the body. One of his ears was nearly torn off. He was removed unconscious to the Alexian Hospital, where his condition is said to be critical. The horse escaped with a few scratches on its hindquarters.

Augustus Compton, of Manning avenue, has returned home after spending several months in the West, where he has been erecting presses for the Scott Printing Machine Works.

Slowly, but surely the Giants appear to be getting nearer firs place in the exciting race for the National League pennant.

Durham, an Indianapolis pitcehr, has been purchased by the New York Nationals.

From a three bagger, a two bagger and a single on Tuesday Ty Cobb dropped to one lonely single on Wednesday.

"Red" Waller, the auburn-haired twirler, who has had an eventful career, is reported to have signed with the New York Nationals.

"Wild Bill" Donovan, the Detroit pitcher, has been suspended indefinitely by Ban Johnson for his kick in Tuesday's game.

The New York Americans have purchased four more players from the Newark club—Friel and Mueller, pitchers; Engle, infielder, and Demmitt, outfielder.

The local game of interest tomorrow will be between the Clinton Avenues and Scotch Plains at Crescent Oval. Both teams are in prime condition and ready for a fine battle. On account of the great rivalry between the clubs there is sure to be a record-breaking crowd at the Oval.

The Y. M. C. A. team will play the Dunellen tomorrow and the contest should be a good one.

The Mono Field Club has scheduled a game with East Millstone to be played at the latter place, Labor Day afternoon.

If you want to see a fine game of ball go to Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon. Clinton Avenue and Scotch Plains will be the attraction. The last time these teams met the Plainfield boys were defeated by a score of 10 to 0.

GOLF.

With belated mails to be heard from the entry list for the national open golf championship, to be held at Myopia on August 27 and 28, numbers seventy-five. This is only seven less than last year, and it was said at the secretary's office last night that the total would probably exceed that of a year ago.

One of the interesting features of this year's open tournament will be the presence of several well-known amateurs. In addition to Walter J. Travis, of Garden City, and Harold W. Beverage, of England, the list also includes the names of Eben M. Byers and J. H. Childs, of Pittsburg; L. S. Biglow and T. G. Stevenson, of Brookline; J. G. Anderson, of Woodland; Hugo R. Johnstone, of Myopia; J. O. Roberts, of Utica, and J. B. Hylan, of Vesper. Practically all the leading professionals have entered.

Despite the restricting nature of the conditions which permit of eligibility to only those with low handicap ratings, the Deal Golf and Country Club has once again been favored with a formidable entry list. It looks now as if there would be close to 2000 amateurs on hand when the fun begins in the eighteen-hole qualifying round this morning. Prominent among those who have sent in their names are Findlay S. Douglas, of Apawamis, former national and metropolitan champion, and Thomas M Sherman, of Utica. The latter is a son of the candidate for Vice-President on the Republican ticket.

T. M. Sherman, who has been rated for some time as one of the strongest amateurs in the East, won the chief cup in the Deal tournament four years ago. Always a long driver, Sherman naturally likes a course fashioned after Deal lines.

Two tournament regulars who will be familiar figures are James D. Foot, the Apawamis veteran, and "Spotty" Bowers, of Brooklawn. Last year Bowers competed in thirteen tournaments, while the present one will make the twelfth this season for Foot. The far driving W. F. Morgan, jr., of Baltusrol, who has entered, is likely to do well, and so is George T. Brokaw, a member of the home club. The latter had the distinction of putting out Walter J. Travis in the tournament last year.

Charles Evans, jr., of Edgewater Golf Club, Chicago, Western interscolastic golf champion, won the western junior championship Tuesday at Westward Ho links by defeating Albert Seckel, of the Riverside Golf Club, 10 up and 9 to play, in the thirty-six hole finals.

SMASHES OCEAN RECORDS.

Lusitania Cuts 3 Hours and 15 Minutes from Best Time Across.

The Cunard liner Lusitania dropped anchor off Sandy Hook Lightship at 10:13 o'clock last night, lowering the world's record and her own across the Atlantic by 3 hours and 40 minutes. She came abeam of the lightship at 9:30 p. m., at which hour her time was taken.

The Lusitania has made records over the long course, which sweeps to the southward in the summer to avoid icebergs, and is 110 miles longer than the short course, but the fastest time over the shortest distance made on the passage during last night was 4 days, 15 hours.

Her best day's run, which is a world's record, was made from Sunday noon to Monday noon, when the big turbine flyer logged 650 knots, at an average speed of 25.66. The average speed for the entire passage was 25.05 knots.

Canal Canoeists Must Now Pay Toll.

Canoeists who use the Morris Canal as a waterway from the Passaic river to Lake Hopatcong will hereafter pay a fee of 15 cents a mile. Owing to the misuse of the canal by canoeists the imposition of a fee was considered necessary. John Mallon, the Paterson superintendent of the canal, will grant all permits, which also must be procured.

French has purchased a large apartment house on East 135th street, New York, from Mrs. Smith, of Ocean Grove.

MOTHER OF 21 EXPIRES.

Mrs. Kate Shea, a Summit Widow, Succumbs at Home to Stroke of Apoplexy.

Mrs. Kate Shea, widow of Patrick Shea, died suddenly at her home in West Mechanic street, Summit, from an attack of apoplexy late yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Shea was seventy years old and the mother of twenty-one children, thirteen of whom are living, among them being Professor James Shea, of the Boston Athletic Association.

Mrs. Shea was apparently in her usual health yesterday until stricken. The funeral will be held at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, and after a requiem mass in St. Teresa's church the body will be interred in St. Teresa's cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Van Name, of Madison avenue, returned last evening from the Thousand Islands and Round Lake, N. Y., where they have been spending a delightful two weeks.

P. Frank Stone, the East Front street photographer, will leave tomorrow for a week's vacation. During his absence the studio will be in charge of a young woman, who will make appointments for sittings.

FAIR WARNING!

This is the last call. Tomorrow as the store closes so ends this eventful Snnshine Sale. Never before have we sold so many Oxfords in such a space of time. We thank you now for your hearty response but we realize that littleness of price alone could have accomplished such astounding results. Hundreds of pairs of Shoes have been quickly picked up by shrewd shoppers and never a complaint from any of them. There are yet some golden chances for the thrifty, particularly in Children's Oxfords; study these children's items, but don't think all the plums are for the youngsters. Look at what a mother can buy for herself with half the money she usually pays. Some grand good bargains left also in the Men's and Boys' Oxfords.

Remember, tomorrow night at 11 p. m. the sale stops and whatever is left over goes back to regular prices Monday morning, with the exception of some odds and ends of sizes in narrow widths, which will go at cut prices until sold.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Mrs. William Norman is entertaining her father, William Cole, of South River, who walked from that place to this village yesterday, on which day Mr. Cole was 80 years of age.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Shields, accompanied by their son and daughter and Mrs. Collins, visited friends in Metuchen yesterday.

Harry Randolph, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Randolph, is suffering severely from large and painful abcesses.

Rev. C. W. F. Attlee will preach at the Seventh Day Baptist church tomorrow.

SOMERSET DEMOCRATS TO HOLD SENATORIAL CONFAB

An important meeting of the Somerset county Democratic executive committee will be held at the Ten Eyck House, Somerville, tomorrow afternoon, when the Senatorial situation in the county will be discussed. The proposed conference on Monday of Democratic leaders with Alvah A. Clark, the object being to persuade the latter to accept the nomination for State Senator, has aroused the party to unusual activity.

While it is true that many influential Democrats are particularly strong for Mr. Clark, believing that he alone can carry the party to victory in the coming campaign, there are equally as many Democrats who appear to favor Nelson Y. Dugan for the nomination. They declare that he would make an ideal nominee and would poll more votes than the former Congressman. They also declare that he would not only be strong in Somerville, his home town, and vicinity, but would be able to poll the full party vote throughout the county, as well as many Republican votes.

The members of the county executive committee are said to be somewhat divided on the Senatorial question, but it is hoped that tomorrow's conference at Somerville will help to harmonize matters and result in the committee taking a stand favoring one man for the nomination. This question apparently overshadows all others at present and it is difficult to learn who the party will favor for the Assembly nomination.

It was said today that if Somerville gets the Senatorial nominee on the Democratic ticket, North Plainfield will be privileged to name a candidate for either the Assembly or county clerkship to succeed Clerk Anderson. This, it is believed, North Plainfield is entitled to, and the Democrats will undoubtedly try to find a strong candidate to oppose the Republican nominees.

One prominent Democrat in the borough said today: "The members of our party in North Plainfield are in better fighting condition than ever. They are a unit for the ticket to be named and there is every indication that the full party vote will be polled for the candidates. While I admit there is some sentiment in the borough for Mr. Clark, I do not believe that it is strong enough to give him the solid support of the party."

ENDANGERS WINDOWS BY ATTACK OF BLIND STAGGERS

A horse driven by Dr. J. C. Anderson, of West Fourth street, developed an enthusiastic attack of blind staggers on Park avenue shortly before noon today and flipped around, looping the loop on the brick pavement to the great enjoyment of a large crowd of pedestrians and the danger of abutting show windows. The animal was quickly cut loose from the rig, which Dr. Anderson was driving and started to run around in a circle like a circus horse.

Patrolman John Kelly seized the animal just when it seemed certain that it would catch its tail, and threw it to the ground. He sat on its head until the arrival of Veterinarian Pocock, when the attack was dispelled by "bleeding." The animal was slightly cut by its fall and was taken to a nearby livery stable. The harness was badly damaged.

Colored Excursion a Success.

The annual excursion of Mt. Zion A. M. E. and the Shiloh Baptist churches at Bellewood Park, yesterday, although not as large as last year, was a success financially. Three trolley cars carrying 150 colored people from both churches here met colored congregations from Newark, Elizabeth, Rahway, New Brunswick and Somerville at Bound Brook, where a train on the Lehigh Valley Railroad conveyed them to and from Bellewood Park. The day was enjoyably spent by the 2,800 excursionists and the Plainfielders arrived home about 8 o'clock. The committee in charge of the local congregations will meet tonight to settle the financial part of the affair.

—Choice Bartlett pears for canning will be a feature of Neuman Brothers' fruit display tomorrow. Prompt delivery as soon as orders are received.

PLAINFIELDER IN MAINE SENDS $5 TO CAMP FUND

Though Mrs. Frederick Sandford is spending the summer at Harrison, Me., many miles away from Plainfield, she has kept in mind The Daily Press' efforts to raise money for the King's Daughters' baby camp. In a letter received from her today, she encloses a check for $5 and expresses best wishes for the movement to give the children of the city an outing.

"NEW BABYLAND."

Summer Resident, Inspired by Muse, So Describes Fanwood.

A summer resident at Fanwood, who has noted that a certain Rooseveltian theory has been lived up to in the pretty suburb, contributes the following to the Daily Press:

NEW BABYLAND.

"Over in Fanwood, do you know
There is the place where babies grow?
Babies of every shape and size,
With dreamy blue and darkest eyes,
Babies with hair, and ones without,
Babies who laugh and coo and pout,
Some are wee girls, and others boys,
But all can cry, and make a noise.
Last summer not a babe was here,
And this news reached a good stork's ear,
Who laughed and said, "I'll alter this."
People need babies to love and kiss.
He flapped his wings and flew away,
Reached Fanwood on a wintry day,
Scattering babies everywhere;
He left so many, I do declare,
You cannot look to left or right
Without a babe being in sight.
If you should doubt this story true,
Some afternoon I'll call for you,
And we'll walk down the village street
To see how many babes we'll meet."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

At the New Plainfield theatre tonight the management will present Jack Singer's latest and greatest musical comedy success, "The Passing Review." It is credited with having scored a success in Boston, Philadelphia, Washington and New York. Aaron Hoffman, author of Marion Moore in "The Passing Review," at New Plainfield Theatre Tonight.

"Roger Brothers in Panama," is also the author of this, and Gus and Leo Edwards, who wrote "School Days," are responsible for the music. James Gorman, general stage director for the George M. Cohan's attractions, staged the production. The first act takes place on the stage of Hammerstein's and during the action of the comedy, impersonations of well-known stage stars seen, including McIntyre and Heath, Anna Held, Fritzi Scheff, Oscar Hammerstein, Joe Welch, Charles Bigelow, Montgomery and Stone, Maude Adams, Caruso, Mrs. Leslie Carter and David Warfield. Cliff Gordon, the famous German comedian, will be seen in his famous specialty. Frank D. Bryan's Congress of American Girls and Frank Moore's Land of Cotten, with the ten dancing dandies, are a few of the many novelties.

George Sidney, the clever little Jewish comedian, and his company, will be at the New Plainfield theater tomorrow night. The title of Sidney's offering this season is "Busy Izzy's Boodle," a refreshing and captivating musical comedy of the highest order. None of the ordinary will be found in this musical conceit—all is pure fun, refined frolic, catchy songs, quick rapid fire comedy, embellished with pretty girls, handsome gowns, bright scenery and pretentious musical numbers. The show is for laughing purposes only and a large coterie of clever comedians and a big beauty chorus keep the activity up from start to finish. There are many big musical numbers and among the latest are: "That's What

Geo. Sidney in "Busy Izzy's Boodle," at New Plainfield Theatre, Saturday, Matinee and Night.

My Organ Plays," "Under the Mazuma Tree," "It Looks Like a Big Night Tonight," "Garden of Dreams." Each number is specially and handsomely gowned, therefore requiring many changes of costumes.

A Broadway production is always a cynosure of all provincial eyes. When one has gained unstinted praise upon "The Gay White Way" their success upon the road—that is, in the smaller cities, is no longer equivocal. Countess Olga Von Hatzfeldt has heard her praises sung from Wall street to Harlem in New York, and this year bids for new favor in a daity two-act musical comedy entitled "A Daughter of America." There are but a few of the smaller cities to see it ere it enters New York city for its culminating triumph. Plainfield is one of those cities. The Countess appears at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night.

The New Plainfield theatre announces as the attraction for next Wednesday afternoon and night, the "Ninety and Nine," an assured favorite, for the previous visits of the play sufficed to fill that playhouse at every performance. It is one of the most acceptable of the popular priced attractions, abounding in scenic effects and augmented by the splendid cast that appeared during its five months' run at the Academy of Music, New York city. The scene is laid in a little country town in Indiana, where a pretty love story, interspersed with a clever vein of comedy and intrigue, ends with a realistic reproduction of a huge mogul engine, under the guidance of the hero's hand, dashing through a terrific forest fire to the rescue of a doomed village. The racing engine scene is a particularly strong one and is a master stroke of the art of the stage realism and did much on the former visits of the show to add to the popularity of the attraction.

In Eugene Walter, Messrs. Wagenhals and Kemper has made "a find," perhaps the best "find" of the season. If he can do as well as this at his first play, we can hope for much. And beggars can't be choosers. We are beggars. So writes Alan Dale in the New York American. "Paid in Full" will be seen at the New Plainfield theater next Thursday night.

A Comfortable Home Next Winter

A cozy warm house, warm everywhere, is not impossible to obtain. To have one room comfortable and the adjoining room chilly is very trying, especially when you have guests. The will save you from making apologies, and from furnace dust, and cut down your coal bills. It will warm the house thoroughly from end to end with the minimum of dirt, trouble and expense. The Boynton dealer in your town will tell you why.

BOYNTON

The Furnace with the Square Fire Pot

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

CHAPTER I.

FOUND DEAD.

The private office of North & Stackhouse, State street, bankers and brokers, contained on the morning of Friday, June 16, 1887, a group of anxious and excited men, whose conversation plainly indicated that their uneasiness was caused by the continued and unexplained absence of Paul North, the senior partner.

In State street circles North & Stackhouse were classed among the "plungers." For the first two years of the firm's existence, indeed, there had been but slight departure from the conservative policy followed by Mr. North, who, when in the brokerage business on his own account, had been content with a modest office in a comparatively quiet street leading eastward from Post Office square.

But, under the lead of Mr. Stackhouse—an energetic man of 40, ten years his partner's junior—banking had been added to brokerage; and the firm had become widely known as the promoter of many daring enterprises.

Nicaragua Midland was a specialty with North & Stackhouse. In season and out of season Nicaragua Midland had been "boomed" with a persistency that caused some of the older magnates of "the street" to shake their heads ominously, but which had attracted, nevertheless, the admiration and cooperation of a multitude of people.

Not all who invested their earnings under the advice of North & Stackhouse had, it is true, found the venture profitable.

Twelve days previous to this June morning in 1887 a curious letter, in an unknown hand, had been laid on Mr. North's desk. The writing was an odd sort of scrawl, uncertain in its lines, but legible enough. This was the missive:

"My Dear Sir: I am a desperate man ruined by your manipulations of the property entrusted to your hands. I must have money enough to begin life again. I only ask for a little back out of all you robbed me of, but that little I must have. There is only one thing for you to do: Draw a check, for one thousand dollars, payable to bearer, and enclose it addressed to me at the post office, Boston. If you fail in this, I swear to shoot you down as I would a mad dog. If you are wise, you will not refer this matter to the police. That act would be your death warrant.

"DANIEL STICKNEY."

Paul North, to whom personally this threatening letter was addressed, had consulted his partner in some little uneasiness of mind.

"It's all nonsense," Mr. Stackhouse had said, confidently. "A mere practical joke of some broker who wants to frighten you. A few of them were nipped in the last turn of the market in our favor, you know, and perhaps they hold North & Stackhouse responsible. But if the matter disturbs you at all, why turn the letter over to the police. They'll attend to it. We must look after Nicaragua Midland very sharply this week, North, and have no time to bother our heads about trifles."

Nevertheless Mr. North had troubled himself about the matter sufficiently to put the letter into the hands of Inspector Applebee for such action as seemed proper.

Upon the advice of that quietly efficient personage a decoy letter had been written by Mr. North, inclosing a check for $1,000, payable to bearer.

An officer, in citizen's clothes, had been stationed on duty constantly at the post office, but no Daniel Stickney had called for the letter addressed to his name.

As a precaution against any possible oversight payment of the check had been stopped at the bank, a precaution which thus far had proved equally useless.

"Just as I told you," Stackhouse had said to his partner after a few days. "A broker's practical joke."

The letter soon passed out of mind, for business cares weighed heavily on both partners.

So absorbed and anxious had Mr. North become that he could talk and think of little except the market and its prospects.

Was it altogether on the subject of Nicaragua Midland that he had held conference, late in the afternoon of the 15th of June, with one of the chief investors, though not a director, in the Nicaragua Midland—Mr. Richard Fetridge?

Whether or not, the interview had not been finished at the office, for the two men had been seen to walk away together, still talking earnestly.

The junior partner had left the office hours before, outwardly calm. Whatever his forebodings may have been, Thornton Stackhouse was not the man to allow his troubles to snow themselves in look or manner.

Paul North was the father-in-law of his business associate, and Thornton Stackhouse made his home in summer time at Mr. North's spacious villa at Swampscott, from whose broad windows the occupants enjoyed an exhilarating prospect of the sail-flecked ocean.

At ten o'clock in the morning of this Friday, the 16th of June, the directors of Nicaragua Midland had assembled, pursuant to call, in the office of North & Stackhouse. Half an hour later every face wore a look of anxious expectation.

"I don't understand it at all," exclaimed Stackhouse, nervously walking up and down. "North is the most punctual of men, as you all know. He must be ill."

"Ill!" echoed one of the directors. "Wasn't North all right when you left him at Swampscott this morning?"

Mr. Stackhouse waved his hand impatiently.

"I didn't go down to the shore last night," he returned, shortly. "Stayed in town with a friend. I left North here in this office about three o'clock in the afternoon and haven't laid eyes on him since!"

"Why don't you telegraph to his house?" asked a little man near the door. "It's strange he hasn't sent some word himself before this time. But I suppose he's ill, and his daughters are so worried about him that they have forgotten to send. Just like women!" the testy little bachelor added.

The suggestion was acted upon instantly. After an interminable delay a response came, evoking a simultaneous murmur of dismay and the interchange of apprehensive looks.

"Swampscott, June 16.

"Mr. North must have stayed in town. He has not been here since yesterday morning.

"COMFORT HARWOOD."

"Strange!" ejaculated Stackhouse, ringing the bell as he spoke. "Send Mr. Jobson in," he added, the next moment, to the waiting messenger.

The old clerk was in the room before the messenger had left it, trembling all over with senile agitation.

"At what time did Mr. North leave the office yesterday afternoon?" Stackhouse demanded abruptly.

"It was after five o'clock, sir."

"Was he alone?"

"No, sir. Mr. Fetridge was with him."

"Probably went out of town somewhere with Fetridge," suggested one of the directors. "Delayed—missed a train. Very provoking! On this day, too, of all others! But send round to Fetridge's office and see if he has been heard from."

Unasked, the old clerk took upon himself the duty of messenger, and the party anxiously awaited his return. But one question and answer were interchanged meanwhile.

"His Nicaragua been quoted to-day, Stackhouse?" the little old bachelor queried.

"Yes. Offered at 9. No takers. Off a point already, you see."

The sound of footsteps and voices in the outer office announced to the anxious ear of Stackhouse the coming of Mr. Fetridge himself. The broker stepped forward.

"Well?"

It was evident at first sight that the newcomer was unduly agitated. He was a stalwart, handsome fellow, certainly not beyond 30 years of age.

"I cannot imagine where North is any more than you," he exclaimed, without waiting for question. "I walked up the street with him yesterday afternoon, after a talk in his office."

"Where did you leave him?"

Fetridge flushed and seemed considering a reply. All eyes were turned on him.

"I don't know the exact point," he said, at last. "At the corner of State and Washington streets, I think it was."

Stackhouse, who was very nervous and more affected than the occasion seemed to require, stared at Fetridge blankly, as if utterly at a loss to account for his confusion.

"His town house is closed for the summer," he suggested, his eyes still on Fetridge's face. "He must have gone to some hotel."

"Send a messenger to make the rounds!" excitedly demanded the little bachelor.

Richard Fetridge seemed to find the situation unaccountably embarrassing. He had no advice to offer. Stackhouse particularly appeared to disconcert him. Murmuring something about having left a man waiting for him at his office, and that he presumed North would be found speedily, he hastened out and betook himself in the direction of his place of business. The necessity of haste in his return, however, seemed to become less obvious to him after he reached the open air. He stood stock still with his foot upon the flight of stairs leading to his office, and then, under the stress of a sudden thought, wheeled abruptly and walked energetically back up the street.

In five minutes he was in police headquarters at Pemberton square, inquiring anxiously of the official to whom the clerk referred him whether any notification of the disappearance of Paul North had been sent to him. The official professed ignorance of the matter.

"When was he last seen, sir?"

"Yesterday afternoon about five o'clock, going up State street from his office," Fetridge rejoined, avoiding further detail. And hastened to add: "He has a town house at — Marlboro street, you know. Perhaps it isn't my place to suggest it, but don't the police in such cases have authority to enter a man's premises if—"

Fetridge hesitated. The official observed him narrowly, wondering, no doubt, why he was so obviously agitated.

"Undoubtedly; if his friends desired it, and had any reason to believe that there was anything the matter, the police would enter the house."

Fetridge thereupon urged the official to obtain permission from Thornton Stackhouse to make a search of the premises. He was unable to give any direct reason, and unwilling to put into words any definite suspicion, but he showed by his conduct that he had both. Eventually a messenger was dispatched in search of Stackhouse, who thereupon responded in person. He seemed a little surprised to see Fetridge, and the official noted that there was a constrainedness and a lack of cordiality between the two men. Their opinions, however, coincided upon the matter in question.

"By all means," said Stackhouse, "search the house in Marlboro street. It is my residence as well as North's, and I authorize you—if the men sent are discreet and trustworthy."

The official arose.

"Then I will send word at once by telephone to Station 4. You don't happen to have a key to the house about you?"

"Why, no," returned the partner. "My keys are in my wife's care at Swampscott, or I should have gone to the house myself."

The message was sent, and while the police of the fourth division were acting in accordance therewith, Stackhouse and Fetridge sat waiting at headquarters, the quiet broken only by the scratching of the busy pen of a clerk.

No. — Marlboro street was a broad, brown house, the counterpart of half a hundred other dwellings within a stone's throw of Paul North's town residence.

As the sergeant and patrolman of the fourth division neared the place they observed the outer door at the entrance and saw that all the windows in the basement and first story were barred or shuttered. Curtains, closely drawn, lent a cheerless and deserted appearance to the windows above.

"And yet," remarked the sergeant, as he went up the steps, "somebody has been here. The outer door is open; the vestibule door unlocked."

It was indeed true, and led at once to the conclusion that Paul North was within.

The officer rang the bell. But though the summons was repeated again and again it awoke no responsive life inside the darkened, echoing house. The sergeant calmly came to the conclusion that an entrance must be forced, and after a brief inspection of the premises sent Johnson, the officer, in quest of a ladder. The ladder was obtained from the nearest depository of the fire department; and the officers were soon in the rear of Paul North's residence.

It took but a minute to open the door of the yard. In another minute the ladder rested against a brick wall, and Officer Johnson, with a curious piece of flexible steel in his grasp, had pushed back the lock of a curtained window in the second story.

"A bedroom," said the sergeant, pulling up the curtain with some difficulty, when they were both inside; "bed untouched, however. Door open into that dark room in front. Other door open—to the corridor, no doubt."

The sergeant led the way through a door diagonally opposite the window by which they had gained entrance.

It was the corridor, as he had expected. He set out methodically to peer into the rooms as he went along, but he met with an obstacle at the very outset.

At the head of the broad front staircase the door refused to yield to his pressure beyond a limited degree. Officer Johnson was about to push the door vigorously when he was stopped by a warning gesture from his superior.

As the patrolman stepped back the sergeant, pressing against the door as lightly as possible, insinuated his way into the unvisited room. A half-stifled cry brought his subordinate to his side.

"Don't move it! Don't touch it!" whispered the sergeant, putting an admonitory hand on the officer's shoulder. It was by no means horror which inspired his utterance. Both men looked down upon a figure, lying with outstretched, clutching hands, close against the door.

With the caution of experience the sergeant bent down and placed his hand over the heart.

"Dead!" he said in a moment, half to himself, half to his companion, and straightened up without losing his composure.

Officer Johnson, new to the force and to this kind of experience, by no means preserved his presence of mind in the emergency, and held fast to the sergeant.

The room, seen through the twilight, had a weird, uncanny look; the tables, enswathed in their coverings, seemed coffin-shaped, and the chandelier, in its shroud of brown holland, might have been a ghost pointing down to the inanimate figure on the floor.

"What's that on the wall by the door?" whispered Officer Johnson, pointing with shaking finger.

The sergeant had opened the window almost before his companion had finished the sentence.

In the glare of the sudden instreaming sunlight on the tinted wall, low down, near the door by which the body lay, was a scrawl in dull red:

Stockhaus

"Stockhart—Stockhaus—Stockhouj!"

Thus the sergeant, as they both stared with all their eyes.

"There's a 'Stack,' or 'Stock,' written there," said the officer, positively. "Whatever the rest may mean, that much is certain."

He was still gazing at the message when he received a peremptory order to proceed to the station and notify the authorities.

"For there's a hue and cry coming out of this thing, or I'm no prophet," the sergeant said.

HOW TO DUST.

To dust a room it must be thoroughly done and that means carefully done. A feather brush or a turkey wing is an effort for brushing the backs of pictures, and one of the best wall dusters is a clean cotton mop. The furniture is dusted before the chair-board and floor. The best duster is a cotton cloth wrung out of turpentine and drier. It accumulates all dust, does not scatter it and brightens the furniture. Woolen cloths are best for the chair-board and floor.

When using polish, old stocking legs are good for applying the polish or polishing the wood. The cheap cotton ones contain little lint, are soft and serve well for this purpose. Windows may be dusted with a clean feather brush, though cheesecloth is good for polishing them; also soft tissue paper or crumbled newspapers.

If heavy furniture cannot be removed from a room, protect the pieces with sheets. A soft whisk broom answers splendidly for cleaning upholstered pieces.

A Pretty Material.

Satin charmeuse is the one fabric which seems likely to be more used than any other for evening and reception gowns this season, partly, no doubt, because of that softly clinging texture, which makes it so specially suitable for the close-fitting "fourreau" skirts of the moment, and partly, also, because it forms an ideal background for those elaborate embroideries in raised metallic tissue, which are to be seen almost without exception upon all the smartest evening frocks destined for the most important functions, and also because it drapes so exquisitely.

According to the Proverbs.

Wife—John, dear, which doctor shall I get for you? There's Dr. Brown across the street, and Dr. Joy two doors down—

ROYAL GIANTS DEFEATED BY THE PLAINFIELD A. C.

The Plainfield A. C. defeated the Royal Giants on Hope Common, yesterday afternoon, by a score of 11 to 2, in a contest that was marked by good playing on the part of the winning team. Slocum pitched his usual effective game, having eleven strikeouts and winning his eighth straigt victory. Mullen and Brown increased their batting averages, the former securing a three bagger, a two bagger and a single, while Brown made three two-base hits. Out of the seven hits made by the Giants, Howard obtained three, a two base hit and two singles. The score:

COHAN MUSICAL COMEDY AGAIN SCORES A HIT.

George M. Cohan's musical comedy success, "Fifty Miles from Boston," with a new and enlarged cast and chorus, made good with a large audience at the New Plainfield theatre last night. Though but few of the principals who were seen in the production last spring came back again, the show was even better than before and scored a sort of post-initial hit. The company is the same that has ben presenting the comedy in New York.

Last night's audience included Miss Lillian Russell, whose sister, Susanne Westford, is in this cast; Miss Blanche Bates, Miss Adelaide Thurston, and several other well known actresses, forming a box party. Another party included Mr. and Mrs. Sam Harris, the former being George M. Cohan's business partner, and Francis X. Hope, the theatrical manager.

During the afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Harris and Mr. Hope were the guests of Manager W. J. Counihan on an automobile tour of the city. It was concluded with a mushroom dinner at Pedeflous that served to increase the guests' enthusiasm over Plainfield and its environs.

JERSEY FARMERS' OUTING.

Essex, Morris and Union County Grangers Hear Speeches.

The picnic of the grangers of Essex, Morris and Union counties at Verona Lake Park yesterday was attended by 25,000 persons from all parts of North Jersey. The farmers, who came in every manner of conveyance, from truck wagons to automobiles, were protected from swindlers by special policemen, who wouldn't even let a concessionaire exhibit a trained turtle because they thought he might work a shell game on the unsuspecting grangers.

"Uplifting the farmers" speeches were made by D. H. Agans, of Ringoes, an ex-officer of the State Grange; J. D. McCracken, of Middleburg, N. Y.; J. L. Cowles, of New York, and Judge John B. Lander. The honor of being the first farmer to arrive at the picnic fell to Joseph L. Wells, of Pine Brook.

This was the twentyeighth annual picnic of the Patrons of Husbandry of Essex, Morris and Union counties, and will be followed in September by the annual exhibition of the society.

ELIZABETH PHYSICIAN SUICIDE.

Dr. Rufus B. Whitehead Kills Himself While on Fishing Trip in Maine.

Rufus B. Whitehead, an Elizabeth physician, committed suicide in his room at a hotel in Portland, Me., yesterday, by shooting himself with a revolver. No inquest was deemed necessary by the coroner.

Dr. Whitehead, accompanied by brother-in-law, Harry E. Warncke, was on his way to Belgrade, Me., on a fishing trip. Mr. Warncke left the room while the doctor was still in bed. He returned in a short time and discovered the lifeless body of his brother-in-law upon the bed. The only reason given for teh act is that Dr. Whitehead was temporarily insane from overwork. His wife and a son survive him.
a son survive him; also his father who lives at Westfield.

Mrs. Charles A. Edwards.

Mrs. Emma P. Edwards, wife of Charles A. Edwards, and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Amasa A. Goold, died yesterday afternoon at her home on Evegreen avenue, following a long illness which did not become acute until two weeks ago. On Monday an operation was performed, but the patient failed to rally andshe gradually grew weaker until the end. Mrs. Edwards had been a resident of this city since last April, her former home being in Brooklyn. The funeral service will be held at the late home on Evergreen avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and the burial will be at Hillside cemetery.

BALK ON ORANGE GAME

Orange Management Won't Agree to Play the Newark Contest Over.

STATE LEAGUE HELD UP.

Vacations of League Committee Will Tie Up Decision Until Next Month—Plainfield Ahead.

Complaints of unfair treatment by Acting Manager Percy Hand and Physical Director Henckel, of the Orange Y. M. C. A., regarding the disputed Newark-Orange baseball game, in the State league, interrupted by rain in the third inning at the Orange grounds August 8, will make it necessary for the matter to be again referred to the league baseball committee and will delay the decision as to State baseball champions until next month.

Manager C. L. Listman, of the local association nine, is chairman of the league committee, which includes L. M. Smith, of Newark, and R. Zearfoss, of Passaic. The disputed game never came before this committee for adjustment, but the decision to play the game over again was made at a conference held by Manager Listman, Manager "Pop" McDeavitt, of the Newark team, and Acting Manager Hand, of Newark. A mutual agreement was reached at this time and it was announced that the game would be played over on the Orange diamond.

Since this conference the Orange management has refused to abide by the decision, and when Mr. Listman suggested next Saturday as the date for the game the balk was made. Thomas Creed, who is chairman of the public playground commission at Orange, has written to Mr. Listman stating that the diamond was in fit condition for play at the time the umpire awarded the game to Orange because some of the Newark players had gone home during the shower.

L. M. Smith and R. Zearfoss, the other members of the league committee, are at present on their vacations and Manager Listman cannot reach them. It will therefore be necessary to wait until after September 1, when they will return and the matter will formally come up before them for final decision. Until that time the game officially stands as a victory for Orange, according to the umpire's decision, and Newark now has a record of three defeats and eight wins. Plainfield's record of eight victories and but two defeats, gives them a winning lead if the umpire's decision stands.

OFFER TO PATERSON.

Firm Would Build Sewage Disposal Plant for $2,000,000.

A New York sewage disposal company has investigated conditions at Paterson and has offered to build a disposal plant for the city for $2,000,000, the city to pay for the work when the plant is completed and in satisfactory operation.

The proposition will be further considered at a special meeting of the Board of Finance and the special sewerage committee on September 10.

Armstrong Resided in Newark.

William Armstrong, the man who was arrested in New York on Thursday, charged with stealing a diamond ring from a jewelry store, at which time he threw red pepper into the eyes of the saleswoman, and who gave his residence as Plainfield, it has since been learned resided in Newark.

Planning Two Mass Meetings.

The Republican City Committee, of Elizabeth, met last night at the county seat and discussed the political situation. It was announced that arrangements are being made to hold two large mass meetings at Elizabeth in October, to which all of the party leaders and candidates will be invited.

Double-Deck Bill Board.

The Newark Bill Posting Company is erecting a large double-deck bill board at East Third and Church streets. The upper half has been leased to Hahne & Co., of Newark, and the lower half will be used for bill posting purposes.

HOBOKEN POLICE CHIEF FINED FOR AUTO SPEEDING

Justice W. A. Houssell's famous automobile trap on the Metuchen road, which was idle for a few days after the law committee of the Automobile Club had charged that it was short in measurements, was working again yesterday, and one of the first captures of Constable Mundy was an official looking man.

"I am the chief of police of Hoboken, Martin Daab, jr., and this is William Ochsie, a State official," said one of the men.

"Our record shows that you covered a quarter mile course in twenty-five and a quarter seconds. You will have to accompany me to the judge's office," replied Constable Mundy.

"My, my, I didn't think it was in the machine," said the policeman, admiring the car.

The constable brought the men to this city, as Justice Houssell doesn't hold court at the trap since the Automobile Club criticised it, but makes the defendants come all the way to this city. The chief had to pay a $5 fine.

Thomas Reilly, of Philadelphia, said that the Pennsylvania roads are so bad that he couldn't make any time on them, and that he had been trying to make up lost time in New Jersey. His novel excuse saved him from a fine.

Justice Houssell says he is willing to co-operate in any plan that will stop the speending of automobiles on public highways, and that if the auto club does not string the banner he will do it himself.

LOCAL YOUNG MAN ACCCUSED OF FORGERY

The local police were notified by telephone from the First Precinct station in New York yesterday afternoon that Howard Armstrong, of Washington avenue, was held a prisoner at that station on a charge of forgery, preferred by his employer. Patrolman Morris Higgins informed his relatives and Arthur Denton, his cousin, went to New York on an afternoon train to learn the facts of the case.

Armstrong, who is but 15 years of age, is the son of Howard Armstrong, who dropped dead in New York about six weeks ago. He was employed in a law office. No details of the case are known.

DUNELLEN MAN WEDS FORMER BRUNSWICK WOMAN

Mrs. Lillian Gill, who was formerly Miss Lilian Biles, of New Brunswick, was married on August 8 to Walter Vliet, of Dunellen, at Waymart, Wayne county, Pa., at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Biles.

Mrs. Vliet married William Gill, of Brooklyn, in New Brunswick, at the age of 16 years. After she had lived with Mr. Gill for about seven years she found that she had made a mistake in her choice, and taking her two children returned to the home of her parents, where she has resided for the past nine or ten years. Mr. Gill did not contest the suit. Mr. and Mrs. Vliet are now living at 174 Front street, Dunellen.

Mr. Vliet is a widower with three children and Mrs. Vliet has two sons, 15 and 14 years old.

Benjamin Biles, the father of Mrs. Vliet, was employed as sexton in the First Presbyterian church at New Brunswick for about six years.

Musical Service at the Camp.

A musical service was conducted at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp last night by Captain Hopkins, of the Salvation Army Post, of this city, who taught the children a number of songs used in the army meetings. Captain Hopkins told the audience that he had traveled a great deal and heard many fine singers, but he had never heard a body of children sing as do the boys and girls of the camp. Captain and Mrs. Hopkins conducted a service at the Camp two weeks ago at which time they taught the children three songs and last night they were surprised to find that the children remembered the music and words perfectly. If possible Captain Hopkins will give the Camp another evening of music before it closes for the season. He sang several solos last night in a way that made a deep impression on the children and their mothers.

CLARENCE B. LA RUE ASPIRES TO THE ASSEMBLY

At the earnest solicitation of his many friends, Clarence B. La Rue, who has been active in the county and State local option movement, has consented to allow his name to go before the primaries of the Republican party, with which party he is affiffiliated, as a candidate for the Assembly, and a petition in his behalf is now being circulated through the county for that purpose. He has received the assurance of a great many friends that he will have their united support.

In speaking about his candidacy today, Mr. La Rue said:

"In common with hundreds and thousands of other men in this county I desire to have three men in the Assembly from Union county who will vote for a measure granting the people of the various municipalities the right to determine by their own votes whether they will have licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquor issued in their communities.

"If I am nominated and elected to the Assembly I shall work and vote for such a measure, because I believe that the right to determine this matter rests with the people, and it should be in the province of the representatives of the people to grant them the power to exercise their right. I would prefer that two other men with Assemblyman Pierce would stand for the nomination in the Republican primaries for whom the local option men can consistently cast their votes. Therefore, I stand ready at any moment as long as the opportunity is afforded to withdraw my name and work for any other candidate who will stand for this proposition."

GIRLS AT MOSCOW, PA., AID BABY CAMP FUND

A check for $2.25 for the King's Daughters' Baby Camp came to The Daily Press today from Miss Myrtle G. Simons, of Watchung avenue, who is spending the summer at Moscow, Pa. It was accompanied by the following letter:

"Editor, The Daily Press:

WHY MARTINE ACCEPTED

"Farmer-Orator" Explains His Action in Offer of Shrievalty Nomination.

COULDN'T REFUSE COMMITTEE.

Bade Him Agree to Become the Democratic Candidate and Did So With Much Reluctance.

The announcement yesterday that James E. Martine had yielded to the persuasive powers of the Union county Democrats and would once more become a candidate on the party ticket, this time for Sheriff, occasioned no little surprise from the fact that only a few days ago the "farmer orator" asserted with all the earnestness at his command that under no circumstances would he acept any kind of a nomination. His capitulation to the party leaders means that he will be named beyond all shadow of a doubt and his effort to become Dr. W. H. Lawrence's successor will make the coming campaign a much more active one than has been anticipated. Mr. Martine was interviewed today and this is what he said relative to his acceptance to the pleadings of the county committee:

"This committee has succeeded in inducing me to stand for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff, and I have signed the papers signifying my intention to be a candidate. The thought of becoming Sheriff, as I have said before, was not in conformity with my inclinations or desires. It seemed a distasteful position, a position too intimate with the miseries and afflictions of the poor, but the committee bade me accept and I do.

"I don't know what the emoluments of the office are and I don't care. I have consented to be nominated in the hope that it will help to redeem Union county to the Democracy. I realize also that while a Sheriff must perform duties repugnant and distasteful, he can do much to lighten the burden, and make easier the plight of those poor unfortunates who are forced to come in contact with his office. That have I also in mind in giving my consent.

"And though I was reluctant to accept, having now accepted I shall enter the fight earnestly and enthusiastically. If elected I will perform the duties of the office as my conscience dictates, and in the hope of loosening the chains and lightening the burdens of the people. I believe the Sheriff's office has hitherto been ruled too much by mercenary motives. I repeat, that I shall use my best efforts to be elected, and I believe with the aid of God and an enlightened humanity we shall be successful.

"I believe there are many abuses in the office that should be mitigated and if elected I shall mitigate them to the best of my ability. So far as in me lies the power I will enforce the law."

"How about the excise law?" he was asked.

"I'll enforce the laws on the statute books, and no more. The laws are here. I believe in God and my conscience, and will do as that belief dictates."

TO MEET AT ASBURY.

Democratic State Auxiliary Committee Will Hold Conference.

There will be a meeting of the Democratic State Auxiliary Committee of New Jersey, at the Coleman House, Asbury Park, on Saturday afternoon, August 29, at 430, to which the members of the Democratic State Committee, the chairman of each county committee, and the editor or representative of each of the Democratic newspapers of the State are invited to be present.

The purpose of this meeting is to hold a conference to thoroughly discuss the different phases of the campaign about to be inaugurated in this State in behalf of the Democratic ticket. Arrangements will probably be made so that those attending can have dinner together at the Coleman House after the meeting.

Funeral of Mrs. E. P. Edwards.

The funeral service of Mrs. Emma P. Edwards, wife of Charles A. Edwards, was held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the late home on Evergreen avenue. Rev. Ora J. Shoop, pastor of Grace M. E. church, conducted the service in the absence of the pastor of the family, Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, of the Congregational church. The burial was in Hillside Cemetery.

Martine to Speak at Mt. Holly.

James E. Martine left this morning for Mount Holly, where he will speak before the Burlington county Democratic convention.

COMEDY DRAMA ENLIVENS SESSION AT CITY COURT

The second act of the employes' drama, "Paid in Full," was put on at the city police court today, when Benel Perlman, until Thursday employed as a paper hanger by John Nathanson, of Watchung avenue, appeared in a powerful scene during which it developed that he cannot read and thinks his former employer has been deceiving him in the matter of receipts for wages. Perlman claims that Nathanson owes him $21.

The first act of the drama was staged on Front street yesterday morning, when Perlman tried to get an explanation from his "boss" about a receipt for wages, as Nathanson was riding his bicycle from the postoffice to his store. Mutual excitement about the matter led to blows; enter Patrolman Kelley, a double arrest act. Curtain.

The court room scene developed well the motive of the play, which is undoubtedly a problem drama. The full cast, in artisans' costume, tried to explain to the judge just how it was, but failed. In the development of the plot Perlman is painted as a strike instigator, who lost his job because of his effect upon the other employes of the painting and decorating establishment. Four of these appeared in the court room, two of whom allege that Nathansn owes them money.

A receipt shown was framed as if given by the creditor. Comedy was introduced by the efforts of an interpreter to report a continuous vocal effusion in Yidish to the judge. Just before the curtain fell, His Honor had some powerful lines, emphatically declaring the trouble a nucleus for a civil court case and suspended sentence on both parties. The third act will be staged in the district court, introducing Judge Newcorn into the cast. Francis J. Blatz did some good work in his role as Nathanson's attorney.

SUPPLY PASTORS IN LOCAL PULPITS TOMORROW

The vacation season for the pastors of the local churches is rapidly drawing to a close and within the next two weeks it is expected that they will all return for the fall and winter work. All of the city and borough churches will be occupied tomorrow by supplies as follows:

Trinity Reformed church, Rev. Dr. C. H. Tyndall, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., no evening service; First Baptist church, Rev. Dr. F. W. Lockwood, of Pittsfield, Mass., morning and evening; Park Avenue Baptist church, Rev. Asa Reed Dilts, of Lowell, Mass., no evening service; Faith chapel, Rev. H. B. Gibbons, of Daytona, Fla., morning and evening; First Presbyterian church, Rev. Dr. Clark E. Bronson, of West Hope Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, morning and evening; Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Rev. Edward Love, of this city, morning and evening; Hope chapel, Rev. Fred Conant, of New York, morning and evening; Warren chapel, Rev. Fred Newman, of Trenton, morning and evening; First M. E. church, Rev. Dr. Isaac L. Wood, of Harrisburg, Pa., morning and evening; Monroe Avenue M. E. church, Rev. B. F. Campbell, of Catasauqua, Pa., morning and evening; St. Peter's German Lutheran church, will resume services after being closed for repairs, 10:30 preaching in German, 8 in Swedish; Congregational church will be closed until September.

An Exceptional Offer.

Drake College of Plainfield is offering a trial course of one week's instruction, in one or all subjects taught by the school, without charge for books or tuition. Many young men and young women will take advantage of the offer made by Drake College, on page 8 of this paper. Drake College has an equipment second to none in this locality. A visit to this college would convince you that it would be impossible to do better elsewhere. The Fall term opens September 1, 1908. 10 per cent. discount is given to all who register this month. Register now, begin later.

Rev. Asa R. Dilts to Speak.

Rev. Asa Reed Dilts, of Lowell, Mass., former pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, this city, and who is to preach at the latter church tomorrow, will address the 4 o'clock service at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp tomorrow afternoon. B. F. Hadley, secretary of the Camp Association, will have charge of the meeting and special music, vocal and instrumental, will add to the attractiveness of the service. The mothers and children at the Camp enjoyed forty quarts of ice cream yesterday, the gift of J. D. Loizeaux.

CODDINGTON ASKS FOR WAR SINEWS

Horace Coddington, of Somerville, treasurer of the Democratic State Auxiliary Committee, yesterday sent out a call to Democrats all over New Jersey for funds to carry on Bryan's campaign in the State. The Democratic State Committee has not yet started to raise a campaign fund. Contributions from the public are also asked, and all contributions will be received with thanks, regardless of how small they may be. Mr. Coddington pledges on behalf of the auxiliary committee to account for every penny received. All funds can be sent to Horace Coddington, Somerville. The following is the call:

"The above commitmtee has opened a campaign contribution list to which it solicits small contributions to defray the ordinary and legitimate expenses of a campaign of publicity. The committee is addressing this request to you with a hope that your interest in the success of our party will prompt you to make a contribution, however small.

"The committee pledges itself to use this money for strictly campaign purposes and at the end of the campaign to make a public accounting of the same."

SHERIFF ROSS MAY OUST CARRAR FROM BARN

Although "King John" Carrar is still supreme in his barn home at Watchung Crest, Professor M. P. E. Groszmann said today that Monday will probably be the man's last day on his premises. "I have been in communication with County Sheriff Ross, of Somerville, and believe that he will come to the school and oust the fellow andhis family the first of the week. I cannot understand his actions in the matter, however, for he has been delaying about the matter. When I telephoned to him yesterday he said that he would come over, but could do nothing without a dispossess warrant. He can't get that, because I admit that Carrar is not a tenant of mine. I cannot understand borough, township or county justice. It's all too deep for me. But I know I have some rights and I'm going to get them."

MRS STRYKER'S FUNERAL.

Service at Her Late Home, Attended by a Large Gathering.

The funeral service of Mrs. Sarah D. Stryker, widow of John H. Stryker, of Somerville, was held at 1 o'clock this afternoon from her late home on East Seventh street; there being a large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. Dr. E. G. Read, pastor of the Second Reformed church, Somerville, of which Mrs. Stryker was a former member, officiated. It was expected that her recent pastor, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, would assist, but the family were unable to locate him, being out of the city on his vacation. There was a large number of beautiful floral tributes. The burial took place in the new cemetery at Somerville this afternoon, the pallbearers being Rev. C. T. Anderson, A. G. Anderson and W. W. Anderson, cousins of Mrs. Stryker, and T. B. Stryker, a brother-in-law.

Found Revolutionary Relic.

While engaged in the work of excavating North avenue above Berckman street, with a view to putting that thoroughfare to grade for macadamizing, men in the employ of N. B. & A. I. Smalley, yesterday discovered a cannon ball weighing about eight and a quarter pounds, which, upon examination, showed that it must have been hand-made. The ball is undoubtedly a relic of revoluntionary times and is in an excellent state of preservation. It was buried several feet underground. The ball is now on exhibition at Smalley Bros.' meat market on North avenue, where it has attracted the attention of many people.

Will Dedicate Elks' Home.

It is expected that 5,000 Elks will take part in the dedication of the new Elks' Home at Long Branch on Friday, August 28, and Plainfield lodge will join with the Elizabeth lodge in making the trip to Long Branch on a special train from Elizabeth over the Pennsylvania. The dedicatory exercises will be held at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, to be in charge of District Deputy Alexander Findlay, of this city. At 6 o'clock there will be a parade, to be followed by a banquet.

Henry L. Finkel for Sheriff.

At a meeting of the Union County Independence League at Elizabeth last night, Henry L. Finkel, of that city, was nominated for Sheriff.

MISS HASKIN UNHAPPY?

Borough Friends of Missing Girl Say She Hinted She Would Leave Sanatarium.

SAID SHE WAS "TIRED OF IT."

New York Woman Was Popular With Many Young Men and Some Say She Eloped.

Boroughites who were acquainted with Miss Minnie M. Haskin, who escaped from her nurse from Cooley's Sanitarium while the two were shopping at the Woodhull and Martin department store Tuesday, stated today that the young woman had hinted that she would make an effort to get away. A woman living on Manning avenue, North Plainfield, said that Miss Haskin had told her that she was tired of being "cooped up" at the sanatarium.

"There's nothing the matter with me," she is alleged to have said to this friend, "and I am only here because my father is traveling. I am going to get away, and pretty soon, too."

A possible elopement is hinted at by the fact that Miss Haskin, who was very popular with several young men, among them a stranger who owns an automobile and is said to have been a frequent visitor.

Miss Haskin is a daughter of A. R. Haskin, auditor of the American Tobacco Company. Notified of her disappearance yesterday, he is now on his way to his New York home from Iowa to assist in the search.

Miss Haskin went to the sanitarium a month ago to recover from the effect of an operation for appendicitis. A nurse accompanied her on a shopping tour Tuesday afternoon and while they were in the department store, Miss Haskin disappeared.

She took a trolley car to Elizabeth and purchased a box of lunch from a caterer. The box bearing the caterer's name was found on Wednesday morning in the hallway of the home of her uncle, J. H. Kline, at No. 53 Kelly street, the Bronx. Her father's home, at No. 853 St. Nicholas avenue, is closed for the summer. The door bell in the Kline residence is out of repair, and it is believed that when Miss Haskin failed to get any response, she departed. She was in a highly nervous condition, says her brother, Albert C. Haskin, who asked the New York police to send out a general alarm for her.

Miss Haskin is twenty-four years of age, 5 feet 2 inches in height, had blue gray eyes, prominent nose and blond hair.

VETERANS NOT AFFECTED.

Civil Service Head Sees No Peril in Law that Created Board.

Dr. Willis Fletcher Johnson, president of the State Civil Service Commission, was asked yesterday for his opinion of the probable effect of the civil service law upon the tenure of the office-holding veterans of the army. It has been suggested by some persons that the new law repeals the old law protecting Civil War veterans from removal. Dr. Johnson said:

"The subject has not been brought before the Civil Service Commission for any official action or expression of opinion, and it seems scarcely likely that it will be. Of course, I can't say what the commission would do if it were required to act upon the subject, and I cannot speak for my three colleagues. But, speaking individually, after very careful study of the subject, I have no hesitation in saying that, in my opinion, the civil service law does not repeal the veteran act and does not affect it in any way, but leaves it in full force, just as it has been ever since it was enacted.

INTERNATIONAL STRIKE.

American Girls Said Best Work Was Given to Hungarians.

Forty American girls employed at the handkerchief factory of Hermann, Aukam & Co., at South River, struck yesterday. They declared better work was given to the Hungarians in the factory than they received.

The strikers asserted that the white work, on which most money can be made, has been given the Hungarians, while to them is given the colored, soft and "sheer" stock. They said they could make only 48 cents a day, while heretofore they made from 96 cents to $1.44. The company says the girls will not be taken back. They are seeking employment at Milltown and Perth Amboy.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Smith, of Willow avenue, will leave Monday for Racquet Lake, the Adirondacks, where they will remain two months.

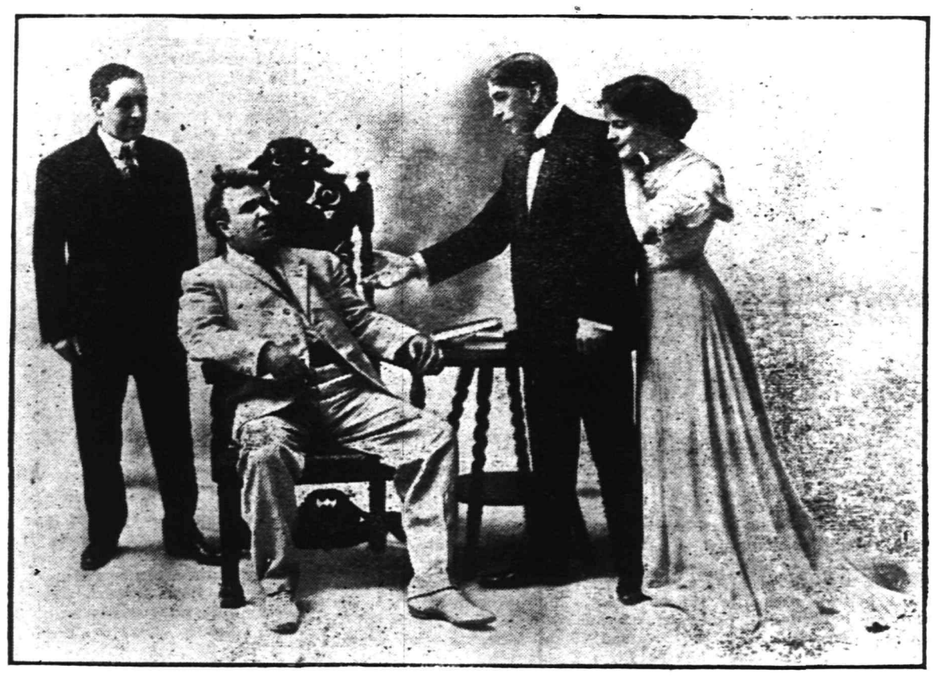
LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Bristling with new music, pretty girls and bright costumes, George Sidney will bring his new vehicle, "Busy Izzy's Boodle," to the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight. Sidney is well known to theatre-goers through his appearance the past four seasons at the head of his own company in the Hebrew characterization, which won him fame and praise throughout the country. As an impersonator of Jewish character he has no equal, and set him among a large coterie of clever comedians and the fun resulting is fast and spirited enough to draw laughter from the habitual crank.

In this day of stage realism when the most unpretentious of attractions boasts of some innovation as a thriller for its theatre patrons it is a continuous battle between rival managers to produce each season something new, and the announced attraction for the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday afternoon and night, "The Ninety and Nine," will offer a splendid bit of stage realism incidental to a well acted and well staged drama. The particular mechanical effect is a reproduction of a high modern high speed locomotive running at the rate of a mile a minute through a terrific forest fire of a very considerable newspaper notice. The original New York cast, which appeared in the run of the piece at the Academy of Music, has been engaged.

The New York Globe, in speaking of Wagenhals and Kemper's production of "Paid in Full," says: "The quality which makes 'Paid in Full' of value is its absolute fidelity to the little things in life. One might have been watching a room from which the fourth wall was removed. The characters are severely interesting. They are familiar types grouped around a familiar topic, and if the ultimate conclusion leaves something to be desired one can only further compliment the author on his faithfulness to a popular point of view. Such criticism as can be raised against 'Paid in Full' cannot be applied wholesale. We cannot close without a line to Mr. Kemper, under whose direction the play was staged. He moves in the same orbit with Mr. Belasco. There is an ease and naturalness in 'Paid in Full' which does credit to the American stage." "Paid in Full" with a brilliant cast of players will be seen at the New Plainfield theater next Thursday night. The engagement will be notable.

The gladsome spirit of young womanhood is the alluring basic note of "Commencement Days," the latest campus classic which will be revealed at the New Plainfield theatre on Saturday, August 29, and Virginia Frame and Margaret Mayo, its authors, are said to have wrought some delightful dramatic harmonies therefrom. The play is declared a very gem, reflecting most charmingly life in a typical college for girls, a locale that should offer much inspiration. Its advent here at the outset of its career, is very properly attracting wide attention and discussion. "Commencement Days" is not like some college plays, a satire, but a straight comedy, with a story and a moral. The plot, however is said not to obtrude upon the fun of the play, which is plentious and effervescent, and really its dominating feature. John Cort is the manager who presents the piece and Max Figman has looked after its staging. Mr. Cort has given the play every advantage of cast and scenic equipment, and Mr. Figman in his department, is said to have excelled his best previous work in stage direction. Among the players are Lolita Robertson, Rose Curry, Fay Wheeley, Gene LeMoit, Bertha Blanchard, Myrtle Tannehill, Maud Tannehill, Bruno Johnson, Charles H. Riegel, George Anderson, Walter Thomas, John Steppling, F. Newton Lindo, Clinton Maynard and others.



Scene from the W. Iers' stirring play, "Paid In Full," to be presented at the new Plainfield Theatre, Thursday Night, August 27.

Scene in "Ninety and Nine," at New Plainfield Theatre, Wednesday, Matinee and Night.

Miss Edna Dilts, of this city, has returned home after a visit with Miss Blanche Peebles, of Raritan.

AMUSEMENTS.

At Proctor's Newark theatre for the week of August 24. The program is fully up to Proctor standard. A partial list of those appearing are: "Our Boys in Blue," a patriotic military sensation. Seventeen soldiers in a series of spectacular maneuvers of soldier life in camp field and battle, one of the best drilled body of men in the vaudeville world today. That odd pair of comedians, Friend and Downing, will appear as "Rosenthal and Harrigan." The Three Judges will be seen in a clever acrobatic risely act. The Four Stewart Sisters, the original dancing dolls, are sure to find favor. Jules Von Tilzer will be heard in some of the latest song successes of the Von Tilzer family.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Salem has fifteen cases of typhoid fever. Sanital Inspector Bowen, of the State Board of Health, was there yesterday to investigate the cause.

Miss Caroline Nifer, of 2901 Cramer avenue, Philadelphia, a patron at the Chalfonte, Atlantic City, dropped dead returning from a bath yesterday.

A. Walter McGowan, assistant armorer of the Fourth Regiment, National Guard of New Jersey, died of Bright's disease Tuesday, at the City Hospital, Jersey City, in his sixty-fourth year.

The fourth annual field meeting of Atlantic and Camden counties Pomona Granges opened at the Hammonton Park yesterday with a large display of agricultural and horticultural products, farm implements and machinery.

Miss Ella E. Frankenbach, daughter of William L. Frankenbach, former sinking fund commissioner of Jersey City, died at Morris Plains Tuesday, after an illness of three years. The family home is 918 Summit avenue, Jersey City.

The ten-ton boiler of the bitulithic company, which was being moved from Wood street, Woodbury, to the railroad, fell off the wagon at Broad and Centre streets, yesterday, damaging the boiler considerably and retarding traffic on the main street.

Mrs. Rosanna Davidson Robbins, widow of Judge Robbins, and a member of one of the best known families in Mercer County, was found dead in bed at her home in Dutch Neck, near that place, yesterday. Mrs. Robbins was 70 years old, and death was due to apoplexy.

Mysteriously absent since Monday, on which day she left home with the avowed intention of finding employment, Mrs. Rose A. Day, 43 years old, of 380 Stevens street, is being sought by Camden detectives. Her husband told the police that she worried greatly over his enforced idleness.

With David Baird, jr., as chairman of the executive committee, the Young Men's epublican Club of Camden is mapping out a campaign to organize a first Presidential voters' club in every city, borough and township in the county and the county executive committee stands ready to lend them aid.

Unable to secure the services of any residents of the town to act as dog-catchers, the Law and Order Committee of the Hammonton Town Council secured two professionals from Camden, who made a raid upon all unmuzzled dogs found on the highway. One of the first animals captured was a pet belonging to Mayor Jackson, which cost his honor $2 to have it redeemed.

Death yesterday came suddenly to Edward Entrikin, prominent to Second Ward politics and for sixteen years a warden at the Camden county jail, at his home, 919 Carpenter street, Camden. He had just been etherized in preparation for an operation, when he gave a gasp, leaped to the floor and expired. Heart failure is given as the cause of death. Entrikin was 47 years old and leaves a widow and daughter.

Scarcely out of jail, where he was held several months as a suspect in the Jefferson murder case, Frank Williams, of Burlington, was sent back by Magistrate Smith yesterday under bail, charged with fraud. Williams got temporary employment as driver of a local ice wagon. Two weeks ago he was discharged, but the next day he visitedhis old customers on the route and, it is charged, collected for the week, the amount being about $30.

The tug Pliny Fisk had the honor of delivering yesterday the first cargo of material to be used in the construction of the great government jetties at Cape May Harbor. They were the sea anchors of stone, each weighing fifteen tons, to hold in position the barges laden with the stone for construction of the jetties, which are to extend 4,500 feet from shore. The first barge load of stone, 800 tonsfi, is now lying at the Delaware Breakwater.

"Outlawed," said Recorder Hayes in Atlantic City yesterday, when there was exhibited to him in court the bathing suit which shocked Policeman King and brought about the arrest of George B. Golliner, of New York. It was cut "V" shape back and front, and the trousers were too abbreeviated for the court for him to approve of the new style custome. A $5 fine was imposed with a warning to the New Yorker that the suit may "go" elsewhere, but not in Atlantic City.

Boy's Eyes Burned by Lime.

William Tenas, 13 years old, of 48 Quincy street, Passaic, will lose the sight of both eyes as a result of an experiment to catch fish. He conceived the idea of putting lime in a bottle, watering it, corking the bottle and dropping it where the fish were likely to be. The explosion, he thought, would force the fish out of the water and he could catch them with a net. He started the experiment yesterday afternoon, but the cork shot out as he was forcing it into the bottle, and the lime shot into his face, burning him seriously.

Mrs. Catherine Smith, of Somerville, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Weaner, of this city.

PROMPT ACTION MAY AVERT HYDROPHOBIA

Word was received at Whitehouse yesterday from the Pasteur Institute in New York that the large shepherd dog which bit Jacob Landon, a farmer, near his home at New Germantown, Tuesday morning, was suffering from rabies.

When Landon went to the institute for treatment he took the head of the dog along with him, and the examination at the institute showed the dog was infected with rabies in the worst form. Landon at once began the treatment for hydrophobia, which, it is believed, will save his life, owing to his promptness in going to the institute as soon as he could get there after the accident happened.

Landon was bitten in the right thumb while on his way to work by a strange dog, which was shot an hour later by a farmer in the neighborhood of Landon's home at New Germantown.

WON'T BURY SON'S WIFE.

Hacker Believes Boy's Assertion That He Was Not Married.

William G. Hacker, of No. 59 Winthrop avenue, Newark, father of E. Hacker, who committed suicide with the revolver with which ihis wife had killed herself on Wednesday, at their apartment, No. 400 West 118th street, visited the coroner's office in New York yesterday.

When shown a gold watch and other trinkets, Mr. Hacker said to Mr. Cassidy, the property clerk:

"I can't give you a receipt for all of that jeyelry; those chains belonged to the woman and I don't want them.

"I will bury my son, but I will have nothing to do with the body of the woman nor with any of her effects. A week ago I asked my son if he ever thought of marrying and he said he had not married and did not think he would. I never suspected that he was either married or even living with this woman. I believe my son's statemen: that he was not married."

LEGS CRUSHED, BLACK DIED IN THE HOSPITAL

Frederick Black, 28 years old, residing at 22 Little Smith street, Elizabeth, was fatally injured last night. He was struck by an express train of the New Jersey Central railroad at Division street crossing.

Both legs were crushed. He died from shock and loss of blood at 11 o'clock last night in the Alexian Hospital.

He was a driver in the employ of Charles Eilbacher & Co., builders. A widow survives him. He was married only four weeks ago.

Marquard, the great twirler of the Indianapolis team, who has been acquired by the Giants, will not report to New York until the status of the Indianapolis team in the race for the American Association pennant is established fully.

"Abe" Kruger, of the Uniontown (Pa.) team, said to be a pitcher of remarkable ability, has been purchased by Brooklyn. Out of thirty games pitched this season he has won twenty-seven, lost two and tied one.

Teams wanting to schedule games with the Netherwood Juniors, aged 9 to 12 years, are requested to address Manager Walter E. Hankinson, 1126 Midway avenue.

The Netherwood Juniors defeated the Johnston Sluggers Thursday afternoon by a score of 18 to 17. The Netherwood Juniors claim that as soon as they got one run ahead of their opponents the latter wanted to stop playing. The Netherwood Juniors also defeated Plainfield A. C. seconds, 12 to 0, yesterday.

The big local attraction in baseball today is the Clinton Avenue-Scotch Plains contest at Crescent Oval. The game will be for blood and both teams will be in top-notch condition for the battle.

Clifford Randolph will try and fool the Plains batters at Crescent Oval this afternoon, and he will be ably supported by Boelzley behind the rubber, as well as every other member of the team.

Manager Listman will take his Y. M. C. A. colts to Dunellen this afternoon and try conclusions with the team at that place. Peacock will probably pitch for the Plainfield aggregation.

Two victories for the Yankees in one week is almost too much for the supporters of the team and some even doubt whether the players will recover in time to win another contest this season.

The Yankees have signed thirteen new players during the past two weeks, almost a record for an American League team.

On Saturday, August 29, the Clinton Avenues will play the West Ends at Somerville. Since these teams met here the county seat boys have been considerably strengthened and are playing fast ball.

The fast Pennington team will meet the West Ends at Somerville, next to the Clinton Avenues, this team is about the hardest proposition for the Somervillians, but they expect to turn the tables today.

"Jimmie" Montross is making a fine record at Somerville this season and his work shows that he has been able to do more than "Flyck" Luyster, the leaguer, who twirled a few games for Manager Conklin. He has not lost a game since joining the team this year.

The Y. M. C. A. team has several good games scheduled for the balance of season, including one with Somerville at the latter place on Labor Day.

GOLF.

Much to the surprise of Plainfielders who are interested in golf, local players are not figuring in the big tournament at Deal this week. Heretofore there has always been a good representation from this city.

The attraction at the Plainfield Country Club today will be a kickers' handicap and undoubtedly a good many players will take part in the competition.

At the Park Golf Club this afternoon there will be the weekly competition for the President's and Golf Club trophies and the scheduled play for the challenge cups, which have been attracting large fields this season.

T. M. Sherman, of Utica, a son of the Republican Vice-Presidential nominee, is one of the contestants in the golf tourney at Deal. Four years ago he won the event.

There were 184 entries in the golf tournament at Deal, which started Thursday. What the total would have been had the bars been down to all, it is hard to say, but probably considerably in excess of last year's record notch of 220

According to the new ruling under which the golf tournament at Deal was conducted this week, the field contains only metropolitan players, whose names appear on this season's rating list, and amateurs from distant points, who are rated at eight or better on their home courses, naturally imparted class to the affair.

C. B. Morgan, one of the best players at the Plainfield Country Club, has been enjoying a couple of weeks' vacation, and has been missed from the local course during that time.

Dr. H. K. Carroll still continues to play a good game of golf at the Park Golf Club, where he takes part in the weekly competitions on the course. Rev. C. L. Goodrich, another frequent visitor to the course, is now on his vacation and is missed by his fellow players. He will return home September 1 and will then continue to play as before.

JAMES EDGAR MARTINE.

James E. Martine's loyalty to the Democratic party has for years past been put to the test times without number. In season and out of season, as a candidate for various offices, and as a private in the ranks, he has labored incessantly, indefatigably, for the success of the body politic whose cause he espouses, and whose tenents he proclaims. If ever a champion has earned the unquestioned right to seek his ease, lay aside his armor, and rest him from "the heat and burden of the day," Mr. Martine is that man, and yet once again his party summons him to stand for office; this time for an office, the very nature of which must be distasteful to him and his unswerving devotion prompts him to disregard his preferences and plunge anew into the thick of the fray. It is a signal sacrifice which is demanded of him in this Presidential year; to stand for the Shrievalty in a strongly Republican county; to try results with an opponent who presumably will come from the county seat and is everywhere popular; and a man of less determination of character than that possessed by Mr. Martine, might well plead his long record of past services and sacrifices for his party as an excuse for refusing a further summons. He is, however, not that stripe of man, as all who know him can well testify, and the next two months will witness him swinging around the circle with all the vim, the dash and the energy which have ever characterized him in his political battles.

Whatever may be the idea of Union county citizens as to Mr. Martine's wisdom in accepting this latest call to duty, all must without exception grant that his so doing furnishes an example of loyalty to conviction and disregard of self, the like of which has not been seen among us in this day and generation.

"RECOGNITION IN HEAVEN."

Sixth of a Series on Heaven by

REV. DR. CHARLES E. HERRING

One of the most deeply rooted longings of the human heart is the desire to meet friends and loved ones who have preceded us into the heavenly world;—true, the young man does not meditate much upon this subject. He is ambitious and hopeful for his life,—but the time comes in every man's experience when his friends and dear ones slip away from him and their life is never the same again. We make other friends but these never fill the gap. The only thing that satisfies us then is the hope that the separation is only for a time. Will it be that in heaven we shall love all alike, or will we be devoted to those whom we have been devoted here? Shall we recognize our own in that world? Will they know and be interested in us?

We do believe in future recognition. Firstly, because such a belief is so natural to the human heart, and we can positively assert that where there is any great longing to which all humanity bears testimony, it must be true. This longing to meet particular persons in the other world is universal. Socrates believed in the heavenly world; but the joy of that world to him consisted in meeting Homer, Hesiod and Orpheus. He declared that he would be willing to suffer many a death for such a privilege. Cicero hoped to meet Cato there, and the Hindu wife threw herself on the funeral pyre of her dead husband that she might continue to be his companion in the other world. Men have always and everywhere hoped that there might be recognition in the other life.

Secondly, this longing is not only natural to the human heart; it becomes more intense as the years pass and as we approach heaven's borderland. When Browning was dying, he exclaimed, "Oh thou soul of my soul, I shall clasp thee yet again, and with God be the rest." His last thought was that he might meet her whom he loved devotedly on earth. He believed that she would be his companion in the heavenly world. Why not? Is that life not a continuation of this? What is death? Simply a passing over. A passing out of one room of the Father's house into a larger room. We shall not take across the border our material possessions, but we shall take our character and our hallowed longings, and God will satisfy them. Your great desire is to meet that soul who was everything to you on earth. She has passed over; but she is still dear to you;—yes, dearer—as the years pass that love grows more intense. Shall it be that death will miraculously change your nature so that you will lose you interest in her? Never! We can never forget our dear ones who have gone before. They are the ones your soul craves to see. Do you imagine that God who has implanted such a longing in every heart will disappoint our expectation? "No, we shall love them better after death." Browning said regarding the death of a friend: "In a short time we shall be together again, for our life would be poor indeed, but for that hope."

Thirdly, there shall be recognition in the future world because we shall still be human beings there. We shall not be transformed into angels. Heaven will be a human sort of place, and for just that reason will perfectly satisfy us. It will be the place of glorified humanity.

Remember that our Lord said, "I go to prepare a place for you." If there is no such thing as future recognition, I fear that it will be no place for us. God does not develop faculties in us here which shall be destroyed in the other world. We shall take with us our memories, our holy loves, and interests, for they are eternal. Whatever the transformation in the other life may be, we shall still preserve our personal identity.

Fourthly, our Lord said that He came not to destroy but to fulfill. That was said of the great eternal truths of the Old Testament, but it can be applied to everything that Christ touched. He came not to destroy these longings of human nature but to elevate and sanctify them.

"It was an early Christian custom," says Neander, "to celebrate the anniversary of the death of friends in a manner suited to Christian faith and hope. It was usual on this day to partake of the communion under a sense of the inseparable fellowship with those who died in the Lord. A gift was laid on the altar, in their name as if they were still living members of the church." Why? because their death-day was regarded as their birthday. Neander further says: "Christianity mitigated and refined the anguish of sorrow by the spirit of faith and hope, and of child-like resignation to that eternal love which takes in order to restore what it has taken, under a more glorious form, which separates for the moment in order to reunite the separated in a glorious state through eternity."

Heavenly recognition is a truth of the human heart, and when God's truths are written so indelibly on the human heart, Scripture does not labor to prove them. It takes them for granted. Scripture does not labor to prove the existence of God or the immortality of the human soul. These are intuitive convictions, God writes on the human heart the great truth of heavenly recognition. There must be a God for our heart tells us. There must be heavenly recognition for the same reason. Some one has said: "If I could be sure of the future and could know my dear ones would greet me with undiminished love, my tears would be like the rain cloud on which the sun shines and makes the rainbow."

Two men were riding one cold day up the mountain side, amid the most beautiful scenery. The day was clear and over the snow covered ridge the sun shone with great splendor. It was very natural that the thought of the men should turn to the great Beyond—but that brought home to one of the men the loss of his child. "Gone, gone," he said. "Not far away though," was the response of the other man, "you shall see her again in the brighter land." "If I only could believe that," he replied, "nine-tenths of the burden would be removed." Then the joys of this life were but the one tenth. If he could meet that little girl again nine-tenths of the burden would be removed. He craved for what? Heaven with its glorious company of the angels? No, he was a father and had a father's love. We can hardly think that that will be changed in the other world. His great desire was to meet his own little girl. Can we conceive of the Heavenly Father not granting that request?

Contrast that lack of faith with the faith of a man who dedicated his book, "The Life Beyond Death," to his son Phil, who had passed over into the other room. In that dedication there was a message to his boy, a message which he believed his boy could see and understand. The ambition of that father was not to meet Moses and Elias or Paul, but to meet his own dear boy. That would be heaven for him. I cannot think that God will disappoint this longing. No, no. Christ came not to destroy our holy love. He came to complete and sanctify it.

Alas for him who never sees
The stars shine through his cypress tree!
Who hath not learned in hours of faith
The truth to flesh and sense unknown
That life is ever lord of death
And love can never lose its own.

ADVICE TO THE YOUNG HOUSEKEEPER

Take your servant into your confidence. Tell her frankly that you cannot afford luxuries; make her take an interest in keeping down the weekly books, a pride in managing without the many things you cannot conveniently afford.

And you have no idea how much a willing maid can save both in kitchen utensils and in the actual food consumed, for if you inculcate into her this necessity of saving every scrap and congratulate her warmly when she makes some inexpensive but savory dish out of her own head, you cannot conceive how enthusiastic about economy she will become. As a further stimulus start a cookery book, in which every particularly dainty and economical dish emanating from the brain of mistress or maid has a place, and you will find in her anxiety to fill its pages the little maid will probably excel herself.

It is better for a young wife with limited means to keep a good general rather than two inexperienced maids. For, apart from the damage wrought by an incompetent servant, there is no doubt that, as a rule, the single-handed servant-maid takes an infinitely greater interest in her employers and their affairs than one of two.

Of course, if times are really bad, it is essential that everyone should combine in their effort to keep expenses down, from the master to the maid—but monsieur frequently overlooks his share in this matter, and only grumbles at his bills instead of trying to lessen his expenditures.

And there are so many little ways in which he can help—fewer smokes, no liquor, and a certain consideration in the matter of collars and shirts.

And the moral effect of these sacrifices is immense, for if the maids realize that the master is trying to save it will impress them infinitely more than if the mistress has to do it all.

Another danger against which the young wife must be on her guard is the temptation to entertain too much; for the new centres, dainty napery and immaculate silver all cry aloud to be admired. But, little wife, having people in, even quietly, costs money; and if you have owned up from the first to being poor, nothing is expected of you beyond an occasional cup of tea, whereas, if you once begin having people to dinner it is exceedingly difficult to draw the line, and before you quite realize your position you may find yourself involved in a series of entertainments you cannot possibly afford. And though by spending every penny you possess you might entertain just as much as your neighbors, the scarcity of ready money would soon cause you infinite anxiety, and some day when the need was urgent you would suffer agonies of remorse over your past follies.

RELIABLE RECIPES FOR THE CHERRY SEASON.

Spiced Cherries—Boil three cupfuls of cider vinegar with one ounce of stick cinnamon and one ounce of cloves, each tied in a bag. Then add four and a half pounds of granulated sugar and boil ten minutes more, skimming well. Put in seven pounds of stoned cherries and cook slowly for thirty minutes; lift out the fruit with a skimmer and boil the syrup down until it is thick. Pour the cherries into jars and keep hot, add the syrup, then close and seal. These are very nice with cold meats.

Cherry Tapioca—Two ounces of tapioca, one pound of ripe cherries, three heaping tablespoonfuls of sugar. Soak the tapioca for an hour or so in enough cold water to cover it. Then put it in a saucepan with about one pinnt of boiling water. Simmer very slowly till the tapioca is quite cooked. Stalk and stone the cherries, add them, with the sugar, to the tapioca. Cook till fruit is tender. Pour it into a glass dish or mold, and let it get cold. Serve with milk or whipped cream.

Cherry and Cheese Salad—Beat cream cheese with a little olive oil, pepper and salt till light and creamy; form into small balls, putting in the middle of each one a sour cherry that has had the pit removed, the ball of cheese concealing the cherry may then be placed on a square saltine or any thin wafer, or it may be placed on a round of toast bread, or bread that has been fried to a golden brown. All around the ball of cheese "pipe" a stiff maponnaise dressing that has been colored green, arranging it in a pretty pattern; serve very cold on little plates.

Cherry Bounce—Mix together six pounds of large black heart cherries and six pounds of ripe Morello cherries. Place them in a wooden bowl and mash them so as to crack all the stones. Add three pounds of lump sugar, mix and put them into a large stone jar. Pour in two gallons of the best rectified whiskey. Cork the jar up tightly, and let it stand three months, shaking every day during the first month. At the end of three months strain and bottle the liquor. The flavor improves by age.

Cherry Water Ice—Stalk and stone the cherries and pound the kernels in a motar. Pass them through a seive together with the fruit. Allow a quarter pound of sugar to each half pint of pulp and add finally a littlel emon juice. Freeze in the usual way. The flavor of the kernels should be rather pronounced, and if not strong enough a few drops of almond extract or kirschwassed will improve it.

Canned Cherries—Stone the cherries, and if Morello or pie cherries are used, allow half a pound of sugar to every pound of cherries. Put the cherries into a porcelain-lined kettle, cover them with the sugar and allow to stand for two hours, then place over a moderate fire and bring to boiling point. Skim and can at once.

EARRINGS OF TODAY AND OF YESTERDAY.

Critics who called the earring a relic of barbarism, and otherwise slandered it in days of its disfavor, must be having a hard time now. It has been creeping back into popularity for several seasons, but now it has arrived. It also seems inclined to stay.

Americans are not quite so wedded to it as are English and Latin women, but we now sport the most fetching varieties, from the immense gypsy ring of dull gold or silver to the stud ring of rare pearl.

The gypsy rings are startling, even in their modest forms; but when they are seen in the shape of great hoops of hammered gold set with emeralds, with one danging emerald in centre, they need castanets and cards along with them.

When colored stones, as the emerald, ruby or turquoise, are worn, they are usually of the screw type, and most becoming if chosen with an eye to the complexion. The large single stones in pearl or lozenge shape, either set flat in narrow gold rims or surrounded by tiny diamonds, are the chief favorites.

There are also earrings quite in keeping with the popular classical tunics and Greek filets and coiffures. The artistic Etruscan or Greek earrings are copied in beautiful gold work, some burnished or frosted, others built of three tones of gold, green, deep yellow and pale lemon.

One pair has long pearl-shaped lobes of the palest gold, covered with a repousse design in the two deeper tones, highly burnished. Another classical pair is winged angels, in the pure Greek type.

One of the most unique of these revivals is the "Lustre" earrings. This has a solitaire diamond from which hang trembling gems by links of small diamonds that fall almost to the shoulders and away back and forth with every movement of the wearer's head.

That vain and luxury loving Queen Elizabeth of England always had rich jewels dangling from her ears above her enormous ruffs. Her favorite jewels were pearls to go with her ruddy looks, and one of the noted pictures of her by Zucchero, shows her with two large pearls in each ear with a third and larger one dangling from it.

With such royal favor ancient and modern the present prestige of the earrings has good backing. What if men scoff and call it a reversion to barbarism? It was in the most foppish age that they wore earrings themselves. Indeed, they might be doing so yet had not the Puritans put an end to these and other masculine baubles right after the Restoration.

Quite famous were a pair of magnificent diamond earrings belonging to James I., gay and adored "Steenie," while one of the portraits of Charles I. showed his melancholy countenance between long drop pearl earrings.

Some of the sportiest of the Cavaliers who surrounded the "Merry Monarch" used to wear one earring instead of two, just as the Englishman of today wears his monocle.

BOX PLANTS NEED MUCH ATTENTION.

When the window and porches are filled with a selection of plants they will demand mort attention than those int he yard. It is a good idea to have the plants placed in shallow zinc pans, with moss packed around them at the base. This will keep the flowers damp much longer, and is helpful in summer when the crocks get very hot from coming in contact with the hot sunshine during the heated portion of the day. It is not advisable to cover the earth with moss, though his can be done if one is liable to be away from home for several days, for the moss will retain moisture a long time. The most successful window boxes are those that shield the roots of plants. Some have a screen around the box, which holds moss next to the box; others have moss packed into the pans. It must occasionally be removed, cleaned and replaced. Tan bark is also used to fill pans, also sifted pebbles and frequently sand.

Soft Silk Belts.

Waist belts are especially pleasing this season, particularly the soft silk designs with a floral pattern of mauve and purple orchids, finished with a square buckle in dull gold. Other effective waist belts are in heavily plaited silk, with enamel buckles to tone, while another noticeable design is shown in the band of embroidered beading threaded with soft satin ribbon.

Expensive, Anyway.

"I suppose," said the bachelor, "'tis mighty expensive to have your child sick in bed so long?"

"Yes," replied Phamliman, "but then if he were well and hearty he'd be wearing out c ltohes."—Philadelphia Press.

FARM REFORMS.

We've been investigated down to Pohick on the Crick,
An' I reckon that reform will strike us farmers purty quick;
We want the chickens taught to lay an egg, just as they should,
'Thout settin' up a crackle that'll wake the neighborhood.
We want the pigs to break away from customs of the past
An' learn to use a finger bowl and not to eat so fast;
And cows should be persuaded not to overturn the pails
When milkin' time comes round, an' not be switchin' of their tails.

We ought to make arrangements with the weather bureau, too,
For havin' rain turned on or off, accordin' as it's due;
It's a mighty glorious feelin' to be lookin' toward the day
When we'll give up all bothers of our plain old-fashioned way
When we'll sit up on a fence rail in some cool an' shady nook
An' help the corn an' 'taters grow by readin' from a book.
We've rolled our shirt sleeves down; nobody wants to do a lick
Until this farm reform has hit at Pohick on the Crick.

—Washington Star.

OF CASUAL CONCERN.

In order to encourage thrift among its employes the Northeastern Railway Company some years ago established a savings bank at which deposits as low as sixpence are received, 4 per cent. interest being paid on account up to £200 and 2½ per cent. on sums in excess of that amount. Last year 1,040 new accounts were opened and £104,672 deposited. The total amount now standing to the credit of 11,003 depositors is £893,762, representing an average sum of £81 4s. 6d. for each depositor.

It is said to be owed to the frogs of Western Australia that that part of the empire is English and not French. About 1800 a party of prospective French colonists landed on the west coast of Australia, but on the first morning they were alarmed by the loud croaking of the frogs, which they took for demons, and retired with all speed to their ships. Western Australia might have preferred the frog to the swan as her emblem, just as Rome might have preferred, instead of the eagle, the goose that saved the capital.

Most people will not be surprised to hear that no sort of bird, beast or creeping thing will touch a castor-oil plant. It seems to be a rank poison to all the animal world. Even a goat will starve before biting off a leaf, and a horse will sniff at it and turn up his upper lip as though it has the most detestable odor on the face of the earth. Army worms and locusts will pass it by, though they may eat every other green thing in sight, and there is no surer way to drive moles away from a lawn than to plant a few castor beans here and there. Even the tobacco worm will refuse to be fed on its leaves. There is hardly another instance in natural history of a plant being so universally detested by the animal world.

Following the Pan-Anglican, another great congress is to assemble in London this summer. This is the Eucharistic Congress, which was first held at Avignon in 1882. It will be the greatest gathering of Roman Catholic ecclesiastics ever seen in England. The Duke of Norfolk is president of the reception committee, which is making preparations to provide suitable accommodations for the large number of clergy who will attend. There will be present several cardinals from the United States, Rome, Spain, Germany, France, Belgium and other countries. The special preacher at Westminster Cathedral will be Cardinal Gibbons.

The Japanese were acquainted with iron from very early times. A sword that was used by one of the ancestors of the present Emperor about 800 B. C. is still in existence. Later, when the great civil war broke out in the sixth century, sword smiths and armor smits came to occupy a prominent place. Many interesting stories are connected with sword smiths, although this is no place to go into these. From this time to about 300 years ago, no noticeable progress had been made. At the beginning of the seventeenth century, when the Tokugawa dynasty came into possession of the political power and peace was restored, all branches of industry began to prosper. The demand for iron implements increased and the scarcity of iron supply began to be felt.

The Yankee Character.

A New England clergyman was taking breakfast one Sunday morning in a hotel in a little Western town. A rough old fellow across the table called to him: "Goin' to the races, stranger?"

The clergyman replied: "I don't expect to."

"Goin' to the ball game?"

"No."

"Well, where are you goin'?"

"I'm going to church?"

"Where did you come from?"

"New England."

"Oh, that explains it! That's where they keep the Sabbath and every other blamed thing they can lay their hands on."—The Argonaut.

CHAPTER II.

A PERFUME—AS OF A WOMAN.

Sergt. Parr continued, nevertheless, a careful scrutiny of the apartment. It was beyond doubt a library, for the backs of books showed behind the sheets that covered certain articles of large bulk. The adjoining room was in all probability the sleeping chamber of the master of the house. A casual inspection satisfied the officer that the bed had not been occupied since it was last made up.

But there was something more important still in the sergeant's estimation to be ascertained, and on that he had ample time to reach a settled conviction. It was evident at first sight that the man on the floor had come to his death by reason of a bullet wound. If his own hand had been responsible for the deed, the suicidal weapon must be somewhere about. And as a careful search failed to reveal any trace of such a weapon, the sergeant had made up his mind long previous to the arrival of the investigating party that the case was a very serious one and involved at the outset a deep mystery.

The scene soon changed. The room gradually filled with alert and dignified men, whose profession made their attendance at such times a matter of too frequent occurrence to permit of their exhibiting any other sentiment in the presence of the grim witness of violent death than a keen and speculative business interest. In the vestibule below two officers were stationed to challenge everybody who attempted to enter the house. Already in front of the building, so quickly and mysteriously does evil news disseminate itself, was gathered a throng which stared with fascinated horror at the upper windows and at every fresh ingoer and outcomer.

Sergt. Parr had long since recognized Inspector Applebee, and had whispered in his ear that it was going to be a "big case."

"So?" said the inspector, lifting his eyebrows and half smiling. A moment later he was grave and apparently unconcerned.

Dr. Jarrett, the medical examiner for the district in which the body was found, came to the scene in a carriage. Till he arrived nothing was done. The state imposes upon the judgment and good sense of these officials grave responsibilities. In three minutes after his horse stopped in front of the house Dr. Jarrett was at work examining, questioning, weighing the evidences in his own mind.

The casual observer would have looked in vain among these quiet officials for the inevitable reporter. Evidently the newspaper man was barred out! Not at all. The public who look for a notebook, and expect to find in such circumstances a meddlesome young man writing with ghoul-like activity, would never have suspected the short, thick-set, black-haired, gentlemanly young man who talked with each person present in an easy way, which showed that he was personally acquainted with everyone. Instead of flourishing a notebook—the insignia of the property reporter of the theater, and of the beginners in the profession—this man had no better use for his hands than a mechanical fondling of the pendant to his watch chain—a trick which in some mysterious manner seemed to help him to think. Although he was young, his experience in criminal affairs, combined with his natural ability, had made his sagacity equal to that of anybody present, while his trustworthiness and reliability enabled him to be oftentimes in important cases a confidant of the authorities. This was Kingman F. Thomas, of the Globe.

The medical examiner arose from a brief inspection of the body, which was already identified as that of Paul North, the State street financier. Everybody looked at him curiously, but his imperturbable face told no tales.

"Nothing has been disturbed?" he asked of the sergeant.

"We know our business, sir. Everything is exactly as we found it."

"Ah!" No more and no less, came in a matter-of-fact tone from the medical examiner's lips.

"Well, doctor," said Mr. Thomas, "how is it?"

"I shall perform an autopsy."

This was said quietly. The medical examiner refrained from advancing his opinion at this stage, but Thomas understood that the determination to perform an autopsy indicated serious suspicion on the physician's part.

There was a tremulous touch on his shoulder, and he turned to meet the eyes of a man whom he did not know.

"What—what is that writing on the wall down there by the door?" asked a shaking voice.

"This is a friend of the family, doctor," interposed Inspector Applebee, by way of accounting for this unfamiliar presence there. "He was Mr. North's partner. Naturally he is very much overcome."

In tones that were a trifle steadier Mr. Stackhouse repeated his question. Bending down to seek an answer himself, he started back, and would have fallen but for the opportune aid of the newspaper man.

"A horrible sight! I cannot look at it," he muttered, putting his hand over his eyes. "Tell me what you make it out!"

A glance of intelligence passed between the inspector and the sergeant. Each divined perfectly what had brought such a shock to the mind of Paul North's partner. Each understood fully the man's unspoken fear.

Meanwhile Dr. Jarrett, applying certain mysterious tests, seemed more intent upon determining the medium of this strange message than the message itself.

"Written in blood," he said, eventually, looking steadily at Stackhouse; "and the condition of the forefinger of the right hand seems to indicate that the dead man wrote it." He paused and Stackhouse sank into a chair. "But what odds? The writing will endure, gentlemen. We have other things to do."

He gave the inspector a meaning look and resumed his work. Thomas lost not a detail of this scene.

But now, with Inspector Applebee as his close companion, the library and the adjoining room were examined minutely.

The room had been used very recently. Regarding that point, there was no possibility of doubt.

Chairs had been moved from their accustomed places. On the opened desk, which Mr. Stackhouse at once identified as his partner's, stood, amid a heap of tumbled papers, a drop light. Near by, a burnt match. Obviously the windows had not been touched.

The adjoining room, vouched for as Paul North's chamber by his partner, soon recovering his self-control, bore no traces of occupancy. As the door was open between it and the library, it was plain that the master of the house must have passed through the room. He had not slept there, for the bed's surface was unruffled, and not a fold of the pillows had been disturbed.

"One thing is evident," said Thomas. "This man was not killed for money. I saw the doctor take a well-filled pocketbook from his person, and not a thing in the house appears to have been disturbed."

A call from Dr. Jarrett summoned the two men back into the chamber of death.

"You had better look for the bullet, gentlemen," he said, quietly. "It is evident that it went clear through him, and it is surely nowhere about his clothing."

Instantly everybody was examining the room, the furniture, the walls, the carpet. But for some time, it appeared that the ball had been spirited away as mysteriously as the fatal weapon from which it had been fired.

"Hallo!" exclaimed Thomas, suddenly, as he pointed to the wall, "what's that up there above that picture?"

Thomas was pointing to a slight protuberance in the surface of the wall, directly opposite the bay-window, near the ceiling.

"What, that?" exclaimed the inspector. "Impossible! It is quite ten feet away from the floor."

"But it's a bullet, none the less," said Thomas, who had already mounted on a chair and began to ascertain the distance of the puncture above the carpet.

"You are right, inspector," he said. "It is nine feet eleven inches from the floor, and is driven in diagonally, as if it had been fired from the corner of the bay-window over there near the writing-desk."

"I can't understand that at all," said the inspector. "It must have been deflected in its course somehow to have got there. The man was evidently shot in the breast. His clothes in front are simply one mass of blood. Ah! I see there was more than one shot fired. This is a stray ball."

The house was searched from top to bottom. Nowhere was any trace of intrusion.

"If Mr. North slept here at all last night," said the inspector, "it must have been in his chair in his library."

Dr. Jarrett assented. Sergt. Parr, who had been notified from the fourth division that he need no longer remain on duty in the place, willingly volunteered to take, as he went out, a message to the captain in charge of the division.

"I have sent for an ambulance," Dr. Jarrett explained to the group that surrounded him in Paul North's chamber. "The body will be taken to the morgue, and I will hold an autopsy at once. As Mr. North's partner is here, I will waive the usual formalities and state beforehand that there is little doubt that an inquest will take place, though I would ask reporters not to make any such direct announcement."

Mr. Stackhouse bowed.

"I quite understand, sir," he said, "and whatever testimony I can give I shall offer most willingly. But now I feel that I should take the terrible news to the family—my wife, you know, was Mr. North's daughter."

As Mr. Stackhouse went his way up the shady side of Marlboro street an initiated observer would hardly have failed to note that another man followed in his wake upon the opposite pavement.

The quiet reporter meanwhile had busied himself in making a diagram of the second story of the North house, which appeared the next morning in his paper in substantially the following form:

Thomas sat cross-legged on one of the chairs in the unoccupied chamber through which the officers had originally entered, making a rough sketch on the back of an envelope with a stubby pencil, when he was slightly startled by the unexpected presence of a man at his elbow.

"Well, Thomas?"

"Ah, inspector."

"How does it look to you?"

"Queer."

"What are you going to say about it?"

"That it's a dead mystery—unless we make some unexpected discovery in the next half hour."

"Well, may be you're right. May be."

"It's no suicide," said Thomas, affably; "that's plain enough. And as there has been no robbery, it doesn't appear as yet why he should have been killed."

"No?"

"But of course you have your theory already?"

"When it comes to the matter of theories," returned Applebee, mischievously, "a plain policeman like myself can't hold a candle to you newspaper fellows."

"I see, you don't intend to answer questions," said Thomas. "I suppose I may state that the police are already on the track of the murderer, and that important arrests are momentarily expected?"

"State what you please. You will, anyway," the inspector returned, with a slight frown. "No, I didn't come to answer questions, as you say. I came to ask them."

"Better than nothing. What are they?"

"In the first place, did you know North?"

"Just to the same extent that I know hundreds of men. I have seen him, talked with him—you know how and where."

"In the line of your work, you mean?"

"Exactly."

"Then, as to his family?"

"They tell me he has two daughters; both beauties. I never saw them, however. His wife, I believe, is dead."

"How did he stand in financial circles?"

Thomas uttered a contemptuous laugh.

"North & Stackhouse? Ask any broker."

"Bad?"

"Better put it that they showed too much enterprise to please conservative business men. That's the most charitable construction I can put on it."

"Humph! You have not a very high opinion of North & Stackhouse?"

Thomas shrugged his shoulders.

"Socially, they're gentlemen. Men who handle millions can never come down to the level of common thieves."

"They must be, then, enormously rich?"

"On the contrary, they are regarded as extremely shaky."

"So? And what have they done with these millions?"

"Got caught in their own trap. An unexpected twist in the market burnt their hands off. Oh, it's all the same in stocks. You can think yourself ever so clever—but I'm talking too much, inspector. I am saying things on my mere surmises that no newspaper would dare to print. Still, you wanted my opinion, and you have it. It would be of no use, I suppose, to ask yours in return?"

Thomas gave Applebee a keen look, under the influence of which the inspector momentarily closed his eyes, as if afraid that the reporter might surprise his thoughts there.

"Some clients of North & Stackhouse have no very pleasant feelings towards them, I presume, on account of this Nicaragua scheme?" he adroitly queried, as if to change the subject. It was adroit for that reason. While appearing to avoid a direct answer, he was, in reality, putting the very question which he desired to have answered.

Did the reporter suspect? There was not the faintest indication, either in his manner or in his quiet reply, that he did.

"Some of the poor fools who invested their money in that scheme would very likely hold the firm morally responsible for ruining them."

"Ah!" said the inspector, as he turned away. "I suppose so. But I'm forgetting my case in listening to you."

The fact was Inspector Applebee was endeavoring to establish some connection between the anonymous threatening letter which, ten days before, had been placed in his hands by the late Paul North, and this violent death.

"But, in that case," he thought, "why has not the money been called for at the post office? Is it possible that the writer of that letter was in a position to know that the matter had been placed in my hands? I must move cautiously in this affair or ruin it at the outset."

Not long after Mr. Thomas' departure most of Applebee's associates left the house, the medical examiner going first of all.

Paul North's body had been taken away in the undertaker's wagon, but the inspector and one officer still remained on the premises.

Quite by accident, as he was coming down the staircase which connected the library floor with the story above, after a prowl through the darkened rooms in the upper part of the house, the inspector's eye caught the gleam of something white.

He picked it up.

It was a tiny lace handkerchief, such as a dainty woman often carries, but a man never. This was the thought that flashed through the inspector's mind, to give place instantly to another.

IT WAS A TINY LACE HANDKERCHIEF

That subtle, delicate perfume! In all his long experience Inspector Applebee had never inhaled its like.

"Ah!" he thought as he held up the filmly lace and looked at it more closely. "But I might have known it from the first. A woman in the case!"

CHAPTER III.

MR. LAMM ASSUMES COMPLICATED RELATIONS.

About two o'clock in the afternoon of the day Paul North was found dead Detective Lamm, pursuing the even contemplative tenor of his way by the old Granary burying ground, found himself suddenly arm in arm with an excited gentleman whose face he did not recall.

"Mr. Lamm?" questioned Mr. Richard Fetridge.

"That is my name, sir."

"Excuse me. I know you. I need your services at once. I have unlimited money at my disposal. You have been recommended to me by trusted friends as most discreet in your calling. Come with me!"

The two were in Mr. Fetridge's private office, and the door secured against intrusion before Detective Lamm's vis-a-vis declared himself.

"Pardon my abruptness," said Fetridge. "Pressing business must be my excuse. Not to waste time in preambles, Detective Lamm, I want to retain your services in a matter of vital interest to me. You shall fix the amount of compensation yourself. Now will you undertake this service?"

Mr. Lamm looked at him calmly. "That depends somewhat upon the nature of the business in hand," he said, dryly.

"Oh, it's perfectly legitimate," went on Mr. Fetridge. "It's this terrible murder in Marlboro street—the killing of Paul North. He was my friend; I am on intimate terms with the family, and I wish to be kept fully posted on the progress of the work of detecting the guilty party."

"Umha! You have a keen interest in this matter, sir!"

"Why, detective," said Fetridge, edging his chair closer, "I have good reason to be eager in this matter. As man to man, I tell you here that I believe the guilty man in this case to be Paul North's partner!"

The detective remained utterly unmoved, but grave and attentive.

"Mr. Thornton Stackhouse?"

"Of course," said Fetridge, quickly. "I make this statement absolutely in confidence. I wouldn't condemn the man publicly on my simple suspicions."

"Oh, of course not."

"But I tell you, sir," Fetridge resumed, pacing the floor excitedly, "I know the man to be a villain. I know him for a scoundrel, and—good heavens! Poor North! Poor Marion! What a misfortune!"

"You will, of course, acquaint me with the reasons for your suspicions?" Mr. Lamm mildly suggested, by way of bringing his now motionless client to a realization of his surroundings. Fetridge awoke from his trance with a start.

"Reasons?" he echoed. "No! Certainly not!"

"Umha" (the detective had a habit of prefacing his discourse with this reflective grunt). "North had quite a family?"

"He has two daughters, sir."

"Young? Unmarried?"

"What? Don't you know? The eldest, Marion, is Thornton Stackhouse's wife. The younger, Stella, is 17."

"And Mrs. North?"

"Dead these 15 years. Her sister, Comfort Harwood is the housekeeper. The family are at the beach at Swampscott—still, I presume, in ignorance of the awful cloud which is hanging over them. Poor girls! Poor old Aunt Comfort! I say, Lamm, you'll undertake the case, won't you? If there's any disgrace I can save this bereaved family, I am bound to do it. I want to employ you to hunt up evidence in behalf of the family, and to report to me as rapidly as possible. In fact, I wish to know, if it can be done, all the evidence the police have when the inquest is called. I won't conceal from you that the attitude I shall take on that occasion may be governed largely by what you tell me."

"Well, Mr. Fetridge, no man can make a fairer offer than you've made, and under the circumstances I'll be very glad to take up the case and see what I can make of it. Count upon me to let you know when I have found anything of the slightest value."

"I certainly shall, detective," returned Fetridge, whose face expressed the satisfaction he felt at securing such an ally. And so the conference ended.

Detective Lamm, now turning his steps towards his own office, not far away, bethought himself that this man Stackhouse, whom he knew very well by sight, would be likely to occupy a large share of his time and attention for many days to come.

It came as a surprise, even to his imperturbable nature, to find that the first face to look into his as he entered his office was the face of Thornton Stackhouse. But Detective Lamm was quite equal to the occasion.

"Were you waiting to see me?" he asked, in his most matter of fact tones. A quick look had assured him that the banker, though less excited in manner than his recent client, was certainly not positively free from agitation.

"Yes," said Mr. Stackhouse, taking a chair in response to the detective's beckoning invitation. "My name is Thornton Stackhouse. I have come almost directly from the house of my partner, Paul North. You know, of course, about his death—his murder?"

Mr. Lamm toyed, twirling a pen between his fingers, and waited for his companion to continue.

"Perhaps I need not recount all the circumstances, detective, that combine to make this a very difficult and delicate case. You will readily understand, without my saying anything further, that the very best and most confidential advice is requisite. And that is precisely why I came here, Mr. Lamm, to enlist your services in getting at the facts—all the facts—of this mysterious crime. Now, can I secure you? There will be a handsome compensation—you will have all the time and money needed to carry on your investigation."

Detective Lamm, looking at the wall and still twirling his pen in his hands, seemed to be considering what engagements he had made with which this new commission might conflict. At least, such was the impression of Thornton Stackhouse.

"I don't know," the detective said slowly, at last. "I have a great deal of business just now—more than I can properly handle, in fact. It depends upon what you want. Was there any particular point you wished to present to my attention, Mr. Stackhouse, or was it simply that you wished me to ascertain facts and report to you?"

Mr. Stackhouse looked at the door with some vague apprehension.

"We shall not be disturbed," said the detective; "I sprang the lock as I came in."

Mr. Stackhouse brought his chair close to the detective. When he spoke it was in very low tones, hardly above a whisper.

"Mr. Lamm, you may have read in the afternoon papers that a name was written on the wall close to where my partner lay dead."

A nod and a renewed twirling of the pen.

"That name, Mr. Lamm, was meant to be mine—was mine!"

The detective raised his eyebrows and seemed about to speak.

THE ONLY WAY.

Many Plainfield Citizens Have Discovered It.

Just what to do when the kidneys are affected, is a question that concerns both young and old. Weak kidneys neglected in childhood lead to life-long suffering. People of advanced years, with less vitality, suffer doubly. In youth or age, languor, backache, urinary irregularity, dizziness and nervousness ake life a burden.

There is one remedy that acts directly on the kidneys and cures these troubles. Doan's Kidney Pills owe their world-wide fame to the fact that they cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Follow the example of this Plainfield citizen and you will be convinced that this is so.

John W. Snedeker, 244 East Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all persons suffering from kidney complaint. I had this trouble for some time and was in a bad way. When I awoke in the morning I felt unrefreshed and during the day suffered from a dull backache. My condition gradually grew worse and I always felt weak, tired and depressed. My mother finally to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I did so with the very best results. I am now entirely free from kidney trouble and my back does not bother me in the least."

MASONS REFUSE TO STRIKE.

Pay No Heed to Order of Union's Business Agent.

The score of union bricklayers employed on School No. 24 extension on Virginia avenue, Jersey City, when ordered by the business agent of the Bricklayers' Union to strike yesterday morning, flatly refused, and are threatened with suspension from the union. The men are employed by Michael Curley, to whom the contract for the mason work on this school was sub-let by former Alderman Dennis Mullins. For some infraction of the union's rules while doing a previous jub Curley was penalized $100. He refused to pay, maintaining that the union had no right to impose such a penalty.

At a meeting of the union Thursday night it was decided to order a strike unless Curley paid up. The business agent was at the school early yesterday morning and demanded the $100, which Curley refused to pay. There was a stormy scene, which ended in the walking delegate ordering the men out. None paid the slightest attention to him. Said one to a fellow workman: "Jobs are not so easy to get these days that we can give up one without seeing another in sight." The other answered: "You bet!"

"You'll all be suspended," replied the business agent, as he walked away.

OFF DAY FOR THE NEW JERSEY RIFLEMEN

Camp Perry, O., Aug. 22.—Yesterday was not New Jersey's day in the rifle battle. The Second Regiment, which entered the final 1,000-yard stage of the championship regimental match yesterday afternoon one point ahead of the Sixth Massachusetts, blew up. The Bostonians beat them by twenty-seven points. The Fifth Maryland slid into second place with 769 and the Second Ohio whipped the Jerseymen by fourteen points, scoring 762.

The Fourth New Jersey did better than the Second eight points on the 1,000-yard targets. Captain Doll was high for the Second, with 47, Major Martin dropping to 392. For the Fourth, Captain Baker and Private Minervini tied at 47 for high score. The Jersey scores were:

Second New Jersey—Stevens 32, Farr 36, Dabb 47, Sergeant Silvester 39, Lieutenant Silvester 36, Martin 39; total 228.

Fourth New Jersey—Bianchi 37, Minervini 47, Baker 47, Welse 30, Higgins 36, Smith 39; total 236.

In the 1,000-yard concluding stage of the Herrick match, New Jersey by unofficial scores was sixteenth in the field of thirty-five, with 1,527, the United tSates Marines winning with 1,647, and Pennsylvania surprising the camp by taking second place with 1,643. Ohio was third and Massachusets fourth.

The New Jersey scores were:

Name.	1,000 yds.	T'l
Price	61	185
Pfeil	61	172
Tews	59	196
Rowland	49	208
Minervini	59	185
Baker	60	191
Silvester	66	207
Martin	62	195
Totals	477	1,531

The New Jersey State team practised on the national match ranges in the first of the two days of preliminary firing for the national trophy. Prizes won in the tournament were presented this evening by General Drain, president of the National Rifle Association.

In the regimental championship match the Second New Jersey ranked sixth and the Fourth New Jersey twelfth.

HOW TRENTON HAS BECOME SO "GOOD

Trenton, Aug. 22.—Prosecutor William J. Crossley yesterday took formal action against Sunday outings in the country, where beer is sold by checks and orgies of the worst kind are carried on.

The action of the prosecutor was taken after a personal investigation into the rumors of a fight between farmers and members of an East Trenton club on a farm along the Johnson trolley line last Sunday. More than a dozen men were injured in a drunken melee, it is said, one man having a piece chewed out of his cheek, another receiving a bad scalp wound and still another having his face badly battered. Many others bear less severe marks of the fight.

Farmers in Hamilton township, near Hutchinson's Mill, also report carousals and fights every Sunday. Last Sunday, it is said, more than a dozen barrels of beer were carted to the place and disposed of by the picnickers.

The attention of Prosecutor Crossley was called to the brawls and he held a talk with 'Squire Near yesterday. Formal complaints will be issued against the owners of the farm where these "booze parties" have been held. The organizations pay a rental of $5 for the grounds and then sell the beer privilege to a local saloonkeeper, in most instances for a stipulated sum.

Beer checks are given out for 25 cents each, and in this manner the outings prove to be more profitable than the old-time picnics.

Last Sunday a party of young men from East Trenton secured a place on the Johnson line, and after drinking heavily went to the farm of Ralph and Charles Davis, where they stripped a cornfield of as much corn as they needed. When the Davises protested the picnickers threatened to assault them.

The picnickers also went to the farm of Joseph Ricardo and stole vegetables, and when Ricardo commanded them to stop they beat him severely. Ralph Lori went to the aid of Ricardo and used a shotgun to drive the men away.

HAWKS ATTACKED SWIMMER.

Prell Got in School of Fish the Birds Were After.

Two immense fish hawks had fun yesterday with William Prell, a musician employed at Congress Hall, Asbury Park. The musician was bathing in the ocean about 100 yards from the shore, when suddenly a school of weakfish surrounded him, and he had hard work to keep afloat. In the midst of his troubles the fish hawks spied the fish and attempted to get a hearty meal.

In doing this the hawks nibbled at Prell's head occasionally. The musician, now nearly frantic, yelled for help, and Life Guard Jackson heard heard the cries, launched a lifeboat and soon had Prell safe on shore.

The rescued one hastily donned his street clothing, declaring that he would never go into the ocean again.

FOOTPADS HOLD UP BOYS.

While returning from the home of their fiancees late Thursday night, Charles Eldridge, of Lakeview, and Edward Whitman, of Maple Grove, were held up by footpads. One grasped their horse's head and the other advanced with a revolver to the carriage demanding money. Eldridge waited till he got close enough and with the butt of his heavy whip struck the man between the eyes, knocking him backwards.

The revolver was discharged and the bullet narrowly escaped Whitman's head, going through the top of the buggy. The other man sprang to his companion's assistance, but the horse dashed forward as he fired. Several shots were sent after the boys, but none took effect. Posses are scouring the wods for the bandits.

INJUNCTION PERMANENT

Vice-Chancellor Walker Renders Decision in Glazer Fat Factory Case.

FAVORS THE COMPLAINANTS.

Operation of the Plant May Be Permitted Under Certain Conditions Named in Temporary Restraining Order.

Vice-Chancellor Walker has just given his decision in the case of Miles Reusch and other residents of Alton against Theodore Glazer, in which the complainants sought to make permanent a temporary injunction restraining the defendant from continuing to operate his fat rendering plant at Alton. The decision is in favor of the complainants, and means that the court intends to make the injunction permanent. Vice-Chancellor Walker has notified Codington & Swackhamer, of counsel for the complaints, and Judge William Newcorn, counsel for the defendants, James Guttridge being a party to the defense, to that effect and has requested them to fix a date when the terms of the final decree can be determined upon and the order carried out. This, it is expected, will be done in a few days.

It is possible that Vice-Chancellor Walker may permit Mr. Glazier to continue his business under certain conditions that are lawful, as provided in the temporary injunction against him. While the decision declares the plant to have been a nuisance, an important fact is that it was allowed to continue under conditions which were considered lawful for a year and a half. The exact scope of the decree cannot be determined until after counsel appears before Vice-Chancellor Walker and agree as to the terms. According to the decision the vice-chancellor says that there is no action against Mr. Guttridge.

The action brought against Mr. Glazer was the last of several that sought to put a stop to the alleged nuisance and it attracted widespread attention by reason of the fact that practically all of the residents of Alton were interested in the case as witnesses for one side or the other. The complainants had an array of about fifty witnesses, while the defendant summoned nearly as many to substantiate his claim that the plant was conducted in a proper manner and was not a nuisance.

Several hearings were held by Vice-Chancellor Walker in the Common Council rooms and there seemed to be no end to the testimony to be taken in connection with the case which arrayed the families of Alton against each other in legal procedure. The method of collecting and treating dead animals at the Glazer place was brought out strongly by the counsel for the complainants to show what an objectionable place was being conducted by Mr. Glazer. On the other hand the latter's witnesses, as well as himself, testified that the method employed was modern and that the odor coming from the plant was not objectionable in the least.

The decision is an important one for upon it rested the intended action of the Middlesex Water Company. It was maintained by the company that refuse from the Glazer place was allowed to overflow and run in a small stream near its plant making it possible to contaminate the water supply in that neighborhood. The decision restraining Mr. Glazer permanently will make it unnecessary for the water company to bring action against him.

Their Horse Dropped Dead.

A sorrel horse belonging to Henry Weiss, of Regent street, dropped dead at the Netherwood station at midnight last night as the result of a sudden attack of colic. James Conway and John Bodenheimer, of the borough, had secured the animal from Weiss for the day and were on their way home from Boynton Beach. Chief Marshal Weiss, brother of the horse owner, was summoned by telephone, but arrived too late to be of any assistance.

Local Cyclists in a "Century."

Seven members of the Plainfield Cycle Club rode in a "century" yesterday, completing the hundred miles in about seven hours actual riding. The party went to New Brunswick, Cranbury, Trenton, Princeton, Lawrence, Rocky Hill, Duke's Farm, Somerville and Bound Brook. The riders stopped for dinner at Rocky Hill.

Chief Doane Off For Convention.

Chief T. O. Doane left yesterday for Columbus, Ohio, where he will officially represent Plainfield's firefighters at the annual convention of the International Fire Chiefs' Association. He will be gone about ten days, and during his absence Assistant Chief Andrew Jennings will be in charge of the department.

MUST NOT SELL OR GIVE CIGARETTES TO MINORS

Cardboard prints of the new cigarette law passed March 17 last gave been received in this city and will shortly be posted in conspicuous places. The authorities intend to enforce the law to the letter, and the school officials will co-operate with them to the utmost.

The new law prescribes that anyone furnishing cigarettes to persons under eighteen years of age commits a crime. The manner of furnishing the cigarettes has no bearing on the case—a person giving a minor a cigarette is an offender.

Following is the law as presented on the cards:

"Hereafter no person shall furnish cigarettes or cigarette paper or tobacco in any form commonly known as cigarettes, by sale, gift or otherwise, to any minor under eighteen years of age, under penalty of fifty dollars fine or thre months in the county jail, or both, at the discretion of the court."

MISS MINNIE HASKINS IS IN BELLEVUE HOSPITAL

Miss Minnie Haskins, daughter of A. L. Haskins, auditor of the American Tobacco Company, who escaped from Cooley's sanitarium last Tuesday by eluding her nurse, with whom she was shopping at Woodhull & Martin's, is in a serious condition in the psychopathic ward at Bellevue Hospital, New York, where she was identified by her brother, A. C. Haskins, who has had the police searching for her for four days. A policeman found Miss Haskins at Pier A late Friday night. She had thrown her purse into the water and witnesses said that she declared that she would jump off the pier. She had just landed from a Staten Island ferry boat.

The young woman could give no account of her wanderings since she left this city, but said she lived at 853 St. Nicholas avenue. It is known that Tuesday night, after leaving Elizabeth, she went to New York, and was seen by a Mrs. Blank, of 1501 Charlotte street, in the Bronx. Mrs. Blank is a perfect stranger to her, but noticed that she was acting strangely and called her in. Later, when Miss Haskins seemed to be more herself, Mrs. Blank permitted her to leave, presumably for her home. She had very little money when she eluded the nurse in the local store, and her friends are puzzled as to how she has been defraying her expenses since.

TYPHOID SPREADS IN JERSEY.

Physicians Criticise Health Boards Calling Them Inefficient.

Typhoid is epidemic in the southern section of New Jersey as well as in Pennsylvania. The disease is spreading rapidly, and is occasioning alarm and considerable comment, especially among physicians.

The physicians are criticising the laxity of the Health Boards in the larger towns. They do not hesitate to declare that they are inefficient. One physician in Salem commenting upon the situation said:

"The Health Boards in the different towns in this part of the State are indifferent about up-to-date sanitary fixtures and sanitation. The head of the Salem board is a clerk, a layman.

"The State sent an Inspector here a few days ago, and he, too, was a layman. I consider it a great error not to have medical men to fill these positions."

FORT TO TALK ON ROADS.

Will Make Opening Address at Convention Next Month.

Trenton, Aug. 24.—Governor Fort has agreed to deliver the opening address at the New Jersey good roads convention, held under the joint auspices of the New Jersey State Grange and the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey, on Friday and Saturday, September 25 and 26, in Atlantic City.

The members of the joint committee which will have charge of the gathering are George W. F. Gaunt, master of the New Jersey Grange; Albert Heritage, a member of the Grange executive committee; H. A. Bonnell, of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club, and H. B. Conk, of the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey. The committee had a meeting at Atlantic City recently to arrange the program for the convention.

BALL FANS DISAPPOINTED

Scotch Plains Team Fails to Show Up For Game With Clinton Avenues

MANAGER FRENTZ EXPLAINS.

Says He Believed Heavy Shower had Left Crescent Oval in No Condition to Play.

Nearly five hundred fans who gathered at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon expecting to see a game between the Clinton Avenues and Scotch Plains team, were doomed to disappointment, for the 'Plains aggregation failed to show up. The Plainfield team was on the field all ready for the battle and by hard work on the part of the management the grounds were put in good condition for play. Manager Dorflinger received no word from Manager Frentz and, of course, expected that the game would be played.

It is said that the heavy shower during the morning led Manager Frentz to believe that the Oval would not be in condition and receiving no word from Manager Dorflinger, he took it for granted that the contest would be declared off. Manager Frentz declared later in the day that if he had had any idea of the conditions he would have been on hand with his team. However, the local fans do not excuse him, for they say that he should have come to Plainfield, and some of the remarks made concerning the 'Plains management were not at all complimentary.

The teams are scheduled to play at the Oval Labor Day afternoon, and as each manager has posted $25 as assurance of good faith, it is expected the contest will take place. Failure on the part of either team means a forfeiture of the purse. In the absence of the 'Plains team, a nine was made up of pick-up players on the field and a practice game was played, Clinton Avenue winning in seven innings by a score of 2 to 0. "Phil" Smith, who had no game at Bound Brook, pitched against Randolph and the contest was an interesting one.

FRIEND FEARS CORDOVA IS LOSING HIS REASON

J. Frank Cordova is in Philadelphia out of work, and apparently wandering aimlessly about the city without funds, according to the pastor of an uptown Methodist Episcopal church who knows the unfrocked clergyman, and who met him at Tenth and Arch streets Friday. This pastor declines to permit the use of his name, but says he was walking along Arch street when Cordova passed him, recognized his former friend and hurriedly turned his face aside, walking rapidly up Tenth street without acknowledging the greeting which the other clergyman extended to him.

"The poor man is certainly paying full penalty for his sins," said the clergyman. "His eyes had a wild glare, his clothes were greasy and dirty, he was unshaven, and altogether he looked as little like Cordova of his more prosperous days as it is possible to imagine. I believe the man is going insane."

The Rev. J. Ward Gamble, the Pennsgrove pastor who met Cordova at the door of the jail in Trenton and helped him to make his way out of the city unobserved, said over the long-distance telephone that he had not heard from Cordova since he left him on the day following his release; that he did not know whether he is in Philadelphia or not, and that when he saw him Cordova showed no signs of approaching insanity.

It was learned yesterday that immediately after his release Cordova wrote to Miss Bowne that he was coming to her home in North Asbury Park, but that Miss Bowne's father wrote to Cordova forbidding him to ever again meet his daughter. This, it is thought, may have had much to do with Cordova's reported loss of reason. No attempt, so far as is known, has been made by Cordova to communicate with Miss Bowne since his receipt of this letter.

Matinee Races Postponed.

The matinee race meet scheduled for Saturday at the driving park under the auspices of the Fair Acres Driving and Riding Club, was postponed until next Saturday on account of the rain. Although it cleared off about noon the heavy downpour of the morning left the track in a condition that would not permit trotting. The program as planned for last week will be given on Saturday.

'KING JOHN' CARRAR ACTS

Watchung Crest Gardener Gets Warrant for Arrest of Prof. and Mrs. Groszmann.

THEIR DOGS ATTACKED HIS SON.

Snapping Animals Driven Off by Frenchman's Volley of Stones —The Two Groszmanns Go to New York.

"King John" Carrar, the French gardener at the Groszmann School, has taken the initiative against the Goszmann family, and swore out a warrant before Justice of the Peace Blume Saturday night against Professor M. P. E. Groszmann and his wife, alleging that two vicious dogs had been set on his son as he was passing the Groszmann School on his way to his father's "stronghold" in the barn Saturday afternoon. Constable Clemens has the warrants, but has been unable to serve them, because the Groszmans have left twon. Waldemar Groszmann at the school today says that they are in New York city and will be back tomorrow.

The stubborn ex-gardener, who has held possession of the barn with his grandmother, wife, daughter and two sons for thirteen days, baffling Professor Groszmann's efforts to have him ousted, says that his son was walking along the driveway past the school on his way to the barn when Mrs. Groszmann set the dogs on him. Carrar went to the boy's assistance, and threw stones at the dogs, which, he declares, were snapping at his son. The attack was thwarted and father and boy returned in safety to the "fort."

Waldemar Groszmann told a Daily Press reporter today that the dogs wouldn't have hurt young Carrar,—"they were only barking at him when the stone-throwing began." He said they were little dogs, anyway; one was a Cocker spaniel, he thought, but he didn't know what the other one was. He said it wasn't a bloodhound. Although he was not an eyewitness to the "incident," he said that Carrar was clearly in the wrong. "He has no right to cross our property,—it's private property. The dogs came out and barked at him, just as they always do when any trespasser comes along. Carrar picked up stones and threw them at the dogs. Fearing that they would strike the building, Mrs. Groszmann, who was sitting on the piazza, called to him to be careful, and to go away. He drove the dogs away and then went back to the barn."

Nothing has been heard from County Sheriff Ross, who was appealed to Friday to come and take the gardener away. Mr. Groszmann said today "There's nothing new. Carrar is still in the barn, and so is his family. The Sheriff hasn't come yet."

FORMER LOCAL PASTOR AT NETHERWOOD CAMP

Rev. A. R. Dilts, of Lowell, Mass., formerly pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, gave a powerful talk at the meeting of the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, held in the auditorium yesterday afternoon. He spoke from the topic word "Watch," and emphasized that his hearers should be careful of five things, the initial letters of which form the word "watch." These are Words, Actions, Thoughts, Companions and Hearts.

The singing of Miss May Grant, who rendered two soprano solos was a feature of the afternoon's music, which included several gospel hymns sung by the New York children. B. F. Hadley, secretary of the Camp committee, led the meeting and was in charge of the devotional exercises. Miss Lucie Coriell presided at the melodeon and a cornet obligato for the singing was furnished by Whitney Frazee and E. H. Guest. Mr. Frazee played "The Ninety and Nine" as the offertory.

Hay Rides for the Campers.

A series of hay rides arranged by David Hand, B. F. Hadley and S. A. George, gave the 300 mothers and children now at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp a most enjoyable outing Saturday. A large stage was hired for the occasion and the first party, consisting of 150 New York girls, started early in the afternoon. Upon their return, the stage was quickly filled with the boys at the camp, who rode until supper time. In the evening, the fifty mothers and helpers of Miss Curry went on a long outing in the same stage. All were delighted with their drive and sang songs and hymns on their trip through the residential section of town.

WILL HAVE FULL TICKET

Democrats Announce Party Candidates are to Be in Line for All City Offices.

MAYORALTY NOMINEE SURE.

Martine Had Been Thought of for the Place but Another Man Will Now Oppose Republican Choice.

It was announced authoritatively yesterday by a member of the Democratic City Committee, that the party will nominate a complete city ticket for the approaching election, including a candidate for Mayor to oppose Charles J. Fisk, who will again be the choice of the Republicans, but the committee is not ready as yet to disclose the names. A meeting of the committee will be held either Thursday or Friday night, when it is expected that a decision will be reached as to the probable nominees.

The announcement that James E. Martine has consented to accept the Democratic nomination for sheriff has upset the cut and died plans of local Democracy. It was the intention of the party to nominate Mr. Martine for Mayor and, it was stated by one of the leaders today that sufficient assurance had been received from a host of Republicans that he would undoubtedly be elected. The Plainfield Democrats are completely at sea over the action of Mr. Martine, some of them going so far as to declare that he cannot hope to be elected. His decision to accept that nomination for sheriff they claim is far beneath his dignity.

Efforts were made today to learn the name of the possible Democratic nominee for Mayor, but without avail. A prominent member of the city committee said, however, that the man would be a worthy opponent of Mayor Fisk, one who would command the respect of every voter and would wage a spirited campaign.

ATLANTIC CITY AGAIN IGNORES BISHOPS' LAW

Atlantic City is in revolt. Despite the session of the Grand Jury, the caustic charge of Supreme Court Justice Trenchard, who ordered indictments, and the declaration of Gov. Fort that the resort must obey the Bishops' law, every saloon and cafe in the town did a rushing business yesterday.

A crowd greater even than that of last Sunday kept the extra force of waiters at cafe bars and tables on the jump, but it was orderly, and only a few arrests were made. Police kept a careful watch, not for open bars, but for victims, and men in any stage of intoxication were rushed off the streets to hotels or to cells.

A ban was placed on the sale of "half pints" in answer to protests from bottlers who are closed on Sunday, and many fishing and sailing parties went without drink. The new order also broke up trolley parties to temperance Ocean City.

Prosecutor Goldenburg's men obtained evidence against at least fifty saloonkeepers in addition to those now on the list for presentation to the Grand Jury, and agents of the reformers worked like Trojans securing bottled proof of the sale of rum. The prosecutor spent the day at his summer home in Longport. Mayor Stoy did not appear and Chief of Police Woodruff "knew nothing."

Politicians who have promised to care for their henchmen are confident that they will be able to carry out their promise to allow the saloons to run until after next Sunday. An order may then be given to close up until the passing of the present wave of reform.

The Grand Jury will meet again on Thursday, but the defiant saloonkeepers appear to have little fear of being indicted.

Smashed Window With a Lemon.

Nathan Myers, who is in charge of the East Second street lunch wagon, complained to Patrolman Nolan last night that somebody had smashed a fancy window in his "a la cart" establishment with a lemon at about 9:30 o'clok. He knows who "handed" the fruit and will endeavor to secure settlement for the window by bringing the case to police court.

Bijou Theatre's New Manager.

Will H. Putnam, who has been manager of the Bijou theatre on East Front street, has been assigned by the owners to take charge of a vaudeville house at Easton, Pa., and left today to begin his new duties. He will be succeeded here by Harry R. Roberts, who has been the assistant manager for the past year.

GEORGE KIRCH NOW ON SOMERSET CO. COMMITTEE

The appointment of George Kirch, of Somerset street, who was recently chosen as member of the Somerset County Democratic Executive Committee from the second district of North Plainfield was ratified at a meeting of the Board at Somerville Saturday afternoon. The meeting was held at the Ten Eyck House. Mr. Kirch succeeds Walter C. Linbrger, who became the committeeman from the third district of the borough when the ordinance creating this district was passed last week.

Mr. Linbarger was appointed a member of the county campaign committee at Saturday's meeting, and will work with M. W. Scully, the chairman, of Somerville, and Horace Coddington, of Warren Township, to secure campaign speakers and arrange for meetings. Four more members were elected to the "steering committee," whose work it is to see that all petitions are properly filed. There are now nine workers of this committee.

CANNON AND SHELLS FOR DUNELLEN SCHOOL GROUNDS

Through the influence of Congressman Benjamin F. Howell and the efforts of Augustus F. Todd, of the Dunellen Board of Education, a cannon mounted on a carriage, together with a number of old shells, have been received at Dunellen and will be placed in front of the public school in that place. Mr. Todd has been interested in the matter for some time and it was only through Congressman Howell's aid that it was made possible to get the cannon and shells. It is said that this is the last field piece available for such purposes, it having been obtained from one of the arsenals.

It is planned to place the cannon and shells in position on Labor Day and representatives of the Board of Education will visit Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., tomorrow night for the purpose of extending an invitation to the veterans to be present at the unveiling of the cannon on Labor Day and take part in appropriate ceremonies to be arranged. All of the school children of Dunellen will also attend and there wil be addresses suitable to the occasion and a worthy display of patriotism on the part of the children, who will sing national airs and participate in other ways.

Social Features at P. C. C.

Although a kickers' handicap was scheduled at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, the continued absence of a majority of the members did not bring out a large field. There were, however, a number of golfers on the course who took part in general play. The social features at the clubhouse in the afternoon, together with the dinner-dance in the evening was enjoyed by a large number of members and friends. Commencing with Labor Day and continuing through the fall, there will be a renewal of activities on the course.

Registry Boards Meet Tomorrow.

The Boards of Registry and Election in the various election districts of the city meet tomorrow for organization. At this meeting one of the members of the board will be elected judge, who will act as chairman of the board, and another of its members as inspector. The remaining two members act as poll clerks. This meeting for organization was formerly held on the first registration day, but a law passed last winter made the change. The house to house canvass commences one week from tomorrow.

To Foreclose on Biggs.

The goods and chattels of William F. Biggs, of Greenbrook road, will be sold at a mortgage foreclosure sale by Constable William N. Pangborn, attorney for the mortgagee, at the Dr. H. A. Bunker place Friday at 12 noon. The amount due is $1,142.37, and the schedule includes live stock, farm and household furnishings.

Rev. Joseph R. Daniels.

Rev. Joseph R. Daniels, 71 years old, who was pastor of the First Methodist church in Somerville from 1861 to 1863, died Saturday at his home in Ocean Grove. He was a member of the Newark Methodist Conference and of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association.

Election Board to Meet.

The Union County Board of Elections will probably arrange to hold a meeting today at Elizabeth for the purpose of completing the list of election officers throughout the county. According to the law these officers must meet tomorrow and organize for the coming campaign.

HARTNETT YELLED "BOO"

And It Lead to a Mixup in Which Roundsman Higgins Was Badly Used.

CHIEF KIELY "NECKED" HIM.

Mistook Officer for Assailant of Patrolman Nolan and Hurled Him to Sidewalk.

In a mix-up on North avenue late Saturday night while Roundsman Morris Higgins and Patrolman Tobias Nolan were yanking Richard Hartnett, twenty-five years old, out of a hallway, the former officer was severely "necked" by Chief Kiely and hurled to the pavement through a mistake. The occurrence was witnessed by a big crowd of people but it happened so quickly that only Nolan realized his superior was "in wrong" and righted matters before the roundsman could receive further rough treatment.

Hartnett is a member of the gang erecting the Public Service gas tank and with six or seven others had been trying all evening to be real bad because they had a little rum aboard. They got into a fight with a Plainfield youth at North and Park avenues shortly before 11 o'clock, and when some one yelled the cops were coming, they ran for their boarding place in the former McVey annex. All got into the hallway and upstairs as Patrolmen Nolan and Payne came from Front street and Roundsman Higgins, in plain clothes, ran up from Watchung avenue, but just to amuse the 200 or more rubbernecks that happened around, they yelled taunts at the officers out of the windows. The latter took their medicine for the time being but Higgns and Nolan determined to wait around in the hope of getting a line of some kind on one or two of them.

Hartnett proved to be more venturesome than the rest so finally tip-toed downstairs to the vestibule. He opened the door suddenly, yelled "boo" at Higgins and then darted back before he could be grabbed. It tickled the crowd so much he tried it again and once more he succeeded. Before he could return again, Higgins slipped into the vestibule and as he came back for the third time to say "boo," the officer's foot was shoved over as the door opened and it couldn't be closed. Harnett tried to shut it but without success. Finally he let go and jumped for the stairway but Higgins was after him in a jiffy and got him just as he turned at the top of the landing. The ironworker forgot all about saying "boo" and saved his breath in order to hold fast to the balustrade, believing that some of his friends would come to his assistance.

Patrolman Nolan had been across the street watching the upper windows of the place and hurried across when he saw Higgins get inside the door. He quickly climbed the stairs and broke Hartnett's grip by cracking him on the wrist with his night stick. Mr. "Boo" let go so quick all three tumbled down together and went clear through the vestibule to the walk just as Chief Kiely came up on the run, having been attracted by the crowd in the street.

The Chief saw the uniform worn by Nolan but failing to recognize Higgins in the dim light because of his plain clothes, thought the patrolman was having a two-cornered battle and sprang to his assistance. The first thing the roundsman knew he was throttled around the throat and then hurled over backward. The thought flashed through his mind that other ironworkers had attacked him from the rear and as he went down, he got a firm grim in Hartnett's hair and the two fell together. He was holding the prisoner close to him as a defense when Nolan realized the mistake and yelled for the chief to hold off. The command came just in time to save the roundsman any further jarring but as it was he had a very stiff neck for the rest of the night.

The fight was all out of Hartnett after the awful grip in his flowing locks. He submitted meekly to arrest and was waltzed over to Sycamore street without a parting word of consolation from the upstairs delegation that egged him on to say "boo."

When arraigned in court this morning, Hartnett acknowledged being drunk and admitted that he might have said "boo" and other things to the officers. Judge Runyon gave him one of the severest verbal lashings he has handed out in a long time and then imposed a fine of $15 or twenty days. Hartnett didn't have the money but his friends hustled around to get it.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

A Broadway production is always a cynosure of all provincial eyes. When one has gained unstinted praise upon "The Gay White Way" their success upon the road—that is in the smaller cities—is no longer equivocal. Countess Olga Von Hatzfeldt has heard her praises sung from Wall street to Harlem in New York, and this year bids for new favor in a dainty two act musical comedy entitled "A Daughter of America." There are but few of the smaller cities to see it ere it enters New York city for its culminating triumph. Plainfield is one of those cities. The Countess appears at the New Plainfield theatre for one night only, Tuesday, August 25.

Laure Millard, in "A Daughter of America," at New Plainfield Theatre Tomorrow Night.

When Ira D. Sankey whistled the tune of the "Ninety and Nine" mid the hills of old Scotland, more than thirty years ago, he little dreamed that his song would one day furnish inspiration to a playwright for one of the best melodramas in recent years. The theme while it is by no means a new one permits of many possibilities and Ramsay Morris has woven a score or more of the characters one sees in every village replete with that characteristic freshness of the rural community and toned from the commonplace, by some really excellent scenic and mechanical effects. It enjoyed a run of more than five months at the Academy of Music in the city of New York, and the original cast and production assure a more than ordinary offering when it comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday afternoon and night.

"Paid In Full," Wagenhals and Kemper's new production, will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night. Acton Davies, the well-known writer, says of the play: "After all, if the play is really the thing then there's a new 'thing' in town. It's called 'Paid in Full,' by Eugene Walter, it has taken anchor at the Astor theatre and there it is going to remain for an indefinite period. 'Paid in Full' scored an immense success last night—one of the sensational successes of the season. Its boldness, its simplicity and its originality all told in its favor. Here at last was a young American playwright brave enough to dramatize a Harlem flat and its occupants; he had taken his theme right out of every day life on the upper west side and played his dramatic cards so well that he held his blase first night audience in his hand and not only interested them intensely, but gave them in one act both a great surprise and a real thrill. Young Mr. Walter arrived last night and Managers Wagenhals and Kemper are to be congratulated upon the uncommonly fine cast with which they carried 'Paid in Full' to its great success. 'Paid in Full' can speak for itself, and, more than that, it is one of those plays which pays its audiences with full measure."

At the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, John Cort will present for the first time in the city the new college girl comedy, "Commencement Days," the joint work of Virginia Frame and Margaret Mayo. There seems to be the best of intrinsic reasons why this play should win exceptional approval. Two of these are that it is native in locale and novel in characterization. While the college boy has been fittingly and renumeratively exploited on the stage, the college girl has been neglected. What an opportunity for an astute writer who knows her college and her college girl! Virginia Frame, who is said to have cleverly lined the types that abound in "Commencement Days," has been fortunate in the collaboration of Margaret Mayo, a conceded mistress of stage technique. But Miss Frame's good fortune has not ended there; she has won the invaluable advantage of interesting a progressive and liberal management. John Cort, possessed of means, the disposition and the discrimination necessary, has given to "Commencement Days," a production that is both handsome and correct, and a cast of distinctive merit, the latter including Misses Lilita Robertson, Rose Curry, Fay Wheeler, Gene LeMott, Edna Bert, Sally Williams, Myrtle Tannehill, Bertha Blanchard, Florence Weston, Brune Johnson, Maud Tannehill, Charles H. Riegel, George Anderson, Walter Thomas, John Stepping, F. Newton Lindo, Clinton Maynard and others.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The central committee of Republican clubs of Montclair has indorsed the candidacy of the following aspirants for offices: Senator, Everett Colby; Freeholders, Hugh Gallagher and Edward Winslow; Mayor, Henry V. Crawford; assessor at large, William M. Taylor; collector, Howard Sigler; town clerk, Harry Trippett. Every candidate indorsed is at present holding the office to which he aspires. The committee consists of twenty-four members, three from each of the eight voting precincts, and the organization was aected by electing Edward T. Chamberlin, of the Second Ward, chairman.

Sumpter L. Beegle, Fire Commissioner of Orange, announced Saturrace for the Democratic nomination for Mayor of that city, which leaves his opponent, Philip F. Timpson, an Alderman, the only man in the field on that side of the fence.

Assemblyman Austen Colgate, of Orange, one of the most prominent aids of Senator Colby, who has been boomed all summer as a shrievalty candidate to succeed Frank H. Sommer, has again announced that he would not accept the nomination.

"I don't want it," he said. "I want to go back to the Assembly, where I think I can do better work."

"Wouldn't you accept it if you were sufficiently urged?" he was asked.

"Not under any circumstances," he replied.

A call has been issued for another meeting of the Democratic State Auxiliary Committee at the Coleman House, Asbury Park, on August 27. U. S. Sutro, committeeman from Somerset, has sent the following notice to every Democratic county chairman:

"At the meeting of the State Auxiliary Committee, held at Asbury Park on August 1, 1908, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"'Resolved, That the Democratic auxiliary committee indorse most earnestly the attitude of the party's candidate for the Presidency on the subject of publicity of campaign expenses; that the committee authorizes its treasurer to hold his books open for inspection at all time, and that the chairman of each county be urged by an address from the auxiliary committee to conduct the finances of his committee in such a way that receipts and expenditures can be accounted for in detail, with a view to the publication of the same.'

"In accordance with the terms of this resolution, and to put into practice the spirit of Mr. Bryan's attitude on this subject, the auxiliary committee urges you to use your influence with the executive committee of your county to arrange for a strict accounting to the members of your committee of all moneys received and disbursed by your committee; for a careful restriction of the campaign expenditures to absolutely legitimate purposes, and for the publication in your local papers of the amount anw nature of the campaign contributions made to your committee."

This is the tentative Democratic slate arranged by the Joel Parker Association of Essex county at the outing last week

For State Senator, J. Bayard Kirkpatrick, of Newark; for Sheriff, Lawrence T. Fell, of Orange; for County Supervisor, John F. Otterbein, of West Orange; for Mayor of Newark, Jacob Haussling, and for members of the Board of Works of Newark, John V. Diefenthaler and Simon Hohn.

GOLF.

Something entirely novel in a competitive way has been announced by the tournament committee of the East Jersey Golf League for its special one-day tournament, to be held over the links of the Colonia Country Club on Saturday, August 29. According to the conditions, it will be possible to run off an entire match play competition in a single day.

The plan is for each golf captain of the seven clubs in the league to select and nominate two players. These captains are also requested to add an extra name, from which will be drawn two names to complete the quota of sixteen. These sixteen will then fight it out at the match game, each round to consist of nine holes. Nominations should be made to F. A. Wright, No. 110 East 23d street, New York city, on or before August 27.

There has been a growing tendency toward reducing the length of tournaments, but for quick action the plan outlined seems likely to eclipse all previous efforts. The seven clubs eligible for representation in this affair are the Forest Hill Field Club, the Canoe Brook Country Club, the South Orange Field Club, the Glen Ridge Golf Club, the Suburban Club, the New Brunswick Golf Club and the Colonia Country Club.

Provision, however, has been made for all league members, as the program also contains conditions for two medal play handicaps. There will be a thirty-six hole competition for gross and net prizes and an eighteen-hole handicap in the afternoon, not open to those competing in other events. An entrance fee of $1 will cover all events. The tournament committee consists of F. A. Wright, president; Robert Keubler, Robert Mitchell and Frank A. Pattison.

Rev. Edward Shaw, pastor, is expected home the latter part of the week in time to occupy his pulpit at the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

Rev. Dr. Phillip Strong, of New York, will preach at the First Baptist church, Sunday, morning and evening.

$15,000 FIRE IN MONTCLAIR.

Mysterious Blaze Destroys Almost an Entire Business Block.

A two-story frame business block, No. 608 to No. 617 Bloomfield avenue, Montclair, was almost entirely destroyed by fire Friday. The loss will exceed $15,000. The portion of the block, Nos. 603 to 609, was owned by Thomas O'Keefe, who occupied the ground floor as a grocery and meat store. His loss will amount to $6,000.

The balance of the building was owned by Wesley J. Van Greson. His liss is $5,000. Other losers are Morris Dobrin, paints and wall papers, at No. 611. S. Monaco, tailor, No. 613; Walter Louvrier, barber, No. 615, and N. E. Pierce, cigars, at No. 617.

The fire started in No. 611, occupied by Dobrin. He cannot account for its origin.

TAKES BET OUT OF HIDE.

Scidio Uses Razor When Payment of $10 Is Refused.

Raphael Zapbinanto, janitor for Lauter & Co.'s piano store at 128 Newark avenue, Jersey City, is in the City Hospital today with three deep cuts on his neck, shoulder and back, and it is doubtful if he will recover. He owed Frank Scidio, of 182 Morgan street, $10. Scidio tried to collect the amount this morning, but Zapbinanto did not have it for him.

This angered Scidio and he whipped out a razor and was slashing Zapzinanto when John Wright, manager of the store, interfered and held the would-be assassin until help arrived, when Scidio was turned over to Patrolmen Gallagher and McQuillan, of the City Hall station. Scidio is held to await the result of the wounds inflicted upon his victim.

Then Steeplejack Runs Splinter in Foot and May Die.

Ralph Kessler, a steeplejack, was on the top of a standpipe at Camden painting when the scaffolding on which he stool collapsed and he fell eighty-five feet to the ground. His ankle was wrenched and his head bruised, but he quickly recovered from these injuries.

Returning to his home Kessler ran a splinter into his left foot. He removed this, but the foot began swelling the next day, and his condition is critical.

TURKEY MINUS CRANBERRIES.

Outlook for a Small Supply for Thanksgiving Dinners.

Cranberry sauce will be an expensive dish of the Thanksgiving dinner next November, according to growers about Burlington. They predict record-breaking prices for the fruit, the crop in New Jersey, as well as at Cape Cod, being the poorest in twenty years.

The big bogs around Burlington are almost barren of berries. The one exception is the bog of Thomas G. Gandy. Late spring frosts and summer hailstorms are blamed by growers for the dearth of berries. Hundreds of men, who in former years have found employment picking, will be out of a job this season.

Mayoralty Conference in Elizabeth.

Dr. Victor Mravlag and Robert B. Cissel, of Elizabeth, both being prospective candidates for the Mayoralty of that city, were invited to attend a conference of Republican leaders held on Saturday night, the object being if possible to get the consent of one or the other to withdraw from the race. Little was accomplished at the conference and it was finally decided to put the matter up to the voters at the primaries and let them decide who they want for a candidate on the Republican ticket. James White, who is chairman of the Elizabest City Republican Committee, spoke in favor of Dr. Mravlag as being the strongest man of the two in the coming election and that it was most important that the strongest ticket possible be nominated this year. Col. Dennis F. Collins will undoubtedly be the Democratic nominee for Mayor.

Thomas Crippled for Life.

E. R. Thomas, the turfman, who has been confined with a fracture of the right knee since the automobile accident on the Ocean drive on the night of August 14, will undergo an operation at the Monmouth Memorial hospital, Long Branch, during the coming week, which will make him a cripple for life. It has been found necessary to remove a portion of the fractured bone. Drs. Brewer and Blake, of New York, visited Thomas yesterday in consultation with Dr. Edwin.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Linaberry and their son John started today for a three weeks' trip to Niagara Falls, and several points of interest in that locality.

Catherine and William Beaver have returned to their home in Pennsylvania, after spending a couple of weeks with their aunt, Mrs. F. Ledden.

Miss Jennie De Laney has returned to her home in New Brunswick, after a lengthened visit with her aunt, Mrs. Thomas Linabery.

Miss Emma Manning started Saturday for Asbury Park, where she will stay for two weeks with her sister, Mrs. F. Voorhees.

Philip Smith is back again at Brookside from his vacation which he spent with friends at Harrisburg.

Gladys Thorne has returned from Orange after spending a week with her cousin, Elsie Ward.

(Additional suburban news on page 2.)

DO NOT OVERDO IN TAKING EXERCISE.

It is difficult to impress upon women the good of exercise, but it is equally difficult to compel them not to overdo it.

Give a woman a pair of dumbbells and tell her to take a gentle exercise for five minutes every morning, and she will swing them with violence several times until her arms ache from exhaustion.

Tell her to play tennis during pleasant days, and she will play it for hours without moderation.

It is the same with every form of exercise suggested. It seems the nature of women to overdo. They do not know its value enough to comprehend its danger.

They think if a little is good more is better. They weary themselves out, deplete their heart action, give themselves acute indigestion, all because they will not do in moderation the thing that would make them well and strong.

Doctors and physical culturists say they have to fight this tendency in women more than any other one thing when they are upbuilding their blood and tissues.

A USE FOR QUINCES.

The inferior pieces of quinces can be used for making quince chips, a delicacy more delicious than jelly, and more palatable than quince preserves. Pare the quinces, remove all blemishes, and cut the pieces as finely as the blade of a steel knife. Weigh or measure the fruit and use the same weight or bulk of granulated sugar for sweetening it. Put the sugar into a white-lined kettle and pour over enough water to make a syrup that will be sufficient for cooking the chips. It should about cover the fruit. This is cooked slowly upon the back of the stove and can be placed in the oven to cook more slowly. It turns a dark red and the juice will form a jelly around the chips. This makes a good bread spread and a glass of it carried in the lunch box is always a pleasant addition to the school lunch. The chips can be cooked slowly for two days, and will only need to be stirred but a few times to prevent them from burning, but this is not liable to occur, for little heat is used in preserving them.

NEWEST NEW COATS.

Some of the coats which accompany handsome thin gowns are of the most coquettish style imaginable. One seen with a wtie voile gown was of green silk and had a suggestion of the mandarin armhole finished all around it and to the skirt of the garment and around the back with a wide band of the silk shirred on both sides. It was a one-button affair, with a cretonne waistcoat, which fastened with a black satin rosette that dropped along fringed ends straight down over the front panel of the skirt. The coat had a shallow black satin collar and was sleeveless. The hat was brown straw, with a high round crown and wide brim that turned up at one side. It was trimmed with a band of black satin and with roses at the side.

SENSIBLE DUTCH NECKS.

The ordinary shirtwaists have adopted the Dutch neck. Heretofore these have been left for the thin, fine lace-trimmed blouses. But girls have found out how comfortable this collarless waist is, and they are making the most of it.

It does not do to wear on the street, but it is delightful indoors and for all afternoon and evening country wear.

It is not necessary to achieve the Dutch neck by means of an outline of wide embroidery or lace; in truth, the genuine shirtwaist is finished off around the small square with merely a half-inch fold of thin muslin, through which is run colored ribbon, tied in a flat little bow at back, where the waist buttons.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Walking in his sleep, Evans Taylor, of Ninth and Pine streets, Camden, fell downstairs and broke his left arm.

Former Sheriff Samuel Kirby, of Hammonton, has announced himself a candidate for the county clerkship.

Caught between a locomotive and a car, Freight Brakeman Willard L. McCommons, of Bordentown, sustained a crushed right foot.

A locomotive run by Fireman Evans Brown, at Cape May, left the track at a switch, overturned and injured Brown and Brakeman Harry Kendle.

Winton C. Garrison, chief of the State bureau of statistics of labor, is preparing a statement showing the cause and effects of the recent business depression in New Jersey.

Joseph Manning has announced himself as a candidate for Mayor of Gloucester City on the Democratic ticket. Alfred C. Powell is a candidate for city assessor on the Republican ticket.

L. Klure, a Vineland merchant, has presented the Sons of Jacob, a Hebrew society, with the brick church on Grape street, built and used for many years by German Lutherans.

Seized with cramps while bathing in Cooper's Creek, yesterday afternoon, Walter Dudley, eighteen years old, of 336 Summit street, Camden, drowned before companions could reach him.

Bitten on the hand some time ago by a big fly, George Willetts, a resident of the West Side, Atlantic City, is in danger of an amputation. The hand and arm have seriously swollen and the attending physician is alarmed.

Mayor McBride, of Paterson, in a communication addressed to the Paterson Police and Fire Board and read at Friday night's meeting of that body, recommends that the chemical engine be transferred from the present location on Hamilton street to the East Side section of the city.

Declaring that he will spend everything he has before he will kill his pet Newfoundland dog, George Davis, of 229 Sycamore street, Camden, was held in $300 bail by Recorder Stackhouse Saturday. He was charged with keeping a vicious dog, the complaint being made by Mrs. Kate Hammond, a neighbor, who alleges the animal badly bit her three-year-old son John.

Overcome by gas, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander de Perty, of 23½ North Michigan avenue, Atlantic City, were found unconscious by neighbors yesterday. The woman is now lying in the City Hospital in a comatose condition, with but slight chances for her recovery, while her husband has been pronounced out of danger. It is thought that the couple went to bed with the gas burning low, and that the breeze blew out the flame.

Much enthusiasm was displayed at the massmeeting held in Collingswood Saturday evening in response to the call issued by Mayor Collings to plan for the celebration on October 2 and 3 of the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the borough. The principal celebration will be held in Knight's Park, and on the evening of October 2 there will be a parade of lodges, fire companies and other organizations from surrounding towns. The Mayor has been instructed to invite J. Fithian Tatem, of Haddonfield, to deliver the historical address.

The weavers of the Paragon Silk Mill in Paterson held a jollification meeting in a hall opposite the mill Saturday night to celebrate the victory they have just won. They left their work on Thursday morning because the firm had not given them the one and one-half cents per yard increase, which was promised if all the looms could be started running. They were offered an increase of half a cent per yard. This they refused to accept. After several conferences the fiirm yesterday agreed to grant an increase of one cent per yard.

CHILD FEEDS BEAR CUB.

Shared Her Cakes with Animal When Lost in Woods.

Branchville, Aug. 24.—Six-year-old Maggie Fenner, who lives in Chicago, but who is boarding for the summer near Port Jervis, is either the heroine of a remarkable experience or has entered the ranks of the nature fakers.

Maggie wandered away from the boarding house yesterday and became lost in the mountains. When she did not return in the evening a searching party was formed. After a search of two hours the child was found feeding cakes which she had taken with her to a brown cub bear. The bear took fright when the searchers appeared, and Maggie was very angry because she was not allowed to take her pet back to the house with her.

SOME USES OF THE SUCCULENT RASPBERRY.

Both the scent and flavor of raspberries are very refreshing, and the berry itself is exceedingly wholesome and invaluable to people of a nervous or billous temperament. Its juice is rich and abundant and, to many, extremely agreeable. The common name was given to it because of the roughness of the fruit.

Raspberry Vinegar—To four quarts of red raspberries put enough good vinegar to cover and let them stand for twenty-four hours; seal and strain it, add one pound and a quarter of sugar to each pint of juice; it is then ready for use and will keep for a long time. To one glass of water add a tablespoonful. It is much relished by the sick.

Steamed Raspberry Dumpling—Sift into a basin two cupfuls of flour, four heaping tablespoonfuls of baking powder and half a t easpoonful of salt; then rub into them finely one heaping tablespoonful of butter, then add three-quarters of a cup of milk. Put two and a half cupsful of sugar, one tablespoonful of vinegar and five cups of raspberries in the bottom of a well-buttered baking dish. Cover with flour mixture, then with a buttered paper and steam for fifty minutes. Serve in dish in which it is cooked.

Raspberry Buns—Three-quarters of a pound of flour, quarter pound of butter, quarter pound of sugar, two eggs, one teaspoonful cream of tartar, half a teaspoonful carbonate of soda, five tablespoonfuls of milk and some raspberry jam. Rub the butter into the flour, add sugar to it. Beat up the eggs well and stir into the flour. Mix the cream of tartar and soda in a cup with the milk and stir into the mixture. If not wet enough add a little more milk. Mold into buns, place them in a buttered baking tin, make a hole in the top of each, and put in one teaspoonful of raspberry jam, drawing up the dough to cover it. Bake in a moderate oven from fifteen to twenty minutes. These are delicious.

Raspberry Shortcake—Sift into a basin two cupfuls of flour, half a teaspoonful of salt and four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, then rub into them six tablespoonfuls of butter, then add one scant cupful of milk. When thoroughly mixed divide into halves; put each half into a round, buttered and floured cake tin. Separate the upper portions from the lower portions of each cake with a fork—never cut with a knife. Spread with butter, fill with raspberry filling between. To make the filling: Cut in pieces and sweeten to taste two boxes of raspberries. Let them stand for several hours. Then arrange between the layers of shortcake and garnish the top with whole raspberries, also whipped and sweetened cream.

ALL SHOULD LEARN TO SWIM.

Every person shold learn to swim if there is any possible opportunity to do so. The tipped boat, the steamer disaster or any of the numerous accidents that will and do occur are responsible for hundreds of deaths because the hapless victims do not know how to swim. We read many simple rules that would be easy for the expert swimmer, but if women or children were suddenly plunged into deep water the timely hints would all end in a struggle. It is always the case. Some people are born with a great fear of water. To them the thought of an ocean voyage means nothing but terror and final disaster. Seldom do such persons ever overcome this dread, though they should learn to swim.

It is said that some persons cannot learn. They try most earnestly, yet sink every time. Men are listed among these unfortunate ones. If one cannot ever learn, it is wise never to travel by water. Already we read of sad accidents caused by boat disasters and the man who rocked the boat has again come to the fore. But it is sincerely hoped that all will soon realize the great danger of such recklessness and not make the rocking boat business a feature of every outing.

The Flatterer.

"So he praised my singing, did he?"

"Yes; he said it was heavenly."

"Did he really say that?"

"Well, not exactly that; but he probably meant that. He said it was unearthly." — Melbourne Weekly Times.

STERILIZING FOODS AN IMPORTANT ITEM.

This subject has never before been completely discussed in this column, and I believe the following instructions will be valuable to those who have not already learned the new process of preserving fruits and vegetables. Practically any kind of food, whether fruit, vegetable or meats, can be preserved in this manner and will keep an indifinite time. Personally I recommend a gumless jar, such as I have previously mentioned, as they are easily cleaned and the work is more quickly done.

To Prepare Jars for Use—Place the jars (on their sides) in a kettle of hot water. Be sure the water completely covers the jar, both inside and out, all at one time. Leave the jars in the boiling water a minute and roll them gently back and forth with a spoon or a fork, so they will heat through evenly. Remove them from the water and place on a dry board or table. Never place a jar on a cold, wet surface. Many put the jars on a board in the oven to keep hot for use.

To Use the Jar—The jar and fruit must be boiling hot when fruit is poured into the jar, unless it is to be cooked in the jar, which calls for a second method, mentioned later. Fill the jar brim full, leave no space for jar, and wipe off the neck of jar quickly. Have the metal caps handy, placed in boiling water. Quickly place a cap on each jar as it is filled. A spring attachment comes with these jars which fits over the cap; adjust one over each cap. Set the jar away. Do not turn i tupside down to test it, for this jar is going through a process of suction to close the lid. Once closed, and the jar is cold, remove the spring, tap the cap, and if no juice escapes the jar is safely sealed. It is best to test the jars for several days, as you would with any jar. Should a cap prove defective remove it, heat contents and put on a new cap. A cap is removed by puncturing it with a knife or nail, making it quite easy to open any jar of fruit. Lids should never be used but once. They are cheap.

Some fruits have a way of rising to the top of a jar. This is true of berries. When this occurs place the jar on its side to soak the fruit with juice, reverse the jar several times for a few days, and this objectionable feature will be overcome.

Preparing the Sterlizing Can—This can may be purchased, though almost all women use the clothes bailer for the purpose, making a wooden rack to fit the bottom of the kettle. A board pierced with large holes and supported with wooden legs is often used, also tin or slat racks. There are numerous kinds of lifting forks for the purpose of lifting the jars from the boiling water; but when one is not procurable lift out enough water so that the jar may conveniently be lifted with a towel. Fill the jars with fruit or vegetables, covering the vegetables with cold water. Place on the metal cap and spring. Place the jar on the wooden rack and fill the boiler with cold water to the neck of each jar. Cover the boiler with a lid and boil vigorously the allotted time. It takes various lengths of time for various articles to be properly cooked. When the fruit is in the boiler it must be vigorously boiled, not simmered, and taken out at the specified time. When the jars have cooled, try to lift the lid the next day, as this is the final test, and should it not move, the suction has been complete. Keep all articles in a dark place, but test numerous times before placing them in the cellar. Fruits are preserved whole, with or without sugar. Naturally one wishes to sweeten the fruit. A syrup is first made and the fruit, uncooked, is placed in the jars covered with the hot syrup, teh lids are attached in the usual manner and the cooking follows.—Woman's National Daily.

DOING UP LACE CURTAINS.

Lace curtains must on no account be ironed. In the country they may be stretched on the grass, pinning out every point; in town a sheet spread on the carpet will be found more suitable.

Dwellers in flats who find it difficult to dry such large articles will be glad to know that if the curtains are hung up wet at an open window over night they will be dry next morning and hang more gracefully than if dried in the usual way. Take them down next morning, fold lengthwise and pass through the mangle.

Feathers may be washed by placing them in linen bags. Dip and squeeze these in soapsudes, rinse in clean water and dry in sieves in an empty room, turning the feathers frequently to prevent them sticking together.

A Girl's Pin Money.

The handy girl with a needle could make pin money in making fancy collars, jabots and ties. If a girl could even get her work displayed it would be the means of attracting trade, though an ambitious girl could make a house to house canvass and readily sell pretty neck fixtures. These trifles are quite expensive in the stores and few dressmakers will take the time or patience to fashion them for patrons, so there is really a good possibility for a girl to get work of this kind.

HIS HOOD LUCK ON THE JOB.

Bad Luck the Portion of This Man for Entire Day.

"I knew I was going to have bad luck to-day," said the commuter, as he watched his train whizz away and reflected that it would be half an hour before he could get another. "My evil genius began to get in its work early this morning and has been on the job ever since. In the first place I was late arising, so that I had to omit my breakfast in order to catch my train. When I arrived in town this morning I stepped into a drug store to get a glass of chocolate in lieu of breakfast. I had just taken one swallow when the man who was drinking an egg flip next to me slipped and spilled the contents of his glass over me. I set my own drink down to wipe off the mess, whereupon the soda jerker grabbed it instantly and threw the contents away, at the same time handing me a check for ten cents. The blonde cashier smiled sweetly as I passed in my dime and handed me two sample vials of pills and also a bottle of hair restorer. You see, I started the day out inauspiciously. I knew I was in for it all day, and I have not been disappointed.

"This caps the climax, as my wife has invited some friends to dinner, and I was solemnly adjured to be present. Now no story I hand out will be believed. And the worst is, I don't dare step over to the corner and while the time away with my foot on the brass rail, because my wife can scent a drink concealed in my breath no matter if I cover it with cloves and coffee a foot deep. Did you ever have things to pursue you that way?"

MEMORY OF RINGING SCYTHES.

When Mowing Was the Portion of the Farmer and His Aids.

Alas, there are no scythes nowadays! The work is done with horses and reapers. The economical reform has swept our romance unmercifully. In those days there were scythes, and there were men who knew how to swing them. It was a fine sight to see four or five well-built lads, led by the father, mowing down the meadow—and the timothy was nearly as tall as their heads. But the swing of their scythes fell true, and their tread was even, and they were glad. Birds sung overhead, and when they came near a ground bird's nest, the mother told them of it, and they went round leaving it unharmed. But a bumblebee's nest! That was another thing! And they went round that also. But at night the boys did not forget, for bumblebees' honey is good, and they did not know in those days that the bumblebees were very essential in a clover field. I remember one tall fellow, with a touch of Indian blood, who went down the field on a trot—cutting a good, honest swath all the way. No one could keep near him, and he was the envy of all the boys and men. At noon he marched like a general, and at night he spoke patronizingly. Why not, for it was a grand achievement. Such art was surely as good as scanning Homer, and the feet never lost time. They were hexameters that rhymed.—E. P. Powell, in Outing Magazine.

The Black Hand in Art.

One of the methods by which the thrifty Camorro maintains itself on its native Italian heath is the opera claque. Whenever a notable "guest" performance, or debut, is projected, the interested artist is approached and informed that unless the claque is placated a stormy debut may be looked for, and brave, indeed, is the man or woman who can contemplate appearing before a strange public with the certainty that no opportunity will be lost for hisses, hootings, and catcalls. In the great majority of cases the Black Hand treasury is substantially swelled.

The New Servant's Statement.

"Bridget," cautioned the mistress one afternoon lately, "if any one calls to see me tell her I'm out. I'm too tired to see any one."

Accordingly a little later a very dear friend who appeared at the front door received this incomprehensible answer to her inquiry if Mrs. Blank was in.

"No, she ain't, mum; an' phat's more, she says she's so toired she wint blind."

A Prophet in His Own Country.

"I don't believe," remarked good old Aunt Loeezy, "that Lige Potter is doin' very well in Chicago."

"Oh, I don't know," replied Uncle Liphalet. "Ligg useter be a purty sharp chap before he went there."

"Yes, but we've been takin' the Chicago paper four years now, and it's never once mentioned his name, even when the hull Potter family went there ter visit him."—Puck.

Saneness of Insanity.

The prisoner, charged with homicide, had entered the plea of insanity.

"And how long were you insane?" asked the court.

"Just three minutes."

"That wasn't long."

"I found it long enough for my purpose," answered the prisoner, with dignity.

No Escape.

Artist—It rained all day yesterday.

Poet—Yes, and I was persecuted by bill collectors from morning until night.

Artist—There was no escape?

Poet—None. I chanced to look up and even the sky was dun.

Sale of Lands for Unpaid Taxes

COLLECTOR'S OFFICE, CITY OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Notice is hereby given that the subscriber, the Collector of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, pursuant to the authority of the statute in such case made and provided, will on at two o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the said Collector's office, No. 151 North Avenue, in said city, expose for sale and sell the several tracts or parcels of land hereinafter specified, or any part or parts thereof severally sufficient for the purpose, on which taxes for the year nineteen hundred and seven remain in arrears, to such person or persons as will purchase the same for the shortest term and pay the tax lien thereon, including interest and costs of sale, or in fee where no one will bid for a shorter term.

Wednesday, September 23, 1908,

This sale is made under the provisions of the act of the Legislature of this State, entitled: "An Act for the assessment and collection of taxes," approved April 8, 1903, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Further particulars of the land to be sold, as shown on the City records, may be obtained at the office of the subscriber any week day prior to the day of sale, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., except holidays and Saturdays, and on Saturdays between 9 a. m. and 12 noon.

The following is a list of the several tracts and parcels of lands to be sold, which shows the names of the delinquents, the supposed owners thereof as the names of the delinquent owners appear on the books of the taxing district, together with a statement of the wards of the city wherein said lands are respectively situated, and the street in which each lot is situated, the block and lot number of each lot as they appear on the Official Assessment Maps of the City of Plainfield, on file in the office of the City Collector, and the amount due from each of the said lots respectively. To the amount due on each lot and parcel as hereinafter designated, there will be added interest at the rate of ten per centum per annum from the twentieth day of December, 1907, to the day of sale, and the fees provided by said act of the Legislature, viz.: for preparing and publishing notices of sale twenty-five cents for each parcel of land advertised; and for selling twenty-five cents for each parcel sold; and for each certificate of sale, fifty cents, besides necessary disbursements for printing, postage, affidavits and acknowledgements, which are hereby estimated at three dollars for each item of arrearage, and the City Clerk's fee for recording report, ten cents for each parcel of land sold, and all said fees and expenses shall form part of the tax lien and be paid by the purchaser at the tax sale.

Sale Number.	Supposed owner or person to whom assessed.	Ward.	Block No. City Assessment Maps.	Lot No. City Assessment Maps.	Street or Aevnue.	Year.	Amount of Tax.	Date from which interest will be added at 10 per cent. per annum to date of sale.

MY EDUCATION IN A NUTSHELL.

I can say "hic, haec, hoc," and decline any verb in Latin, but I was told the other day that I mispronounced the English language and spoke it incorrectly.

I know how many segments there are in a bee's foot, and I can discourse learnedly on the origin of life, but I'm beggared if I understand much about this synthesis of forces which I call myself.

I could write you a splendid essay upon the Arts of Subsistence in former times, and describe to you in detail how our savage progenitors managed to eke out an existence, but I don't believe I could broil a beefsteak nor make a bowl of porridge. Neither can the girl I am going to marry.

I can tell you much about the nature of bacteria and other horrible creatures, but I confess that I don't know what the symptoms of the commonest disease are nor how to treat them.

I can tell you all about the chemistry of matter, but should my mother take poison I would not know what to give her.

I could dazzle you with a dissertation on the Economics of Money, but I am at a loss to know how to earn a cent of it myself.

In short, I know everything that is not worth knowing.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR.

A woman has lots of sense not to wear sensible clothes.

The reason a girl can fool a man is he thinks he is doing the fooling.

The time a woman can smile the most naturally is when she wants to cry.

An easy way not to be bothered by your relations is to be poorer than they are.

A man without convictions is uninteresting, but a man with them is insufferable.

When a man and a girl are flirting the reason she believes he means it is because she doesn't.

The trouble with experience as an educator is it graduates its pupils at the brink of the grave.

It's queer how much more expensive a cheap pew in church seems than a dear box at the theater.

The best way to test whether a man is a good Christian is for him to try to stop a leak in the plumbing.

No matter how proud a man is of being able to do things around the house, it never takes any useful form like chopping kindling wood.—N. Y. Press.

JUST THOUGHTS.

Many a man who knows his place is unable to keep it.

Often a man's wife is his only visible means of support.

Many a man attempts to stand up for his friends by lying.

Little drops of water make big dollars for the umbrella

(Copyright, by The Cassell Publishing Co.)

"You are going to ask me how I know," said Stackhouse. "Why, I read it with my own eyes. Yes, the papers said the scrawl might have meant Stick or Stock or Stockholm, and so on; but I had a keener and truer sight than the officers there.

"Now, detective, that name was written by some enemy of mine, who seeks to implicate me in this terrible affair. I am convinced of the fact. And, being so convinced, a man of your experience does not need to be told that I dismiss the idea that Paul North wrote that name on the wall as utterly out of the question."

The grave, listening face near his wore no look of surprise, as Mr. Lamm nodded his full understanding of his visitor's thought.

"North being put aside, we must look for the guilty party in another quarter. Mr. Lamm, you don't happen to recollect who it was at the meeting of Nicaragua directors, of which the papers published an account, testified that he parted with Paul North late yesterday afternoon?"

Mr. Lamm did not appear to recollect, for he pursed up his lips, shrugged his shoulders slightly and said nothing.

"Well, detective, that man was Mr. Richard Fetridge, of whom you may have heard a young lawyer of considerable property who has had dealings with our firm."

"Richard Fetridge," repeated the detective slowly; "well?"

"Mr. Fetridge stated, after considerable hesitation, which I couldn't help noticing, that he left Mr. North about five o'clock, after a business interview with him at our office. What the nature of that conference between them was I can't say. Mr. Fetridge and I did not like each other, I'm free to say it, and latterly I fancied that he grew even more curt and unpleasant in his manner toward me than before. Not that I cared for that, you understand, I would not have given the matter a moment's thought but for this terrible affair. Nor even now, if Fetridge's strange conference, and his hesitancy about saying where he left Mr. North, were not put in a more peculiar light by certain other facts that have come to my knowledge."

"New facts?"

"Yes. Fetridge and North were seen together at a much later hour than five o'clock the afternoon of the murder."

The statement was made pointedly, and the detective gave evidence of interest.

"Are you sure?" he asked.

"Absolutely sure." Mr. Stackhouse's voice had sunk to a confidential whisper. "A business acquaintance whose word is beyond question has told me that he saw the two men walking up the Public Gardens at seven o'clock last evening, going in the direction of Marlboro street."

Lamm threw off the mask of reserve.

"And that is, to your mind, a most valuable, a most important, piece of evidence? In conjunction with Mr. Fetridge's conduct and course, you would consider it certainly very significant?"

"So significant," returned Stackhouse, "that but for the fact that I want to have the criminal so tangled in the mesh when he is caught that there can be no possible escape, I should before this have given the information to the police."

"Then your theory is—?" suggested the detective.

"What theory could a man have under the circumstances? Richard Fetridge gained my partner's confidence—got into the family on a friendly footing—saw it was of no use to keep up his scheme of 'working' poor Mr. North any further, enticed him to this interview and subsequent conference at his house and there murdered him."

"Murdered him?" echoed Mr. Lamm, with not a shade of difference in the tone of his voice, quite as if he expected just such a revelation.

"Not only murdered him," Stackhouse went on, his voice now full and strong under the stress of excitement; "but tried to fasten the guilt of the crime upon me. Richard Fetridge wrote my name there in the blood of his victim—Richard Fetridge, and no other. I feel as certain of it as if I had been a witness of the deed. He is my enemy; I have felt it for a long time, and in the hostility, and no doubt his dread lest his scheming with North should come to light through my examination of his affairs, he has done his utmost to discredit and dishonor me. Now you see why I want Richard Fetridge watched; why I want him followed at every step; why I want his guilt established by incontrovertible proof."

By this time Stackhouse, with his fists clenched, was pacing the floor.

"First of all," said the detective, quietly observing Stackhouse under his eyebrows—"first of all, let us look at your own interests here. Perhaps you over-estimate the influence of that word written on the wall—your name, as you declare. No one else has asserted this openly, Mr. Stackhouse; but there have, no doubt, been whisperings to that effect, and it is the part of wisdom for you to silence, at once and effectually, any such charge, uttered, insinuated, or hinted at. You can, of course, prove your whereabouts at the time when the murder must have been committed?"

Mr. Lamm said this in a tone of business-like indifference.

"You mean—an alibi?" asked Stackhouse, with something mere of hesitancy than had characterized his statements hitherto.

"Certainly."

"Well, Mr. Lamm, as we are on confidential terms, talking as man to man, I see no reason for concealing the fact that my position as regards an alibi is a little peculiar."

"Indeed?" Mr. Lamm gave his pen another twirl.

"I went to Vercelli's about half-past six o'clock for dinner with Mr. Sparhawk, one of my business friends. He was obliged to take a train out of town on the Providence road, and after the dinner I walked up and down the Public Garden, smoking a contemplative cigar."

"Alone?"

"Yes. Just how long this might have taken I really cannot say."

"About what time did you finish your dinner?"

"Somewhere about half-past seven o'clock. After this little walk, to help digest my dinner, I went towards Washington street again. Then—but why should I beat about the bush? The evening was on my hands, and I dropped in for a quiet little game with some friends at a house in Avory street."

"Yes; I've heard of the place," said the detective, dryly.

"There I stayed until it was getting nearly two o'clock, when I walked into the Adams house, and slept till breakfast."

"Umha!" Mr. Lamm seemed to be considering a point. "About what time did you visit the Avory street house? It may be important as bearing on the question of alibi."

"Not until after nine. I can be sure of that, for I distinctly remember hearing the bells ring at that hour while I was in the street."

"At all events," said the detective, "your friends can testify, if it should be necessary, through any complication of circumstances, when you joined your party, and how long you remained there?"

"Undoubtedly." Mr. Stackhouse sat a moment thinking in his turn. "I suppose no reliable opinion has yet been given as to the time when Paul North came to his end?" He looked a trifle uneasy as he put the question.

"We must await the report of the autopsy on that point," rejoined the detective. "It seems to be taken for granted that Mr. North died some time between six p. m. and nine a. m. by the papers. Only the decision of the medical examiner, however, can have weight in the matter. If I can ascertain its drift in advance," added Mr. Lamm, as if struck by a sudden thought, "I will advise you at once."

"Then you really think you can undertake the case?" Stackhouse asked, eagerly.

"I have decided to," said Lamm, dryly. "I am very glad you came here, Mr. Stackhouse. I think I should have been led into serious error regarding this case if you had not come. However, it is all right. I shall make an exception to an almost unbroken business rule, and undertake the case for a few days at least. If I find I cannot continue the work, I will promptly notify you."

Evidently gratified at receiving this assurance, Stackhouse took his leave.

Mr. Lamm was not in the habit of working for both sides of a case at the same time, and he was only induced to break his rule in this instance by the sudden suspicion that Fetridge, not Stackhouse, was the criminal. He had strong objections to identifying himself with the cause of the murderer when he might be employed in the interests of justice.

"I'll soon find out," he said to himself, "which of you is the villain, and send in my resignation to that man at once."

But it did not prove to be such an easy task as Mr. Lamm had anticipated.

The detective left his office almost upon the heels of his second client, and, shadowing him a short distance, saw him enter a branch office of the Western Union Telegraph company. It is a very strict rule with the company that dispatches are to be considered confidential, and woe to the man who betrays this confidence and gets caught at it. But it is a pretty difficult thing to restrain a man from accommodating a friend when he is sure that the friend will never allow him to suffer thereby; and so, through the courtesy of the operator, who was upon Mr. Lamm's list of "availables," the dispatch written by the junior partner was, soon after that gentleman's departure, in the hands of the detective. It was addressed to Comfort Hardwood, Swampscott, and contained these words:

"Am very busy with matters growing out of sad event. Will come by five o'clock train to Phillips Beach."

The reading of this telegram modified John Lamm's plans. If he wished to shadow Stackhouse, there were two courses open to him. One was to follow him through all the details of his operation till he got to Swampscott, and the other was to anticipate his arrival there. He adopted the latter as the more promising.

"With all due respect to you, Mr. Fetridge," he said to himself, "I should like to begin the case with an understanding of the motive, and if it's a family affair, as you say, why, the family will be a very good point to start at. Perhaps I shall find them less delicate than you are about it—who knows? For at such times emotional excitement loosens everybody's tongues."

He consulted a time-table and hastened to the railway station in Causeway street. In 15 minutes he was in the train going towards Swampscott.

Drawing from his pocket a scarcely dry copy of the paper containing the first chapter of the tragic mystery in which he was embarked, he ran his eye carefully through the meager details thus far published. He seemed pleased when he saw by whom the report was signed.

"K. F. Thomas? Indeed! I'll look him up at once. That fellow knows more people and their histories than a biographical dictionary. Perhaps he can tell me all I want to know about Richard Fetridge."

At this point in his soliloquy Mr. Lamm could not repress a start of surprise. At that very instant the man whose name was on his mind's lips entered the smoking car and sat down in one of the forward seats.

"What the deuce is Fetridge going to Swampscott for at this time of the day?" he asked himself.

And for reasons which he believed to be excellent the detective folded his paper and hastened out of possible range of view of his client, unsatisfied till he had put the entire length of the train between them.

CHAPTER IV.

AN UNBIDDEN GUEST.

Alighting at the Phillips Beach station, with a large contingent of sojourners, Mr. Lamm appeared to be quite as familiar with the place as the rest of the hurrying throng.

In order to permit Fetridge to get well out of the way, he stopped to inquire of the station agent where the Norths lived.

"Just up the street yonder," the agent replied. "Sad news for them, isn't it? The whole household is upset. There's Moffett, their 'inside man,' now, on the platform, looking after the train."

In a moment Mr. Lamm was at the side of the bewildered Moffett, and talking to him as if he had known the portly man of bottles and carving knives all his life.

"I am glad to have met you," he said. "I was a friend of Mr. North, and take a great interest in the family. Poor girls! I couldn't bear to break in upon their grief, but I feel that at a time like this a friend should do something."

Moffett clutched his shoulder.

"Oh, sir," he whispered, with an aroma of something stimulating by the way of flavor for the words, "if you are a friend, you can't do better than come up to the house. I have been waiting here in hopes that Mr. Stackhouse would return. But he doesn't; and there they are at the house in a terrible condition, sir."

"Overcome by the sad news?" Mr. Lamm said, as they walked up the street.

"Oh, sir, there's been some trouble there. I don't know what—scenes between the women. They don't understand what to do, sir. The servants are all upset, too. If it weren't for me, sir, nobody would think of going to watch for Mr. Stackhouse. It's his not coming that worries me, sir."

Yielding to the earnest wish of Moffett, the friend of the family entered the house through the servants' door, the "inside man" clinging to his arm with a nervous grasp.

Without delay Mr. Lamm was escorted to the pantry-room by the portly Moffett, who moved lightly, though slowly. They entered this sanctuary of the "inside man" without meeting any of the household; for, of course, Moffett had the necessary keys.

Moffett had assumed an air of importance and profound mystery that would infallibly have aroused comment and suspicion had he met any of the servants. But, fortunately, both were now in the pantry room with the door locked.

The detective was accustomed to meet all sorts and conditions of men, but he found it hard to refrain from laughing outright at the change in Mr. Moffett's looks as he faced him, after the pantry-room door had been locked, and held up a warning finger. But he said, solemnly:

"Moffett, you're a man of sense, therefore I make no long explanations, but tell you frankly at once that I am a representative of the authorities—don't start, Moffett—and am sent here in the interests of justice."

"Justice!" murmured the butler, looking helplessly at him.

"Here is my badge," continued the detective, throwing back his coat. "And now it is absolutely necessary, Moffett, that I should have the run of the house—watch, without anybody's suspecting the fact, all that goes on, and have an eye to affairs generally. I have come to you in this way, Moffett, because I've been told that you are a very discreet man. Unless you repeat what I have told you, nobody in the house need know of my remaining here, nor have any idea of the real object which brings me."

"But I don't like, sir," stammered the butler, who already began to tremble.

"You must like it, Moffett," emphasized the detective. "I don't wish to make any trouble or take you in charge, but I am fully prepared to go as far as that if you are not sensible enough to see the reasonableness of my first proposal. There! I see by your look you understand the situation. Very good. Now, where is the best, the most central, place in the house, in which you can stow me, do you think, Moffett?"

PLAINFIELD A. C. WINS NINTH STRAIGHT GAME

The Plainfield A. C. defeated the Monroe A. C. and won their ninth straight game Saturday afternoon on the Clinton Avenue grounds, by a score of 5 to 4. Slocum pitched for the Plainfield A. C., and for six innings he was not in his usual form, but finished the contest in fine shape. Allan Squier, who pitched for the Monroes, was in excellent condition, having the speed and curves that used to deceive his opponents in the days when he twirled for the Clinton Avenue team, and but for one bad inning would have won his game.

He kept the Plainfields from scoring for six innings, the Monroes scoring in the first, fourth and fifth innings. Their opponents won out in the seventh, scoring all their runs in that session, when Squier gave Hanson a free pass. Pope followed with a single, Luthman bunted safely, filling the bases, and Coriell hit a smashing two bagger scoring the three runs. Hann singled to right, sending Coriell to third and he stole second. Slocum flied out. Driver went out on an infield fly and Mullen singled to left scoring Coriell and Hann. Thompson obtained a single and Mullen was thrown out trying to steal third. The score:

RARITAN F. C. DEFEATS THE HIGHLAND A. C., 2-1

After having the game put away and looking like sure winners, the Highland A. C. gave the contest on Saturday to the Raritan Field Club, the score being 2 to 1. The game was played at Raritan and was witnessed by a large crowd. Conshay pitched the kind of ball that should have brought victory, allowing but four hits and fanning ten batsmen. Ike was also effective in striking out nine men and allowing but four hits.

The Highlands scored one run in the sixth inning. Kyle opened this inning with a two-base hit to left field. Coon sacrificed him to hird and Conshay made a bid to win his own game by planting a single in right garden, bringing Kyle home with the single tally. In the eighth with two down, Conshay walked a batter. Mullen then fumbled two easy grounders filling the bases. M. Enright came to the rescue with a single, scoring two runs and winning the game. A peculiar fact was that during the entire contest but one fly was caught in the outfield. The score:

NETHERWOOD CAMP NINE VICTORIOUS; SCORE 7-6

A nine composed of New York boys spending the summer at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp won a hard-fought game from the Netherwood A. C. team Saturday afternoon by a score of 7-6. The game was played on a diamond near the camp grounds.

This is the season's second game and second victory since they have been at the camp. A week ago they trimmed the Fanwood boys' nine by a score of 13-6, and Saturday played like "Choints" against the Netherwood team. They started with three runs in the first and held the lead throughout the game, although their opponents nearly tied score in the ninth. Two pitchers were used, Goldsmith, who is captain and manager for the New Yorkers, and Mulkey. The Netherwood Camp nine lined up as follows: Goldsmith, Mulkey, p; Kenney, 1b; Adam Ott, 2b; William Ott, c; Lester Curry, 3b; Monker, rf; Nagle, cf; Gleason, lf. A feature of the game was the playing of Lester Curry, the nephew of Miss Sara Curry, matron of the camp. He accepted some hard chances and was handy with the bat.

MANY ENTRIES FOR CYCLE CLUB RACES

Entries for the amateur racing events to mark the first annual field day of the Plainfield Cycle Club on Labor Day are being received by Chairman "Jack" Horner of the club committee and some crack amateur riders from Westfield, Newark, Elizabeth and Trenton are to compete in the various events. Aside from a one-third mile race, and a ten-mile handicap, open events, there will be a special one-mile race for local riders and a match race between "Jack" Horner and Harry Warren. Athletic events will be on the day's program, too, and will include a 100-yard dash, sack race and broad jump. The officials of the meet have not yet been announced.

The junction of Park and Maple avenues will be the starting point of all the races and the place where the athletic contests will be held. The one-third mile and one mile will be straightaway, and the ten mile will be on a course from Park avenue to Maple avenue, to Front street, South Plainfield, to Oak Tree avenue, to starting point. The distance of this course is 3½ miles.

The racing events are under the auspices of the National Cycling Association and the N. C. A. rules will be used. The prizes will be jewelry and merchandise. The winner of the ten-mile road race will receive a Pierce bicycle, valued at $50; place winners in the mile will receive medals. A watch, ring and stickpin will be the awards in the one-third mile.

PARK GOLF CLUB PLAYER BREAKS COURSE RECORD

E. E. Gano, challenger, who defeated W. R. Faber, holder, for challenge trophy number two, at the Park Golf Club, Saturday, by 6 up and 5 to play, lowered the course record in competition, eighteen holes, returning an 82 from scratch, and also lowered the course record for nine holes with a 39. He went out in 43 and returned in 39. Considering that the course was thoroughly soaked and very low, his performance is all the more remarkable. Bogey for the nine hole cours is 89 and the kind of a game Mr. Gano was playing can be judged by the fact that he made the last hole in five, bogey being seven.

In the weekly competition for the President's and Golf Club cups, the best scores posted were as follows:

E. E. Gano, 82, 0-82; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 94, 9-85; W. R. Faber, 97, 12-85; R. V. Carpenter, 104, 18-86; L. E. Lough, 107, 21-86; Dr. A. W. Anderson, 103, 9-94; Charles E. Morse, 104, 10-94; W. V. Byard, 110, 6-104.

BASEBALL.

The Y. M. C. A. team now leads in the standing among the baseball teams in Plainfield and vicinity with thirteen victories, three defeats, and a percentage of .812. The Highland A. C. is second with a percentage of .764, Mono A. C., third with .750, while Clinton Avenue is in fourth place with a percentage of .733. The standing to date follows:

Y. M. C. A.	13	3	.812
Highland A. C.	13	4	.764
Mono A. C.	9	3	.750
Clinton Avenue	11	4	.733

South Plainfield	4	8	.333
Climax A. C.	2	7	.222

The Second Street Laurels defeated the Shamrocks 3d on the Sycamore avenue grounds this morning by a score of 7 to 0, seven innings. The batteries were Berse and Canter for the Laurels and Gleason and Hannigan for the Shamrocks. The contest was abruptly terminated in the seventh inning, it is said, because the Shamrocks took the balls and bats belonging to the Laurels.

The Iola Club was defeated at Somerville, Saturday afternoon, by the Company M team of Somerville, at the latter place, by a score of 12 to 4.

The Netherwood Juniors defeated the Netherwood Stars, this morning, by a score of 8 to 3.

AH-H, KERCHOO! GOSH, HAY FEVER'S HERE AGAIA

It would be a bold student of the ills flesh is heir to who would attempt to give a comprehensive pathology of the disease that is rightfully regarded as August's own. Of all the cussed, seemingly unnecessary and mysterious ailments that annoy and distress mankind there is none that excels hay fever.

Its victims are absolutely helpless when in its grip, and the worst feature of it is that it is seldom so severe in its effects as to prevent the pursuit of ordinary labor, while it is so distressing as to keep the victim in contant misery while it lasts.

Physicians throw up their hands when a case of hay fever comes to them. There is no such thing as a general form of treatment for it.

While it is in all cases alike in the regularity of its recurrence, coming about August 15 and lasting until frost, it has as many varieties as an old maid in giving reasons for rejecting her suitors in the past.

In other words, it is a disease that requires peculiar individual treatment. Usually a change of scene and air will bring more or less relief. Sufferers at the seashore may find relief in the mountains, and those living at high altitudes may breathe easier and sneeze less, or not at all, when they go to the seashore. Country people may fare better if they go into town, and country life agrees with some hay fever people when they leave the city.

DEAD GAME SPORTS PLAYED MEAN TRICK

They are just a couple of sports known as the common, or garden variety, and they can be seen frequently adding lustre to North avenue by the brilliancy of their presence. Most all the boys know them in some way or other, one in particular because of the wad of twine that encircles the roll of one-dollar bills he sometimes carries around for display. The other is a "good kid" when he has the coin but he is so frequently embarassed financially that it acts as a barrier to close friendship.

They were on the job in cut-to-order raiment, Friday night, and by the exhibition of a little phony jewelry and the application of verbal salve they induced two shy chorus girls to take a cab ride with them after the show. The party journeyed up Somerset street to a resort built on the Rector plan of a dollar-to-look-at-the-silver and made merry while the wherewithal lasted.

It must have given out suddenly because the hosts suddenly struck a bee line for town without the formality of asking the girls to come along. Nobody knows how the latter made out before the hotel embargo for the bill was lifted, but it was 3 o'clock when a North Plainfielder found them on Johnson's drive wandering about like ships without a compass. He managed to get them to civilization in safety and when they had fully recovered they wanted their late friends arrested on some kind of a complaint, just what they didn't know, but finally gave up the idea and charged the affair up to the experience side of the ledger. It is a sure guess that all chorusdom will hereafter have the Indian sign on Plainfield because of the episode.

A large red apple will be awarded the gentle reader who can guess the names of the dead-game sports who can sprint three miles in record time when it becomes necessary.

Rain Postpones Game.

The weather conditions on Saturday caused a postponement of the ball game scheduled between Pennington and the West Ends, of Somerville, at the latter place. Later when it cleared off a contest was arranged at Somerville between the R. B. A. and the Poison Ivies, the latter team winning by a score of 3 to 2, eleven innings. Saturday the Clinton Avenues will cross bats with the West Ends at Somerville.

Rain caused a postponement of ball game scheduled between the Whitehouse Station A. A. and Stepensburg teams at Whitehouse Station. On Saturday the home team will play the Menlo A. C., of New Brunswick, at Whitehouse Station.

FIGHT FOR KEAN'S SEAT

Many Candidates in the Field to Succeed Him in the Senate.

DIRECT VOTE WILL DECIDE.

Though the Contest Is Still in the Distance It Promises to Be a Memorable One.

Coupled with the great public interest manifested in the primary election September 22, because it will give New Jersey for the first time direct nominations, is strong concern for the primary election of next year when there will be not only direct nominations, but another revolutionary move in State politics namely, the public naming of preferences for United States Senator. Although that will be twelve months, and a little more, in the future it is a live topic now for the present campaign will, wherever possible, be made to serve the various interests in the fight next year which will have for its object the choosing of a successor to United States Senator John Kean. Every Senator to be elected next November will have a vote in the election of United States Senator in the winter of 1911.

The fight for Kean's seat in Washington is already looming into view and it promises to be distinctly one of the most exciting and desperate senatorial struggles the State has ever seen. The character of the battle will be entirely new. Heretofore the United States Senators in this State have been chosen without question by the members of the Legislature. Next year the Senator will be chosen, or at least should be, by the direct vote of the people at the primary election. The members of the Legislature will merely serve as the agents of the voters to carry into effect their expressed will.

The change will be wrought by the law passed last year after a memorable fight in the Legislature. The statute enable the voters of the State to express, through the ballot box, at the primaries held previous to the election for United States Senator, their preference in candidates for that high office. The nominations for United States Senator are to be made on petitions signed by one thousand voters.

It will thus be seen that any person qualified to serve as United States Senator, who duly files a petition with the secretary of State, must be placed in nomination and voted for at the primary election. The procedure will be the same as this year for the various State and county officers. After the primary election the result will be certified to the members of the State Senate and Assembly, giving the number of votes received throughout the State by each Senatorial candidate. The law also gives the form of statement, or pledge, for each candidate for the Legislature to sign.

There are two forms of statement, either of which the legislative candidate may sign. One pledges the candidate in the Legislature to "vote for that candidate for United State Senator in Congress who has received the highest number of votes in any party in the county for the position at the primary election next preceding the election of the Senator in Congress without regard to my individual preference." The other statement is the same excepting that it pledges the candidate to vote for the Senatorial nominee who received the highest number of votes in the State.

It is not obligatory upon the candidate for the Legislature to sign either of these pledges. It will be expected that every man who aspires to the Legislature and who signs either of the pledges, will keep it. The pledge will be handed to the legislative candidate for signature when he signs his acceptance of the nominationfor the State Senate or Assembly, to whichever he aspires. This fall there will be eight candidates for State Senator who will be expected to sign such a pledge. They will be those in Camden, Essex, Gloucester, Monmouth, Salem, Somerset, Union and Warren counties. The members of the Assembly are elected for only one year and no Assembly candidates will be called upon to take this pledge until next year.

Among the Republican candidates for six more years in Washington will be Senator John Kean himself, no mean political fighter, who will make a strenuous contest to retain his seat. Then there will also be former Governor Edward C. Stokes, Franklin Murphy, John W. Griggs, Everett Colby, the Essex Senator; and Governor John Franklin Fort. Others being mentioned are David Baird, the Camden county leader, and Congressman John J. Gardener, of the Second district, known all

BIG BROKERAGE FIRM ANNOUNCES ITS FAILURE

A. O. Brown & Co., probably one of the biggest stock brokage firms in New York, having several branch offices in Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo, Chicago and many other large cities throughout the country, announced its failure shortly after noon today.

The firm was one of the most prominent in the enormous stock dealing transactions on Friday and Saturday of last week, and before the governors met yesterday to consider some of the questionable transactions, the firm's sheets had made it evident that it had transacted on Saturday a volume of business never equalled by any one house in the history of the Exchange.

The only broker before the governors yesterday was A. O. Brown, head of the firm of A. O. Brown & Co., of Broad street. Mr. Brown was there to explain why his firm had been twelve hours late in getting its sheets to the Stock Exchange Clearing House and why it had failed to make deliveries at 2:15, the stated time for deliveries, and on Friday's and Saturday's transactions combined. His explanation was accepted as far as concerned the reasons for the delay, but without bearing upon the character of the transactions involved. A representative of the firm said yesterday that in the two hours of business on Saturday the firm had traded in the vast total of 1,500,000 shares. At 1:45 this afternoon the market was reported as being quiet.

TITANIA VIII CROWNED QUEEN AT ASBURY PARK

Miss Norma Cole Hornberger, of Pittsburg, Pa., is now in reality Titania VIII, queen of Asbury Park's far famed children's carnival and baby parade. In a monster open air amphitheatre on the ocean front, seating fifteen thousand people, Miss Hornberger last night received her crown and sceptre and began a reign which will have its climax in the masque fete next Monday night.

The coronation ceremony was the most brilliant that has ever taken place in the history of Asbury Park's great carnival events. No queen in real life ever was surrounded by a more beautiful court and few have been crowned with less display of pageantry or other features which mark the ascension to power of a genuine monarch.

Society for twenty miles along the coast gathered to witness this elaboration of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" whose delightful fairy sentiment runs throughout all of the carnival events. Governor Fort and party, with hundreds of other distinguished people from all parts of the country, occupied boxes and specially decorated seats near the queen's court. Nearly one hundred people in costume took part in the coronation program. Tomorrow night society will dance at the court ball and on Friday afternoon nearly one thousand babies and children in gorgeously decorated vehicles of childhood will participate in the annual baby parade.

EDITOR'S GIRL AN ELOPER.

Trumbull Forbade Daughter to Wed Butcher—She Ran Away.

Despite the pursuit of an angry father, Miss Florence Trumoull, nineteen, daughter of the editor and owner of the Bernardsville News, eloped Saturday night with Frederick W. Compton, of the firm of Ludlow & Compton, meat dealers, and was married in Pluckemin, yesterday, half an hour before the irate pafent got there.

The marriage was performed by the Rev. Thomas Westley. Miss Anna Compton, sister of the bridegroom was a witness.

The elopement was the denouement of a long courtship, carried on despite the opposition of the bride's father and mother. Saturday night Miss Trumbull announced she was going to a dance, but instead met Compton and went with him to the home of his parents in Pluckemin, where she remained until they decided to visit the minister.

The S. S. S. Social Club Meets.

The S. S. S. Social Club met last night and elected these officers for the coming year: President, Daniel Applegate; vice-president, B. Harrison Fahn; secretary, Miss Myra M. Dunavan; treasurer, Edward Honeyman. At the next meeting several new members will be initiated.

PROBERS AT ASBURY PARK

Mayor Fisk's Commission Now Investigating Conditions at Shore Resort.

PROMINENT MEN TESTIFY.

Railroad Freight Receipts Show Liquor is Shipped In at the Rate of a Ton a Day.

Gov. Fort's State excise probers visited Asbury Park yesterday, to investigate excise conditions in Monmouth and Ocean counties. Prior to taking testimony the chairman of the commission, Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city, had this to say concerning the Atlantic City situation:

"There is one thing perfectly apparent to us all, and if we want the law to be enforced as it should be we have got to pass laws putting the power in the Governor's hands to remove official prosecutors and jjudges, and especially those who refuse point blank to enforce the law. such officials are a blot on the State, and the sooner the State is rid of them, the better it will be."

Judge John E. Foster, of the Monmouth County Court, when called before the commission to testify, said he approved of Sunday selling with meals.

"We all know," said Judge Foster, "there are thousands of seashore visitors who demand their liquor and who will have it no matter what the law is."

Prosecutor Henry M. Nevius of Monmouth county, testified that he had employed eighteen detectives this summer to obtain evidence against liquor dealers who were evading the law. "If there have been any evasions at Pleasure Bay or the resorts near Asbury Park," Mr. Nevius said, "they have been in the dining rooms, and I have told my men not to interfere where the places were orderly or not to invade the premises." He also said that he made no raids except upon complaints, and that he knew of no Sunday selling at Pleasure Bay or the Ross Fenton Farm, except with meals.

Peter Backes, counsel for the commission, at this point retorted that the detectives were evidently wearing smoked glasses when they made their investigations.

Senator O. H. Brown of Monmouth county apeared surprised when informed by the commission that liquor was sold at the fashionable Spring Lake Casino. The Rev. Dr. Aaron E. Ballard, vice-president of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association, said prohibition prohibited in that resort because property owners who sold liquor contrary to law would forfeit their property.

The Asbury Park freight office sent to the excise probers yesterday six boxes full of freight receipts covering liquor shipped to Asbury Park, Ocean Grove, Allenhurst, Bradley Beach, and Deal.

With these receipts came testimony to the effect that the freight depot receives on an aeverage of one ton of liquor every day during the summer.

Conditions in Asbury Park and Long Branch will be more thoroughly investigated at today's session of the commission.

Their First Visit North.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Carter, of New Orleans, have been spending their two weeks' vacation in the North and yesterday they were guests of Mr. Carter's uncle, Alonzo R. Hill, of West Fourth street. They are now visiting their grandmother at Newark. Mr. Carter is a letter-carrier at New Orleans and this is his first visit North. He is delighted with this part of the country, especially Plainfield.

"Farmer Orator" Campaigning.

James E. Martine will be the principal speaker at a Democratic mass meeting to be held at Kurtz's Auditorium, on Springfield avenue, Newark, tonight. It is expected that fully 2,000 people will be present. It was at this auditorium that Bryan spoke on his last visit to Newark. Tomorrow afternoon Mr. Martine will speak at the farmer's picnic to be held at Flemington.

Police Committee to Meet.

The Councilmanic police committee will hold a meeting tomorrow night to discuss matters pertaining to the new headquarters' building which is now nearing completion at Fourth and Sycamore streets. It is expected that possession of the building will be taken the latter part of October or the first of November, the contractor rushing the work with all possible speed.

LOCAL YOUNG WOMAN AN ART PHOTOGRAPHER

In the art edition of last Sunday's issue, the New York Herald had the following interesting article relative to a well known Plainfield young woman:

"'Never do I get accustomed to it. Each time the miracle seems repeated.' The speaker was Miss Edith Hastings Tracy, a grandniece of the late William M. Evarts and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Evarts Tracy, who has taken up art photography with success.

"This was in the dark room, tucked into a picturesque stone studio on the heights above Chatham, N. Y., with the blue Catskills toward the west and old Greylock in the dim north. Here she was drawing back and forth in a pan a roll of films and watching in the faint light filtered through the tiny red glass window the groups of people, the flowers and hay fields coming into view with perfection of detail. This picture making of the sun coming forth in the gloom was the miracle of which she spoke.

"'One of the miraculous things about it to me,' she went on, 'is that I can put these films aside for years and a touch of the sun brings them out again in another form as perfect as they are today.'

"The mystery and wonder of it all seemed to provide for the worker that interest and enthusiasm which lifts the day work into those higher regions where there is neither sense of burden nor weariness of spirit. Certainly this grandniece and daughter of distinguished lawyers, members of the late William M. Evart's firm, loves her work.

"'I have no studio,' she explained. 'I prefer to take people in the midst of their own surroundings. The moment one comes to a photographer's prepared to have a picture taken among artificial surroundings one loses something of the real self, while the charm of a photograph as a portrait lies in its naturalness, sense of character and absence of self-consciousness.

"'For these reasons I prefer to take old people and children. Both in their way have less self-consciousness, and one gets nearer to the real being. The ideal place for taking the photograph of a child is a well equipped nursery. There the child is at home, is familiar with its surroundings and not distracted by them, as in a studio. Its toys are there, and it turns to them and is not interested in you or your camera.

"'Usually when I am to make a portrait I go first to the house and look over the rooms and select the most suitable for the purpose, thus forming some idea of the composition. These preliminaries save time when the picture is to be taken and prevent the victims from getting weary. If it is a child it usually has something it is specially interested in, and I give it this to play with. Perhaps I talk to it, or perhaps ignore it, but always try to take the photograph unawares.'

"A collection of photographs of children showed this engaging absorption, even creeping things seeming to have some special object in life. Other pictures showed them entertaining their mothers and pets.

"'Do you perfer taking them with their mothers?' Miss Tracy was asked.

"'Yes,' she replied, 'If the mothers do not insist on having pretty pictures of themselves. The ideal attitude of a mother is, of course, looking down at the child. It inevitably gives her an enlarged nose, which is not pretty. So a mother must make a certain sacrifice for the child.

"'When the mother is not to be taken she is apt to complicate the situation by her anxiety. Such admonitions as 'Take your finger out of your mouth,' 'Look pleasant,' 'Can't you keep still?' 'Don't do this,' 'Don't do that,' do not contribute to that ease and naturalness which you are striving for. So some times it is necessary to ask mothers and nurses to leave the room while the operation is being performed—just as the doctors do.

"'With elderly people one gets the same attractive unconsciousness as with children. I took the photograph of an old gentleman of ninety, who fortunately had a sun parlor. I asked him to sit down with his newspaper while I got my camera ready so that he would not be tired. Meanwhile I took six delightful plates. When I was through I told him that was all. 'But you didn't pose me. Aren't you going to pose me?' He was almost bewildered by the thought that he had been taken and hadn't been posed.

"'All photographs are of course not alike satisfying. There is generally an outlying company of family relatives and friends who have various ideas and the right to comment. But, all things considered, I find that photographs taken at home get further beneath the superficial traits and more nearly at the person.'"

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL HERE

State Commission Designates Plainfield for One of Forty Locations.

REPORT MADE TO GOV. FORT.

Institutions Are Planned to Perfect Skilled Workmen in Their Respective Trades.

The State Industrial School Commission, appointed last winter by Governor Fort, has completed its investigation and made a report in which it is recommended that the State establish forty industrial schools. Among the sites designated for one of them is Plainfield, and the fact will arouse great interest among those who would be benefited by such instruction as is proposed.

George R. Howe, of Newark, is chairman of the commission and Dr. Albert A. Snowden, of Roselle, is secretary. According to the proposed plans the night sessions will be held in the schools chiefly, although not exclusively, for young men and women who are employed at trades, the idea being to perfect them in their vocations and make them more competent in the particular lines which they are following. The schools will not be intended as places to teach various trades, but perfect young men and women in them.

The commission has been conducting its investigation for several months and the report will be presented to the Legislature next winter. If it is approved the plan is to establish the schools at once. In addition to the one proposed for Plainfield, the report recommends that two be established at Elizabeth, one for Westfield and Cranford, one for Carteret and Rahway and one for Roselle Park, Roselle Borough and Garwood.

It will be the purpose of the commission to place these schools at points where the largest number of residents are skilled workmen for it is this class of people that it is intended to benefit. It is estimated that it will cost the State $100,000 a year to maintain these forty schools. The system proposed, while containing features of those used in Massachusetts, California and Germany, is framed chiefly along the lines suggested by the commission.

STRIKE IN INSANE ASYLUM.

Employes in Kitchen of State Hospital at Morris Plains Cause Much Trouble.

If it hadn't been for the resourcefulness of Warden Moses K. Everett of the State Hospital at Morris Plains it is probable that two thousand patients would have gone without their usual Sunday dinner. As it was, the dinner didn't reach the inmates until nearly supper time. The kitchen help went on a strike, and that was the cause of the trouble.

Warden Everett some time ago decided that a new method of serving the food to the patients was needed, so he appointed a new dietitian by the name of Euvrard. Mr. Euvrard proceeded to teach some of the servants new tricks about the preparation of food. Most of them did not take to the change. The dietitian insisted on his orders being carried out, so Sunday, just before time to get dinner ready, the help walked out. Warden Everett was called, and he tried to persuade the strikers to return, but they wouldn't. The warden was perplexed, and then it occurred to him that he could get help from the housekeepers near the hospital, so he went out to see them.

In less than an hour the warden had all the help he wanted. Men and women within a mile of the institution filled up the path leading to the kitchen of the hospital. The big ovens in the buildings were quickly heated up, and potatoes and meat and vegetables of various kinds were soon cooking. Some of the strikers were then willing to go to work, but the warden succeeded in tiding the trouble over until yesterday, when new help was employed.

To Sing for Prohibition.

The Black Diamond Quartette, of this city, has been engaged by the Hunterdon county Prohibitionists to furnish the entertainment at mass meetings in Flemington and Cherryville, Thursday and Friday. The organization is composed of John Taylor, "Skinny" Wilson, "Aus" Nelson and "Kid" Ash.

Miss Gertrude Conover, of the borough, a missionary in Ashville, N. C., will speak at a missionary meeting to be held in Warren chapel, tomorrow night.

ENTERPRISING MILKMAN GOT HIS SUPPLY GRATIS

John Murphy, a young and enterprising milkman, who came to the borough several months ago from Pennsylvania and took his departure last Saturday without leaving his address, is being sought by Constable William N. Pangborn, who has a warrant for his arrest issued by Justice Smalley. For Arthur R. Phillips, a Grandview avenue milkman, formerly Murphy's "boss," caught the man red-handed "lifhting" bottles of milk from back porches of his customers and delivering them on the Murphy milk route. Aside from this, Murphy, who left without even a grip-load of clothes, has not paid for his milk wagon or the horse he used in his business. Aside from running his milk business, the young fellow was employed by William W. Mills, of Madison avenue, as a tinner for some weeks previous to his get-away.

Mr. Phillips, who issued the warrant last week, said today that there was little chance of capturing the man. "He was a bright fellow," he added, "and I guess he's quicker than Jersey justice." The milkman said that Murphy, who is but twenty years old, had a good job with him at the Grandview avenue dairy, but left to go into business for himself. He had no cows, but bought his milk from borough dealers. It is said that he still owes for this milk, as well as for his horse and wagon, which, however, he left when he made his getaway.

"He used to take my customers' milk," Mr. Phillips said, "bottles and all, and deliver it to his customers. He'd come along after my man and get the milk from the houses—saved him the expense of buying it, you see. In some cases, where money was left out, he'd take the money, but leave no milk. Several of my customers complained, and finally one of them spotted him at work. Others were willing to testify, so the warrant was sworn out."

COUNCILMAN LEAVES NOMINATION TO LEADERS

Councilman Frank DeWitt Randolph, whose term of office expires this year, has not yet filed his petition for a renomination and in fact he has not decided whether he will seek the office for another term or not. He has now been a member of the Common Council for eight and a half years, succeeding Frank H. Smith, when he retired from that body.

In conversation with Mr. Randolph on the subject today, he expressed the opinion that he would be willing to retire this year and give some one else a "show," if that is the wish of the party leaders." He said that he had pleasant memories of his long service in the Council but is ready to retire at any time the party desires to make a change.

During the time Mr. Randolph has been a member of the Council he has served on all of the important committees, the favorite pium being chairman of the police committee. He has been at the head of that committee during his term with the exception of the one year that former Councilman W. S. Tyler was in charge of police matters. He has also given valuable service in the work of the other committees. The question as to whether he will again be a candidate will be decided within the next week.

Election Officers Not Complete.

The Union County Board of Elections and Registry not having completed the list of election officers for the entire county, declined to make any announcement today. It is expected that all of the officers will be named by tomorrow, at which time they will be given out for publication. According to the law these election officers must meet some time today for organization purposes, and in cases where they have been appointed this will be done. In all others the organization will have to be perfected tomorrow.

Suffers From Blood Poisoning.

Miss Lena Brugger, who has been employed at a home in Duer street, the borough, is detained at her home in Lincoln, with the second attack of blood poisoning of the right foot. She is under the constant care of a physician.

Not the Netherwood A. C.

Manager Frederickson, of the Netherwood A. C. nine, states that his team was not the nine defeated by the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp boys Saturday afternoon. The club has no team in the field this year.

School Opens September 15.

The city schools will open for the fall term Tuesday, September 15, and not the previous week, as stated in another paper.

GROSZMANNS IN COURT

Professor and His Wife Arrested on Complaint of Defiant Gardener.

TO GO BEFORE GRAND JURY.

Crowd of Watchung Residents Follow the Defendants to the office of Justice Blume.

Followed by a hooting jeering crowd of about a score of Watchung township residents, Professor and Mrs. Maximillian P. E. Groszmann, under arrest on an assault warrant issued on complaint of "King John" Carrar, of the Groszmann School barn at Watchung Crest, were led through the township street in a surrey by Constable John Clemens, who executed the warrant on Somerset street, to the home of Justice of the Peace Christopher Blume, at Watchung, last night. "King John" had taken a powerful initative as the result of an alleged combat with the two Saturday afternoon at the school, and with the aid of the constable had bagged his game. Professor Groszmann, captured with his wife upon his return from New York, where he had been to secure two women servants, calls the demonstration a "prearranged insult," and his counsel, George W. V. Moy, is incensed over the constable's action in proclaiming who the arrested parties were and exciting the crowd.

Justice of the Peace Blume set the hearing for tomorrow night at Texier's Mills, but Mr. Moy said today that he will waive a hearing before the Justice and bring the case before the Grand Jury. It is the belief of both lawyer and client that the matter be brought before the highest authorities. "I am disgusted with 'justice' in the township," said Mr. Moy today.

Professor Groszmann, in telling of the arrest, was indignant over the insults by the crowd. "We returned from New York at about 7 o'clock," he said, "and my son Waldemar met us at the train with the surrey. My wife and I had brought with us two women servants for the school, whom we had engaged in New York. As we drove up Somerset street after crossing the bridge at the county line, Constable Clemens came out and stopped the horse. 'Got room in there for me,' he said, and tried to get in the surrey. He showed no warrants and no constable's badge.

"The carriage was too full, so he took the horse by the bridle and walked along in the road, leading us. When he came to the turn-off at Johnson's drive by the school, he showed the warrants, allowed my son and the two women to go to the school, and led the carriage containing myself and my wife, on to Justice Blume's house.

"At the bridge at Watchung, there were about twenty men, and the constable called to them, asking if they weren't interested in 'these choice neighbors of yours I've arrested.' They shouted assent and fell in behind. Mrs. Groszmann was insulted by the crowd, members of which pulled her hair and called us names. I appealed to Constable Clemens for protection, but he allowed them to do as they wished. There was no hearing at the justice's house, and we drove home shortly after our arrival there."

But "King John" is happy. Wreathed in smiles, he was in town today, eager to talk about the case. "I am still at ze bar-rn," he said, "and will be zaire 'til come August 31. Then I move out, but I haf a t'ree year lease on Mrs. Bishop's plave next door, and I live dere, right by ze Professaire. My new house, he not two hun'er feet away."

"I get zem arres' all right. Mrs. Groszmann, she throw my son, my Albert, down har-rd up on Johnson's Drive Sat'day afternoon. Zay seek dog's on him. Ze Professaire he choke me. Zat Waldemar Groszmann, he say he shoot my fren', Lazaro Salti. Zey all try keep me from go home to my bar-rn. But I get ze law on 'em, is it not?"

Dr. Cornwell Engaged.

Mrs. William Lewis, of New York, announces the engagement of her niece, Miss Elizabeth Fairfax Johnson, daughter of the late C. Fairfax Johnson, of Virginia, to Dr. Wilbur Cornwell, of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Robbins Cornwell. Dr. Cornwell is a graduate of the class of '96 of the Plainfield High School and is one of Plainfield's most prominent young physicians.

Enjoyed Long Walking Trip.

Roy Belue and BeBrt Smith, of the Hope Chapel Boys' Club, spent Sunday on a tramp to Duke's Farm and back, walking the entire distance. While at Duke's the young men enjoyed a swim in the Raritan.

Ten (10) Stamps as a Compliment, to All Who Bring Their Stamp Books

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 26.

If you have watched trading stamps—that is "S. & H." Green Trading Stamps—you know the important position they occupy. But if you have not paid much attention to the matter, you can have no conception of the splendid advance made by this most popular of all premium plans; both with regard to the number and prominence of the merchants who give "S. & H." Stamps and the variety and excellence of the "Premiums."

It is extremely easy to fill many stamp books annually; especially as you can obtain stamps for your trade marks, soap wrappers, flour sacks, labels, coupons, etc.

Come Wednesday, examine the "Premiums," get a list of merchants who give stamps, and obtain any information you require. Bear in mind that each time you make a purchase and don't get "S. & H." Stamps, you are actual money out of pocket.

Larry Lajoie did not make a hit in the recent Cleveland-Boston series.

Danny Murphy of the Athletics drove in five runs for his team in a game last week.

Another shoutout to Mathewson's credit, bringing his total for this season up to eight.

End of Season Sale.

No time for dull lethargy here—no time to let summer stocks remain on the shelving longer. This last week of August is going to see a lot of mighty low prices on stocks throughout the house, prices that will clean up like real, sure enough bargains always do; and to interest those that are through with the summer shopping, we add quite a bit of news, of underpricing on such goods as are always in demand—for we mean to have one big hustling week to end this summer season.

practising for the open championship of Thursday and Friday. When last at Myopia the winning card was Will Anderson's 81, 80, 76, 77—314, Aleck Smith being next with 76, 80, 80, 80.—316. Barret, the Canadian, had 77, 79, the last day and Stewart Gardner on the first day did two 78s. Joe Lloyd, George Cummings and Jack Hobens had single rounds in 75 and in a match before the tournament Will Anderson was credited with 72, the record for the course.

In gaining the Western open over the Normandie course this season Will Anderson did 299, equalling the score he made in winning the same title at the Euclid course in 1902. The only scores to compare with this for an open championship, the course and competitors being considered, are James Braid's 300 at Muirfield in 1906 and his winning score in June at Prestwick—70, 72, 77, 72—291.

Is it possible that 80's for the four rounds may be accomplished at Myopia this week? Yes, but not very probable must be the answer. Aleck Smith, although he had malaria, came close to it in 1905, while Will Anderson was below his game on the first day. Aleck Ross over the tricky Wissahickon course won the open championship last year in 302, the rounds being 76, 74, 76, 76, but the value of the score is lessened by Gil Nicholls, who was second, following an 80 with 73, 72, 79, and that three others of the placed men, Aleck Campbell, George Low and Fred McLeod, had their four rounds in the 70's. When low scores come in a cluster their merit is depreciated.

Aleck Ross last month won the Massachusetts open at Brae Burn with 290, but neither is this a straw to show that the quartet of 80's will be shattered this time. The strongest argument on the affirmative side is that on their best game professionals and amateurs are now beating even 4's on hard courses, as the record scores of the season attest. For instance, Jerome D. Travers' 68 at Montclair, Mason Phelp's 69 at Lake Geneva, Fred McLeod's 70 at Rock Island, H. H. Barker's 69 at Garden City and 66's by Jack Hutchinson at St. Andrews, Gil Nicholls at Woodlands and Aleck Campbell at Brookline. What has happened in one round may happen in four—some day.

PERSONAL.

Miss Jennie Kippsie, of Manning avenue, is entertaining relatives from out of town.

Miss Hazel Walters, of DeLacey avenue, is spending her vacation at Asbury Park.

Mrs. John Weigman, of Brooklyn, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ryno, of Manning avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Cormick McDonough, of Fairview avenue, have returned home after spending the summer at Holyoke, Mass.

Mrs. Haynes, of Elizabeth, who has been visiting her son, J. E. Haynes, of West End avenue, has returned home.

William Day, of the borough, who has been spending the summer with his grandparents near Somerville, has returned home.

Harry Nash, of DeLacey avenue, has returned from Asbury Park, where he spent his vacation. He stopped at The Wellington.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin A. Korff, of Watchung avenue, have returned from Asbury Park, where they have been sojourning for two weeks.

Miss Sarah Gilligan, of West Fifth street, has returned home after spending her vacation at Asbury Park. She was registered at the Ocean House.

J. V. Varley, manager of A. E. Force & Co.'s store, has returned from Asbury Park, where he spent his vacation of two weeks, with his wife and family.

Miss Margaret Kenney, of East Second street, leaves tomorrow for Yonkers, N. Y., where she will spend a week visiting at the home of Miss Mildred Schlesinger.

Dr. Stephen A. Aldrich and his sisters, of Sherman avenue, have returned from Asbury Park, where they have been sojourning. They made the trip to and from the shore in their automobile.

The "Kilties" are Coming.

The fifty-second annual Scottish games of the New York Caledonian Club on Labor Day, Monday, September 7, at Washington Park and Casino, Grand street, Maspeth, L. I., will be a banner day in the annals of the club on account of the large number of visiting organizations that have signified their intention of being present to take part in the parade and games, as well as by the very large number of entries that have been received from prominent athletes in all parts of the country (including Canada) for the different games and competitions. The members of the club will be accompanied in the parade by delegations from the following organizations, in full Highland dress: Scottish Highlanders (who are scheduled to give an exhibition drill at the grounds), New York; Caledonian Club, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Fraser Highlanders, of Pawtucket, R. I.; Caledonian Club, of Paterson, N. J.; Caledonian Club, of Newark, N. J.; and various other representative Scottish societies and clans.

are having a fine time fluctuating around the .500 mark.

Hemphill and Moriarty are two members of the hilltop tribe whose work has been pleasing to the fans of late.

It has been noticed in the work of several umpires lately that they are inclined to give their decision before the play has been consummated.

At last a ball thrown from the top of Washington monument has been caught, but Pike's Peak and the Singer building still remain inviolate.

Tailenders have their victories no less renowned than stars. See what the New Yorks did to the Detroits and the Cardinals to the Phillies.

McGraw is not only handling his pitchers cleverly, but he has the team doing as it did in 1905, making the most in the scoring line of the opportunities offered.

In the last three games the pitching department of the Highlanders has been conducted as well as could be asked. Chesbro, Lake and Manning did the firing.

"Show me a team that works three first class pitchers often and I'll show you a team that will win more games than one that uses six or eight pitchers," says Arthur Irwin.

It looks as if the New York Americans had picked up a real prize in McIlveen. He is an earnest player, not graceful, but is a fast mover, lands on the ball hard and gets over a good deal of ground in the outfield.

"Will that fellow never make a fumble again?" asked Fred Clarke despairingly the other day just after Joe Tinker made a particularly scintillating stop. Tinker went through twenty-two straight games without an error.

Jiggs Donohue of the White Sox will, it is said, be operated on for appendicitis in the fall. Other prominent baseball men who have had this trouble recently are Walter Johnson, the Washington pitcher; Davy Brain of the New York Nationals and Umpire Johnstone. Brain expects to be operated on soon.

Co. M baseball team, of Somerville, will play the fast semi-professional team at Bernardsville on Saturday.

Plainfield, N. J., August 25, 1908.

The popular song of the day at Atlantic City seems to be "Lets have some fun in a wide open town."

A Philadelphia resident, fined $10 by a Jersey justice for auto speeding, gave a check for the amount but immediately went home and stopped the payment. And yet there are some people who persist in declaring that Quakertown folks are somnambulistic.

The complexity of the primary laws was somewhat relieved yesterday in an opinion given by Assistant Attorney General Nelson B. Gaskill, who, in referring to the much discussed freeholder petitions, said:

"Ten signers are required to a petition where a freeholder is to be chosen from a single ward or township. Three from each municipality are required where two or more municipalities elect jointly."

To one county in the State at least this ruling does not apply. In Union freeholders are chosen from cities, townships and boroughs. In the case of the cities, therefore, a freeholdership is considered a city office, and fifty signers are required, and the county clerk has so ruled. Throughout the rest of the State, however, according to the assistant attorney general, the general custom is to elect freeholders from wards and townships.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Elvin Smith and John Huggs, of Burlington, who were drowned in the Delaware River at Bristol early Thursday morning, were buried together this afternoon. The interment for both was in the Odd Fellows' Cemetery.

J. G. M. Carter, who disappeared from his home in Trenton on August 10, leaving his bride of less than a year, is expected to return shortly. His employer, Herbert Heroy, has a letter from him, in which he said that he was tired and needed a rest.

John Dennis, of Sewell, has just discovered that his horse was stabbed by a sharp, long-bladed knife while he was visiting a young woman in Clayton last Sunday night. When he started for home the horse was sick, and for five days could not be moved.

Because of a girl in Italy whom each is planning to bring to this country for a bride John Soval and Dory Archy, both of Trenton, rushed at each other with stilettos when they met on the street Saturday night. Both were badly cut before the police could stop the duel.

The schooner Julian Barton went aground on the shoals off Ocean City late Saturday night while returning from a fishing trip to Five Fathom Banks. Captain Charles Larsen and his crew of five men were brought ashore by the Ocean City life-saving crew. The vessel will be a total wreck.

Albert Wolfe, of Atlantic City, a negro busman, ended a flow of invective directed at David Shinn, another busman, by calling Shinn a "Democrat." Shinn swore out a warrant before Recorder Hayes, and Wolfe was fined $5 for intimating that he was a member of the minority party in Atlantic City.

Mayor Gabel, of Bordentown, has a nmber of pawn tickets, representing clothes, pewelry and many other articles. The police believe they were hidden by Grant Bacon, a negro, who was committed to the Burlington County Jail at Mt. Holly on a charge of robbing the residence of Mrs. Ella Swisher. The tickets will be given Prosecutor Atkinson.

An unparalleled sight was witnessed by residents of Tuckertown Saturday, when millions of young fish, commonly called "moss bunkers," invaded the head of Tuckertown Creek. The fish were so thick that they are supposed to have smothered, and the stream was soon jammed with the carcasses. Another theory is that they were killed by gasoline in the water. The fish were quickly gathered up in nets and buckets of every description and sold for fertilizer.

Suit for $5,000 has been instituted against the Lackawanna Railroad Company by Jacob Zabriskie, of Paterson, a driver formerly employed by the Wells Fargo Express Company. Zabriskie avers that last February, while delivering a parcel to the Manhattan Rubber Company, at Pasaic, he was struck by a freight car on the switch running through the company's yards. His wagon was demolished, one horse was killed and he was so badly injured that he was confined to his home for seven weeks.

Although Coroner Charesworth gave a certificate of "death due to suffocation," the mysterious death of Clara, twenty-three-year-old daughter of George Jones, at her home in Millville, will be more thoroughly investigated. The young woman was found dead in bed with a quilt tightly wound about her neck and was unable to extricate herself in the dark or make herself heard.

After making a thorough investigation into the case of Esther Phillips or Dorward, twenty-three years old, who was found dying in a furnished room house on Kaighn avenue, Camden, as the result of taking carbolic acid, Coroner Fithian yesterday announced that he would give a certificate of death. There were circumstances which caused some suspicion on the part of the coroner and the police, but it was found that it was a clear case of suicide. The parents of the woman, who live in Reading, have been communicated with.

Be Comfortable on Ironing Day.

Now that the much desired state of being "well-groomed" demands wrinkleless blouses and skirts—and plenty of them, at that, the laundry bills become "something fierce" to most girls, especially those who have personal charge of their own expenses. They try to "do" their own waists and break their backs over the ironing board and complain most bitterly of fatigue.

Now, though ironing is hard work, it may be much lightened by having the ironing board just the right height. It is the bent position that puts the kinks in the back and the temper. Before you order the "horses" made stand erect with the iron in your hand as if ready for work, and have the horses made that height. If others use the board, or if you have to use the supports already made, put your wits at work and find some device by which to raise the board to a height convenient to yourself. Ironing day will lose half its terrors.

STATUTES PUZZLING TO STATE OFFICERS

Two laws passed by the last Legislature have so complicated matters that the chiefs of the various departments at Trenton have asked Comptroller West for information as a basis for getting bids or printing the reports of the departments, as the fiscal year closes next November. It is because of the conflict of two laws that the information is desired.

Under the old Voorhees law the State reports were required to be in the hands of the Governor one month after the close of the fiscal year, that is, November 31. The penalty provided is the forfeiture of half a month's salary by the chief who fails to comply. In the past, however, but few of the State reports have reached the Governor in a month, yet nobody ever heard of a forfeiture. Franklin Murphy, when Governor, endeavored to have that law enforced, but did not succeed.

Chapter 133 of the statutes of 1908 is the one that has the State officials guessing. This was passed and approved by Governor Fort for the purpose of having more promptness in the matter of the filing of reports by the various State commissions. The law, however, applies to all "commissions, boards, and officers of the State of New Jersey." It requires that all reports shall be completed and delivered to the Governor or Legislature ten days previous to the first day of January, and if the document is to be printed it is required that it shall be printed and delivered to the members of the Legislature on the first day of the session, which is the second Tuesday in January.

It is when this law is compared with Chapter 211, of the laws of 1908, that the troublesome situation becomes apparent. The latter statute is the one creating the Department of Reports. This law provides that it shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Reports to "critically examine, edit, index, subject to the approval of the Governor, all official reports presented by any official, institution or department of this State, and to determine what parts thereof, if any, shall be printed, and to prepare satisfactory indices thereof."

The question now bothering the State officials is this: If it was not possible to get the reports to the Governor in a month, how will they manage to comply with the statute which cuts ten days off that time? Furthermore, how will it be possible for the new commissioner of reports, when appointed, to "critically examine, edit, and index" all the numerous reports of State departments, institutions and commissions, and then have all these reports printed between December 20 and the meeting of the Legislature the second Tuesday in January.

Queer Hatpins.

She was showing with great pride a hatpin that a friend had just brought her from Paris. It was a flower pin, the head in shape and coloring a rich red rose, every petal distinct.

"Can you beat that in Lovelty?" she asked. "Doesn't it look exactly as if a real rose had dropped on the brim of this black hat?"

"I can beat it," said one of the other girls, "with the pin now in my hat."

The girls looked hard before they discovered that a small ostrich plume at the side of the speaker's hat was not a tiny feather, but the head of a hatpin in this shape.

Lonely.

Mary Helen, 4 years old, is very brave, and is usually perfectly willing for her mother to leave her after she has put her to bed and has given her her favorite doll. But one night after she had been left a short while she called loudly for her mother.

"Why, Mary Helen!" her mother asked, "what is the matter with you?"

"I'm tired of staying up here with nobody but God and my dolly. I want somebody with skin on," she sobbed.—The Delineator.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The following friends of the family were among those who called Sunday and yesterday on Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Pyatt, to express their sympathy on account of the trouble which has befallen them in the serious accident which occurred recently, to their son Russell: Miss Emily Gurrier and her sister, from Westfield; Mrs. Gray and her daughter, and Mrs. C. Gray and her sister, Mrs. Martin, of Metuchen; and Mr. Edward Horn, of South Plainfield. Russell is still progressing favorably and was carried by the attendants into the sun parlor in Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday, where he was able to rest for a short time. It is not probable that he will be able to return to his home under a couple of weeks at least.

Josephine and Charles Randolph, of Plainfield avenue, who are twin brother and sister, reached their twentieth birthday yesterday, and were congratulated by the following party of friends: Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, Ethel and George Pace, Alice and Harry Winters, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Bowers and their son Harold, Nettie Smith, Russell Moyer, Elwood Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Elliot, Jerry Fitzpatrick, LeRoy Clawson, Harry Perrine. The party broke up shortly after midnight.

Mrs. Whalen and her two children of New York, are spending a few days with Mrs. Mary N. Pyatt, of Clinton avenue.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

A good-sized delegation of New Market Owl Club members, "et als," are at Bellewood Park today, the occasion being the fourth annual outing of the organization. The start was made at about 9 o'clock and the excursionists arrived at the Park before 11. Lunch and dinner were served at the Pattenburg Hotel, and the "Owls" will arrive in town at about 9:30 o'clock.

Superintendent Lester Messeroll and family removed to their new home at Bernardsville today. Mr. Messeroll has been appointed superintendent of the Bernardsville schools.

Constable and Mrs. Robert L. Pierce have returned home after spending several days at Asbury Park.

The Misses Maud and Hilda Johnson have returned after visiting friends in Brooklyn.

Miss Ruth Gardner has returned after a week's sojourn at Asbury Park.

L. L. Block, the butcher, has put a new delivery wagon in commission.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Miss Minnie Hosinger returned yesterday from a two weeks outing at Palmyra, N. Y., where she was the guest of Miss Caroline Lent, of the corps of teachers at the public school.

Miss Hattie Smith, who has been visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark, of Front street, has returned to her home at Lincoln.

George Baldwin, shortstop on the local ball team, is one of a party of campers who are enjoying camp life at Lake Hopatcong for a week.

Mrs. Augusta Miller and daughter, Miss Cora, have returned from a stay at the Johnston cottage, Ocean Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stofel, of Flatbush, L. I., were the guests over Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Buckley.

Miss Mattie Hull is spending part of her vacation with her sister, Mrs. Orbie Price, at Forty Forts, Pa.

The Township Committee meet Friday night in the town rooms.

over the State as "Old Brains."

On the Democratic slate there are already written these names. Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., James E. Martine, of Union county; Senator Johnston Cornish, of Warren; Supreme Court Judge Alfred Reed, of Trenton; Richard V. Lindabury, the brilliant lawyer, and Judge James F. Minturn, of Hudson county.

Arranging the Menu.

Many meals are spoiled by not combining foods properly. It is a mistake to serve white and sweet potatoes at the same meal, and even less wholesome to combine to combine macaroni with one or both of these two starchy vegetables. Always select a green or succulent vegetable to go with the starchy one—and do not repeat the same kind of food at one meal. For instance, do not have tomato soup, stewed tomatoes and tomato salad. Chicken soup should not be served at the same meal with chicken, no should chicken and any other meat be served at the same meal.

—Bartlett pears, the best in the local market, are being received daily by Neuman Brothers. A large consignment tomorrow will be offered at low prices.

PERSONAL.

Fred McClintock, of Fairview avenue, is entertaining friends from New York.

John J. Carty, of Orchard place, is spending his two weeks' vacation at Naples, Maine.

Malcolm VanArsdale, of Grove street, is spending his two weeks' vacation in Maine.

Miss Myra Emmons, of Prospect place, is spending the balance of the summer at Belmar.

Arthur VanArsdale, of Grove street, is spending his summer outing at Asbury Park.

Edwin Kenney, of Watchung avenue, is spending a week with relatives at Bound Brook.

Ward Birch, of Fairview avenue, is spending a week at Troy, N. Y., with his grandparents.

Letter carrier J. W. A. Baursachs, of Grandview avenue, started on his annual vacation yesterday.

Albert Kurzhals, of West Sixth street, who has been detained at home by illness, is improving.

Carlton Smith, of Grove street, has gone to Manasquan on the New Jersey coast to spend his vacation.

Leo Kenney, of Watchung avenue, leaves tomorrow for Asbury Park, where he will remain for a week.

Dr. Norman H. Probasco, of East Front street, has gone to the Maine coast, where he will spend his vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ross, of West Front street, are spending the week at the Hotel Marlborough, Ocean Grove.

Valentine Goldsmith, of Fairview avenue, left Friday for Auburn, N. Y., where he will spend a week with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Bach, of Somerset street, have returned after a week's stay at Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Brown and Miss H. M. Brown, of this city, are registered at Greene's Inn, Narragansett Pier, R. I.

Miss May Stafford, of Essex street, has returned from Rutherford, where she was the guest of relatives for the past week.

William Flanders, of Grove street, has returned from Mouse Island, Maine, where he has been stopping for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew E. Kenney, of Watchung avenue, leave tomorrow for Boston, where they will spend a week sight-seeing.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Roll and daughter, Mildred, of New York, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Symons, of East Third street.

J. A. Boyce, of the Springfield, Ill., Record Publishing Company, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Buckley, of Orchard place.

Miss Florence Smith, of Duer street, is enjoying her annual vacation of two weeks, during which she will spend a few days at the seashore.

J. R. Calihan, of Pittsburg, left yesterday for Vermont, after spending several days at the home of his uncle, Paul Symons, of East Third street.

William Nischwitz, of Fairview avenue, who has been spending two weeks at Asbury Park, has returned home. He was registered at The Wellington.

Chief Howard Woolston and Captain Edmund Terry, of the North Plainfield fire department, left today for Whitehouse, where they will spend a few days.

Mrs. Horace Huff and son, Herbert, of Codington avenue, and Miss Ethel Lorton, of Watchung avenue, are visiting their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ells, of Westerly, R. I.

Frank W. Weed, of West Front street, has been kept at home for several days by illness which at first threatened typhoid fever. The prompt calling of a physician undoubtedly prevented a serious attack.

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Debele, of Somerset street, left yesterday for a trans-continental tour. They will be gone about a month. Their trip will include stops at Chicago, Yellowstone Park, Seattle and Vancouver.

Dr. P. J. Zeglio and Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Randolph, who have been spending their vacation at Thousand Island Park, left that place last night and are now enroute for home by the way of Montreal. They will arrive here Saturday night.

Mrs. Frank W. Weed, of West Front street, is detained at home with a severe sprain of the ankle. She received the injury while alighting from a trolley car in front of her home, her foot turning over and straining the ligaments in the ankle.

Leon Harris, of West Front street, who has been spending a few days at Asbury Park, returned home last night, making the trip both ways in his runabout automobile. While away he contracted a severe cold which shortened his stay at the shore.

On their return trip from Lenox, Mass., to this city, registered on Sunday at the Allyn House, Hartford, Conn., among automobile tourists were Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Stockton, George C. Hetzel, F. Earle Stockton, Miss Cruikshank, Mr. and Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton and S. C. Cruikshank.

OBITUARY.

Bentley Buxton.

The announcement in yesterday's issue of The Daily Press of the death of Bentley Buxton will be noted by many old friends in this section, as he was a native of New Jersey, a son of the late C. S. Buxton, long a resident near this city, and a brother of the Misses Buxton, of West Sixth street. In early life he went West, married and settled in Illinois, where in time he became a large land owner in Mason County. He was a civil engineer, and many of the fine roadways and farms of Mason County were mapped out by his skillful hands.

His character was most upright and conscientious, and his manner remarkably cordial and winning, attracting to him many close and valued friends. During his last illness two of his brothers, whom he had not seen for nearly a decade, visited him bringing him much cheer and comfort. He leaves a widow and six children of whom Councilman Herbert Buxton is one, who was with his father for several weeks before the end.

Miss Louise Van Derveer.

Miss Louise Van Derveer, eighty-seven years old, a member of one of the oldest families in Somerset county, passed away at her home in Somerville, yesterday, after a short illness, from apoplexy. She was a daughter of the late Henry Van Derveer. The funeral services will be held at her residence tomorrow afternoon. Rev. Dr. E. G. Read, pastor of the Second Reformed church, will officiate, and the burial will be in the old cemetery.

Miss Gertrude Garretson.

Miss Gertrude Garretson, sixty-seven years old, a daughter of John C. Garretson, and a former resident of Plainfield, died at her home in Somerville Saturday, after a long illness. The funeral services were held yesterday at her home. Rev. Dr. E. G. Read, pastor of the Second Reformed church, officiated, and the burial was in the old cemetery.

David Kaufman.

David Kaufman, aged twenty-nine years, a salesman, died last night at the home of his father, Benjamin Kaufman, on West Fourth street, following an illness of two years with intestinal trouble. The funeral will be held at the late residence at 1 o'clock this afternoon and the burial will be at Bound Brook.

A NEW AND USEFUL WATERPROOF HOOD.

All good things are devised for people who have motorcars—establishing anew the saying that to him that hath shall be given.

It seems, though, as if the new motor hood might be used even by less fortunate beings who can't skim the earth betwixt their own honk-honk and their own odorous trail of smoking dust.

It is exceedingly thin and extraordinary elastic—this new waterproof hood. It folds flatly into a tiny silk rubber case no longer than a folded pocket handkerchief. In its working moments it stretches big enough to cover the largest hat of this season, feathers and all, and has a little curtain all around the neck to prevent rain or dust sifting in the collar.

Could anything be more convenient to carry in the mere pedestrian pocket, to be whipped out and stretched over one's sacred picture-plumed chapeau at the first drop of rain?

Perhaps some such device will finally banish the ugly umbrella to the limbo where it belongs.

Clad in waterproof suit and storm-proof boots, with some such rain-defying hood drawn over her head, a woman might walk through the pelting torrents umbrellaless and unafraid, incidentally acquiring that beauteous complexion eternal dampness gives her English sister.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Be called beautiful and then you have to live up to it on the stage or the advance agent of an actress—all of whom are thought be the public to be charter members of the Ananias Club is a liar—the advance agent not the actresses of course. But still the Countess Olga von Hatzfeldt, as most of the theatre-going public in Plainfield already know, is truly a beautiful woman. To test the statement see her in "A Daughter of America," a delightful musical comedy by John Saunders and N. Harris Ware, which comes to th New Plainfield Theatre tonight.

The story of the "Ninety and Nine," which will play at the New Plainfield Theatre tomorrow night, while not a new one to stagedom, has been treated so cleverly by the author, Remsey Morris, that it has developed into a stage offering of more than usual merit. Tom Singleton, a falsely accused man, in the moment of his inability to establish his innocence, turns to drink and sinking lower and lower in the moral scale, he is arrested in his downward flight by the hand of a woman, a woman touched by the most beautiful of all human motives,—love—and answers the call nobly, at the crucial moment, when the villian of the play, though his private car and engine stand ready to move, refuses to allow his driver to run to the succor of a village of a few hundred souls, who are caught by a raging prairie fire and cut off from all hope of rescue, thrusting aside the owner and his tools, the hero leaps upon the engine and throwing wide open the throttle, commences his mad dash through a sea of fire. The fire demon leaping up the sides of the huge engine, in the enedavor to lick the grimmed face man at the lever, whose eyes are fixed on the smoke enveloped track ahead while his faithful fireman stands dashing water over him to prevent his fainting at his self-imposed task, makes a thrilling picture and is one of the most realistic of stage productions.

Harper's Weekly, in speaking of Eugene Walter's play, "Paid in Full," says: "The third act of the American play, 'Paid in Full,' which is presented at the Astor Theatre, is one for which the author, Mr. Eugene Walter, deserves much commendation. The play, from beginning to end, is extremely well done both by playwright and company, and 'with interest' might well be added to the title as an expression of what the audience derives from it.

"The play deals with humble persons; humble, that is, in comparison with the 'high society' folk one is accustomed to see strutting through the measures of social drama. The reason for calling attention to Mr Walter's third act is, that he has made it just what it should be quick, alert, full of interest, and a striking climax, of the play. After seeing it there was a reasonable suspicion that a fourth act might spoil the drama, at least might destroy the force of the third. However, Mr. Walter's fourth act does not mar his play in any way; if anything, it adds in accentuating the strength of the one which preceded it."

"Paid in Full" will be the attraction at the New Plainfield Theatre Thursday night. Wagenhals and Kemper promise a fine production and a notable cast of players. The play is in its second year in New York and has also to its credit a run of over five months in Chicago.

"Commencement Days," which will be the attraction at the New Plainfield Theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, has the advantage of a most happily chosen title. There are few, indeed, to whom it does not suggest the merriest moments of life, a period of youthful optimism and joyous prospect. Virginia Frame and Margaret Mayo, the authors, are said to have taken fullest advantage of the opportunities which the subject affords, and to have written a charming and consistent play, one imbued with buoyancy, color and picturesqueness. John Cort makes the production, and the cast engaged is a strong one.

LEGAL NOTICES.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1908.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 6.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved (the House of Assembly concurring), That the following amendments to the constitution of this State be and the same are hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and House of Assembly, the said amendments shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months prior to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county, to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State:

1. Strike out paragraph 3 of section I, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

3. Elections for members of the Senate and General Assembly shall be held every two years on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten, and every second year thereafter; and the two Houses shall meet separately on the second Tuesday in January in each year, at which time of meeting the legislative year shall commence.

2. Strike out paragraph 1 of section II, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

1. The Senate shall be composed of one Senator from each county in the State, elected by the legal voters of the counties respectively, for four years.

3. Strike out paragraph 2 of section II, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

2. As soon as the Senate shall meet after the first election to be held in pursuance of this constitution they shall be divided by the Senate as equally as may be into two classes. The seats of the Senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year; of the second class, at the expiration of the fourth year, so that one class may be elected every second year and if vacancies happen, by resignation or otherwise, the persons elected to supply such vacancies shall be elected for the unexpired terms only; provided, that the Senators having the longest period of time still to serve at the time of making said division shall be entitled to the longer terms.

4. Strike out paragraph 1 of section III, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

1. The General Assembly shall be composed of members elected by the legal voters of the counties, respectively, every second year, beginning on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten, who shall be apportioned among the said counties as nearly as may be according to the number of their inhabitants. The Legislature shall, in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten, and at its first session after each United States decenial census hereafter, and not oftener, divide and arrange each county of this State into a district or districts for the election therein of a member or members of the General Assembly. Each Assembly district so constituted shall contain, as nearly as practicable, an equal number of inhabitants, and shall consist of convenient and contiguous territory in a compact form, but no county, or part thereof, shall be joined with any other county, or part thereof, in any such district; provided, that each county shall, at all times, be entitled to at least one member, and the whole number of members to be chosen shall never exceed sixty.

The Court of Last Resort, by whatever name known, is hereby invested with exclusive original jurisdiction and with full power, under such procedure as it may by rules prescribe, to review any division and arrangement made by the Legislature into Assembly districts of the counties of this State for the purpose of determining whether such arrangement and division, or any part thereof, is in accordance or in conflict with this section, and, if in conflict herewith, to adjudge the same, or such part thereof as may be in conflict herewith, null and void. In case said court shall determine such arrangement and division, or any part thereof, to be null and void the Legislature shall proceed to make a new arrangement and division, entire or partial, as the action of the court may require.

5. Strike out paragraph 3 of Article V and insert in place thereof the following:

3. The Governor shall hold his office for four years, to commence at twelve o'clock noon on the third Tuesday of January next ensuing the election for Governor by the people, and to end at twelve o'clock noon on the third Tuesday of January four years thereafter; and he shall be incapable of holding that office for four years next after his term of service shall have expired; and no appointment or nomination to office shall be made by the Governor during the last week of his said term.

6. Strike out paragraph 6 of section II, Article VII, and insert in place thereof the following:

6. Clerks and surrogates of counties shall be elected by the people of their respective counties at the elections for members of the General Assembly. They shall hold their offices for six years.

7. Strike out paragraph 7 of section II, Article VII, and insert in place thereof the following:

7. Sheriffs and coroners shall be elected by the people of their respective counties at the elections for members of the General Assembly, and shall hold their offices for four years, after which four years must elapse before they can be again capable of serving. Sheriffs shall annually renew their bonds.

8. Add to section 2 of Article VII, three paragraphs to be known as paragraphs 12, 13 and 14.

12. All elections for Governor, members of the Senate and General Assembly, sheriffs, coroners, county clerks and surrogates of counties and all other officers now or hereafter necessary to be chosen by the electors of the whole State, or of any county thereof, shall be held every second year, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten.

13. All elections for justices of the peace and all and any municipal officers, as distinguished from State and county officers as hereinbefore provided, now or hereafter necessary to be chosen by the electors of any city, borough, town, township, village or subdivision thereof, or any municipality of this State, except counties, shall be held every second year on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and eleven.

14. Except as herein provided with relation to the office of Senators, all officers filling any elective office at the time these amendments take effect shall continue in the exercise of the duties thereof according to their respective commissions or terms of office, and until their successors may be elected and qualified under the provisions of these amendments, and all officers whose terms of office would expire after these amendments take effect and prior to the election and qualification of their successors in office, at the election for the respective offices first held under the provisions of these amendments, shall continue in office until their successors can be elected and qualified, at the election for such office or offices to be held next after these amendments take effect, according to the provisions hereof.

The Legislature shall pass all necessary laws to arrange the terms of office of all statutory elective officers so that said terms may be in harmony with these amendments, and to carry into effect the provisions hereof.

These amendments, if adopted, shall take effect and go into operation on the first day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ten.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1908.

ASSEMBLY CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, NO. 4.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved, (the Senate concurring), That the following amendment to the Constitution of this State be and the same is hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and to the House of Assembly, the said amendment shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays taken thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months previous to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State, payment for such publication to be made by the Treasurer on the warrant of the Comptroller.

First—Strike out Paragraph 10 of Section VII of Article IV, and change the numbers of the following paragraphs to correspond:

Second—Change Paragraph 10 of Section V so to to read as follows:

10. The Governor or person administering the government, and four citizens of the State appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall constitute the Board of Pardons. The members of said Board, or any three of them, of whom the Governor or person administering the government shall be one, may remit fines and forfeitures, and grant reprieves, commutations, pardons and paroles, after conviction in all cases except impeachment. The four members specially appointed shall hold office for five years, and receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during the term of their appointment.

Third—Change Section 1 of Article VI so as to read as follows:

SECTION I.

The judicial power shall be vested in a Court for the trial of impeachments, a Supreme Court, County Courts, and such other Courts, inferior to the Supreme Court, as may be established by law, which inferior Courts the Legislature may alter or abolish as the public good shall require.

Fourth—Strike out all of Section II, IV, V, VI and VII, of Article VI, change the number of Section III of Article VI to Section II, and insert the following sections in Article VI:

SECTION III.

Any judge of any of the Courts of the State may be removed for disability continuing for one year, or for refusal to perform the duties of his office, by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate and of two-thirds of all the members of the House of Assembly voting separately, after a hearing before both Houses in joint session.

SECTION IV.

1. The Supreme Court shall be organized in three divisions, namely: the Appeals Division, the Law Division, and the Chancery Division. It shall consist of a Presiding Justice of the Appeals Division who shall be styled the Chief Justice, a Presiding Justice of the Law Division who shall be styled the President Justice, and a Presiding Justice of the Chancery Division, who shall be styled the Chancellor, and eighteen Associate Justices, which number may be increased by law.

2. The Appeals Division shall consist of the Chief Justice, and six other Justices of the Supreme Court to be assigned by the Governor. A Justice of the Supreme Court assigned by the Governor to the Appeals Division shall serve in said Division until the end of his term.

The remaining Justices shall be assigned by the Supreme Court to the Law or Chancery Division, as the business of the Court may require.

3. Whenever the number of causes before the Appeals Division shall be so great that the Division cannot promptly hear and determine them, the Governor shall, when authorized by statute, temporarily assign five of the Justices of the other Divisions to sit in the Appeals Division, which shall thereupon sit in two Divisions for the hearing and decision of causes pending at the time of such assignment.

4. Four Justices shall be necessary to constitute a quorum on the final hearing of any cause in the Appeals Division, but the Supreme Court may provide by rule for the making of interlocutory orders by a lesser number of justices, or by one justice; such orders to be subject to revision by the Appeals Division.

On the hearing of a cause in the Appeals Division, no Justice who has given a judicial opinion in the cause in favor of or against the judgment, order or decree under review shall sit at the hearing to review such judgment, order or decree, but the reasons for such opinion shall be assigned to the Court in writing.

5. A majority of all the members of the Supreme Court, to be presided over by the Chief Justice, shall constitute a quorum for the assignment of justices, and for the appointment of officers, and the enactment of rules.

6. The Supreme Court shall appoint one or more reporters, not exceeding three, to report the decisions of the Court, and shall by rule define his or their duties and powers. The reporters shall hold office for five years, subject, however, to removal at the discretion of the Court.

SECTION V.

1. The Appeals Division shall have and exercise the appellate jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Court of Errors and Appeals, the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Supreme Court on writ of error, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Prerogative Court on appeal, and by the Ordinary on appeal, and such further appellate jurisdiction as may be conferred upon it by law, together with such original jurisdiction as may be incident to the complete determination of any cause on review, saving, however, the right of trial by jury.

2. The jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Supreme Court and the Justices thereof not hereby conferred on the Appeals Division, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Circuit Courts and the Judges thereof, and such further original jurisdiction not of an equitable nature, and such further appellate jurisdiction from inferior courts, as may be conferred by statute, shall be exercised by the Law Division of the Supreme Court and by the several justices thereof, in accordance with rules of practice and procedure prescribed by statute, or in the absence of statute, by the Supreme Court.

3. The jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Prerogative Court and the Ordinary, not hereby conferred on the Appeals Division, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Court of Chancery and the Chancellor, and such further original equity jurisdiction as may be conferred by statute, and such further original jurisdiction as is now conferrable on the Prerogative Court shall be exercised by the Chancery Division and by the Chancellor and the several justices of said Division in accordance with rules of practice and procedure prescribed by statute, or, in the absence of statute, by the Supreme Court, but the Justices of that Division shall be under such control and supervision by the Chancellor as shall be provided by the Supreme Court.

4. Terms of the Supreme Court presided over by a single Justice of the Law Division for the trial of issues joined in or brought to the Law Division of the Supreme Court shall be held in the several counties at times fixed by the Supreme Court. Until so fixed, such trial terms shall be held at the places and times now fixed by law for the holding of the Courts of Common Pleas in the several counties.

5. The Supreme Court may provide by rule for the transfer of any cause or issue from the Law Division to the Chancery Division, or from the Chancery Division to the Law Division of the Supreme Court, and from the County Court to the Law Division or the Chancery Division of the Supreme Court, and for the giving of complete legal and equitable relief in any cause in the Court or Division where it may be pending.

6. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the alteration, by law of any statutory power or jurisdiction conferred upon any Court or Judge since the adoption of the Constitution in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-four, and nothing herein contained shall prevent the Legislature from conferring upon any inferior Court which may hereafter be established such power or jurisdiction as was exercised by or which may now be conferred upon the inferior Courts mentioned in Section I of Article VI. of the Constitution of 1844.

SECTION VI.

The County Courts shall have and exercise, in all cases within the county such original common law jurisdiction concurrent with the Supreme Court, and such other jurisdiction heretofore exercised by courts inferior to the Supreme Court and the Prerogative Court as may be provided by law. The final judgments of the County Courts may be brought for review before the Supreme Court in the Appeals Division. Until otherwise provided, the jurisdiction heretofore exercised by the Courts of Common Pleas, Orphans' Courts, Courts of Oyer and Terminer, Courts of Quarter Sessions, or by the Judges thereof, shall be exercised by the County Courts pursuant to rules prescribed by the Supreme Court. The justices of the Law Division of the Supreme Court shall be ex officio Judges of the County Courts. All other jurisdiction or authority now vested in any Court, Judge, or magistrate with jurisdiction inferior to the Courts in this section mentioned, and not superseded by this article, shall continue to be exercised by such Court, Judge or magistrate until the Legislature shall otherwise provide.

SECTION VII.

This amendment to the Contitution shall not cause the abatement of any suit or proceeding pending when it takes effect. The Supreme Court shall make such general and special rules and orders as may be necessary for the transfer of all suits and proceedings to the appropriate Division or Court created by this amendment. Matters pending when this amendment takes effect shall be decided by the judge or judges to whom they were submitted, and the order, judgment or decree made or advised by said judge shall be entered as that of the Division or Court to which the suit or proceeding shall have been transferred.

Fifth—Strike out Paragraphs 1, 2, 5 and 8 of Section II of Article VII; and substitute the following paragraphs in place of Paragraphs 1 and 2, and change the numbers of the paragraphs following 5 to correspond:

1. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, the President Justice of the Law Division, the Chancellor and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court shall be nominated by the Governor and appointed by him, with the advice and consent of the Senate. They shall not be less than thirty-five years of age and shall have been practicing attorneys in the State for at least ten years. They shall hold office for the term of seven years; shall, at stated times, receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during their term of office, and they shall hold no other office under the Government of the State, or of the United States, and shall not engage in the practice of law during their term of office. The Chancellor and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and the Vice Chancellors and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, in office when this amendment takes effect, shall be Justices of the Supreme Court until the expiration of their respective terms.

The Circuit Court Judges in office when this amendment takes effect shall be continued in office with the powers of the Justices of the Supreme Court at the Circuit until the expiration of their respective terms. They may hold the County Courts, subject to assignment by the Law Division of the Supreme Court.

2. The Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint one Judge of the County Court in each county, and such additional County Judge or Judges in any county as may be authorized by law. The County Judges may hold court in any county subject to the control of the Supreme Court. The County Judges shall not be less than thirty years of age, and shall have been practicing attorneys in this State for at least five years. They shall hold office for the term of five years; shall at stated times receive for their services such compensation, which shall not be diminished during their term of office, as the Legislature in its discretion shall fix for each county, and they shall hold no other office under the Government of the State or of the United States, and shall not engage in practice of the law in the courts of the county where they hold court during their term of office. The judges of the Common Pleas, in office when this amendment takes effect shall be the judges of the County Courts until the expiration of their present terms.

3. This amendment shall take effect on the first Monday in February, in the year next following its adoption by the people.

4. The Legislature shall pass all laws necessary to carry into effect the provisions of the constitution and this amendment thereof.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1908.

ASSEMBLY CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, NO. 9.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved (the Senate concurring), That the following amendment to the constitution of this State be and the same is hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and House of Assembly the said amendment shall be entered on their journals, with the ayes and nayes taken thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months prior to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county, to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State:

Amend by striking out paragraph seven, section four, article four, and insert in place thereof the following:

7. Members of the Senate shall receive, annually, the sum of one thousand dollars, and members of the General Assembly shall receive, annually, the sum of ten hundred dollars during the time for which they shall have been elected and while they shall hold their office, and no other allowance or emolument, directly or indirectly, for any purpose whatever. The President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the General Assembly shall, in virtue of their offices, receive an additional compensation, equal to one-third of their allowance as members.

CHAS. HOWARD MONTAGUE AND C. W. DYAR

(Copyright, by The Cassell Publishing Co.)

The "inside man" of Mr. Paul North's establishment was a picture of perplexity and despair.

"Central place! Stow you!" he murmured helplessly, puffing like a fat porpoise; "but what will Miss Harwood say—and Mrs. Stackhouse, and—and—Mr. Stackhouse? No, no; it ain't regular. I'm afraid it ain't regular, sir."

"HERE'S MY BADGE." CONTINUED THE DETECTIVE, THROWING BACK HIS COAT.

"Oh, I guess you misunderstand me, Moffett; misunderstand me completely," said Mr. Lamm, calmly crossing his legs as he sat in the butler's chair. "It's to spare the ladies worry, trouble and excitement that I came to you. I'll be frank with you; because I can easily see you're a man of discretion and can keep a secret. I am expecting the murderer of Mr. North to call here, and I want to be where I can arrest him quietly and without undue excitement, which you wouldn't want yourself in a family like this, now, would you, Moffett?"

"But—but they—the servants—might know you're here. They may have seen you come in. They—"

"Oh, pshaw, Moffett, you can slam the front door, and if any questions are asked, you can say that I went out that way. Come, come, Moffett, be a man. Don't shake so. Everything will be done quietly and in order, I assure you."

"And this man, this murderer," stammered Moffett, who was well-nigh frightened out of his wits; "is he violent, sir? Won't he try to shoot somebody else? Won't he—I think, perhaps, if I went out down the street a little while so as not to be obliged to answer any questions—"

"An excellent idea, Moffett," interrupted the detective, who was really beginning to be alarmed by the undue agitation of the affrighted steward. "But, hold on. Wait till I have done with you. Where are the women folk?"

"In their rooms, sir, upstairs."

"Umha! Do you happen to have any photographs of the young ladies handy?"

"There are some in the parlor. Yes, sir."

"Get them for me. Bring them here immediately."

Moffett hastened out, and was back in a moment with the desired articles.

"Umha! And this roguish-looking face is Miss Stella, eh?"

"Yes, sir."

"She doesn't resemble her sister much, eh?"

"That has been often remarked, sir."

When Mr. Lamm had made sufficient mental notes upon the pictures, he returned them to the servant, and they were immediately replaced in their customary repositories. This time Mr. Lamm made so bold as to cautiously accompany the butler to the front of the house. The hush of a great calamity reigned everywhere. The house was built on a terrace, and the servants' quarters were on the floor below. That particular story was deserted. At a glance the detective took in the possibilities of the place. All the rooms opened from the wide hallway, separated therefrom by portieres. This was excellent for his designs, if he could find a suitable hiding-place. His restless eye lighted upon a stained-glass window at the back of the hall.

"What is back of that?" he whispered.

"Toilet room, sir."

"Is that window movable?"

"I believe so, sir; but it is never moved."

"Where does that room open from?"

"From the back hall."

"Very well, Moffett. I will lock myself in there. If there are any inquiries, you have accidentally twisted the key off in the lock, and will go for a locksmith to repair the damage. The locksmith will not be in. You understand."

Moffett, who was becoming resigned to his fate, though his teeth still exhibited a tendency to chatter, led the way to the room. Standing upon a chair, the detective examined the window. To his delight he found that it could be moved up and down. He took the liberty of making a narrow crevice between the lower sash and the sill. Reassured by the presence of another window opening upon the outer world, Mr. Lamm, who was quite alive to the bold risk he was taking, earnestly impressed upon Mr. Moffett the necessity for secrecy, and locked himself into the room.

The sound of a key turning in the latch-lock of the front door brought about a responsive stir from the story above. There was a rustle of skirts, and a woman, who Lamm imagined had been watching at a window, came down the stairs before the outer door was opened.

"Oh, Mr. Stackhouse!" It was a querulous, tearful woman's voice, and spoke in one of those sibilant whispers that distress the hearer more than would the loudest of tones. "Isn't it awful? My poor brother-in-law! Why haven't they sent the body? It's not come down with you? Oh, dear me, dear me, it seems as though I would go out of my head! Why, Thornton, Thornton, you don't know half what I've been through!"

Mr. Stackhouse placed his hat and coat on a chair.

"You don't know what I've been through," he said, in moaning tones. "Why is the house shut up like this? On such a night the windows at least should be open. Marion and Stella are upstairs together, I suppose?"

"Yes, yes. But, oh, you don't know how I worried about them both. And then the dreadful news of poor Paul's death came on top of my trouble about them. It's a mercy I'm not crazy at this moment."

"What have Marion and Stella been about, eh?" asked Stackhouse, sharply.

"Oh, Thornton, they went away yesterday, one after another, without saying a word. I never knew them to go to the city alone that way before. And, oh, Thornton, they didn't come back till the late train. I sat up for them with the creeps all over me the whole evening. And such strange actions when they did come! Stella went up to her room crying. Marion wouldn't say a word to explain, and went upstairs looking—oh! so white!"

"Well, well," returned Stackhouse, impatiently. "It's of no particular consequence. We have other things to occupy our time now."

"Yes, indeed, Thornton," said Aunt Comfort, with a sob. She was a portly woman, but exceedingly nervous and fidgety in spite of her size, and she made half a hundred purposeless movements in a moment when excited. "Oh, the body! Where is it? You must go straight back to Boston and get it. Those body-snatchers are terribly sly creatures. Thornton, did you read in yesterday's paper—"

Mr. Stackhouse could endure no more.

"Nonsense, woman!" he interrupted, sternly. "Leave this matter to me and attend to your household duties. But tell me," he added, immediately, in a voice which he vainly endeavored to render indifferent, "what sent the girls off to the city yesterday afternoon? Did you observe nothing? What did they say?"

"Oh, Thornton! Hush! They are coming."

True enough, there was a sound of a door closing, the rustle of skirts and the echo of voices simultaneously floating down the staircase from the region above.

Stackhouse took a step forward, but started back immediately, looking upward in a puzzled, apprehensive way.

"Oh, don't! don't! don't! I beg of you, Marion. On my knees I beg of you!"

A woman's voice raised in that keen, penetrating fashion that reveals a climax, an outburst of repressed emotion, uttering such words as these, could not be a common sound in such a house as this. Stackhouse, whose face was in direct line of the detective's vision, looked as if a bombshell had burst at his feet. He was speechless with wonder and dismay.

"Stella," returned an inflexible voice, "I command you to let me go. I know what my duty is, and I shall do it."

The other woman might have been silenced by fear or overawed by the sternness of her to whom she had appealed, for she made no further outcry. The footsteps were already on the stairs; a white skirt fluttered by the railing. Again Stackhouse took a step forward, and again he stopped. It may have been a gesture on his wife's part or something that he saw in her face. Certain it is that he became a shade whiter, and that in his effort to speak his tongue seemed to cleave to the roof of his mouth. He stammered two words:

"Why, Marion!"

"Don't speak to me! Don't touch me! Never call me by that name again!"

The tone was certainly not a loud one. It could not be said that there was a theatrical ring about the manner of enunciation. The words were low, distinct, and uttered with such calm, terrible intensity that, blase as he was, Detective Lamm experienced a genuine thrill. He felt himself in the presence of a remarkable woman, and the same sort of keen and breathless interest with which he had followed great acting on the stage took possession of him.

"Oh, Marion!" It was the sister who spoke, and the tone was quite heartbroken and hopeless.

Stackhouse seemed to recover from his temporary paralysis.

"You had better go to your room, Stella," he said, in a voice but barely audible. "I must talk with Marion alone."

"Do not stir a step!" commanded the other woman, as Stella went towards the door. "I wish you to hear what little I have to say to this man. You, too, Aunt Comfort. Don't stand in the doorway there, looking so frightened. Come back. The more witnesses the better."

There was a brief interval, marked only by Stella's sobbing and the elder woman's wheezy ejaculations, uttered like signal guns almost every second.

"Marion Stackhouse, have you taken leave of your senses?" faltered the business associate of the late Paul North.

"No, I have just found them. Do not dare to associate your name with mine. This is the last time I will ever speak to you. Witness, Stella, and you, too, Aunt Comfort. From this hour we live apart."

New Jersey's Greatest Mail Order Organization.

We are justly proud of our mail order system. We feel that it is one of the strongest links in the chain of this great store's success. We want you to use it—test it thoroughly and allow us to demonstrate its many splendid advantages. The Bamberger mail order system is not the result of a day, but the culmination of years of painstaking effort. In fact, this branch of our business is so perfectly organized that you may shop as quickly by mail as in person. There are no delays—no errors—satisfaction is snugly packed with each parcel we send out. If you are not a patron (which is highly improbable) send in a trial order and you'll quickly realize the truth of the foregoing statements.

GENTLEMAN BURGLAR CAUGHT.

Detectives Say He Confessed to Robbing Many Places in Manhattan.

Harry Hill is the latest "gentleman burglar" to be uncovered by New York detectives. He was arrested at Paterson by Lieutenants Louis Hyams and Thomas Hughes, who traced him to the home of his brother, at No. 42 Carroll street. Hill was committed to the county jail by Recorder Carroll in default of $10,000 bail, and he will be held until he can be extradited.

The prisoner was well dressed. He took his arrest with as how of great indignation, but when told that Mrs. Joseph Curtis, wife of a man who is serving twelve years in the Auburn prison for cracking safes, had "peached" on him he confessed that he had been connected with some big robberies. In New York, Buffalo, Baltimore and other cities. The statement of the detectives that Mrs. Curtis had told all was a ruse, they say.

He told the detectives that in April last, under the name of Arthur Phillips, he called at a house kept by Mrs. Richardson at No. 112 West 45th street, Manhattan, hired a furnished room and remained there long enough to clean out the place of jewelry, silverware and clothing valued at $500. He also confessed to robbing several other furnished room houses in New York.

"Fighting Bob" Sends Regrets.

Rrear Admiral Bobley D. Evans, invited to be one of the guests of honor at the Olympic celebration and banquet at Trenton on September 5, has been obliged to decline on account of his health, but he has written a letter of praise for the event, saying of the Olympic athletes: "If a lot of men ever showed the true American grit they are the chaps."

VANDERBILT BEGINS PATENT SUIT AT TRENTON.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, of New York, yesterday began suit in the United States Circuit Court at Trenton against the American Car and Foundry Company for infringement on patents.

In his declaration he asks that the company be enjoined from farther use and sale of certain car improvements invented and absolutely owned by him.

Three of Vanderbilt's inventions are involved in the suit, they being technically known as letters patent Nos. 676,597, 747,278 and 747,279. The first of these is the original patent and the others are improvements thereon. The patent is a combination in a tank car of a circular tank and truck, a curved body bolster serving to receive and support the tank upon the trucks, a curved cradle extending between the tank bolster, longitudinal side sills, secured against the ends of the bolster and means a transversely tying side sills in addition to the bolster.

SNAKES BREAK UP A PICNIC.

The One Girl That Didn't Run Kills Them with Her Parasol.

Miss Marie Denman, who has been visiting friends at Athenia, and a number of younger girls went into the woods for a day's outing yesterday, near what is known as "The Dark Secret," where there is a small cave. They had just seated themselves near the cave when Jennie Struble screamed and pointed her finger toward Hattie Nichols. When all glanced that way there was a chorus of feminine shrieks, and then the girls fled. As they did so a large blacksnake reared its head threateningly.

Miss Denman, however, stood her ground. Seizing her parasol she struck the snake. The blow increased the snake's anger, and it gave the plucky young woman a lively half hour's battle before she succeeded in killing it. Then the snake's mate made its appearance, and again she was compelled to resort to her parasol as a weapon.

It took her a little longer to kill the second snake, which was larger than the first. Each snake was more than four feet long, and as big around as the larger part of a broom handle.

E. R. Thomas Goes to New York.

E. R. Thomas, in company with Dr. Edwin Field, of Red Bank, left Monmouth Memorial Hospital, Long Branch, at noon yesterday for New York. Thomas was taken to Roosevelt Hospital, where an operation will be performed this week.

Mrs. Quarintha Lanor Hiatt Brown, of Topeka, Kansas, and Mrs. Eline Smith-McDowell, of Columbus, Ohio, have been visiting the latter's brother, H. Craig Smith, of Madison avenue. They left for home today.

WORKMAN SHOCKED BY 13,000 VOLTS, BUT LIVES.

James Dolan, of 1 Alexander avenue, Newark, a lineman in the employ of the Public Service Corporation of that city, is in St. Barnabas Hospital, an object of interest to the physicians. Although 13,000 volts of electricity passed through his body he is going to recover, the doctors say, and will be able to leave the institution in a few days. That he has not done so already is due to the fact that he has severe burns on his hand and arm, made by the electric current.

Dolan was working in a conduit ditch when his right hand came in contact with a live cable He had on a glove, but the resisting power of it was only 3,000 volts. The shock knocked him senseless into a pool of water.

In the hospital Dolan said that when he received the shock his muscles seemed to contract to the breaking point, his brain whirled, his heart felt as if it were swelling and his legs seemed to double up behind.

MAY SUMMON FORT.

Peace Justice Says He Must Answer for Over-speeding.

Constable Larry Van Note, of Point Pleasant, it is said, announced this morning that he is going to cause a subpoena to be issued, and compel Governor Fort and former Supreme Syckle to appear before Squire Albert Allen, of Point Pleasant, to stand trial for violating the automobile law.

Governor Fort and Mr. Van Syckle were stopped by Van Note on Wednesday for exceeding the speed limit in their automobile, but were permitted to go on their way upon the assertion that the Governor could use the highways as he saw fit and was not amenable to the automobile law.

Squire Allen today said that "Van Note, in letting the Governor's party go last week, did so on his own responsibility and did not get the advice of any of the law officers of the borough of Point Pleasant."

RIDE VIOLATES ORDINANCE.

Morristown Citizen Complained of Because He Mounts Truck When Not a Fireman.

Morristown, Aug. 25.—Foreman Ray Troxell, of Resolute hook-and-ladder company, swore out a complaint before Police Justice Condon Saturday, charging that E. Allen Carpenter, who is not a member of the Morristown fire department, rode on the hook-and-ladder truck on its way to a recent fire. This is an infringement of an ordinance passed about a year ago providing a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $50, or imprisonment for six days, for anyone not a fireman who rides on any fire apparatus going to or from a fire, and as this is the first case in connection with the new rule the firemen are particularly interested in it. Mr. Carpenter is a prominent business man here and the charge against him will give widespread publicity to the fact that this ordinance is to be enforced.

PREPARING TO COMPLETE HOPATCONG TROLLEY LINE

Work on the completion of the trolley line started last year between Elizabeth and Union, on Morris avenue, will probably be taken up September 15. Robert D. Foote, president of the Morris County Traction Company, with J. H. Allenman, vice-president, was in Elizabeth yesterday to complete final arrangements.

Work on this line was abandoned last fall on account of the financial depression, and also on account of difficulty experienced in getting consent for a spur from the Lehigh Valley Railroad, over whose tracks the trolley line must pass. The directors of the company have succeeded in arranging for the spur, and they feel that confidence in the money market has been restored to such an extent that the work may be pushed through without further serious delay. It is estimated that the line will be completed one month after work is started. A great part of this time will be consumed in the construction of a retaining wall near the property of the Suburban Golf Club links. Here the land is very irregular in places, and such a wall will be necessary to keep the tracks clear from small landslides.

Upon the completion of the line between Elizabeth and Union, a syndicate directly connected with the Morris County Traction Company will start to develop what is known as the Hoyt property, which consists of about 100 acres near the old Meeker Inn, conducted by Eugene O'Reilly, formerly of Plainfield. Streets will be laid out and paved with asphalt. The land will be divided into lots and sold only on the restriction plan. The absence of trolley accommodations made the development of this property impractical in the past, but now that the Morris avenue line is assured work on the proposition will be pushed.

As soon as the company has completed the line, it will start to make it possible to go the entire distance between Plainfield and Lake Hopatcong by trolley, by way of Elizabeth. While this may sound like rather a large undertaking, it is in reality a matter of only a short time as the laying of but five miles of tracks will be necessary. There is one stretch between Morris avenue and Cherry street, Elizabeth, of about a mile, another at Summit, also of about a mile, and the longest at Morristown, where two miles will have to be laid, and the final is another stretch of about a mile between Rockaway and Denville. Cars are already in operation between Denville and Lake Hopatcong.

FALLS OF STAGE MOON; GIRL FRACTURES HER HIP.

Miss Mabel Brazer, who posed in a living picture as "The Girl in the Moon," at the coronation ceremonies of Queen Titania VIII, in the Beach Amphitheatre at Asbury Park, last night, accidently fell out of the moon and dislocated her left hip.

The picture was the last one of a series. The moon was suspended above the platform, and Miss Brazer lost her balance.

Miss Marion English, another participant in the coronation ceremonies, sprained her ankle.

DONOHUE CAN SLEEP SOME.

Enjoyed His Siesta While Flames Raged All Around Him.

Joseph Donohue, of Orange street, Newark, got into the stables of John J. Cran, an ice dealer, at No. 61 Parrow street, that city, early yesterday morning, lighted a candle and lay down to sleep. A few moments later the building caught fire.

The firemen turned water into the place and there was a great to-do. When it was over Mr. Cran walked inside to see what damage was done and stumbled o verDonohue, who had slept through all the fuss.

He was arrested, but proved to be just a sound sleeper, that's all. Cran did not make a charge against him, so Justice Bray, sitting at Newark, discharged him.

Reserved Her Verdict.

A gentleman who was no longer young, and who never was handsome, said to a child in the presence of her parents:

"Well, my dear, what do you think of me?"

The little one made no reply, and the gentleman continued:

"Well, you don't tell me. Why won't you?"

Two little fat hands tucked the corners of a pinafore into her mouth, as she said archly, in a timid whisper:

"'Cause I don't want to be whipped."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

LIQUOR IN OCEAN GROVE

Even the Prim "Prohibition" Resort 'Fesses Up to Getting Lots of Booze.

BEER THE FAVORITE DRINK.

Long Branch and Asbury Park Far from Being Dry, So Witnesses Tell Mayor Fisk's Excise Commission.

When Mayor Fisk and his fellow excise probers finished yesterday their second day's investigation into excise conditions in Ocean and Monmouth counties the question uppermost in their minds was "Does prohibition really prohibit?" All of the North Jersey seashore resorts, such as Long Branch, Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, are in the two counties which were investigated, and in the course of the testimony it was brought out that although both Asbury Park and Ocean Grove are strictly prohibition cities, a large amount of beer and other liquor is consumed there.

According to the testimony of George H. Thompson, president of the City Excise Board, there are ninety-seven government licenses in Asbury Park, eighteen of which belong to drug stores. Twenty of these licenses are at Ocean Grove. The bottling industry assumes large proportions along the New Jersey coast in the summer time, and the beer is brought into these resorts in what are known as "beer arks."

The testimony of the beer bottlers showed that thousands of cases of beer right close to the no-license and temperance section were delivered inside of it, and that all one had to do was to fill out a postal card to obtain all the beer one wanted. One bottler alone handled 600 cases of beer a week, and those who sold a couple of hundred were seemingly unlimited.

"Asbury Park is not a temperance town, and never will be. It is our belief there are many places selling this year," said Mr. Thompson. He said Asbury Park was cleaner now than it ever was.

He said that a year ago, while his commission was obtaining evidence against hotels for selling, they did not take Chief Smith into their confidence, being afraid he might "tip off" the offenders. Mr. Thompson admitted he had no proof that the chief ever did such a thing.

Just before the session closed George J. Wright, an Asbury Park hotel keeper ,asked to be heard. He had a license last year. "There is as much booze sold at Asbury Park and Ocean Grove," he said, "as in any city in the State. Ninety per cent. of the people want to drink, and they get it." He said that he was coaxed for a drink every hour in the day.

Prohibition, however, found a worthy champion in Asbury Park's Mayor, F. Frank Appleby, a member of the commission. He had almost every witness admit that with proper police officials and proper police efficiency prohibition could be made to prohibit.

Ex-Mayor C. A. Atkins and Chief of Police Smith, of the Park, took the stand at the afternoon session, to refute Thompson's testimony. The police chief said he did not know how many revenue licenses had been granted this year, but thought there were less than forty. Ex-Mayor Atkins said he inquired from the revenue collector as to the number of licenses granted in Asbury Park last year, and was told that the number was nowhere near ninety. He believed that prohibition did not prohibit, and said he always favored a license.

William Birmingham, Mayor of South Amboy, was an amusing witness. He had absolutely no opinion on the liquor question, being guided, he said, by the will of a majority of his constituents. "If the majority says they have saloons enough, I'm with them, and if they say they have too many, I'm with them just the same," he said. The closest questioning by Mr. Backes and Mr. Fisk could not draw from him an individual opinion on the excise question.

A mild sensation was created at the morning session when S. A. Patterson, counsel for Joseph Siccalano, a bottler, questioned the legal existence of the commission. His client had no objection to being sworn, but would answer no questions pertaining to his private affairs. Mayor Fisk assured him that the commission would not pry into his private affairs, and it did not. The same objection was made on behalf of two bottlers.

Yesterday's session concluded the inquiry at Asbury Park and the commission adjourned until September 10, when the northern part of the State will be visited, probably starting at Dover.

VETERANS WILL ASSIST IN CANNON PRESENTATION

Upon the invitation of Augustus F. Todd, of the Dunellen Board of Education, Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., at its regular meeting, last night, decided to go to Dunellen on Labor Day and take part in the exercises attendant upon the presentation of a cannon which is to be placed in front of the public school in the borough. Mr. Todd personally appeared before the Post and extended the invitation, explaining the object. The veterans fell in heartily with the idea, and promised to assist in the proposed exercises. A committee consisting of Commander Dr J. F. Berg and M. C. Dobbins was appointed to perfect the details for the Post.

It has not yet been decided just what the program will be for the occasion, but in addition to the part to be taken by the veterans, all of the school children of Dunellen will be present and sing patriotic airs and there will also be several appropriate addresses by prominent speakers. Mayor Harry Swackhamer together with the members of the Borough Council and other officials of the place, will be invited to be present thereby lending official dignity to the affair.

The old cannon, which is mounted together with a number of shells were obtained from one of the arsenals through the influence of Congressman Benjamin F. Howell and efforts of Mr. Todd, and it was learned at the time that this is the last cannon of this kind that is available for show purposes, and Mr Todd is much pleased to think that he was able to carry out his plans.

WARRING COLORED WOMEN AIR GRIEVANCES IN COURT

The trials of a "Christian lady" proved almost beyond bearing to Mrs Ella Wyckoff, colored, who is a member of Mount Olive church, yesterday morning, and she accordingly ceased praying for Carrie Johnson and Dollie Lewis, her neighbors in "Hetfield's Row," Arlington avenue, and had them brought before City Judge Runyon this morning. Repeated slurring in the neighborhood, repeated accusations of being a "backslider and a hypocrite," proved the instigation to "furl up ma Christian white wings, and just flap the Ol' Man's black wings" and neighborhood troubles, aired to the amusement of the bluecoats, were rehearsed in great detail.

Mrs. Wyckoff is a church member. Aside from that, she is Past Grand Missionary President of the Daughters of the Tents. She told Judge Runyon that "yer don' have ter be a church membuh to join, only we don't allow no drunken ladies ter be membuhs." But Carrie and Dollie say she is a "liver-lipped Beelzebub hypocrite," and Mrs. Wyckoff claims that the terms are not synonymous.

The testimony when the three women and Mrs. Wyckoff's husband faced the judge, soon resolved itself into a raking up of more or less veracious recitations of past perfrom ances which sounded like a dialect phonograph record, run off at top speed. The cross-fire kept up for more than a half-hour, but finally Mrs. Lewis, who ran out of epithets, lowered her umbrella, which she had been using as a sceptre in her argument, and told Judge Runyon that she "must quit talkin' and go to work." His honor then urged Mrs. Wyckoff to resume praying for her "tormentors" and uphold the tenets of her office among the tents.

The argument started with Mrs. Wyckoff's complaint that the two women had started "pickin' " on her, while she was at work in her garden yesterday morning, but before her complaint, begun after devoutly kissing the Bible, was through, Carrie and Dolly upset the plan of complaint by such interjections as "how about the time you and her had that fuss about the ten cents?" "Who stole that ax-head you missed?" and "Who poured that bucket of tar down my chimney from your yard last week?" When their turn came, Carrie and Dolly both testified that Mrs. Wyckoff was a "pest on earth," and the hearing developed into an anvil chorus. Amid many smiles caused by the ridiculous combination of words mixed with the most devout earnestness on all sides, Judge Runyon dismissed the case and left the court-room, although Mrs. Wyckoff's recitation of alleged "slurs" continued to run on at top speed.

Miss Katherine Ruttledge, of Franklin avenue, and Miss Elsie Burner, of Jackson avenue the borough, have returned home from a two weeks sojourn at Asbury Park.

DUNGAN NOW THE CHOICE

Somerset Democrats Fix Upon Him for State Senatorial Nomination.

CLARK OUT OF THE CONTEST.

North Plainfield Boom for the Former Congressman Falls Flat After Conferences at Somerville.

Col. Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville, who is now prominently mentioned as the possible Democratic nominee for State Senator in Somerset county, following the withdrawal of Alvah A. Clark from the contest, stopped in Plainfield this morning for a short time, en route for Bernardsville, where he was called on business. While Col. Dungan was waiting at the railroad station an express train came along carrying, among other passengers, State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, who has just returned from a trip abroad. He was on his way to New York.

It is now more apparent than ever that these two prominent citizens of Somerset county will oppose each other in the Senatorial fight this fall. The announcement that Alvah A. Clark does not want to again engage in politics, at least to the extent of taking the nomination for State Senator, brings Col. Dungan prominently to the front as the strongest candidate the Democrats can place in the field. It is confidently stated that he would pull the full vote of his party in the county and not a few Republican votes.

When questioned this morning as to whether he would accept the nomination, Col. Dungan replied that while he had not definitely made up his mind, he would do so within the coming week. Judging from his attitude there appeared to be no doubt whatever but that if nominated he would be prepared to make a strong fight for the honors.

Colonel Dungan was nominated three years ago by the Democratic convention through a slip in the cogs of the Democratic machine, which had Samuel S. Childs slated for a renomination.

In the interest of harmony Colonel Dungan was induced to withdraw, and it was said at the time that he had received the assurance of the leaders that he would be supported by them for the nomination this year.

A few weeks ago a boom was begun for Mr. Clark's nomination, emanating from North Plainfield. Mr. Clark was absent on his vacation, but upon his return he announced that he might accept under certain conditions. The anti-Clark faction is very strong in the county. It is now in control of the county committee, of which M. W. Scully is chairman. Its leader is Surrogate William J. Demond. Preparations began to be made for a fight in the primaries. Numerous conferences were held at Mr. Clark's office, with the result that Mr. Clark decided not to make any fight for the nomination.

Colonel Joseph S. Frelinghuysen will have no opposition in the primaries for the Republican nomination, and has already opened his campaign. The two colonels are both fighters by training and inheritance, and the fight will doubtless be to a finish, without either asking quarter. Colonel Frelinghuysen was elected three years ago over Samuel S. Childs by a majority of over 1,000.

SPECIAL SESSION OF THE SOMERSET COURTS.

Judge Schenck will hold a special session of the Somerset courts, in accordance with his custom on the last Friday of each month in the summer, next Friday morning, when it is expected that a number of matters of importance will come up for disposal.

The regular September term begins on the second Tuesday, and the following petit jurors have been summoned from North Plainfield: James F. Daley, Leander W. Hammond, Frederick E. Valentine, William H. Titus, David Moery. Warren will be represented by the following: Edward Blazier, Frederick Sanders, Frederick H. Sage, John Burnett and Edward C. Hahr.

Funeral of Somerville Resident.

Tte funeral of Mrs. Frances L. Allen was held last night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Caroline V. Sterling, at Finderne. Rev. Harry C. Pastorius, who is acting as rector of St. John's church, Somerville, during the absence of Rev. Clarke Fiske, officiated, and the body was taken to Fairview Cemetery, Castleton Corners, Staten Island, today for burial. Mrs. Allen leaves a number of children, and was formerly a resident of New York.

Y.M.C.A. ORCHESTRA WILL PLAY AT FRESH AIR CAMP

Assisted by Miss Josephine Martin, who will sing two soprano solos, the Y. M. C. A. orchestra will give a concert and musical entertainment at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp auditorium Friday night, and Martin A. Korff, leader of the organization, has arranged an attractive program of popular and descriptive music, which will be rendered by the full orchestra. The program follows:

"America," camp children and orchestra; march, Uncle Sammy," (Holzmann); selection, "Plantation Echoes," (Boettger); characteristic barn dance, "Rural Festival," (Losey); vocal solo, "Sing, Smile, Slumber," by Miss Josephine Martin, with violin obligato; songs, "Dreaming" and "Sweetheart Days," by I. Dailey; descriptive march, "Empire Express," (Lincoln); cornet solo, "Beautiful Home of Paradise," (King), by Whitney Frazee, accompanied by orchestra; march, "General Mix-Up, U. S. A.," (Allen); selection, "old country" melodies; a new flower song, "Lilacs," by Miss Kathleen Roberts; vocal solo, "Take Me Jamie Dear," by Miss Josephine Martin; serenade, "Spanish Wedding," (Pedro Silva); descriptive selection, "A Troublesome Rehearsal;" march, "Electric Wizard," (Losey); "The Star Spangled Banner."

Of particular interest is the "Troublesome Rehearsal," setting forth the troubles of the band master, when his musicians refuse to rehearse properly. The piece is especially arranged by Mr. Korff, as is the selection, "old country" melodies, preceeding it. A silver offering will be taken for the benefit of the camp, where there are now about three hundred mothers and children from the New York tenement house districts. In case of rain Friday, the concert will be given the following evening.

Somebody Stole His Tools.

Walter Combs, of Madison avenue, reported to the city police last night that his kit of carpenter's tools, left at a house on West Third street where he was working, had been stolen. No clue to the identity of the thief has yet been found.

DENIES NEW EXCISE YARN

Mayor Fisk Declares Statement in Philadelphia Papers an Absolute Falsehood.

RELATES TO ATLANTIC CITY.

Alleges He Suggested "Home Rule" Sunday and Promised Grand Jury Would Find No Indictments.

Upon returning from Asbury Park today, having completed the excise probe after a two day's session, Mayor Charles J. Fisk took occasion to deny a statement printed in this morning's Philadelphia papers to the effect that he had proposed that Atlantic City appeal to the Legislature for a "home rule" Sunday and that he had promised that no indictments would be found at the Grand Jury's session of those testifying during the recent inquiry. The statement in full under an Atlantic City date line, was as follows:

"One of the developments of the Sunday liquor-selling controversy is a well-founded report that Mayor Charles Fisk, of Plainfield, chairman of Governor Fort's excise commission, has an understanding with members of the Grand Jury that no indictments are to be found by that body at the special session. Chairman Fisk discussed at length with jurymen his suggestion that Atlantic City should adopt his proposal of an appeal to the Legislature for relief in the shape of a home rule Sunday bill to apply to all coast cities. This suggestion is in line with the intimation of Mayor Appleby, of Asbury Park, another member of the Excise Commission, that the probers may recommend in their report to the Governor the enactment of a law permitting the service of liquors at regularly licensed hotels and cafes. This would bar saloons."

"The whole thing is an absolute falsehood," the Mayor declared, "and I have said nothing at any time that would give any foundation for such a report. It is simply the result of an imaginative reporter wanting something to write.

"Some time ago," the Mayor continued, "I declared that Governor Fort should insist upon Atlantic City obeying the laws and that the authorities should go to any extreme to make the people there understand that violations would not be tolerated. I say the same thing now and said it should be done even if they have to order out a company of militia to do it. Nobody has been primised immunity so far as I know and the talk of my suggesting home rule Sunday for shore resorts is tommyrot."

The Mayor informed a Daily Press representative that the completion of the Asbury Park inquiry would end the commission's work until September 10. It is desired to visit Warren and Sussex counties and it is impossible to begin now because of a large number of witnesses being away. It is probable that the first sitting will be at Dover and that Lake Hopatcong will be included.

BROKE WINDOW WITH LEMON BUT DIDN'T MEAN TO DO IT.

George Martial, who confessed that he threw a lemon through the best presidential window in Myers' lunch wagon on East Second street Monday night, had a lachrymal effusion of regret for the act in the presence of City Judge Runyon at today's session of court, but was allowed to depart unpunished, because of the intercession of Nathan Myers, proprietor of the place, who refused to press the charge. With him was Arthur Moore, who works in Tierney's wagon lunch establishment nearby, and who was arrested by Patrolman Myers with the Martial boy on complaint of the restaurateur.

The prisoners were lads yet in their 'teens, and told the Judge that they had paid two cents apiece for two lemons the night the glass was smashed. Just why they bought the lemons could not be learned, for Moore said he threw his away not fifteen minutes after he bought it, and Martial tearfully declared he was throwing his up in the air, only missed and hit the window. Myers merely brought the lads to court for a lesson, he said, and they departed much impressed by the proceedings.

Resume Drills in October.

Contrary to the custom of previous years, Company K will not resume its weekly drills until the first Monday in October. Heretofore, the company began its fall drilling in September soon after returning from camp, but it has been decided that the weather is too warm at that season of the year, hence the change.

Miss Rose Jenkins, of Ogden street, Newark, is visiting her brother, William J. Jenkins, of Manning avenue, the borough, for several days.

CONTRADICTORY TESTIMONY IN CHURCH TENANT CASE

Walls and ceiling of the city courtroom are a decided shade dingier today as the result of an assorted combination of cuss-words and vile language repeated as part of the testimony in the case between Morris Abrams and Mrs. Amanda Bacon, his tenant in a house at Fourth and New streets. Judge Runyon has reserved his decision for a week, to sort over the mass of testimony, during which plaintiff and defendant seemed to agree on no single point. Both parties in the case left the courtroom after more than an hour's elapsed time, humming "Somebody Lied."

John Venable and Charles Irving, both colored, acting as trustees of the Shiloh Baptist church, really caused all the trouble. Abrams sold his place at West Fourth and New streets, to the church people, who plan to erect a building there in time. When the deal was closed, Mrs. Amanda Bacon was a tenant in the house now occupying the property. Venable and Irving as trustees of the church, became landlords of the property, but when they were escorted to the place by the former owner on August 6 and introduced as the new landlords, Mrs. Bacon had a balloon ascension. When she learned that she must pay rent to colored landlords, it is said, she is alleged to have had some insulting and profane language to pass out to Abrams, for selling the property to the church people. On the other hand, she claims that he was second to none in the assortment of terms he applied to her. Of course neither party took the initiative, but both denied all accusation of epithets by the other party in the case.

The long-drawn-out testimony involved Mrs. Bacon, Abrams, Venable and Irving as the principals, but some interesting side-lights were thrown on the case by Mr. Bacon's son Arthur and by Mrs. Ruggles, a colored washerwoman, who was at the Bacon house when the cussing contest took place. William G. De Meza represented Abrams and H. C. Runyon was Mrs. Bacon's counsel.

SURE-ENOUGH ICE CREAM AT CHURCH BOYS' LAWN FETE

The boys of the Church of the Holy Cross are intently watching weather conditions today with great interest for tomorrow afternoon and evening, if Dame Nature consents to dry her tears and warm up a bit, the members of the club are looking for a move of the public toward the borough church grounds where the boys will have a large roomy tent erected as headquarters wherefrom they will carry on an active campaign to meet the wants of visitors.

It all sounds delectable and promising to hear of the home-made ice cream, cake and candy which will abound. After experiments with the monster freezer in camp, with "Father" to boss the job, all are solemnly assured that it is the best ice cream ever-pure cream, eggs, milk and sugar with a little flavoring thrown in, everything in right proportions and not a hint of cornstarch or cheap material to mar the perfection of it.

The glories of an illuminated camp ground are nothing to the splendor of decorations promised for the evening of the lawn fete. "At any rate," remarked one of the boys, "Holy Cross always makes good, whether at baseball, football or basketball, dramatics or singing now, its the culinary art for ours, and first prize at the food show, a blue ribbon."

No Decision Regarding Lights.

The Councilmanic light committee has taken no further steps of late regarding the proposition to install a number of arc lights in the business part of the city. Chairman Francis L. Montgomery has been away, as has also other members of the committees and it has been impossible to hold a meeting. It is expected, however, that the committee will get together early in the fall and make a report to the Common Council.

Planning to Reopen Schools.

The North Plainfield Board of Education will hold its regular meeting at the Borough High School, Monday night, at which time arrangements will be perfected for the reopening of the schools on September 15.

—Bartlett pears, white and yellow peaches and German prunes are among the fruit offerings at Neuman Brothers' store. The assortment tomorrow will be exceptionally large and carefully selected.

"KING" CARRAR OUSTED

Newark Detectives Carry Furniture Out of Watchung Crest Barn.

HEAD DETECTIVE ARRESTED.

Carrar Has Him Nabbed on Assault Charge, as Result of Conference at the Barn Last Night.

"King John" Carrar is dethroned. His "fort," the Groszmann School barn, is now just an ordinary stable again. His furniture was standing out in the rain on Johnson's Drive at 2 o'clock today, but has since been moved into Mrs. Bishop's house, adjoining the school. Professor Maximillian P. E. Groszmann and his forces have won, and four Newark detectives took every stick of furniture out of "the King's palace" shortly after noon.

But "King John" was away when it all happened. He was in this city, in consultation with John P. Owens, his attorney, about a counter-move—a suit for damages done by the rain to his furniture, as it stood in the road. "The King" acts quickly. Warned by Professor Groszmann of what might be expected to happen, he refused to move, when consulted at his "fort" last night by four detectives and the Professor, who departed with the announcement that rain or shine, the Carrar furniture would be transferred outside this noon. And it was.

The detectives are from the Shortell Detective Agency, of Newark, and one of them has been arrested this morning by Constable Clementz, of Watchung, on a warrant issued by Justice of the Peace Blume, of Watchung last night. The man is reported to be Mr. Shortell, the proprietor of the agency, and he is alleged to have attacked Mrs. Carrar and "Princess Lizzie" Carrar in the course of the conference in the barn last night.

Professor Groszmann said this afternoon that he had acted in a most friendly way toward the Frenchman. "He said that his wife was sick" he said," and I offered to have her come to the school as my guest until she was well enough to move into a new home. I had told him yesterday that he would have to move out last night, but when it began to rain, I said I would let him remain in the barn over night. This morning Carrar went away very early, and as it was raining, I gave the family until 10 o'clock to get out. Then we had a conference, and I finally got the four detectives to work carrying out the furniture at 1 o'clock.

John Carrar, through his attorney, will begin action for damage to the furniture by rain, for his wages, amounting to $25, and for his first arrest, when he was haled before Justice of the Peace Smalley, two weeks ago. The Groszmanns will be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Blume, of Watchung, at Texier's Mill tonight. G. W. V. Moy, counsel for them, says that Professor and Mrs. Groszmann, arrested with a disorderly demonstration Monday night, will go to court, where he, as their attorney, will waive examination and take the case before the Grand Jury.

Surprised Mrs. Willard Swick.

A pleasant surprise party was tendered Mrs. Willard Swick, of West Sixth street, last night. The affair was arranged by the Misses Flossie Yeaton and Florence Swick. The evening was spent with games, music and dancing, after which refreshments were served. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Willard Swick, Miss Mildred Swick, Miss Flossie Yeaton, Miss Florence Swick, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rowland, Francis Rowland, Mrs. John Neagle, Charles Neagle, Charles Lyons, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baker, Miss Grace Baker, Mr. and Mrs. William Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Keen, Miss Katie Carkhuff, Mrs. Van Cleef and Mr. Spafford.

Somerville Pastor Moves Here.

Edmund Rushmore, real estate broker, of North avenue, has just rented to Rev. Dr. Edward G. Read, of Somerville, former pastor of the Second Reformed church, that place, the property at 825 Second place, this city, for a term of two years. He will take possession October 1. Dr. Read had a long and successful pastorate at Somerville.

WHAT MUST BE DONE TO BECOME NATURALIZED

Now is the time when the men who are Americans by choice and not by birth begin to worry about getting naturalized and securing the necessary papers to enable them to vote at the November election. Secretary Zior of the Union County Republican Committee, has been deluged with requests for information on the question of naturalization, and from his fund of knowledge gained through more than a score of years in active politics, he has compiled a little booklet that tells the whole story. Here is what he has to say, addressing himself directly to "inquirers who may become naturalized."

"Free white persons and persons of African nativity and their descendants.

"No person who opposes or does not believe in organized movement.

"No person who belongs to a society that holds or teaches opposition to organized government.

"No person who belongs to a society that teaches the duty, necessity or propriety of assaulting or killing any officer or officers of the United States or any other organized government.

"No person who is a polygamist or who is a believer in polygamy can be naturalized or made a citizen of the United States.

"You can take out first paper the first day you arrive in the United States if you wish to do so and are 18 years or over, or you can wait three years and then make application. You must live five years in the United States before you can ask for your second paper.

"Your first paper must be two years old, and you must be full five years in the United States before you can ask for your second paper.

"You can get your first paper as soon after you are 18 years old as you see fit.

"You must have lived in the United States before you were 18 years old, that time counts just the same as it does after.

"A first paper taken out in one State is good in any other State. To get first paper, go to the court house in the county where you live, and the county clerk, authorized by law to do so, will make it out for you. To get your first paper will cost you $1. No witnesses are required for your first papers. You must make application for your second paper within seven years after you get your first paper, because the first paper becomes useless after that length of time.

"When you have lived five full years in the United States and your first paper is two years old, go to the clerk of the county where you live and ask for your second paper. You must bring your first paper along as it has to be left with the clerk of the court as a part of your application for second paper. You must take two persons with you who are citizens of the United States as witnesses.

"These witnesses must make oath that they know you and that you have lived in the United States all the time for five years or over, and that you have lived in the State of New Jersey one year, and that you are a good and moral man and will make a desirable citizen. The one year in the State is counted as one of the five years in the United States. A woman and minor children can get a second paper on the first paper of her husband if he dies before becoming a citizen. To get your second paper will cost $1.

"A person 21 years old who has been honorably discharged from the United States army, who has served five years in the navy of the United States, who has served on enlistment in the marine corps of the United States, need not take out first papers.

"When you come before the judge to get your certificate of naturalization—First, bring two witnesses you had when you filed your petition for second paper. (If witneses were not born in this country they must bring with them their citizenship papers).

"Second, be prepared to answer questions regarding the Constitution of the United States; also to name officers of the United States and the State of New Jersey, where and how the laws are made.

"Third, be sure and have the date of your birth, the date of your arrival in this country, the date you became acquainted with your witnesses, and if you have lived in more than one State the date of your removal from one State to the other.

"Fourth, the day set apart for the naturalization of citizens at the present time in Union county is the third Tuesday of each month.

"Fifth, about ninety days is required for the inspectors to investigate the petitions for naturalization before the naturalization is heard by the court.

"Sixth, for thirty days before a general election no person can get second paper."

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will hold a regular meeting tomorrow night.

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet Friday night and receive several applications for membership.

The interior of the school has been brightened with a new coat of varnish.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The storm of almost equinoctial proportions which hit the borough last night reminded people that summer is nearly over. A heavy wind lashed the rain in sheets all night, doing considerable damage to awnings, signs and the branches of trees New Market pond was a veritable ocean, but C. T. Rogers had made all his boats fast and little damage was done. Several local streets were flooded.

Owners of several of the properties advertised for sale for unpaid taxes Friday have made settlement within the past week through Collector William B. LaRue. There are still more than a score of properties, however, on which the assessments are unpaid, and these will be sold at the annual public sale, to be held at Thornton's Hotel Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

AUGUST FUR SALE NEWS

Lots of people—really more than expected—are buying Furs this month. If we had any doubts about our ability to sell Furs in August they have been effectively dispelled. But we do not wonder that so many are taking advantage of the low prices we quote.

The fact that the garments and neck pieces and muffs offered in this sale are strictly new and made in the most fashionable styles, and that they can be secured upon the payment of a small deposit and held for future delivery, makes it desirable and easy for anyone to buy Furs now who are likely to want them a little later on.

We have sold many of these popular

26-in and 27-in PONY COATS.

They are the top notch of value, being worth easily 29.50, yet sold during this sale at - - - - - - - - - - - - 19.50

We have just added another Pony Coat, 26 in. long, with shawl collar, lined with gray satin, trimmed with fancy buttons; a coat that should sell at 39.50, that we will feature the remainder of the week at - - - - 25.00

Squirrel Lined Coats with fur collars, with body of rich broadcloth in blacks, blues, browns and wines are an exceptional feature at - - 25.00

KNIT UNDERWEAR.

Women's White Ribbed Fall Weight Vests and Pants, two-thirds wool, vests with high neck and long sleeves, pants in ankle lengths, splendid garments, with slight mill imperfections not sufficient to affect the wear; should sell at 1.25 the garment; take them tomorrow at - - - - - - - - 75c

1,500 pieces—broken lots taken from our regular stocks, vests in low neck, sleeveless styles, pants in knee lengths, fine cottons and silk lisle, garments regularly sold at from 19c to 39c, offered at the extraordinary price of - - - - - - 12½c

BOYS' SCHOOL SUITS.

You may look thru the town from end to end—in good stores and cheap stores, and you may go to New York and nose around in every store there, and you will not find better boys' school suits of strictly all-wool cheviots in plain blue and neat patterns, made in natty double breasted styles with knickerbocker trousers, equal to those we are selling at - - - - - - 4.00

The same suits with two pairs of knickerbockers for - 5.00

Everything about these boys' suits—cloth, trimmings and tailoring, is unusually good.

We urge parents to see these suits.

WIT AND TACT SHOULD BE INSEPARABLE.

A genuinely witty girl is amusing—the truth is she is well liked, and to have the reputation of a natural wit is a direct compliment. The woman who endeavors to entertain company by her good nature is extremely popular, providing it is genuine; the one who strives to entertain by good sense may be esteemed, though often never fully appreciated only by those capable of understanding genuine worth. A witty person carries the banner, but one who carries it too far is a terrible nuisance. There is as much difference between wit and wisdom as there is between fire and water. Dainty wit is clever; tinged with satire it is the effusion of foolish persons. There are many women who would rather lose their best friends than their opportunity to lose a good jest. So the girl who is witty and is aware of it, and she will be, for persons are quick to acquaint a clever girl of her witticism just as much as anything else—should use the quick wit for tact as well as fun-loving amusement, says Margaret Humphreyville. Never should she be quick at repartee unless the witticism is genuinely girlish and not a personal remark to belittle one of her hearers. If she learns to direct her wit in the right channel, she may rightfully feel proud of it, for it will be to her advantage in a great many instances and win her many friends. Someone has said that false wit was like counterfeit money, which is a very good comparison.

PRETTY SUNSHADES FOR LATE SUUMMER.

A plain sunshade of habitual rivals the handsomest of its kind when lined by mousseline de sole to which splashy cretonne roses are sewn.

When the parasol is folded no noe would imagine it to be anything but white, but when it is opened and the sun shines through the thin materials the cover seems to have a faint design or roses, almost invisible and altogether alluring.

Anyone can carry out the idea by buying a white parasol and lining it. Not many roses need be used; in fact, only a few—just a suggestion—give the prettiest effect. They are best placed in a row about three inches above the edge of the sunshade and about two on each panel are quite sufficient. This makes sixteen in all for the average parasol.

For a more elaborate sunshade the outer border might be formed of large roses, and toward the stick the flowers might become smaller, thus making a decoration for the whole. Great care must be taken in choosing the flowers that the effect is not overdone and made ordinary.

PLAN NOW FOR WINTER GARDENS.

It is now time to make planting plans for the fall and winter. If you have a cellar with a dirt floor and have rhubarb plants which have supplied you in the spring, here is a plan by which they can be made to furnish a crop of tender shoots in the winter when the pies and sauce are most welcome.

Rapid growth is essential to insure tenderness of the rhubarb. The very best can be raised in the winter, a warm cellar being the only rekuisite for forcing it. The roots of the plants should be dug up late in the fall with large quantities of dirt adhering to them. These chunks of earth containing the roots may be piled up outdoors until midwinter, when they should be carried into the cellar and placed in a bed prepared in the earthen floor. The chunks of earth should be laid close together in rich, moist earth and covered to a depth of four to six inches.

Growth soon commences. Light is not a requsite. In a short time the rhubarb will be ready for the table. The shoots will be almost colorless and remarkably tender and palatable. A very small ben containing only half a dozen well-developed hills will be sufficient to supply a family for several weeks. Roots send up a large number of shoots and exhaust themselves in about four weeks. For an additional supply roots should be planted at intervals of two or three weeks.

True Unselfishness.

Remember that self is the greatest obstacle to good manners and self is always with us.

Surface polish may hide self, but scratch that surface and out it will pop, sometimes in unlovely guise.

As there is nothing harder to fight than self, the woman who aspires to be truly polite had better go to work early on thinking of others first.

Thus only can she hope to have that heart politeness which is more to be desired than the polish that comes from training, but conceals a deadly selfishness within.

More Elaborate Skirt.

A designer has brought out a new thing in the way of tunics. It is cut circular, is a trifle high-waisted and instead of having a box plait down the side it is slashed open, finished with a two-inch hem at the edge, and is then laced from side to side through silk-covered eyelets. Silk or velvet ribbon is used.

The World We Live In.

The Abominable Bachelor—Certainly. Why should Friday be an exception?—Black and White.

There are many local fans who are sharing the joyfest with the New York fans over the double victory of the Giants in Pittsburg on Monday, believing it to be a wonderful achievement over the Smoky City players. Mathewson and Wiltse were both equally effective.

"Rube" Waddell, the eccentric St. Louis twirler, triumphed over the Yankees Monday, when he defeated them by a score of 4 to 2.

The Clinton Avenues will go to Somerville Saturday, likewise a large gang of rooters, who hope to see the Plainfield boys defeat the West Ends. "Jimmie" Montross will probably pitch for Somerville, against Randolph.

In a recent game at Chicago Tinker, of the home club, stole four bases.

Playing at Selinsgrove, Decard, of the Richfield team, last week made a triple play unassisted.

Slocum, pitcher for the Allentown, Pa., team recently shout out the Trenton Amateurs without a hit and fanned seventeen men.

The happiest battery in the big league is Lush and Bliss; the most strenuous, Ppp and Dooin; the funniest, Hogg and Sweeney.

In the excitement of the baseball campaign, the fans are reminded that one Bill Murray short-changed John McGraw, the wise Broadway favorite, in that little deal which sent McCormick to the Giants.

Haven't heard anything lately about dirty ball playing on the part of the Giants or bulldozing umpires by McGraw. The Giants are playing the game of their life and have only one object in view—that of landing the championship rag.

Already the fans are beginning to dope out stuff on the world's championship games the Giants and Detroit and what the American League club's pitchers will do to the New Yorkers.

It is said that after the seventeen inning game between Pittsburg and Brooklyn, Patsorious, pitcher for the Brooklyns, who lost by a score of 1 to 0, actually shed tears over the defeat.

GOLF.

Warring factions connected with the fourth annual open professional golf tournament at Van Cortlandt Park have buried the hatchet, which practically guarantees the success of the coming affair scheduled for Monday and Tuesday, August 31 and September 1. This annual event, probably the most largely attended competition of its kind in the country, was started a few years ago by a few amateurs—William H. Beers, Charles Kirchner, John J. O'Connell and Harry E. Pyrke.

They succeeded in raising through friends and fellow golfers about $600, which was distributed as prizes among the professionals participating. The tournament proved such a pronounced success that it has been repeated each year since. The tournament this season was not undertaken by the original executive committee—the name under which the men who undertook the responsibility concealed their identity—because the Metropolitan Golf Association had been asked for dates, and they had not been consulted nor invited to take part. A little later the plan to hold the tournament was abandoned, and it seemed as though one of the greatest treats in golf was to become a thing of the past.

The Scottish-American Golf Club then undertook the task, and while it worked hard the obstacles in the way were found to be more formidable than appeared on the surface. A committee from the Scottish-American club, consisting of S. B. MacClinton, chairman, and members of the tournament committee, recently met the original executive body, and the latter promised to lend its assistance and co-operate in every way to make the tournament a success.

The original executive body went further and offered to meet any deficiency in prize money up to $200. As the Scottish-American club has raised so far all but $150 for prizes, it is possible that the old committee will add some special prizes. Arrangements have already been made for seven regular cash prizes, as follows: First, $150; second, $80; third, $50; fourth, $40; fifth, $30; sixth, $20, and seventh, $10. A prize of $25 will also be given to the player making the best eighteen-hole score each day, and another $25 will go to the golfer who succeeds in breaking the course record. This mark is 69, established by Gilbert Nichols in the Van Cortlandt tournament a year ago. There is an entrance fee of $2, and the tournament will consist of seventy-two holes of medal play.

A feature of this year's tournament will be the driving of the first ball by Park Commissioner Berry. He will use a special silver mounted driver for the occasion, which will be presented to him as a souvenir. The caddie retrieving the first ball will receive a $5 gold piece. It is understood that every effort will be made during the next ten days to get the greens in the best possible condition.

Couldn't Escape Inspector.

Lake Hopatcong, Aug. 26.—Chas. Schake, of 105 Court street, Newark, was fined $7.50 by Justice of the Peace Cyrus E. Cook, of Mt. Arlington, yesterday, for running his motor boat Chip on Lake Hopatcong without a light. Schake was arrested by Steamboat Inspector J. Fred Runyon, Sunday night. When the inspector approached in his launch Schake tried to run away, and having the faster boat, succeeded fairly well, but the inspector found him hiding in the canal lock basin.

A REGRETTABLE ACT.

Newspapers throughout the State look upon James E. Martine's acceptance of the Shrievalty nomination offer as a bad mistake on his part. The editorial and political writers are a unit in expressing regret that he committed himself to stand for the place and the following from the Newark News is a sample of their views:

"It is a matter of sincere regret that James E. Martine has permitted himself to be wheedled and cajoled into running for sheriff in Union county on the Democratic ticket. It is even more than regrettable, it is pitiable. Hitherto Mr. Martine has stood for something; he has represented the principles of the Democratic party; he has been more than a mere common office-seeker. His party has played him false, time and again, and he has been beaten every time he has accepted a nomination at a Democratic convention; but like Mr. Bryan, in spite of an uninterrupted series of defeats, he has risen, higher and higher; his prospects becoming brighter and brighter because of his personal ability, his adherence to principle, and because he stood for more than paltry desire for office. Two years ago he carried Union county as a candidate for Congress. Now he runs for sheriff. It's an awful come-down. It checks his upward career, probably, forever. He says he will, if elected, enforce the laws; but he will probably have with him on the same ticket in Elizabeth General Collins, whose pledges are that he will not enforce the law. Further than this, the probable Republican candidate against Mr. Martine will be one who is strong in the downtown wards of Elizabeth, the very place in which Martine expects to get his majority. The Farmer Orator has made a bad mistake. He can stand defeat, but he cannot stand the belittling effects of running for sheriff after nearly winning an election to Congress. It is too bad, too bad."

With Alvah A. Clark out of the Senatorial contest in Somerset and W. H. Wright withdrawing from the Reupblican Shrievalty getaway in Union, the political horizon hereabouts seems to be clearing.

The commissoner appointed to investigate the charges brought against District Attorney Jerome, of New York, reports that "he hasn't done anything." That's just exactly what we've been saying all along.

HUNTERDON FARMERS BEGIN PICNIC TODAY.

The seventeenth annual Hunterdon county farmers' picnic opened on the Flemington fair grounds this morning and will continue for two days.

Former Senator John R. Foster, president of the picnic association, will preside over the speaking, which begin at 11 and continued during the morning, afternoon and evening of each day. The Rev. H. D. Opdycke, of Martinsville, secretary and treasurer, has provided the picnic grounds with numerous attractions most dear to the hearts of the farmer boy and his sweetheart, who liberally patronize the different booths and swing in the high swings or ride on the merry-go-round.

Among those scheduled to make addresses during today and tomorrow are Frederick K. Pope, of Somerville; James E. Martine, of Plainfield, and John J. Matthews, of High Bridge.

The national Democratic committee was appealed to for a speaker, and it is expected that a representative will be sent. Accommodations are being provided for several thousand people.

WAGER NEARLY CAUSES DEATH

Swimmer at Lake Hopatcong Is Seized with Cramps and Physician Is Called.

Matthew J. Connelly, of Mt. Hope, had a narrow escape from drowning at Lake Hopatcong last night. Connelly attempted to swim from Allen's pavilion to Hartdegen's dock on Halsey Island and return on a wager of $100 against a diamond ring, valued at $250.

Connelly, accompanied by a boat, in which were Thomas Glass and R. A. Jordan and John Peckitt, of Mt. Hope, started out and reached the Halsey Island dock safely, but on the return trip required frequent stimulants, which were handed to him from the boat.

When within 300 feet of the finish he was seized with cramps and sank, the boat being some distance away. Joseph L. Allen heard his cries and put out in a boat, and he and Glass caught Connelly on their oars and pulled him out of the water. He was taken to Allen's boathouse and seemed to have recovered, but later was taken with a chill, and Dr. Louis Pisek, of New York city, who has a summer home at Henderson Cove, was summoned and finally restored him to normal condition.

Before Connelly went down he had shown such evident distress that Glass urged him to get into the boat and said he would call the bet off, but Connelly refused.

DENIES CRUEL TREATMENT.

Denial of charges that Miss Florence Meley, of Trenton, was unjustly treated recently by officials at the State Sanitarium for Tuberculosis Diseases at Glen Gardner has been made by Dr. Samuel B. English, superintendent of the institution in a letter to Dr. George B. Wight, commissioner of charities and corrections, replying to a request from Dr. Wight for the sanitarium side of the controversy.

Dr. English maintains that Miss Meley was represented as suffering from a curable case of tuberculosis; that she arrived at Glen Gardner June 15 in an invalid's chair, but that on account of her condition she was not taken to the sanitarium in a conveyance which was waiting for her, because of her extremely weak condition. He says her weakness was the result of an operation for appendicitis, and not because of pulmonary troubles.

No Judge; 8 Days in Jail.

Because of the absence from Elizabeth of Judge Edward S. Atwater, who is on his vacation, Joshua Kendall, of New Providence, charged with arson, has had to linger in jail for eight days, although he had procured a bondsman. His attorney, Abe J. David, could not get him released because there was no judge in the city who had sufficient authority. The order, which will liberate Kendall today finally came by mail from Judge Atwater.

Frelinghuysen a Popular Man.

Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, who has just returned from his trip abroad, held an impromptu reception on Main street, Somerville the other afternoon, where he greeted many friends, both Republicans and Democrats. For over four hours he was kept busy shaking hands with and receiving the congratulations of his numerous admirers.

BULLET HIT WOMAN; CORSET SAVED HER.

While riding in her husband's touring car in fashionable Llewellyn Park, West Orange, last evening, Mrs. Edward H. Graves, wife of a New York broker, who resides at 425 Scotland road, South Orange, was shot in the back, but a corset steel stopped the 45-calibre bullet and saved her life. The bullet was accidently fired from a revolver in the hands of Harry L. Folsom, the seventeen-year-old son of Henry Folsom, head of the Folsom Arms Company, as the youth stood by a window in his room in the family residence, Wildwood avenue, in the park.

Folsom knew nothing of the shooting of Mrs. Graves until Policeman Bernard Heslin, who had been sent out on the case, found the youth and placed him under arrest. As the shooting was an accident young Folsom was not detained by the police.

HOG MANGLES HAND OF IMPRISONED CHILD.

Elizabeth Robinson, the eighteen-month-old daughter of Albert Robinson, who is employed on the Henry J. Stilson farm between Whitehouse and North Branch, had her left hand horribly mangled by a hog yesterday afternoon.

The child was playing about the pig pen, when she stuck her hand through the opening between the boards and could not get it out again. A hog in the pen began chewing the hand, and the screams of the child soon brought assistance, and she was freed.

It was at first thought that the child would bleed to death, but Dr. F. G. Clark, of Whitehouse Station, was hastily summoned and succeeded in stopping the flow of blood. He does not think amputation will be necessary, although blood poisoning is feared.

HARD NUT FOR THE POLICE.

South Orange Man Says He Missed Watches After Their Visit.

Patrick McCormick, of No. 160 South Orange avenue, South Orange, has put a hard question to the authorities:

"When the police enter your house with a search warrant and the next morning you miss two gold watches, a set of tools and an overcoat, what is your conclusion?"

The question troubles not only McCormick, but it is giving mental distress to Chief of Police Bell, of East Orange. According to Bell, two men connected with his department asked the assistance of the South Orange police in searching the McCormick house on Sunday night, but when asked who the men were he said he "did not know."

McCormick alleges that since the visit of the officers he has missed the watches, which he values at $50 each.

MT. BETHEL FARMERS PLAN A GRANGERS' PICNIC

The farmers of Mt. Bethel and vicinity are greatly interested in the arrangements for a granger's picnic to be held at Mt. Bethel on Saturday, September 12, and so enthusiastic are they over the coming affair that it is likely to be an annual one. A committee has been appointed to take full charge and invitations have been sent out to all the farmers residing within easy distance of Mt. Bethel.

The program for the day will include an abundance of good speeches in which former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer and James E. Martine may take part; a baseball game, all kind of athletic contests to be followed by dancing in a pavilion. Every effort is being made to arrange an attractive program, a feature of which will be a band concert.

It is also planned to run stages from this city to Mt. Bethel making it possible for Plainfielders to attend the outing. The idea is to make the first picnic a big success and judging by the way the farmers have promised their support this is now assured and it will probably equal those held annually at Verona Lake, Flemington and other points in New Jersey.

SENATOR COLBY RETURNS.

Back from Thousand Islands Prepared for Aggressive Campaign.

Senator Everett Colby returned from the Thousand Islands yesterday. The condition of Mrs. Colby, formerly Miss Edith Hyde, of this city, who has been in poor health, has much improved, he said, and he was now prepared to make an aggressive campaign for renomination.

"I am ready for a right about face campaign and propose to win out at the primaries," added the Senator. "Our organization is in perfect harmony and reports which I have received from workers throughout the county indicate a victory."

COLBY SAYS HE WOULD CLOSE SALOONS SUNDAY

Senator Everett Colby, who is seeking renomination at the hands of the Republican party, made another statement of his views on the excise question last night. He has changed his mind again, evidently. At a meeting in Barradale's Hall, Elmwood avenue, East Orange, he said:

"If I could, I would close up every saloon on Sunday because I believe that it is for the best interests of a majority of the people. The only way to solve this liquor problem, however, is to let the voters of each municipality decide at the polls whether they want, first, absolute prohibition; second, beer sold six days a week only; third, beer six days and Sundays as well; or fourth, beer sold six days and during certain hours on Sunday.

"There are some persons here in this audience who believe in local option. I want to say to them that if I am elected and cannot get my bill through for the settlement of this question, and a local option bill is introduced I will vote for the local option bill. This is as plain a statement as I can make. The Werts act prohibits the sale of liquor on Sunday, but for more than 100 years it has been a crime to sell liquor on Sunday. There is a misunderstanding of excise laws. The people who say they want the law repealed really want the Werts law changed.

"I want to say that I will never vote to repeal the present excise law, which is merely a supplement to the Werts act, and provides for the enforcement of that statute."

In his excise statement of Monday night, in reply to a question, Senator Colby said: "I'll tell you what I will do if I am reelected: I will introduce a bill to repeal the present excise law and place on the statute books as a substitute a measure providing that the people shall decide by popular vote what they want."

FOUR RAILROADS TO PROTEST A NEW LAW

Four railroads, the New York Central and Hudson River, the Central of New Jersey, the Ontario and Western and the Delaware, Lackawann and Western, have brought suit in equity in the United States Circuit Court to test the propriety of an order issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission on March 14 last, in accordance with the act of Congress of March 4, 1907, limiting the hours of service of railroad employes.

The order requires the railroad companies to report under oath all instances of employes subject to the act who have been on duty for a longer period than that provided in the law. There being a penalty of $500 for each violation, collectable by the suit, the railroad companies in the complaint say that by furnishing under oath the reports of the infractions to the Interstate Commerce Commission they would be furnishing the government eveidence

They set up that the commission has not the power to ask for such report under the law and ask that the Circuit Court have the order suspended until final hearing of the suit.

The railroads aver that the purpose of the order was to procure evidence of infractions of the law which are inevitable through oversights, etc., by one branch of the government so that another branch of the government may recover penalties. If this order is enforced, the comprive them of the rights accorded them by the Fourth and Fifth Amendments of the Constitution.

Freeholders Inspect New Road.

A meeting of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders was held yesterday, when the board went over the stone road between Somerville and North Branch, at the invitation of County Engineer Joshua Doughty, Jr. The inspection indicated that the road is in good condition and that it is one of the best of the improved highways in the State. It was reported that Contractor William Hardgrove, of Somerville, had met all the requirements of the contract, and it was unanimously decided to pay him the balance of the contract price.

Funeral of David Kaufman.

The funeral service of David Kaufman was held yesterday afternoon from the residence of his father, Benjamin Kaufman, on West Fourth street, and was in charge of the rabbi of the Jewish synagogue. The burial took place in the cemetery at Gateville, near Bound Brook.

Oriental Scarfs.

Would you care to look at the jaunty Panama sailor, banded with a real Oriental scarf, showing colors of orange, red, black and blue, that ends in an immense rosette with black quills thrust from the rosette? Oh, it is only $45, but very chic and becoming; and you will also see many for early fall wear, only they are less expensive. The scarf arrangement is very good and also appears on the soft, pliable white felt sailor hat.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

A simple, every-day, heart-touching story of the sort that concerns real people and deals with real situations and the realities of life instead of the impossibilities, is the kind that the playwright has woven into an interesting rural drama in the "Ninety and Nine," which takes its theme and title from the far famed hymn of the singing Evangelist, Ira D. Sankey. It tells a heart-rending tale of a fallen man, drink ridden and despondent, and his subsequent redemption through the influence of a noble and trusting woman actuated by her love of the man and guided by that instinct that seems to be woman's gift to see with the eyes of love the spark of manhood hidden beneath an exterior crime coated by the demon drink. The unwinding of the love story and the dash of nature that the writer has infused into this stage creation by his splendid characters, makes it an offering of more than passing interest. It will be the attraction at the New Plainfield Theatre tonight.

Lolitta Robertson with "Commencement Days," at New Plainfield Theatre, Saturday, Matinee and Night.

The subject of dramatic criticism is an interesting one, to theatrical manager and playgoer alike. The critic as a general proposition is an unusually learned person and there are thousands who would no more go to a play until their favorite critic had endorsed it than they would willingly pluck out their own eyes. It is no exaggeration to state that hundreds of plays have gone upon the rocks of defeat simply because the critics did not care for it, and there may have been much of worth in it. To find the critics of New York and Chicago all in a universal mood is a rare thing, but that is what "Paid in Full" found when Wagenhals and Kemper presented this play of contemporary life in America by Eugene Walter, at the Astor Theatre, New York, and at the Grand Opera House, Chicago. By every individual critic the play was hailed as a startling success and their criticism were as a unit in declaring that it was "The play of the hour," and not only did they eulogize it the day after production but even today they are directing unusual attention to it as the play with the direct appeal to every class of citizen. The success of "Paid in Full" was and is unequivocal. Mr. Walter has performed a masterful piece of work in the photographic drawings of all his characters, there is not a weak figure among them, and for virility, forcefulness and real life the play has no equal on the American stage today. A specially organized company and a production of unusual excellence will be offered here by Wagenhals and Kemper at the New Plainfield Theatre tomorrow night.

Diabetes and finally Bright's disease.

This is the downward course of kidney ills.

Don't take this course. Follow the advice of a Plainfield citizen.

Mrs. E. Dorflinger, 400 Clinton avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "About three years ago I was suffering badly from kidney trouble. There were dull, heavy pains in my back and in the top of my head. I also had dizzy spells and was subject to chills. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box at Randolph's Pharmacy and began their use. They promptly did away with my trouble and I have had no symptoms of its return since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Wagenhals and Kemper at the New Plainfield Theatre tomorrow night.

"Commencement Days," which will be the attraction at the New Plainfield Theatre on Saturday afternoon and night is by Virginia Frame and Margaret Mayo, and its portrayal of life in one of the girl colleges of the present period, is said to be unusually faithful and realistic. John Cort offers the attraction with a cast of excellent timber and a production of excellent attractiveness.

Among the large company are found, the names of Lolita Robertson, Rose Curry, Sally Williams, Edna Bert, Bertha Blanchard, Fay Wheeler, Gene LeMott, Myrtle Tannehill, Brune Johnson, Maud Tannehill, Florence Weston, Charles H. Riegel, George Anderson, John Stopling, Walter Thomas, F. N. Lindo, Clinton Maynard and others.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The large new laboratory at the Glassboro High School, just completed, is one of the finest equipped in that part of the State.

The glass season in South Jersey, when the plants resume work, promises to be one of the busiest that this section has experienced.

While at work in the Millville Manufacturing Company's plant yesterday Samuel Bennett, an aged man, dropped dead from appoplexy.

Workmen digging a sewer trench on Jersey avenue, Gloucester, yesterday found planking used as a corduroy road many years ago.

A mad dog ran down High street, Millville's principal thoroughfare, yesterday and pedestrians scattered in all directions. It bit several dogs before it was shot by a policeman.

At the inquest by Coroner Charlesworth to deterimne the cause of death of the infant whose body was found in Union Lake two weeks ago a verdict of death at the hands of unknown persons was rendered.

When a gasoline stove exploded at the home of Joseph Nicholas, at Gibbstown, Frank P. Shuster rushed into the house at the risk of being burned and threw the stove out of doors. The room took fire, but was extinguished by a bucket brigade.

Falling twenty-two feet from a ladder at the Joseph Campbell Company's plant, at 32 North Fourth street, Camden, yesterday, Maurice Taylor, of 592 Mickle street, sustained a fractured wrist and severe injuries to his legs. He was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital.

Helen Polhamus, who shot her father, Z. Polhamus, when he attempted to exterminate his family several weeks ago, at Eldora, has withdrawn the charge of assault which she brought against him, and he is residing with his family, under $1,000 bonds to keep the peace.

The contract for the construction of the new Patterson Orphan Asylum was filed at the office of the county clerk yesterday. Steele & Hopper are the general contractors and agree to complete the building by September 1, 1909. The cost will be $50,750 for the entire work.

The team belonging to Harry Matson, which was stolen from the sheds of the First Baptist church, Burlington, last Saturday night, was discovered Sunday night in the stables of the hotel at Bridgeboro, seven miles away. It is supposed the thief became hard pressed and left the team.

Mrs. Rachel Ranie, seventy-two years old, died yesterday at Florence. Her husband, Nelson Ranie, died in July from heart disease. Between the old couple there had continued a love of over fifty years, and when her husband was taken away the widow grieved herself to death. Eight children survive her.

Proprietors of the concert pavilions along Water street, Gloucester City, last night bowed to the law and made no attempt to defy the orders of Chief Goan, who ordered that all actresses and table workers must leave the city. No attempt was made to run vaudeville shows with women as performers.

Surveyors Harry C. C. Shute and Raymond Frye, of Glassboro, were surveying across the railroad with a steel tape when it fell on the third rail yesterday. There was a blinding flash and a heavy report and six feet of the steel tape was consumed. Neither man was hurt, both evidently having let go of the tape at the same instant.

Miss Donna Mackay is on her way to this country from her home on the Shetland Islands, and the day following her arrival in Trenton she will become the bride of Howard A. Fackler, of Lawrenceville, near Trenton. The young couple met at a social function in Princeton some time ago, and, after a brief courtship, plighted their troth.

The Trenton police are looking for two men who on Sunday night threw Raphael Dart, of 38 Escher street, into the canal and left him to swim for his life because he had no money. The men accosted him and demanded money. They searched him, and finding that he had told the truth, threw him in the canal "for luck" and ran away. Dart is but an indifferent swimmer and reached land with much difficulty.

Captain George Feiring, of the fire department, will return tomorrow from his vacation and George Mehl will start on his outing.

"But Marion," interrupted the woman, "remember your promise at the altar! You are not feeling well, and don't know what you are saying. On this day, too, of all others, when your poor father—"

"Stop, Aunt Comfort!" interposed Marion, imperiously. "You do not know—how is it possible you should know—the terrible cause that impels me. My contempt for this man whom I have called husband—"

"What fiend possesses you?" interrupted Stackhouse, unable to restrain himself. "Called your husband? What do you mean?"

"A name is all I need to speak," responded Marion, scorn and contempt expressed in every word: "Marie Moissot!"

The name burst from Marion's lips like the accusation of an avenging angel. It is probable that Stackhouse staggered under the force of the blow. Mr. Lamm, who, without an instant's delay, turned his attention to putting that queer-sounding name upon paper ("Marie Moyso" he wrote it), did not see him again for a brief space; and in that time he may have slightly recovered from the first violence of his betrayed emotions. He was still agitated enough in all conscience. This man Thornton Stackhouse, whom Lamm well knew to be in his ordinary walk of life no more self-betraying than the polished surface of a mirror, had been so affected and overwhelmed by what his wife had said to him that he was weaker than a child. He tried to shake off his growing terrors. He endeavored to smile, to laugh, to pass over the affair as a joke, but the effort was a ghastly failure.

"Marion!" he murmured. "Marion! Who has told you? What scoundrel has maligned me to my own wife?"

"Silence, sir! I am not your wife. This was my father's house. Either you or I must leave it. Which? Choose this minute."

"Marion! Calm yourself, I beseech you! Think of the effect, the occasion, the time. Who knows what people would say?"

"I do not care, sir. If you do, you should have thought of it before. It is too late now."

He turned his white face towards her. Lamm marked plainly in the ample light how his lips trembled, how his eyes gleamed.

"Marion," he said, in a fierce undertone, "are you enough mistress of yourself to think what my leaving this house at such a time will mean to the gossips? Can you not see that even I might be accused of complicity in your father's death?"

"And who should be if you are not?" the woman retorted, in a vibrant tone that pierced the detective's ears like a thunderbolt. There were simultaneous cries from her three visible auditors.

For several seconds after his wife had delivered herself of this terrible taunt Thornton Stackhouse seemed vainly endeavoring to articulate. Then with a sudden movement he seized his hat and turned to the door. The voice which now came to him was so unlike his natural tones that Lamm would not have recognized it had the speaker been out of view.

"So be it!" he said. "Nobody will ever know what this is to me or how I have loved you, Marion. But so be it. If my own wife turns from me who will have mercy on me?"

The door opened and closed violently behind the partner of the late Paul North.

Did he speak for effect or were the emotions that inspired his words genuine? It is certain that the amazed detective became strongly prejudiced in his favor.

There was an interval of silence, and then a flutter of skirts and a white, white face appeared at the foot of the stairs. Lamm knew at once that that proud, imperious countenance, the scornful red mouth, the flashing blue eyes, belonged to Marion Stackhouse. But, great powers! could that be her natural expression? And then he saw what was the matter. She reeled, caught at the railing, threw up her arms and fell like a log to the floor.

SHE REELED AND CAUGHT AT THE RAILING.

So indeed this stoical woman was made of flesh and blood!

CHAPTER V.

AND WHO IS THE AFORESAID MARIE?

Detective John Lamm, whose experience had rendered his views of life rather more broad than the prosy theorist who judges the world from his commonplace associates, was not unaware of the existence of the emotional drama in real life.

The scene which he had just witnessed did not therefore seem incredible in itself, but the time and circumstances at and in which it had occurred rendered it, in John Lamm's estimation, of a most peculiar and astounding nature. As yet his ideas were too disorderly and confused to enable him to draw logical deductions. The moment had not yet come for theories and explanations. He could only stand still with bated breath and rapid pulse and await the outcome of the strange situation.

When Marion fainted Stella, pale and trembling, and looking very unlike her smiling and roguish self, as the photograph had proclaimed her, ran down to her assistance, and while Aunt Comfort was ambling aimlessly, wringing her fat hands and reflecting audibly that she couldn't see why on earth she wasn't already crazy, she was making repeated and intelligent efforts at restoration. The sprinkling of water, which Stella procured without summoning the servants, eventually having the effect of causing the eyelids, upon which some of the drops fell, to unclose, Marion murmured some incoherent words, arose, and with her sister's help, staggered to a chair, where she sat for several minutes as motionless and as speechless as if she had been in a trance. Aunt Comfort, suddenly awakening to her responsibilities, ran to fan her with a book cover, murmuring continuously soothing and reassuring expressions.

Marion did not appear to notice her, though the detective saw the girl's eyes more than once following her sister's motions in a relentless, questioning way. Mr. Lamm hoped for some conversation which would throw light on the dramatic charade that had been enacted in his presence, but he was disappointed.

A ring at the doorbell fell with startling effect upon the silence of the house. Stella fled precipitately to the upper regions, while Aunt Comfort, with her hand on her heart, stared apprehensively at the door. It was Marion herself who waved back the advancing servant with an imperious gesture and went resolutely to answer the summons.

"Bless me!" Mr. Lamm exclaimed within himself. "It's my risky client!"

And behold on the threshold, hat in hand, a bit flushed and embarrassed, and with an expression of lively solicitude as befitted the occasion, Mr. Richard Fetridge!

"You come at a sad time, sir," murmured Aunt Comfort, walking aimlessly between the door and the staircase.

"I am very glad you are here, Mr. Fetridge," Marion said, in collected tones. "If we ever needed a friend, it is at this moment."

"I need not say with what eagerness I shall avail myself of any opportunity to aid you, Mrs. Stackhouse," he said, earnestly.

She looked him directly in the eyes.

"Not Mrs. Stackhouse, Marion North."

He made a painful effort to appear unembarrassed, but it was quite evident that he was gravely alarmed.

"You—you—know—" he stammered.

"Everything," she returned, with a forlorn, bitter accent.

"Good heavens!" he ejaculated, in ill-concealed alarm. "Who told you?"

She made no reply in words, but with a simple gesture indicated the portiere at the right. In a moment the two people had disappeared from view, leaving Aunt Comfort staring like a petrified figure in a museum at the drawn curtain. She was awakened from her lethargy by the voice of Stella calling piteously from above:

"Oh! Aunt Comfort! Do come here! Do come here!"

And as the only remaining personage in the field of his vision disappeared John Lamm, detective, began to exhibit sundry signs of exasperation. In vain he strained his listening ears, in vain he ventured to raise the sash of the window to an imprudent degree. Nothing but the vague murmur of voices and the occasional distant sound of sobbing rewarded his efforts.

"To be cut off at such a point as this!" he fumed. "I'd enjoy hanging the architect who put such a stupid building together!"

There was nothing for him to do but to conjecture and wait. The two people remained in the parlor for nearly half an hour. At the expiration of that time the impatient watcher saw the portiere disturbed and they reappeared in the hall. Mr. Lamm eagerly marked their respective appearances, hoping thereby to construct some theory of the nature of their interview. Marion was very pale, cold, determined, collected. Fetridge bore traces of unwonted agitation. His face was flushed; his hand unsteady.

She accompanied him to the door.

CREAM.

He had opened it, when he turned impulsively and said, appealingly:

"Marion, won't you reconsider your unhappy resolution and make a confidant of me?"

"Richard Fetridge, you ought to understand me well enough by this time to know that I never go any other way than straight ahead. I do not act on impulse, but from determination."

He seemed abashed for some reason. His eyes were turned towards the floor at her feet.

"It was only for your good," he murmured, "and I shall still continue to do everything in my power to make the terrible blow easier for you."

He bowed constrainedly, glanced furtively up the staircase as if he hoped to see another face, and went out. The door closed.

Marion caught her breath, set her teeth together, clinched her fists and stood motionless looking at the carpet.

"I'd give $500 to know what that girl is thinking of," thought the detective; "she can assume the most unpleasant expression for a handsome woman I ever saw. And, hang me, if I shouldn't dislike to be in a position dependent on her and incur her enmity. She would sting like a serpent the man who attempted to throttle her."

The fair woman with the Medea face did not remain long the subject of his critical contemplation. Slowly, and in the same thoughtful attitude, she began with firm step to ascend the staircase, and soon vanished from John Lamm's sight and hearing.

That gentleman rapidly came to the conclusion that there was nothing further to be gained by longer remaining in his precarious hiding-place. Instead of leaving by the door, he first made sure that the coast was clear, and then got out of the window and walked rapidly around the corner to the front entrance.

He pulled authoritatively at the bell. After a short delay the summons was answered by the still tremulous Moffett.

"I am sorry, man," said Mr. Lamm, "but I must see the ladies after all. Give my card to Miss Harwood, please."

Moffett accepted the proffered piece of pasteboard, on which was engraved:

LEVI DILLINGHAM.
Police Detective.

Aunt Comfort responded, breathless and asthmatic. She invited John Lamm into the reception room. With quiet dignity the detective proceeded to apologize and to reassure her. He regretted the necessity which forced him to call at such a time, and enlarged upon the great service she might do the cause of justice by making him acquainted with whatsoever facts of any possible bearing on the motive for the murder that might be in her possession. It was useless. At another time the amiable housekeeper might have filled his notebook with unconscious revelations; but there is a point beyond which garrulousness becomes complete idiocy, and it is little exaggeration to say that the terrible events of the day had carried Aunt Comfort over the limit. There was absolutely nothing to be got from her but tears and gasps and interjections. The idea of calling upon Mrs. Stackhouse to present the case was an inspiration to her and a relief to the patient Lamm.

It is true that he awaited the coming of Marion with some compunctions and no little curiosity. The young lady entered the room haughtily, and looked at him in a distant, unemotional way.

"What do you wish, sir?"

"Pardon me," said Lamm, humbly but respectfully, as he stood before her, turning his hat in his uneasy hands. "The affair is a mystery. We desire to arrest the guilty parties. Often the relatives in such cases have strong reasons for suspicions."

"We have none," returned Marion, decisively.

"No, indeed!" corroborated Aunt Comfort. "The idea of such a thing!"

"You are utterly unaware of any possible motive for this crime?"

Intentionally Detective Lamm cast a keen, searching glance full into the face of the stoical young woman. His idea was to intimidate rather than to observe her, for he had a furtive way of scrutinizing people without appearing to do so. It was ineffective. Not even her eyelashes quivered.

"Utterly," she said, firmly. "And now, sir, are you satisfied?"

"Unfortunately, no," said Lamm, glancing uneasily at Aunt Comfort. "Could I—would it be presumptuous in me—to ask for a private interview?"

Marion drew a full breath. There was a slight quiver as she did so, which seemed to indicate that her calmness was the result of rigid repressions of her spontaneous emotions. She motioned Aunt Comfort towards the hall.

"Well, sir?" she said as soon as they were alone. John Lamm saw that she had no intention of prolonging the interview. He resolved to break the ice of her reserve with one fell crush.

"Tell me," he said, without preface, "who is Marie Moyso?"

She could not repress the start nor the tell-tale blush that rose into her cheeks. But she made a brave effort which aroused John Lamm's unspoken admiration.

"Why do you ask?" Only this in a faint voice, as a response to this unexpected bombshell.

"Because," he said, boldly, "there is reason to believe that such a woman is mixed up in this affair."

"Ah!" she returned coldly, "I know nothing of her. Really, Mr. Officer, you must excuse me if you have nothing more to say than this. The occasion is too grave—too solemn. You should go to Mr. North's partner, Mr. Stackhouse. He can tell you more about it than anybody else."

"She is one woman in ten thousand!" he muttered to himself as he walked away. "At her age such self-command is as uncommon as a lottery prize. Well, we'll try again."

Some inquiries assured him that it was not far to the seaside residence of Richard Fetridge. In five minutes after leaving Marion's presence he was bowing before the astonished Fetridge, whom he met on the veranda overlooking the ocean.

"You here?"

"So it would seem, Mr. Fetridge."

"And what can you have discovered so soon?"

"I'll tell you. It is a simple clew and may not lead to much. Still I must beg leave to ask your assistance. I wish to put a question, stipulating that you do not ask me any in return. You see, I am not ready to make a report yet."

Fetridge slightly frowned. Evidently he did not relish mysteries.

"Ask your question, Mr. Lamm."

"Who is Marie Moyso?"

Fetridge sprang up with a force that overturned his chair.

"The deuce!" he ejaculated. "How came you by that name?"

"Ho, ho!" quoth John Lamm in his mind. "This gentleman does not guard his secrets so well as the lady yonder."

"I must remind you, Mr. Fetridge," he returned, quietly, "that you were not to ask questions. Still, I don't mind telling you that the woman seems to be in some way connected with our friend Stackhouse."

"Humph! I shall begin to regard you as a wizard, rather than a detective, Mr. Lamm," Fetridge remarked, with an effort to conceal his astonishment. "I must say I cannot conceive by what possibility you become possessed of that name. But since you have, I must remind you that you are working for me, and that whatever information you obtain ends with me. Nobody beyond us is to know a syllable. You understand that?"

"I should be wholly ignorant of my business if I did not."

"Very well. But about this Moissot woman—"

"And, by the way, how do you spell that, Mr. Fetridge?"

Fetridge spelled the name and Mr. Lamm wrote it down, smiling at his own mistake.

"French?"

"It's a Creole name, I believe."

"Oh, to be sure. And have you any idea of her whereabouts at this time?"

"She was in New York five years ago, I cannot say—though Mr. Stackhouse, who may find it convenient to keep track of her, perhaps can—what has become of her."

The two men looked at each other.

"Well," said Fetridge, impatiently, "why do you ask me this? What possible connection can she have with this case?"

Not caring to betray himself by answering this question, John Lamm deemed it prudent to withdraw.

"I have barely time to catch the train back," he exclaimed, hurriedly glancing at his watch in the fading light. "I'll talk with you later, Mr. Fetridge."

When at last, after a long conference with the "inside man" of the late Paul North, he was in the train on his way back to the city, he began writing an advertisement to be forwarded to a correspondent in New York for insertion in the daily papers there.

"Marie Moissot!—Any information as to whereabout of Marie Moissot will be liberally rewarded by the undersigned. The lady herself will learn something to her advantage by addressing ——, ——."

"It's a slim chance," muttered the detective, "but still it may lead to something."

CHAPTER VI.

LIFE AFTER DEATH.

At eight o'clock in the evening of this same Friday, Medical Examiner Jarrett sat at his desk in the office at his house, busily writing.

"Upon making a careful and complete examination of the body of the man named Paul North, I find that a ball, probably fired from a revolver of 32 caliber, at an angle of probably 20 degrees, and from a distance not exceeding three feet, entered his back near the spinal column at the seventh intercostal space on the right side, and passed in an inward and upward direction, going through the upper portion of the liver and completely through the lower lobe of the right lung.

"The path of the ball was not arrested, showing that it was fired in the direction indicated. It pierced the lung nearly opposite the third rib and left the body on the front side, just above the rib named.

"I do not find that the said Paul North could have committed suicide. The position of the entrance of the ball, and its direction, seemed to deny this possibility.

"There was ample external hemorrhage to have permitted the man to have written the words on the wall of the room in which he was found. If so, immediately the writing was concluded, he no doubt died.

"Death was painless, and resulted from internal hemorrhage, caused by the opening of an artery in the right lung."

The ringing of the office bell suspended the report of the autopsy over Paul North's body at this point.

Dr. Jarrett rose to meet his caller, recognizing him at once as the reporter whom he had met a few hours previously at the house in Marlboro street.

"Ah, Thomas," he said, "still on the case, eh? A very good story, that of yours in the afternoon paper—very judicious indeed."

"Thanks," the reporter answered. "And now I want you to help me get out an equally good story, or a better one, for the morning. The autopsy was performed at the City Hospital morgue, of course. Can't you give me the report?"

Dr. Jarrett shook his head and rubbed his chin.

"There isn't a man I would sooner give out the report to than you, Thomas, but it wouldn't do to have it published before it's submitted. All I can say at this point really is that I have no doubt whatever that murder has been committed."

Mr. Thomas fingered his watch chain.

"Not a word more?" he queried.

"I'll tell you what I'll do, Thomas," the medical examiner answered, after a meditative turn up and down the hall. "You have kept a good many important secrets when the work of the authorities couldn't have been done without your silence. I'll tell you who assisted in the autopsy. You could interview him without mentioning my name in the matter."

A broad smile illumined the reporter's face, and he presented the medical examiner with a very comprehensive wink.

"Dr. Francis Huntress is the man," continued the examiner, confidentially. "He has an office where he lives, at No. — Greenwich Park."

"I know him well," said Mr. Thomas, as he parted from the doctor; and there was full justification for the words in the friendly greeting accorded to him at the surgeon's door.

Two minutes after he had pulled at the bell handle Thomas was comfortably ensconced in an easy-chair in the doctor's study, the physician sitting opposite to him at his desk, where a drop light burned.

"You are the most extraordinary fellow," the surgeon exclaimed, admiringly, after Thomas had stated his mission. "Some of the morgue people must have told you I was called in. No? Well, never mind—we'll assume you divined it, as you have a hundred other matters supposed to be the most profound of secrets. But I'll tell you one thing, my black-haired friend. This is one of the most curious and remarkable cases that ever came to my attention!"

"You have no doubt it was a case of murder?" questioned Mr. Thomas, busy with his watch charm.

"I can find no other explanation. You saw the wound; you noticed how the man lay? Now the bullet was a 32 caliber pistol ball. It entered at an angle of certainly no less than 20 degrees, and went upwards and inwards in that direction. I don't know whether you observed any traces of powder on the man's clothing?"

The Ladies' Aid Society of the German Reformed church will hold its regular monthly meeting tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the church.

Rev. Dr. Philip Strong, of New York, one of the best known clergymen in the Baptist denomination, will preach at the First Baptist church on Sunday.

Rev. Judson Conklin, of Trenton, will preach at the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday morning. The following Sunday, the pastor, Rev. A. E. Finn, is expected to be in his pulpit.

Rainfall Makes a New Record.

With a rainfall of 3.83 inches from 8 o'clock last night until 12 o'clock noon today, a new record is established for this length of time, according to Weather Prophet Neagle. The rainfall for the ten hours beginning at 8 o'clock last night was 3.7 inches. The great amount of rain falling since last night can be determined when it is known that the average for a month is one inch. With the new figures the rainfall is considerably ahead of the average for the year, although it is not evenly distributed by the month. The rainfall for the month of August up to 8 o'clock last night was 2.10 inches.

Local Knights Visit Perth Amboy.

Sixty members of Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, of this city, paid a fraternal visit to Perth Amboy Castle, last night, the trip being made to and from Perth Amboy by a special trolley car. The Perth Amboy Castle entertained the Grand Castle officers in addition to delegations from Castles in this part of the State, and the meeting was one of the best in the history of the order. Nearly all of the Grand Castle officers made short addresses, after which there was a banquet. The Plainfield Knights reached home about 1:30 this morning.

Auto Disabled on the Road.

Former Mayor William L. Saunders' chaffeur while returning home from the shore yesterday with the former's automobile met with an accident, one of the gears breaking. After having it replaced with a new one he again found it impossible to drive the machine successfully. He was obliged to leave the auto at the shore and return home by train, where he reported the mishap to Mr. Saunders. This morning the chaffeur went back to the shore to have the machine properly fixed after which he will bring it to Plainfield.

E. R. Meeker Better.

The condition of former Assemblyman Ellis R. Meeker, of Elizabeth, who has been seriously ill since July 23, is much improved today. The patient is now able to sit up in bed and partake of some nourishment, but is still quite weak. Mr. Meeker has lost much flesh during his sickness. His physician now believes the crisis past and that the sick man's progress toward convalesence will be steady. The former legislator was suffering from an affection of the nerves leading to the brain.

Cab and Auto Collide.

An automobile driven by Miss C. W. Welcher, of 246 Walnut street, Newark, collided with John Barry's cab on West Front street early last evening. The rear wheel of the cab was badly strained and scratched. Barry claims the motorist was to blame for the collision, but Miss Welcher said that the cab backed into her machine. Barry reported the case to Patrolman O'Keefe, but the motor car went back to Newark last night.

TRUNK SEWER CONFERENCE

Committee from City Council Discusses Project with Bound Brook Officials.

AGREE TO ENTER SCHEME.

Dunellen Previously Declares Itself Favorably and the Proposition is Now Assuming Definite Shape.

The proposition to establish a trunk line sewer as suggested by Mayor Charles J. Fisk in his message to the Common Council, which was followed by the appointment of Councilmen R. I. Tolles, Duncan W. Taylor, Charles C. Randolph and Frederick E. Mygatt as a special commission to take the matter up with the various towns in the vicinity of Plainfield, has taken definite shape and substantial progress has been made during the past week.

It was suggested by Mayor Fisk that the commission communicate with the governing bodies of nearby towns, including Fanwood, Scotch Plains, North Plainfield, Dunellen, Bound Brook, Raritan, Somerville and New Brunswick for the purpose of arranging for conferences, the idea being to establish a trunk sewer that would cover these towns. This was done after which the commission met to outline its plans which are to be presented to the different municipalities.

The first conference was held Tuesday night, August 18, at Dunellen, where the commission met Mayor Harry Swackhamer and the members of the Borough Council. The proposition as presented was favored unanimously by the Dunellen officials and they promised to lend their support and bear their share of the expense of investigation by competent engineers. It was recognized by the Dunellen people that the building of a trunk sewer would remove the objections to Plainfield's sewage beds, as it would mean the doing away with these beds which are located so near to the borough, and at the same time would afford an opportunity to sewer Dunellen. The conference was a very satisfactory one to all present.

Another conference was held at Bound Brook last night with Mayor Dr. Roberts and the Borough Council of that place. In addition Mayor Swackhamer and the Council of Dunellen, together with W. J. Buttfield and Councilman Charles L. Nichols, of the North Plainfield Council, attended the meeting and were invited to join in the general discussion of the subject. After the presentation of the suggested plans Mayor Roberts and the Council retired to talk the matter over in executive session, explaining beforehand that in justice to the work of the Plainfield officials they were entitled to know where Bound Brook stood. Following the executive session the Plainfielders were informed that the Bound Brook officials favored the proposition and were ready to stand a share of the expense for the employment of competent engineers and a thorough investigation as to the feasibility of the scheme.

Mayor Roberts informed the commission that the State Board of Health had given Bound Brook until 1911 as the time when it must stop emptying sewage matter into the Raritan river and it was recognized that other arrangements would have to be made and possibly the enactment of special legislation which would give Bound Brook the relief it will need.

It was expected that Somerville and Raritan would be represented at the conference last night, but it was learned that the officials of those towns did not receive notice in time, and besides some of the officials are away at present. There seemed to be no doubt, however, but that both of those municipalities would favor the plan. New Brunswick will also be invited to join the proposed trunk line sewer if it so desires.

Now that the Plainfield commission has received the assurance of the support of Dunellen and Bound Brook to the proposed sewer, the next step likely will be to learn the probable cost of such a sewer, where sewage beds can be located and other important facts which would naturally arise through such an investigation. The commission realizes that there is considerable opposition not only among the members of the Plainfield Common Council, but on the part of many citizens, to the proposition to take North Plainfield into the city's system of sewers, and there is a feeling that if the question should be put to a vote it might be defeated; hence the interest in the trunk line sewer.

Another important fact from Plainfield's point of view is that if it should be decided to take the borough in it would be necessary to issue bonds to make extensive improvements at the sewage farm, in-

MANY DIVERSIONS FOR MEMBERS OF Y.W.C.A.

The new apparatus coming into the Y. W. C. A.'s snug little gymnasium, together with the cool weather should remind young women who anticipate taking up the gymnasium work in the fall that it is time to get their suits made. Those who wish to make inquiries about ready-made suits may do so at the rooms at 212 East Front street. Classes are arranged in the gymnasium department to suit the convenience of all young women and girls, and the physical director may be consulted in regard to the work at any time.

Information in regard to other classes, which will soon open for the winter, is in circular form now ready for distribution. There will be classes in cooking, dressmaking, millinery and embroidery; also Bible-study and languages.

On Saturday next members of the association are invited to join in a corn-roast. The party will leave the rooms at 3 o'clock and walk to the mountain, where a choice place has been selected for the corn supper.

Junior members of the association, that is, girls under the age of fourteen are reminded of the evening especially set aside for them for entertainment and fun. This will take place next Thursday, September 3 from 8 to 9.

The treat of the summer will be a trip to Chimney Rock on Saturday, September 5. A friend of the association has made it possible for this trip to be given to members of the association. The stage will leave the rooms at 3 o'clock and return at 10. In case of rain the trip will be postponed to the following Saturday. It will be necessary for those who wish to go to have their names at the rooms or give them to Miss Mosher not later than Thursday of next week.

The regular monthly Vespers service for September will be held a week from Sunday at 4 o'clock. If the weather permits, the meeting will be held out of doors. All young women are invited to attend.

COLD, RAINY WEATHER BREAKS TWO RECORDS.

Weather man and oldest inhabitant agree that yesterday was the coldest August 26 in twenty-three years. And twenty-three years ago today, the mercury dropped to 51 degrees, a cold weather August record unequalled in the history of the Weather Bureau. This morning it was 54 degrees,—shivery, raw and windy, cold enough for overcoats and a grate fire; cold enough to keep the street door to the office shut and light up the oil stove; cold enough to call up the plumber and see if the furnace is all right; cold enough to order coal.

Miffed because the mercury established a new record, J. Pluvius, not to be outdone, smashed the rainfall record by emptying out about four inches of rain, beginning Tuesday night. The storm came up the coast from Florida and has done lots of damage among the farmers by washing out their fall seeds.

Forecaster John Neagle says that it will clear up tonight and be warmer tomorrow. The highest the mercury got today was opposite the 65 degree mark.

No. 1 Social Club Celebrates.

The No. 1 Social Club, of Plainfield, colored, held its first reception last night at Mrs. Catherine Thornton's restaurant on Liberty street. The reception continued from 8:30 until nearly midnight, during which supper was served. Music for dancing was furnished by "Prof." Nelson. The officers of the club are as follows: President, Mrs. Lucy Green; treasurer, Miss Louisa Tucker; secretary, William Green. They were assisted by Mrs. Catherine Thornton in arranging the affair.

Afternoon Chimney Fire.

Assistant Chief Andrew Jennings had his first real work since Chief Doane's departure for the firemen's convention, when he superintended the work of the department in extinguishing a chimney fire at the home of E. B. Shoemaker, 827 Kensington avenue, late yesterday afternoon. The fire, caused by burning rubbish in the kitchen range, was reported by telephone at about 5:30 o'clock and was put out with hand extinguishers. There was no damage.

Red Men Have a Good Time.

Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, Improved Order Red Men, planned to entertain several visiting delegations at the regular meeting, last night, but owing to the rainy weather the visitors did not arrive. This did not prevent the local Red Men from having a good time. There was an informal program of vocal and instrumental music, after which a buffet lunch was served by the good and welfare committee.

THE COUNCILMANIC SLATE

Republican Leaders Have Practically Fixed Upon the Ward Nominees.

HIBBARD NOT A CANDIDATE.

Four Men Mentioned for His Place at Conference Last Night—New Ideas Not to Oppose Mayor Fisk.

In view of the fact that it is practically certain that Councilman Henry D. Hibbard will not be a candidate on the Republican ticket to succeed himself from the Second ward, the leaders in that ward are now searching for a strong candidate.

Among those already prominently mentioned are Robert A. Becker, Jr., of Third place, who is identified as an electrical engineer with the Hall Signal Company; Frederic W. Butler, who is a member of the Republican city committee; Frank L. Holt, of Kensington avenue, a New York lawyer, and Francis W. Hanaford, of East Sixth street, also a New York lawyer. Mr. Holt is a member of the New Idea faction and his friends are urging him to stand for the nomination.

There is, however, opposition to him on the part of the "regulars." A conference was held last night at the home of Mr. Holt, but only two other members of the city committee from that ward were present, Howard C. Tracy and William R. Townsend, the latter being a "regular," while Mr. Tracy like Mr. Holt, is a member of the New Idea faction. It is said that some of the political leaders of the Third ward are attempting to take a hand in Second ward affairs to the extent of picking a Councilmanic nominee to succeed Mr. Hibbard, and this is being resented by some of the Second ward politicians, who declare that they are perfectly able to run their own affairs.

One of the prominent "regulars" from the Second ward in speaking of the matter today, said that it was another repetition of the incident when George P. Mellick was nominated for councilman by the First and Third wards. He said that at that time there was no feeling against Mr. Mellick, but it made the Third ward delegates indignant to learn of the foreign interference.

Practically nothing was accomplished at last night's conference owing to the small attendance. There are in all seven members of the committee, but so far as known the other four have not expressed any opinion as to their choice of a candidate. There is no denying the fact that the New Idea people have a strong hold in the Third ward making it largely debatable ground and the "regulars" have not yet declared themselves.

The political atmosphere appears to be clearing throughout the city. It is now confidently stated that the New Idea faction will not oppose the candidacy of Mayor Charles J. Fisk, who seeks a renomination; in fact the only opposition likely to be shown outside of the Third ward, is against William S. Tyler, who is a candidate to succeed himself as a member of the Board of Education. It is said that he will probably be opposed by some of the "regulars."

It is a settled fact that Councilman R. I. Tolles will be candidate in the First ward, to succeed himself; Councilman Duncan W. Taylor, the candidate to succeed himself from the Third ward, and it was stated today that there is no doubt but that Councilman Frank DeWitt C. Randolph will consent to a renomination in the Fourth ward. William R. Townsend will be the Republican nominee for tax collector to succeed himself.

If the statement of members of the Democratic city committee is true, that party will have a complete ticket in the field this fall, including nominees for Mayor, Common Council and tax collector, but who they will be has not yet been made known. The committee expects to hold a conference within a few days to decide upon the ticket.

Lecture on Hygiene.

The Lyceum of the Chautauqua Circle will be held at Bethel chapel, Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock. An attractive program has been arranged, the principal feature of which will be an address on "Hygiene" by Dr. J. C. Anderson, chairman of the social betterment committee. All interested are invited.

Settled With Insurance Company.

David J. Carney, proprietor of the Monarch Printing Company, of North avenue, has effected a settlement with the insurance company for the damage to his stock by water at the time of the fire in the apartment over his place of business about a week ago.

TRENTON FEELS PERKY.

Proud of the honor conferred upon them by the State Excise Commission, which declared that Trenton was the best regulated city in the State, the Police Commissioners of the city took steps today to keep the department up to its present high standard. It was decided to enforce all of the police rules vigorously and to allow political pull to save no violator.

As a beginning Patrolman Hillman was on "the carpet" on the charge of losing his revolver in Hill's Grove, a private amusement resort. He was censured for being in the place and given a week to explain how he could lose his revolver. The board will also inquire into reports that policeman are given liquor at the resort.

BUST OF TAFT STOLEN.

A clay bust of Secretary Taft, which had just been completed after months of care and labor by Adolph Gayiani, a well known Italian sculptor, has been stolen from his studio, 610 South Tenth street, Philadelphia.

The bust was made with the authority of Mr. Taft. The sculptor had invited a party of friends to view it on Sunday morning. He went to the studio with them and was astonished to find the bust gone from its pedestal. As all the doors and windows were securely fastened, Mr. Gayiani could only suspect that some of his friends who had keys to the studio were playing a joke on him He waited for the return of the bust in vain, and today called in the detective force.

As the bust was very heavy a wagon must have been used to cart it away. The police are wondering how the thieves expect to realize on it.

Wants His Throat Cut.

When taken into the City Hospital at Elizabeth yesterday, a man known as Count Leo de Zalaski, 90 years old, requested the surgeon to cut his throat, saying he was tired of life and that if the surgeon would oblige him he would sign papers exonerating him from all blame in the matter. The man, who is reported to be descended from a noble Polish family, will probably be adjudged insane.

"KING" CARRAR ACTIVE

Starts Suit for Rain-Soaked Furniture Before it is All Moved from Barn.

OTHER DETECTIVES ARRESTED.

Head Sleuth, Prof. Groszmann and Wife Each Have to Get $500 Bond to Secure Freedom.

His furniture and household belongings heaped in the pouring rain by the road-side on Johnson's drive near the driveway entrance to his new home, the Bishop house, "King John" Carrar is conclusively dispossessed today. But he still smiles, for yesterday afternoon he started a damage suit against Professor Maximillian P. E. Groszmann, his former employer at Watchung Crest, for damage J. Pluvius has done to his furniture. The household goods are a total loss, varnish discolored, wood warped, metal work rusted, and upholstery ruined by water. The "King" is now living at Mrs. Bishop's house, and has bought a complete outfit of new furniture.

Warrants were issued last night through Justice of the Peace Blume's court against the three detectives who compose the force of the Shortell National Detective Agency, the dispossessing party. The men left for Newark last night and have not yet been arrested.

Professor and Mrs. M. P. E. Groszmann went before Justice of the Peace Blume last night and were held under $500 bond each to await the action of the grand jury on Carrar's charge of assault. Their counsel, George W. V. Moy, waived examination by the Justice. The bond was supplied by Charles E. Meier. Nearly 100 township residents gathered at Texier's Mill for the hearing, but were disappointed in the short, formal session. The Groszmanns made the trip from the school in an automobile, for Mrs. Groszmann, subjected to insulting treatment Monday night, when the warrants were served, is on the verge of a nervous collapse.

No demonstration on the part of the plucky Frenchman, who has held possession of the stable as his home despite the efforts of the Groszmann School authorities since August 10, marked the start of the "barn-storming" attack by four Newark detectives early yesterday afternoon. Two loads of furniture had been moved out in the Groszman School wagon and carefully deposited 'neath a spreading chestnut tree on Johnston's drive, when suddenly the lanky form of Constable Emile Clementz, followed by eight men, loomed up through the Groszmann vegetable garden. They were armed with clubs and pick-axe handles, and the four detectives, superintending the moving, instinctively felt for their hip-pockets.

Straight up to the barn came the delegation, looking real belligerent. Clementz came directly to James Shortell, the principal of the Shortell National Detective Agency, in Newark, and grabbed him. "I've got a warrant for your arrest," he said, "an' you've got to come with me." Shortell, who is a heavy-set Englishman, parried the constable's grip, whereupon Clementz hauled off and banged down heavy on him with an axe handle he carried as an official club. Shortell caught the blow on his arm, protecting his skull. Words were exchanged, but finally the constable got one of his "deputies" to read the warrant—a technical charge of assault. Shortell was led away to Justice Christopher Blume's, where he was held under $500 bond to appear for a hearing September 3. Professor Groszmann supplied the bond.

After that all was peace. The descendent of N. Boneparte had met his Waterloo, and this same waterloo was damaging his furniture-loo. Sadly marshalling the few loyal chickens which had gathered about the barn, young Albert Carrar, leading a small white puppy, was the last to leave the premises at about 4 o'clock, accompanied by his sister, Elizabeth. They went sadly to the water-soaked pile of furniture, but later sought protection from the storm at the Bishop house, "King John" Carrar's new home.

Somerset Democratic Meeting.

A meeting of the Somerset county Democratic Executive Committee will be held Saturday at 3 o'clock in the afternoon at Hotel Cawley in Somerville, when it is expected that important matters relating to the approaching election will be transacted.

WOMAN SUCCUMBS IN LONG WALK TO THIS CITY

Kate Kennedy, aged about fifty years, who claimed Newark as her place of residence, was found prostrated in a doorstep on Spring street, Elizabeth, last night by a patrolman. He assisted her to police headquarters, where she was detained over night. This morning when she was arraigned before Judge Mahon, and asked for an explanation of her condition and how she happened to be in Elizabeth, she recited a pitiable story.

She said that she had been living in Newark, where she was employed. Recently, through a slackness in work, she was thrown out of her position. Being out of funds as well as work, she decided to walk to Plainfield where she claimed to have friends who would assist her. She managed to walk as far as Elizabeth, where her strength gave out. Sick at heart and completely discouraged and realizing that it would be a physical impossibility for her to continue her journey on foot, she dropped into the first handy place, where she was found by a policeman.

The woman's story was believed by Judge Mahon and it so touched his heart that he not only provided her with a substantial breakfast, but gave her sufficient money to take her to Plainfield on the trolley. She was deeply grateful for the kindness shown and assured Judge Mahon that she would find friends and comfort when she reached Plainfield. Those who happened to be in the police court when the woman was arraigned were deeply impressed with her story and stood ready to lend any assistance in their power. Immediately afterward the woman left for Plainfield.

LACK OF FUNDS HOLDS UP EXCURSION TRAIN.

The Plainfield Pleasure Club, colored, and friends to the number of 150, left Plainfield this morning on the first outing of the club which is being held today at Orchard Beach, L. I. The train, comprising eight coaches, made stops at Westfield, Cranford, Roselle and Elizabeth, where excursionists were picked up. At Elizabethport they boarded a steamboat for the sail to Orchard Beach.

There was some delay in getting started from Plainfield as the club had failed to put up the full amount of the guarantee, which the railroad company required. After some skirmishing among the crowd the wherewith-all was obtained and the train left Plainfield about 9 o'clock, an hour late. The Plainfield Pleasure Club was in uniform and the brass band section went along to provide music for the day's outing.

Laurel A. C. In Camp.

The Laurel A. C., of this city, in camp on Halsey Island, Lake Hopatcong, report having a fine time. Harry Pasch has been elected chef and thus far has given satisfaction. The boys report several large catches of fish. Tuesday night during a heavy rain the tent sprung a leak and several members of the party were soaked. Next week the Laurels will move into a cottage across the lake at Nolan's Point.

Attendant at September Wedding.

Mrs. Rufus Story Rowland, of Stelle avenue, will be the bride's attendant at the wedding September 10 at Point Pleasant, of Miss Marjorie Rea and Henry Hugert Laughlin, of Pittsburg, Pa. The young man and woman are members of famous steel making families in Pittsburg, and their marriage will unite fortunes of millions of dollars. Mrs. Rowland was Miss Margarita Frew, of Pittsburg.

Judges Named for Trial.

The presence of Supreme Court Justice Bergen will be needed in Union county next month when Dominick Manogo, the Elizabethport slayer, will be placed on trial for murder. The trial is set for September 10, and at that time Judge E. S. Atwater will share the bench with Justice Bergen.

Will Undergo Eye Treatment.

Henry Dresselt, of Lincoln place, has been compelled to temporarily give up his work as linotype operator in the Daily Press composing room to undergo treatment for a serious eye trouble. Winfield Crane, of Newark, is taking his place.

F. Morgan Miller.

F. Morgan Miller, the five month's old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Miller, of Watchung avenue, died last night after a short illness. The funeral service will be private.

—Frank Sweeney, of Asbury Park, has opened a tailoring establishment on Watchung avenue in the store formerly occupied by "Uncle Jesse" Hetfield, as a restaurant.

INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Machine Driven at High Speed Rams Tree on East Front Street.

OWNER ONE OF THE VICTIMS.

E. D. Middlekauff and Colored Men He Was Treating to a Ride Hurled to Roadway—Car Totally Wrecked.

Crashing into a tree after plunging from the roadway over a steep culvert and up the opposite bank, the big Mitchell touring car belonging to Ellsworth D. Middlekauff, of Central avenue, vice-president of the National Mining and Leasing Company, was reduced to scrap near the Hyde place on East Front street shortly before 8 o'clock this morning. Mr. Middlekauff, who was driving the car, and William Wilson and George Brown, two local colored men who were riding in the tonneau, were thrown twenty feet from the machine, sustaining bruises and other injuries, the exact extent of which have not yet been determined.

Wilson, who was found unconscious in the road by Patrolman George Dobson, was taken to police headquarters, where he recovered sufficiently to tell the story of the wild ride. He was badly bruised on the right side of the face and told the police that his left side "felt all soft." He insisted on going to his home on East Second street. Mr. Middlekauff was taken to Dr. Endicott's office for treatment. His injuries consisted of a severe cut in the lip and bruises. He was assisted to his home. Brown was but slightly bruised, although plastered from head to foot with mud, as was the entire trio.

Wilson told Chief Kiely that the two were at the Hotel Iroquois where both the colored men are employed, early this morning, when Middlekauff came along in his machine. He asked them if they wanted a ride, and they hopped in the tonneau seat for a spin. As soon as they were started, Wilson realized that they were going too fast, and as the car sped past Washington street on East Front street, he tried to get out. The speed was too great, however, as he claims it was at least about fifty miles an hour at the time.

According to Wilson's story, just after the car sped past Richmond street, Middlekauff turned the wheel so that the big auto cut cross the roadway at an angle, without skiding a bit. It made straight for the steep culvert at the entrance of Mrs. Chas. Hyde's home and bounding across it, crashed into a tree.

The force of the collision threw the three men into the road and turned the machine completely around, so that it landed, still upright, nearly facing the road again. The radiator was buckled into a shapeless mass of metal, the rear axle broke and both rear wheels came off. The tonneau body was badly split.

After hearing Wilson's story and Patrolman Dobson's report of the accident, City Judge Runyon urged the colored man to go home, telling him to come to police headquarters tomorrow morning.

WESTFIELD.

A Good Government Club was formed at Westfield Monday night. About forty voters who are not satisfied with the way the town government is being conducted met at a residence in Euclid avenue and quietly organized the club. Mayor W. K. Wheatley was elected president, Walter J. Lee vice-president, R. L. Smitley secretary, and W. R. Gould treasurer. The founders of the organization claim that politics so far as parties are concerned, will not enter. The club is going to work for a clean and economical administration of town affairs.

A ball game has been arranged between a Westfield team and a Scotch Plains team, to be played next Saturday on the old ball grounds at Westfield.

A reception will be given to Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Hayes at the parlors of the Westfield Methodist church tomorrow evening.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The Wagenhals and Kemper production of "Paid In Full" will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. The play contains four great acts and was written by Eugene Walter. For his theme Mr. Walter has taken a great moral issue in our American life and his treatment, developing and characterization is said to be stamped with an amazing candor and frankness.

This city will be among the first three to see the production of "Commencement Days," the new play of college girl life by Virginia Frame and Margaret Mayo. This piece, under the management of John Cort and the stage direction of Max Figman, is anticipated as one of the big successes of the year. The cast engaged is particularly strong and balanced and the scenic equipment will be elaborate. "Commencement Days" will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night.

When Messrs. Barton and Wiswell, the new theatrical firm, branched out into the amusement field they determined to make their debut as auspicious and conspicuous as possible. As a starter they decided to give the most successful and hilarious of all farce comedies, "McFadden's Flats," the best production that this well-known piece has known. In the first place they had the comedy rewritten, introduced new songs, new features, up-to-date and sensational vaudeville specialties, novelties, etc., with the result that the entertainment is one of the real hits of the season. When the comedy comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night, local theatregoers will have a good opportunity to judge for themselves how excellent a show it really is. There is not a poor performer in the entire company of sixty people who have been engaged on their merits alone. Then there is a beauty chorus of thirty of as pretty and stunningly gowned young women ever gathered in any single organization. The humor is clean cut and infectious, and without the least suggestion of horse play or vulgarity. Everything that is shown is done in a manner to appeal to the most blase and fastidious amusement seeker. Jingling music prevails and the scenic adornment is a triumph of the artist's brush.

End of Season Sale.

No time for dull lethargy here—no time to let summer stocks remain on the shelving longer. This last week of August is going to see a lot of mighty low prices on stocks throughout the house, prices that will clean up like real, sure enough bargains always do; and to interest those that are through with the summer shopping, we add quite a bit of news, of underpricing on such goods as are always in demand – for we mean to have one big hustling week to end this summer season.

All roads will lead to Somerville on Saturday when the Clinton Avenues will battle with the West Ends for the third time this season. The Plainfield boys took the first two contests by score of 3 to 1 and they hope to make it three straight. Somerville will play a return game here in September.

The Y. M. C. A. team will play the Montrose A. C., of Newark, on Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon. The Newark aggregation has a good reputation for fast playing and no doubt will give the locals a hard game.

The Giants made it three straight at Pittsburg on Tuesday and with Crandall in the box against Maddox. The Smoky City contingent gathered ten hits off of Crandall, but they were all scattered. The Giants made eleven hits off of Maddox. By Tuesday's win the Giants lengthened their advantage by twenty-five points over the Pirates.

The Chicago Nationals are now crowding Pittsburg for position in the race for the pennant and if they continue to play in their old time form they will have a good opportunity to get near the Giants.

The Philadelphia Nationals who were counting on being pennant winners this year have been losing too many games of late to be real contenders for honors, although they are only a few games behind Chicago.

Waddell won't go into Massachusetts with the Browns when they go over to play Boston. A trifle unpaid alimony makes that trip an impossibility for the star twirler.

Catcher Arthur Wilson of the Bloomington, Ill., team, purchased last week by the New York Nationals, has been notified to join the New York today.

Nobody can deny but that McGraw has had remarkable luck this season with his team. Very few of the players have been injured and just now when he needs every man they are in the best of condition for work. They all have the proper fighting spirit and that is helping them to win games.

GOLF.

After Myopia nearly all of the professionals will pack their grips for the annual tournament at Van Cortlandt Park on August 31 and September 1, and to accommodate the players from a distance the closing of entries has been extended from today to August 30. This annual competition, which is one of the best attended in the country, began four years ago through the enterprise of four amateurs, William H. Beers, Charles Kirchner, John P. O'Connell and Harry E. Pyrke. They raised $600 and distributed it as prizes. The Scottish-American Golf Club undertook the tournament this year as an independent venture and had secured all but $150 for the prizes when the original executive committee decided to join hands and to co-operate to make the tournament a success. Last week Chairman S. B. MacClinton and members of the Scottish-American tournament committee met the old committee at the office of William H. Beers. The old committee offered to meet any deficiency in the announced prize money up to $200, an offer that makes possible any added special prizes the joint committee desires to give.

The idea back of the tournament is that the frequenters of the public course should at least once a year have the opportunity to learn by observation the skill of professional golfers. The professionals indorse the plan because for the moment they are missionaries to spread the light of golf among the masses, although the seven prizes ranging from $150 down and the special prizes make the tournament as well worth playing at as any of the series. The union of the two committees is a pleasant solution of what seemed a hopeless situation as to the perpetuation of the tournament. It will now be continued annually under the same management.

On the three days following the professional tournament, September 2, 3 and 4, the New York Golf Club will conduct at Van Cortlandt Park the yearly championship for players resident in Greater New York. The trophy, which has been in play for several years, is the gift of the New York Herald, which gives each year a gold medal to the winner and a silver medal to the runnnerup. Originally a perpetual trophy, the conditions were changed last year so that the player who wins twice will be the perpetual owner of the cup.

Channing Floyd is the present holder, but as the players who expect to enter this time include Findlay S. Douglas, George T. Brokaw, A. G. Lockwood and Clifford A. Dunning it is no sure thing that the defending golfer will go through the tournament with success. Thirty-two will qualify at eighteen holes for the trophy, the beaten sixteen to continue for a cup given by the New York Golf Club, which also gives a medal for the low score in the qualifying round. The club's tournament committee consists of C. A. Timewell, chairman; Francis J. Kelly, J. A. Holden and J. Ogden Davidson.

Many of the Massachusetts golfers can hold Walter J. Travis for a spell, but they don't last out. In the Manchester-by-the-Sea tournament final on Saturday H. H. Wilder had Travis 2 down at the turn. The latter had the match all even at the thirteenth, after which they halved three holes. Travis then finished a 2 and 5, to Wilder's 3 and 6. The cards were: Travis, 77; and Wilder, 79.

ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS.

Sun sets 6:37, rises 5:19; moon sets 7:27 p. m.; moon's age, 1 day.

Plainfield, N. J., August 27, 1908.

After the past two days of shivery, frigid atmosphere it may be said with assurance that the backbone of summer is broken.

Governor Fort's chief excise prober, Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of Plainfield, is going to be renominated by the Republicans of his home city. That, of course, will mean his re-election. In some parts of the State Prober Fisk's activity has aroused anything but kindly feelings among certain people, but his strength in Plainfield has not waned and his popularity has increased rather than diminished since he began to expose the real conditions in regard to the excise question in New Jersey. Besides being connected with the New York banking firm which has financed the Hudson river tunnel enterprise, Mr. Fisk has found time to be a first-class Mayor. He swore to enforce the law in Plainfield and he is doing it, and his fidelity to his oath of office has not done him a bit of harm. Some of the men on whose toes Prober Fisk has stepped in Hudson county, Newark, Elizabeth, Atlantic City and elsewhere may snarl and rave, but the returns from Plainfield on election night will record the usual Fisk majority.—Jersey City Journal.

SON KILLED; ANOTHER BORN.

Mother Unable to Attend Funeral of Boy Run Over by Train.

The Rev. John F. Kern, pastor of the Orange Valley German Presbyterian church, Orange, yesterday afternoon read the funeral services over the body of Frederick Vreeland, ten years old, in Kunz's undertaking establishment. The boy's father and a few friends were present. A few blocks away the boy's mother lay at her home, unable to attend the funeral because within a few hours after her son, her oldest boy, was killed she had given birth to a boy.

On Tuesday afternoon Frederick with some mates was playing near the Essex avenue crossing of the Lackawanna Railroad just as a train was starting from the Cone street station. He ran in front of the locomotive and was run over.

BOROUGH MAN COMPOSES A POLITICAL MARCH SONG

W. J. Conroy, the well known boroughite who was at one time a candidate for Mayor on the citizen's ticket, has composed the words and music of a stirring, political march song, which he has dedicated to Colonel Bryan. It is entitled "The Bryan March," and is now out in published form and will be used in the approaching campaign by many Democratic clubs. Mr. Conroy has written several hymns in past years but this is his first effort at marches.

The music of the composition is very catchy and is fitted to the following words:

Now stop your making noise,
And get together boys;
Your cause is just and will abide all time.
With victory in sight,
We'll rally to the fight,
And win this glorious land for Billy Bryan.

Cho.—We're out to win; we're out to win.
Sing it loud and long.
We're out to win; we're out to win.
Arouse the mighty throng.
We need not spend one cent,
With song and argument,
We'll win this glorious land for Billy Bryan.

Now, let's take off our hats,
And like good Democrats,
Gather round the Democratic shrine.
We'll humbly bow our heads,
And there renew our pledge,
And win this glorious land for Billy Bryan.

With music we will march,
With uniform and torch,
And every day present a solid line.
We'll raise our voices high
With cheers we'll fill the sky
And win this glorious land for Billy Bryan.

This land of ours is great,
We love her every state;
From Massachusetts 'way to Oregon.
From Gulf of Mexico
'Way up to Idaho.
Let's win it all for peerless Billy Bryan.

He's honest and he's true,
His enemies are few;
He stands for God and country every time.
With such a man to lead,
We'll overthrow rank greed:
The Democrats can win with Billy Bryan.

FURIOUS WOMAN DEFIES COURT AND ASSAULTS TWO.

Phillipsburg, Aug. 27.—Mrs. Anna Butler, residing in the suburbs of Phillipsburg, created a sensation yesterday when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Van Billiard on a charge of breaking and entering the home of Mrs. Marie Shea, of Cross street, Phillipsburg, August 10.

The presence of the complainant, Mrs. Shea, in court, to enraged the defendant that she defied the court's order to remain quiet, and committed an assault on Mrs. Shea, and then attempted to disfigure the face of Assistant Chief of Police Daniel Hogan, who was compelled to use force to quiet the excited woman.

The evidence in the case proved that Mrs. Butler and Mrs. Shea formerly lived together and that the object of the defendant in breaking and entering the present Shea home was to secure posession of certain and articles which Mrs. Butler claimed belonged to her. Mrs. Shea proved that she was the lawful owner of the goods in question and that Mrs. Butler committed larceny in taking them.

The justice lodged another charge against the defendant for committing assault and battery, and in default of $1,000 bail the prisoner was sent to the county jail for trial at court. Mrs. Shea suffered several severe blows on the face and head at the hands of the defendant, who used a heavy umbrella. The prisoner is the mother of five children, the oldest of them being fourteen years. The local authorities had all of the children taken to the Hopewell Catholic Home today, charging that Mrs. Butler was not a fit parent to care for them. The character of the house kept by Mrs. Butler has been questioned for several months.

SUES CHIEF OF POLICE.

Hotel Proprietress Says Innocent Servant Was Handcuffed Following a Raid.

In the Court of Common Pleas action has been begun to recover $10,000 damages against William H. Smith, chief of police of Asbury Park, for what is alleged to have been an unwarranted breaking and entering with force and arms into Mrs. Annie M. Wahl's hotel on the night of July 7.

The complaint is based upon the raiding of the restaurant of C. W. Thomas, which is run in the basement of the hotel. It is alleged that the chief of police broke into the apartments of Mrs. Wahl and used profane language to Mrs. Wahl and placed handcuffs upon one of her servants, who was not connected with the Thomas cafe. Complaint is not against Smith as the chief of police, but as an individual.

CHARGE MADHOUSE ABUSES.

Morris Plains Insane Asylum May Be Investigated by Freeholders.

The Passaic County Freeholders have been asked to investigate charges of cruel treatment of inmates of the insane asylum at Morris Plains made by their relatives.

A former patient, a young woman whose name is withheld by the county authorities has written to the Director of the County Board as follows:

"The food at the asylum is something horrible. Every patient here is paid for by the county, but the food they give the poor sick to eat is not fit. For instance, sour hash, sour left-over potatoes, dirty hot water for tea and coffee, without sugar or milk, etc. Something ought to be done for the health of the poor sick in this institution."

The complaints have been referred to the Committee on Lunacy.

Miss Mary Jahn, of the local exchange of the telephone company, will, commencing September 1, assume the duties of cashier, in addition to her other clerical work, succeeding N. A. Wolcott, resigned.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Rev. Milton S. Littlefield, of Brooklyn, will be the principal speaker at the forty-fourth annual convention of the Middlesex County Sunday-school Association, to be held at the New Market Baptist church Thursday, September 10. His topic will be "The Debt of the School to the Older Scholars." Other speakers will be Rev. W. H. S. Demarest, president of Rutgers College, and Mrs. J. Woodbridge Barnes, formerly a worker in the international field.

Miss Rose Beers, of Catskill, N. Y., has been chosen as a teacher in the New Market school, and will take the class formerly in charge of Miss Hazel Gardner. Miss Gardner is to have Miss Robins' work, Miss Robins' resignation having been accepted at the last meeting of the Board of Education.

The Misses Maude and Hilda Johnson have returned home after visiting friends in Brooklyn.

Miss Josephine Dunham has returned after a week's stay at Asbury Park.

Mrs. Annie Abbott is spending the month at Mount Pocono, Pa.

BURGLAR SHOWS POLICE HOW TO "BLOW" A SAFE.

Acting Capt. Connell, of the Detective Bureau in Newark, and several of his men had a practical illustration yesterday at police headquarters, that city, of how safes are operated on by expert "yeggmen" preparatory to blowing them open. The demonstrator was George E. Williams, alias "Humpty," the leader of the gang of burglars captured in Newark last Friday night.

Williams deftly applied a block to the knob of the safe in the office of Chief of Police Corbitt, put his drill in position and prepared to connect the battery with the dynamite.

"Now, I'll show you how it works, Cap," he said smiling.

"Not much you won't," answered the Captain as he made sure the dynamite was kept a safe distance from the hand of the crafty burglar.

"But there is no danger when it is handled by one who knows how," suggested Williams.

"That may all be," said the Captain, "but you have already expressed the opinion that you have not got long to live and don't care, but I want to live a little longer."

Williams was then taken back to his cell.

DEATH CLAIMS OLDEST ODD FELLOW IN JERSEY.

John Butcher, ninety-three years old and said to be the oldest Odd Fellow in New Jersey, died yesterday at his home, 115 North Fifth street, Camden, from a complication of diseases due to his age. He will be buried in Evergreen Cemetery tomorrow.

For over sixty years Mr. Butcher was a member of Phoenix Lodge of Odd Fellows, of Burlington, a lodge which he assisted to organize. He was also a member of the first Republican club organized in Camden in 1856. Thirty-seven years ago he formed the Mechanics' Building and Loan Association, of Camden, becoming its president and continuing as such up until the time of his death.

On his maternal side Mr. Butcher was descended from the Coopers and Keighns, the first settlers of Camden. His grandfather, of the same name as he, built the old Quaker meeting-house that is still a place of worship near the old Newton Cemetery. He also constructed the first brick building in Camden.

The grandson, the one now deceased, became a builder, and houses now sixty and seventy years old were erected by him. When a boy he lived in what was then known as the old McAllister Mansion. It was at that time on the banks of the Delaware, but at present occupies the southeast corner of Second and Sycamore streets in Camden. Until recently there were two yew trees that stood in front of the mansion, now a mere ghost of a building covered with ivy planted two centuries ago. These trees were brought from England in 1683 and were of the quality from which the famous yew-bows were formed. When a boy Mr. Butcher had high old times climbing about these ancient yews that were one of the city's landmarks.

Mr. Butcher was a well preserved old man and had a memory that could recall many of the incidents of long ago. He was widely known throughout the State, especially in Odd Fellow circles.

CONTRACT FOR STYX BRIDGE.

Sussex County Freeholders Award It and Structure May Be Built Speedily.

Newton, Aug. 27.—The Sussex County Board of Freeholders, at a meeting here yesterday, awarded the contract to build the River Styx bridge, in Byram Township, to the Canton Bridge Company of Albany, N. Y. The bid of the company was $10,285, and the structure must be ready for traffic within 120 days from the date of the execution of the contract. There were ten other bids, the highest by John Cron and M. P. Gallo, of Netcong, was for $33,817.

Work will be begun at once, although there was a question as to the advisability of doing so because of the extra amount of travel during the summer season. The bridge will be 594 feet long, and the middle span, of 100 feet, will be ten feet above the high-water mark, instead of seven feet, as in the original plans. This change was made to meet the request of residents of Hopatcong Borough, who appeared before the board and stated that it would allow the larger power boats on the lake free passage under the bridge and relieve the congestion. The bridge will be constructed of iron, with a concrete floor and abutments.

HUNTING THE WAPITI

BY

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

[Copyright, 1893, by G. P. Putnam's Sons. Published under arrangement with G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York and London.]

ONCE, while on a hunt with John Willis, I spent a week in a vain effort to kill moose among the outlying mountains at the southern end of the Bitter Root range. Then, as we had no meat, we determined to try for elk.

We were camped with a wagon, as high among the foot-hills as wheels could go, but several hours' walk from the range of the game; for it was still early in the season, and they had not yet come down from the upper slopes. Accordingly we made a practice of leaving the wagon for two or three days at a time to hunt; returning to get a night's rest in the tent, preparatory to a fresh start. On these trips we carried neither blankets nor packs, as the walking was difficult and we had much ground to cover. Each merely put on his jacket with a loaf of frying-pan bread and a paper of salt stuffed into the pockets. We were cumbered with nothing save our rifles and cartridges.

On the morning in question we left camp at sunrise. For two or three hours we walked up-hill through a rather open growth of small pines and spruces, the traveling being easy. Then we came to the edge of a deep valley, a couple of miles across. Into this we scrambled, down a steep slide, where the forest had grown up among the immense boulder masses. Finally, in the afternoon, we left the valley and began to climb a steep gorge, down which a mountain torrent roared and foamed in a succession of cataracts.

Three hours' hard climbing brought us to another valley, but of an entirely different character. It was several miles long, but less than a mile broad. Save at the mouth, it was walled in completely by chains of high rock-peaks, their summits snow-capped; the forest extended a short distance up their sides. Hardly had we entered this valley before we caught a glimpse of a yearling elk walking rapidly along a game path some distance ahead. We followed as quickly as we could without making a noise, but after the first glimpse never saw it again; for it is astonishing how fast an elk travels, with its ground-covering walk.

By the time the sun set we were sure the elk were towards the head of the valley. We utilized the short twilight in arranging our sleeping place for the night, choosing a thick grove of spruce beside a small mountain tarn, at the foot of a great cliff. As the first faint streak of dawn appeared in the dark sky my companion touched me lightly on the arm. The fire was nearly out; we felt numbed by the chill air. At once we sprang up, stretched our arms, shook ourselves, examined our rifles, swallowed a mouthful or two of bread, and walked off through the gloomy forest. At first we could scarcely see our way, but it grew rapidly lighter.

Then, as we trod noiselessly over the dense moss, and on the pine needles under the scattered trees, we heard a sharp clang and clatter up the valley ahead of us. In a little glade, a hundred and twenty-five yards from us, two bull elk were engaged in deadly combat, while two others were looking on. It was a splendid sight. The great beasts faced each other with lowered horns, the manes that covered their thick necks, and the hair on their shoulders, bristling and erect. Then they charged furiously, the crash of the meeting antlers resounding through the valley. The shock threw them both on their haunches; with locked horns and glaring eyes they strove against each other, getting their hind legs well under them, straining every muscle in their huge bodies, and squealing savagely. They were evenly matched in weight, strength, and courage; and push as they might, neither got the upper hand, first one yielding a few inches, then the other, while they swayed to and fro in their struggles, smashing the bushes and ploughing up the soil.

Finally they separated and stood some little distance apart, under the great pines; their sides heaving, and columns of steams rising from their nostrils through the frosty air of the brightening morning. Again they rushed together with a crash, and each strove mightily to overthrow the other, or get past his guard; but the branching antlers caught every vicious lunge and thrust. This set-to was stopped rather curiously. One of the onlooking elk was a yearling; the other, though scarcely as heavy-bodied as either of the fighters, had a finer head. He was evidently much excited by the battle, and he now began to walk towards the two combatants, nodding his head and uttering a queer, whistling noise. They dared not leave their flanks uncovered to his assault; and as he approached they promptly separated, and walked off side by side a few yards apart. In a moment, however, one spun round and jumped at his old adversary, seeking to stab him in his unprotected flank; but the latter was just as quick, and as before caught the rush on his horns. They closed as furiously as ever; but the utmost either could do was to inflict one or two punches on the neck and shoulders of his foe, where the thick hide served as a shield. Again the peace-maker approached, nodding his head, whistling, and threatening; and again they separated.

This was repeated once or twice; and I began to be afraid lest the breeze which was very light and puffy should shift and give them my wind. So, resting my rifle on my knee I fired twice, putting one bullet behind the shoulder of the peace-maker, and the other behind the shoulder of one of the combatants. Both were deadly shots, but, as so often with wapiti, neither of the wounded animals at the moment showed any signs of being hit. The yearling ran off unscathed. The other three crowded together and trotted behind some spruce on the left, while we ran forward for another shot. In a moment one fell; whereupon the remaining two turned and came back across the glade, trotting to the right. As we opened fire they broke into a lumbering gallop, but were both downed before they got out of sight in the timber.

The wapiti is, next to the moose, the most quarrelsome and pugnacious of American deer. It cannot be said that it is ordinarily a dangerous beast to hunt; yet there are instances in which wounded wapiti, incautiously approached to within striking distance, have severely misused their assailants, both with their antlers and their forefeet.

However, the fiercest wapiti bull, when in a wild state, flees the neighborhood of man with the same panic terror shown by the cows; and he makes no stand against a grisly, though when his horns are grown he has little fear of either wolf or cougar if on his guard and attacked fairly. The chief battles of the bulls are of course waged with one another. Before the beginning of the rut they keep by themselves: singly, while the sprouting horns are still very young, at which time they lie in secluded spots and move about as little as possible; in large bands, later in the season. At the beginning of the fall these bands join with one another and with the bands of cows and calves, which have likewise been keeping to themselves during the late winter, the spring, and the summer. Vast herds are thus sometimes formed, containing, in the old days when wapiti were plenty, thousands of head. The bulls now begin to fight furiously with one another, and the great herd becomes split into smaller ones. Each of these has one master bull, who has won his position by savage battle, and keeps it by overcoming every rival, whether a solitary bull, or the lord of another harem, who challenges him. When not fighting or love-making he is kept on the run, chasing away the young bulls who venture to pay court to the cows. He has hardly time to eat or sleep, and soon becomes gaunt and worn to a degree.

The battles between the bulls rarely result fatally. After a longer or shorter period of charging, pushing, and struggling the heavier or more enduring of the two begins to shove his weaker antagonist back and round; and the latter then watches his chance and bolts, hotly, but as a rule harmlessly, pursued for a few hundred yards. The massive branching antlers serve as effective guards against the most wicked thrusts. While the antagonists are head on, the worst that can happen is a punch on the shoulder which will not break the thick hide, though it may bruise the flesh underneath.

Wapiti keep their antlers until the spring, whereas deer and moose lose theirs by mid-winter. The bull's behavior in relation to the cow is merely that of a vicious and brutal coward. He bullies her continually, and in times of danger his one thought is for sneaking off to secure his own safety. For all his noble looks he is a very unamiable beast, who behaves with brutal ferocity to the weak, and shows abject terror of the strong. According to his powers, he is guilty of rape, robbery, and even murder. I never felt the least compunction at shooting a bull, but I hate to shoot a cow, even when forced by necessity.

During the rut the bulls are very noisy: and their notes of amorous challenge are called "whistling" by the frontiersmen,—very inappropriately. They begin to whistle about ten days before they begin to run; and they have in addition an odd kind of bark, which is only heard occasionally.

Heard at a little distance, and in its proper place, the call of the wapiti is one of the grandest and most beautiful sounds in nature. Especially is this the case when several rivals are answering one another, on some frosty moonlight night in the mountains. Once, while in the mountains, I listened to a peculiarly grand chorus of this kind. We were traveling with pack ponies at the time, and our tent was pitched in a grove of yellow pine, by a brook in the bottom of a valley. On either hand rose the mountains, covered with spruce forest. It was in September, and the first snow had just fallen.

The day before we had walked long and hard; and during the night I slept the heavy sleep of the weary. Early in the morning, just as the east began to grow gray, I waked; and as I did so, the sounds that smote on my ear caused me to sit up and throw off the warm blankets. Bull elk were challenging among the mountains on both sides of the valley, a little way from us, their notes echoing like the calling of silver bugles. Groping about in the dark, I drew on my trousers, an extra pair of thick socks, and my moccasins, donned a warm jacket, found my fur cap and gloves, and stole out of the tent with my rifle. Two herds were approaching one another from opposite sides of the valley, a short distance above our camp; and the master bulls were roaring defiance as they mustered their harems.

I walked stealthily up the valley, until I felt that I was nearly between the two herds; and then stood motionless under a tall pine. I made up my mind, from the sound of the challenging, now very near me, that one bull on my right was advancing towards a rival on my left, who was answering every call. Soon the former approached so near that I could hear him crack the branches, and beat the bushes with his horns; and I slipped quietly from tree to tree, so as to meet him when he came out into the more open woodland. Day broke, and crimson gleams played across the snow-clad mountains beyond.

At last, just as the sun flamed red above the hill-tops, I heard the roar of the wapiti's challenge not fifty yards away; and I cocked and half raised my rifle, and stood motionless. In a moment more, the belt of spruces in front of me swayed and opened, and the lordly bull stepped out. He bore his massive antlers aloft; the snow lay thick on his mane; he snuffed the air and stamped on the ground as he walked. As I drew a bead, the motion caught his eye; and instantly his bearing of haughty and warlike self-confidence changed to one of alarm. My bullet smote through his shoulder-blades, and he plunged wildly forward, and fell full length on the blood-stained snow.

Nothing can be finer than a wapiti bull's carriage when excited or alarmed; he then seems the embodiment of strength and stately grace. But at ordinary times his looks are less attractive, as he walks with his neck level with his body and his head outstretched, his horns lying almost on his shoulders. The favorite gait of the wapiti is the trot, which is very fast, and which they can keep up for countless miles; when suddenly and greatly alarmed, they break into an awkward gallop, which is faster, but which speedily tires them.

Registry AND Election NOTICE.

Charter, Municipal and General Election

NOVEMBER 3D, 1908

COUNTY OF UNION.

Pursuant to an act entitled "An Act to Regulate Elections" (Revision of 1898), approved April 4th, 1898, with the amendments thereof, and other acts, concerning elections, and the constitutional provision concerning the right of suffrage," notice is hereby given that the District Boards of Registry and Election in and for each and every Election District in the City of Elizabeth, will meet on the

4TH TUESDAY IN SEPT. 1908, (22ND)

at one o'clock in the afternoon, at the places in their respective Election Districts where the City Clerk shall designate, and continue in session until nine o'clock in the evening, for the purpose of registering the names of all legal voters in the manner prescribed by law, and who are entitled to the right of suffrage at the next election.

The District Boards of Registry and Election in and for the City of Elizabeth, will also meet for purposes of registration at their respective places, on between the hours of 1 and 9 p. m.

OCTOBER 6TH AND 20TH, 1908,

And the Boards of Registry and Election in and for each and every Election District in said County of Union, outside of the City of Elizabeth, will meet on

TUESDAY, AUGUST 25TH, 1908,

to elect one of its members as judge, who shall be chairman of said board, and another of its members as inspector. Also on

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 1ST. 1908,

at ten o'clock in the forenoon, in their respective Election Districts where the next election will be held shall proceed to ascertain and truly and accurately enter in canvassing books, to be provided for that purpose, the names and residences and street numbers, if any, of all legal voters within their respective election districts entitled to vote therein, by making actual inquiry at every dwelling house, etc., in the manner prescribed by law, and shall continue such enumeration until the same is completed; provided, that such enumeration shall terminate on or before the Friday next succeeding.

"No."

"They were there, nevertheless. And that means that the pistol from which the fatal shot was fired couldn't have been held more than three feet away. At the same time we concluded it must have been more than two. And this, you see, effectually disposes of the theory of suicide."

"And now, doctor, I want to ask you two or three questions. In the first place, isn't it within the possibilities of medical science to determine just how long a man has been dead?"

"Anywhere within 24 or 36 hours, probably yes."

"With how much accuracy?"

"Well, possibly within an hour."

"As close as that?"

"I believe that most surgeons and physicians accept the proposition of an eminent surgeon and chemist who stated a few years ago that the day will come when we may first determine the general health of the subject by examination of the other organs, and then submit the clotted blood in the heart to microscopic tests. The blood, you know, is made up of three parts—the serum, and the red and white corpuscles. The red corpuscles contain the life. That life remains for several days after death if the body is without disease to induce overrapid decomposition. The length of time which has elapsed since the heart ceased to beat may be determined by the amount of life in the red corpuscles. The same test is also applied to the contents of the other vessels."

"Have those tests been applied in this case, doctor?"

"Yes; but merely as an experiment to compare with the other tests applied. I am happy to say they showed, in a measure, the probable reliability of the theory."

"And what were those other tests?"

"Most bodies become quite cold in from eight to twelve hours after death. In the cases of bodies which present certain signs that I need not detail, we know that death has not been present more than 12 hours. In from 12 to 18 hours, however, the eyeballs become soft and inelastic and feel flaccid. The last sign of the earliest stage of death is the rigor mortis. This is, perhaps, the most dependable of the signs we have to guide us at present. Of course, the rigidity of the body may continue beyond a week, but the circumstances which would occasion this would be too extraordinary to be unnoticed. Considering all these things, I should repeat that the length of time which Mr. North has been dead is tolerably certain."

"And from this, when did you determine that Mr. North had died?"

"Perhaps Dr. Jarrett would object to my giving that information to the press," said the surgeon, hesitatingly.

"Then don't give it to the press. Give it to me."

Thomas smiled insinuatingly.

"And you—what will you do with it?"

"Compare it with such other information as I already possess, to see if my suspicions are correct."

"You suspect somebody?"

"Everybody."

"Then I understand that this communication is confidential?" he asked.

"Decidedly, for the present."

"In that case, I don't mind telling you that we came to the conclusion that Mr. North was shot between eight and nine o'clock last night."

"Of course, you know about that strange writing on the wall?"

"Yes," was the answer; "Dr. Jarrett said there was no doubt that a name was scrawled there, and that the writing was in blood."

"Do you think Mr. North could have written it himself?"

"Well, that's a leading question," answered the surgeon, as he leaned back in his chair. "I did not see the writing."

"No?" said Thomas. He unrolled the photographer's proof. "Well, there it is—natural size, just as it looks."

The surgeon scrutinized the scrawl with great interest.

"Well, this is most extraordinary," he said. "Why, you can plainly mark how many times he was obliged to dip his finger by the corresponding heaviness of outline. Observe the S, the a, the h, and finally the letter following the u, where his strength seems suddenly to have deserted him and the finger dragged downwards. That makes four times."

"Yes; if he wrote it," said Thomas. "But how about that, doctor?"

"There is, at least, no conclusive reason why he might not have written it himself. It was certainly done with his forefinger. A careful examination of the end of that finger convinces me that it had not only been dipped in blood, but thereafter drawn over a surface while wet. The difference in the degree of the stain at different parts of the finger indicates that. How far above the floor is this writing?"

"Just about a foot and a half. It is a tinted wall, and the writing is immediately above the footboard."

"Was the writing horizontal? Did it run just parallel with the footboard?"

"Just about."

"If a man had directed this writing from a higher point, Thomas, he would have written back handed. How was the slope of the letters?"

"Natural."

"And have you seen any specimens of North's handwriting? Does he form his letters that way?"

"Yes; as nearly as could be expected under the circumstances."

"Then I should say," said the surgeon.

THE SURGEON SCRUTINIZED THE SCRAWL WITH GREAT INTEREST.

rising, "that it is more than probable that North wrote it."

"But with a wound like that," suggested the reporter, "death must have been instantaneous."

"Ah, there you have failed to distinguish between speedy death and instantaneous death. What is commonly called instantaneous death—from a shot in the heart, for instance—is by no means such. A second is an hour to a dying man. On the other hand, the severing of the spinal column by a bullet would actually cut a thought in two. Man goes into the presence of his Maker under such circumstances without an instant to prepare himself. But in a case like North's we must take into consideration the power of the human will to prolong life."

"But this writing on the wall was not an act of memory."

"No. But with thought in a man of strong purpose would come quick determination and the power to act, even at that moment. You must bear in mind that Mr. North's death was caused by the filling of his lungs with blood instead of air. It was a painless death, and Mr. North's will power would have enabled him to prolong his life 60 seconds—perhaps even 180 seconds—ample time for the writing of this name on the wall, as you can see. Take the name Paul North; trace it slowly, as if you had to dip your finger in the writing fluid four times. There. Now time yourself. How long did it take you?"

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 30, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Foreign missions. Cyrus Hamlin and missions in Turkey.—I Cor. ix, 12-23.

Turkey, or the Ottoman empire, is an extensive kingdom, consisting of territories of large dimensions in Asia, Europe and Africa. The social conditions of the people vary largely, according to the part of the empire in which they live. It includes many of the forms of life, from the tent life of the Kurds to the life of the city, which is generally patterned after the life of Europe. The government of the empire is autocratic and is often called "theocratic." The sultan, as caliph, is the absolute head of the state as well as of the Turkish church, which is Mohammedan.

To set forth in anything like detail the religious conditions in Turkey would require a volume. In a general way it may be said that the people of Turkey are either Mohammedan or Christian. In this ancient empire the three great forms of Christianity are represented the Greek, the Roman Catholic and the Protestant. The Protestantism of Turkey resembles very nearly that of England and America. The supreme doctrine emphasized is Luther's great dogma—justification by faith. The form of worship is simple and nonliturgical. This is due to the opinions of the missionaries and also to the repugnance of converts to forms, which before their conversion had given them no soul satisfaction.

The territory of Turkey is well covered by missionary societies. The empire is divided among a goodly number of the great Protestant denominations, and thus there is no interference or overlapping, and the work is more successfully done. Among these are the Presbyterians, Methodists and the Reformed Presbyterians. Of all the A. B. C. F. M., the oldest in the field, occupies the largest territory. Turkey needs Christ badly, and we should do our part through our denominations to send Him to it.

Cyrus Hamlin was one of the conspicuous individual workers in Turkey, especially along educational lines in Constantinople. He was born near Waterford, Me., Jan. 5, 1811, and died in Lexington, Mass. His autobiography, entitled "My Life and Times," should be read by every Endeavorer. When but an infant his father died. His mother was very poor, and later on he began to learn the jewelry trade. But, discovering later a love for books, he gave up his trade and with money earned by himself alone graduated from Bowdoin college and Bangor Theological, another illustration of what American boys can do who are persistent and persevering.

In 1838 as a missionary he sailed for Turkey, and from that year until 1873 he labored in Constantinople, the Turkish capital. In 1853-4 an English clergyman traveling in the east was deeply interested in Hamlin's educational work. Hamlin was a hard student and soon mastered Armenian, Turkish and modern Greek. In the face of almost insurmountable difficulties he established a theological seminary. His other and his enduring educational work was the building of Robert college at Constantinople. Christopher Robert furnished the money for the college, but Hamlin built it and became its first president when it was opened in 1863. In 1873 he returned to the United States and became a professor at Bangor seminary, having given nearly half a century of labor to educational missions in Constantinople.

Under Dr. Clark's Umbrella.

Dr. Clark, the founder of Christian Endeavor, during his life at college gave a good deal of time and energy to a mission Sunday school, in which he discovered and proved his power to win and help young people. Among the workers at that mission was Miss Harriet Abbott, a bright, vivacious, enthusiastic young lady of honorable New England descent. Her family reckoned among its ancestors John Alden, the friend of Miles Standish and the lover of Priscilla. Her grandfather and father had both been honored ministers. As it happened, her sisters had married ministers, and Miss Harriet Abbott has since confessed to intimate friends that she had settled it positively in her own mind that, whatever else might happen to her, she would not marry a minister—there were ministers enough in the family already.

But the work at the little school led to a pleasant friendship with the earnest young student, and one stormy Saturday evening as she walked home from the mission under the shelter of Dr. Clark's umbrella a question was asked and answered which made two lives one and gave the man who was to be the founder of the Y. P. S. C. E. the ideal helpmeet.—Irish Endeavorer.

Good Work In South Africa.

Rev. J. Tolefree Parr in a speech delivered some time ago in England said: "I found Christian Endeavor rendering the very highest service to the churches of South Africa. The Dutch have 300 societies, with 8,000 members; the English speaking unions have 230 societies, with 4,000 members."

Sail and Rudder.

The adult Bible class of the First Presbyterian church will meet in the Y. M. C. A. parlors for the next two Sundays, beginning August 30.

A lawn festival will be held at Faith chapel tonight under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society. If the weathers prevents the open-air fete it will be held in the chapel.

Rev. W. A. Therrell, who is now engaged in taking a church census of Plainfield, will preach at the Wilson Memorial chapel, Sunday night at the usual hour. His topic will be a most unusual one.

Clemens Bechtel, of Carlton avenue, is sojourning at Asbury Park, where he is registered at the Montauk.

cluding several additional beds to take care of the extra sewage matter. In any event it would only be a question of time when Plainfield would have to expend a considerable sum of money to increase the number of beds and make improvements to care for the natural increase of sewage in Plainfield.

If a trunk sewer is established it would not only be cheaper in the end for Plainfield, but the combinded cost of maintenance of the new system would be correspondingly cheaper; besides the nuisance naturally arising from having the beds in this city, would be abolished and Dunellen would also get relief.

No thought has as yet been given as to the probable location of the sewage beds. In Mayor Fisk's message he suggested a point below New Brunswick, which permit the sewering of that city. There are several points in that part of Middlesex county which would be ideal for sewage beds and where they would not be a nusiance. In the opinion of the officials of Dunellen and Bound Brook the cost of installing pipes in either town would not be heavy and Plainfield would escape this expense, it only being necessary to connect the trunk line sewer at Dunellen. The cost of maintenance would be distributed proportionately among the cities and towns benefitted according to the amount of sewage received from each place.

Thus far the commission has made no further overtures to Scotch Plains and Fanwood, other than to notify them of the proposed plan. The members feel that the officials of these places should now come to them if they want to benefit by the trunk sewer. There is no question but that Fanwood and Scotch Plains will want to go into this sewer and will arrange for a conference with the commission. New Brunswick will probably be heard from within a short time. It is the purpose of the commission to present a report to the Common Council early this fall, as North Plainfield is especially anxious for a decision. There is still the question before the Common Council of taking the borough into the city's system of sewage, but if the trunk line plan is found feasible and is adopted, the borough would favor that and would be willing to give up the idea of getting into the city's system.

HER STORY MOVES COURT.

Woman Arrested While Walking to See Dying Grandchild.

Journeying on foot from Great Notch to the bedside of a dying grandchild in Philadelphia, Mrs. Johannna Puta of the latter city, was arrested at Montclair yesterday for soliciting alms. When arraigned in court, the woman said she had been employed in Philadelphia as a carpet weaver, and had gone to Little Falls to accept work.

Being unable to obtain a job as weaver, however, she entered household service at Great Notch, and a few days ago received information that her little grandchild was dying in Philadelphia. She asked her employer for her wages so that she could go to Philadelphia, but was told that she would not be paid until she had worked the month out. Mrs. Puta thereupon set out to walk to Philadelphia. Arriving in Montclair she solicited alms along Midland avenue, and a woman whom she approached caused her arrest.

The woman's story brought tears to the eyes of Recorder Yost and the police court attaches, and the Recorder immediately ordered her discharged. The hat was passed in the courtroom and enough money was collected to pay her fare to Philadelphia.

"God bless you all," said Mrs. Puta, as she left the courtroom to board a car for the Pennsylvania station at Newark.

Mrs. Puta had walked six miles on her journey before she was arrested.

PRIVATE CAR WRECKED.

Six Officials Hurt in Collision Near the Blairstown, Jersey Yards.

Six men were injured in a collision above the railroad years at Blairstown yesterday afternoon between a freight train and a locomotive drawing the private car Helen, which belongs to the officials of the Lehigh & New England Railroad, some of whom were making a tour of inspection. This car was totally wrecked. The freight train belonged to the New York, Susquehanna & Western Railroad. The accident was due to a confusion in orders. The passengers in the private car owe their lives to the fact that it was not traveling at its regular rate of speed. The injured are: T. J. Fretz, of Allentown, Pa., general passenger and freight agent of the New England Railroad; bruised and arm injured. J. A. Zehnder, of Easton, Pa., superintendent; bruised. W. S. Howes, of Pen Argyl, Pa., assistant engineer of way train; sprained ankle. John McMullen, of Pen Argyl, Pa., road foreman; jaw broken and cut on head. Linford Carpenter, of Pen Argyl, Pa., engineer; contusions. Weston Fuller, of Pen Argyl, Pa., fireman; confusions.

Several officials of the Lehigh & Susquehanna were making a trip of inspection in the car Helen, and the telegraphed instructions were to wait at Blairstown for a westbound train. The private car stopped on a siding, and presently the expected train passed. It was then believed that the track was clear, and the private car of the railroad officials resumed its journey, but before full speed was reached a freight train was seen rushing head on toward the inspection train.

Linford Carpenter, the engineer, when he saw that a collision was imminent, reversed his lever and put on the air brakes, but could not avoid the crash.

The two locomotives met, and the heavier freight train carried the lighter train backward, wrecking the locomotive and splintering the private car.

The freight belonged to the New York, Susquehanna & Western Railroad, on whose tracks the accident occured. The freight train was not greatly damaged, and after the debris of the wrecked car and locomotive had been removed went on its way.

FINAL CURTAIN ON LIFE OF TONY PASTOR

Antonio Pastor, the famous vaudeville actor-manager, who gave many prominent actors their start in this country, died at his home in Kerry Cottage, on Whitney avenue, Elmhurst, L. I., shortly after 10 o'clock last night. At the time of his death there were at the bedside his wife, her cousin, Mrs. James Stack; the latter's son, Hugh; Dr. G. D. Farwell, the physician who has been attending him during his illness, and H. S. Sanderson, of Cranford, who has been manager for Mr. Pastor during the last thirty-seven years. Had Tony Pastor lived until next May he would have been 77 years old.

The cause of death was weakness and general debility. Mr. Sanderson said last night that he wished to contradict any report that his friend's death had been hastened by financial worry or that he had had a paralytic stroke.

Mr. Pastor was born in the old Greenwich Village, New York city. His father was a musician who played in various orchestras and theatres. Tony first appeared in public at the age of 6, when he sang at meetings of the Hand in Hand Temperance Society with ex-Senator Christian B. Woodruff. His father made futile attempts to discourage his growing fondness for the stage, but he made his professional debut as an "infant prodigy" at Barnum's Museum in 1846.

After this he went into the circus and did everything from clowning up. His managerial talent soon showed itself in his organizing of concerts in the school-houses of the towns that the circus visited and at the outbreak of the Civil War he had acquired enough money to open his first music hall at 444 Broadway. Then he formed a partnership with Sam Sharpley, the old minstrel manager, and they opened the Volks Garden at 201 Broadway.

Mr. Pastor acquired the Fourteenth Street theatre in 1881, which he operated as a "Variety" house, refusing to use the term "Vaudeville," which he called "sissified and Frenchy." He kept this theatre until last spring, when he gave up the lease, saying that business there was not what it used to be and that the neighborhood had changed.

He was the oldest manager "in harness," and kept up an active interest in theatrical affairs until the day of his illness. He is known as the manager who "made more stars than any other one in the business, and many of the first names of the stage were first heard of in his theatres.

COUNTY TAX BOARD GIVES LOCAL VALUATIONS

The Union County Tax Board today received from the State Board of Taxation the statement regarding the valuation of second-class railroad properties. The local valuation is $192,069, and the valuation for the county is $2,951,325.

The Union County Tax Board announced today the total real and personal property valuation in the county to be $118,675,737, a gain of $4,211,000.

RIOT IN FOADHOUSE.

Autoists Try to Clean Out Nungesser's Caravansary.

There was a small riot at Nungesser's roadhouse, near Little Coney Island, North Bergen, early yesterday, which was precipitated by seven young men from Jersey City, who were out in an auto for a good time. When the trouble was over John Chauncey, the bartender, and two policemen were somewhat the worse for wear, while all seven of the young bloods were slightly disfigured and two of them made prisoners.

One gave his name as Charles Goodwin, of 178 Bergenline avenue, Union Hill, but later admitted that the name and address was fictitious and that he belonged to a good family in Jersey City. The other gave his name as John McLaughlin, and said he lived at 162 Erie street, Jersey City. The names of the five who made their escape in the auto have not been obtained. The prisoners, when asked to put up cash bail for their appearance before Recorder Medina last night, pulled out much more cash than was required and, throwing it at the desk sergeant walked out.

BENEFITS FOR A FEW ONLY.

Postal Employees Who Will Be Paid When Injured.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Postmaster-General Meyer, after receiving an opinion from the Attorney-General for the Postoffice Department, has issued an order defining what classes of postal employes are entitled to the benefits of the act of Congress granting to certain employees of the United States the right to receive from the government compensation for injuries sustained in the course of their employment.

The order states that the only persons connected with the Postoffice Department or the postal service who come within the scope of the act are employees in the mail repair shops and mail lock repair shops.

Employees of the government affected by this act who are injured or disabled by reason of their duties will receive full pay if their disability lasts more than fifteen days, and it will continue for one year from the time of the accident. In the case of death the widow of the employee is to receive the amount of wages for that portion of the year unexpired at the time of death.

CODY HOLDUP A FAKE.

Got Up to Get Moving Pictures for John Wanamaker.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 27.—That Cody (Wyo.) stage holdup, news of which was carried by the press dispatches of yesterday, was a fake, and was pulled off at an expense of several hundred dollars for the benefit of a corps of moving-picture experts sent from Philadelphia by John Wanamaker to procure scenes of real Western life, which are to be used in illustrating a series of private lectures in the Quaker City and Washington.

This information is brought to Butte by Mrs. F. A. Ironsides and Mrs. Frank Maley, passengers on one of the coaches that fell victims to the four made-up "bad men," who earned their part of the money spent by enacting the roles of highwaymen in the Shoshone Canyon, between Meeteetse and Cody. The women returned to Butte today with the story.

INCREASE OVER LAST YEAR.

Second Class Railroad Property in Plainfield Valued at $192,069

—Tax Rate to Be Given Out in September.

The Union County Board of Taxation has completed the compilation of the figures for the county, including Plainfield, and while there may be some slight changes made by the members after an opportunity is given taxpayers to present their grievances, if they have any, the figures give the city a total valuation of land, buildings personal property, less deduction for debt and adding the valuation of second-class railroad property of $22,699,799, a substantial increase over that of last year. Plainfield's valuation on second-class railroad property amounts to $192,069.

Yesterday the county board received from the State Board of Taxation the figures regarding the valuation on railroad property in the county, the total being $2,951,325. The total real and personal property valuation in the county is $118,675,737, a gain of $4,211,000 over that of last year. Figures given out by some newspapers yesterday were wrongly computed and made it appear that the total valuation of Plainfield's property was $21,974,970. The tax rate will be announced early in September. The detailed figures for Plainfield as officially announced are as follows:

First Ward—Land, $1,768,263; buildings, $2,104,262; personal, $850,175; deduction for debt, $10,125; total, $4,712,575.

Second Ward—Land, $2,354,072; buildings, $3,482,578; personal, $915,825; deduction for debt, $9,850; total, $6,742,625.

Third Ward—Land, $2,222,363; buildings, $2,881,317; personal, $562,000; deduction for debt, $15,000; total, $5,650,680.

Fourth Ward—Land, $1,680,065; buildings, $2,827,585; personal, $1,034,500; deduction for debt, $170,400; total, $5,371,750.

ASK FOR FURNITURE BIDS.

Equipment for Somerset's New Court House Will Soon Be Purchased.

William J. Logan, chairman of the committee in charge of the erection of Somerset county's new courthouse, has issued a call for bids for the furniture for the new structure. The bids will be received at the office of the architect, J. Riley Gorden, 402 Fifth avenue, New York, Saturday, Sept. 5, from 10 to 11 a. m.

The new court-house is rapidly nearing completion and presents an imposing appearance.

Plainfielders in the Philippines.

Word has been received here from Mrs. Samuel B. Pearson, wife of Lieut. Pearson, and daughter of Mrs. Daniel Vermeule, of Orange place, that she met Captain and Mrs. Yule upon their arrival at Camp McGrath, Batangas, about five weeks ago. They were en route for one of the interior posts below Batangas. Mrs. Yule was Miss May Sandford, of East Front street, and she knew Mrs. Pearson before her marriage when she lived in Plainfield. The greeting was a happy one for it had been a long time since Mrs. Pearson had seen anyone from or near her former home. She writes that Captain and Mrs. Yule were well and had enjoyed their sea trip.

G.O.P. LEADERS WANT SMITH; DEMOCRATS NAME KENNEY

The petition naming Councilman E. P. T. Smith, of the third district, to succeed himself as a candidate for the North Plainfield Council, is to be filled with Borough Clerk Fred Martin tomorrow and has been signed by several Republican leaders "over the brook." Mr. Smith ssems to be a "one best bet" for the office, and his work in the Council during the single term he has served has the unqualified endorsement of the tax payers. He was chairman of the fire, water and lamps committee among the borough fathers, and proved himself efficient in the discharge of his duties.

Born and bred a boroughite, Mr. Smith, who has not served two terms, as stated in another paper, is the son of Captain William Smith, himself at one time a member of the North Plainfield Council. The signers of his petition for re-election, include W. L. Smalley, J. J. Stahl, Robert Clark, Jr., Albert Giddes, Alonzo Brokaw, Andrew Stiglitz, William H. Shotwell, F. J. Shotwell and Walter Chandler, showing that he has the endorsement of the leaders of the party.

Other candidates for the Councilmanic vacancies are W. L. Smalley, Jr., and Walter Apgar. Among the Democrats, too, there are three candidates talked of. These are Frank Mobus, Frank Krewson and Andrew Kenney. Mr. Kenney, the latest of the candidates to appear in the field, has a large following in the party, according to report.

FREEHOLDER SITUATION IN SOMERSET COUNTY

The Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders is now Democratic by the same margin of six to five and the Republicans will make a bitter fight during the coming election to gain control of the board, which has now been in the hands of the Democrats for one year. The terms of John V. Bunn, Republican, of Bernards; Joseph Fitzga, Republican, of Bridgewater; Peter H. Smith, Republican, of Bound Brook Borough, and Thomas E. Gibson, Democrat, of Franklin, expire this year and already there are several candidates in each bailiwick out for the nomination.

Mr. Bunn is slated for a re-nomination in Bernards township by the Republicans, although W. K. Osborn also wants it. Charles P. Dunster will probably be the Democratic candidate.

In Bound Brook Borough Peter H. Smith is slated for the nomination to succeed himself and there are several Democrats who want the office.

Charles A. Houston has filed a petition in Bridgewater in opposition to Joseph Fitzga and so there is likely to be a contest in the primaries. John Slattery, of Raritan, has filed a petition for the candidacy on the Democratic ticket and Jacob Shurts, one of the State prison inspectors, is also said to be out for the office.

It is expected that Thomas E. Gibson will be renominated by the Democrats of Franklin, yet he may have some opposition. For the Republican nomination John Clark, of Middlebush, and William Zimmerman, of South Bound Brook, have been mentioned.

Put Out Fire On Freight Train.

Seeing flames and smoke issuing from the roof of a freight car filled with sheep, attached to an east bound train, Patrolman Nolan sent in an alarm from box 13 at North and Park avenues at 1:50 this morning. A member of the crew noticed the fire at about the same time and the train was stopped at the Park avenue bridge. A couple of extinguishers killed the fire, which started when an engine spark landed on the roof of the car. The sheep, although badly scared, were unharmed.

Given a Birthday Party.

Harry Barton, son of Mrs. H. Barton, of West Fourth street, was given a party Wednesday evening in celebration of the eighth anniversary of his birthday. The affair was held at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Overland, of West Fourth street. Games were played, after which refreshments were served. A feature was a birthday cake bearing eight lighted candles.

Tax Books Open to Inspection.

The Union County Board of Taxation gives formal notice today that the tax books from all districts in the county have been filed in its office in the courthouse at Elizabeth and may be inspected by taxpayers at any time.

NOT "PRIVATE PROPERTY"

Township and Local Land Owners Say Dr. Groszmann Trespass Law is too Strict.

MAP SHOWS ROADS IN TRACT.

"King" Carrar Claims Detectives Had No Right to Carry His Goods Further Than Century Road.

Township residents in the vicinity of the Groszmann School at Watchung Crest are incensed over the action of Professor Maxmillian P. E. Groszmann in claiming so much territory in the neighborhood of the school as private property, and assert that in moving "King John" Carrar's furniture out to Johnson's drive Wednesday afternoon, the Newark detectives, acting under orders from the school, exceeded their legal rights.

Local people, too, who own lots in the vicinity, claim that Professor Groszmann is over-stepping his legal right in his strict enforcement of the trespass law at Watchung Crest. Thirteen years ago, when the property at Watchung Crest was owned by the Mountain Park Land Company, maps were prepared of the tract, and several lots sold on streets laid out there. The survey was made by H. C. Smith and the map, dated 1895, was filed at Somerville.

In his dispossess proceedings, Professor Groszmann did not take into account the so-called Century Road, which runs directly in front of "King" Carrar's strong-hold, the school barn, forming a highway from Somerset street to Scotch Plains. This Century Road is the old highway used by township people before Johnson's drive was cut through when the Mountain Park Inn Company was in charge of the hotel, which is now the school building. When Johnson's drive was cut through, the Wooden road, connecting the drive at its nearest point with the Century road, carried most of the traffic from the west end of the road, which joined Somerset street near the old Demler's hotel, now Hugo Maul's. Another accepted road, which was never used much, was the so-called Valley View drive, between the Century road and Johnson's drive, running in a general easterly direction. Professor Groszmann is again alleged to have violated the law in carrying Carrar's furniture and household goods across this highway.

"King" Carrar and his attorney are "wise" to this violation, which will doubtless play an important part in the damage suit case started by the French ex-gardener because the rain Wednesday ruined his goods, left standing in the highway near the Bishop home. Local property owners in the vicinity will doubtless bring the matter of the accepted map to the attention of the school authorities, in an effort to secure a leniency clause in Professor Groszmann's strict enforcement of the law against "trespassers" in the vicinity of the school, situated in the centre of the Mountain Park Land Company's tract.

In speaking about the matter to a Daily Press reporter today, Professor Groszmann said: "I consider this agitation merely an antagonistic move by the township people, who want to dig up somethig against me. When I bought the school property, about five years ago, I bought it in good faith as one piece of land, and understood that no roads crossed it.

"Certainly no roads exist today. The old Century Road, which at one time crossed my place, is now nothing but a ditch. It is of no earthly use as a road. I certainly object to having people use it in its present condition, but will be willing to open it for the use of all, if the township will put it in passable condition and maintain it as a highway. This is the only public road I have any knowledge of which crosses my property."

Regatta at Bound Brook.

The Bound Brook Boat Club will hold its annual regatta on the Raritan river, near the clubhouse, Saturday afternoon, September 12, from 2 to 5 o'clock. There will be four events as follows: Canoe single, boat race, canoe tandem and launch race. Cups will be offered the winner in each event. The canoe races will be open to all.

Ambassador's Son Local Visitor.

Walter L. Hill, of Scranton, Pa., a prominent attorney in that city, has returned home after spending a part of his vacation with Dr. and Mrs. P. B. Cregar, of Grand avenue. Mr. Hill is a son of Dr. David Jayne Hill, ambassador to Germany, and a grandson of Rev. David Hill, who was at one time pastor of the First Baptist church.

"PAID IN FULL" PROVES A NOTABLE OFFERING

Eugene Walter's dramatic success of the past and present theatrical seasons, "Paid In Full," was presented before a large audience at the New Plainfield theatre last night. It met the general expectations of local playgoers through its interpretation by a company that is as evenly balanced as any yet appearing in the city. Added to the frank but virile story and its telling, was a scenic venture that for wealth of detail has seldom been excelled. Two of the three sets required for the four acts were marvels of stagecraft and served to make the production all the more notable.

In part, the theme of "Paid In Full" may be described as delicate, but the author deals with it truthfully and naturally. His dialogue is the understandable vocabulary of hour and he has adroitly knitted together a most consistent chain of incidents. In the character of Joseph Brooks he has an individual with socialistic tendencies and withal an egotist. His heart is filled with sullen hatred because his employer does not favor him in the wage matter as generously as he does other workers and in a moment of recklessness he becomes an embezzler and then sets up his wife and himself in a lavishly appointed apartment. In an effort to win back part of his stolen gains he "plays the ponies," and goes deeper into the mire with the inevitable result, discovery.

As a final resort, Brooks forces his young and pretty wife to bargain with his bachelor employer for leniency, claiming that if was not for her he would have remained honest, and she succeeds in having plans for his arrest abruptly terminated. It is accomplished with honor to herself, though the husband is kept in ignorance of what transpired at the meeting, but Mrs. Brooks' love changes to loathing at his conduct and after telling him he is cleared she returns to her mother's home.

The play throughout the four acts adheres to the original theme wondrously well and though at times Mr. Walters has stood on thin ice in unfolding the story, he eventually lands high and dry after tense situations. In "Brooks," the young author has written a wondrous character; likewise in the persons of "Captain Williams," "Jimsy Smith" and "Emma Brooks," characters so natural and lifelike as to be wholly unusual.

OPPOSED REAPPOINTMENT OF AN ELECTION OFFICER.

At a recent meeting of the Somerset County Board of Elections there was some discussion over the appointment of Theodore Van Cleef as one of the Democratic election officers in the third district of the township of Franklin. Mr. Van Cleef has held the office for a number of years and his name was submitted to the county board by Michael W. Scully, chairman of the Democratic county executive committee, for another year, but objection was raised to his appointment because, it was alleged, he was incapacitated.

When the county board met to consider the case Mr. Scully presented evidence to show that Mr. Van Cleef was competent to do the work and a petition, signed by many Democratic voters of East Millstone, expressed their confidence in him. The board confirmed his appointment, although George Gerhardt, the county committeeman from that district, was opposed to him.

LIVE STOCK COMMISSIONERS GUESTS OF FRELINGHUYSEN.

The commission on live stock, which was created by the law put through the State Legislature last winter, chiefly by the influence of State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, was the guest of the Senator at his home near Raritan yesterday. They were there for the purpose of getting affairs in shape to put the new law in operation.

It is expected that arrangements will soon be perfected whereby the farmers will have an opportunity of breeding a fine class of horses without great expense to themselves. Officers of the grange also met with the commission, which promises to be of great value to the farmers of the State, if they take advantage of the opportunities offered.

Mountain Corn Roast.

A mountain corn roast has been arranged in connection with the Saturday outing of the Y. W. C. A. members this week, and those who are to make the trip will meet at the association rooms tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

READY TO PICK P.O. SITE

Government Inspector Will Look Over the Properties in a Few Days.

FOUR LOCATIONS ARE OFFERED

Report Has It That Influences Are Working for the Durlach Site at East Front Street and Watchung Avenue.

The selection of a site for the new Federal building to be erected in Plainfield is about to be made. Postmaster Elias H. Bird this morning received a telephone message from Senator John Kean informing him that W. F. Field, who is connected with the Treasury Department at Washington, and who has been chosen to select sites for recommendation, is in Morristown today, and is expected to come to Plainfield within a few days. Senator Kean stated that he had received the assurance of Mr. Field that after leaving Morristown he would go direct to Plainfield for the purpose of chosing a site to be recommended for the post-office building.

There are four prominent sites mentioned for the structure and these will undoubtedly receive the first consideration on the part of Mr. Field. The sites already referred to and which have been offered for the purpose include the property at East Front street and Watchung avenue, the property at East Front and Church street, opposite the First Presbyterian church; the Friends meeting-house property on Watchung avenue, and the property on North avenue owned by David T. Kenney.

It is understood that after these offers were received at the time appointed by the Treasury Department, several other offers were submitted, but these are not likely to receive much consideration and those who made them did not comply with the official notice calling for sites. Another prominent site spoken of is the property where the Hotel Iroquois now stands.

After receiving the telephone message from Senator Kean, Mr. Bird was notified by letter from the Treasury Department that Mr. Field had been designated as agent for the department to visit Plainfield and inspect the sites offered and he will be expected to make a recommendation to the department. As he is spending today at Morristown, it is not thought that he will reach Plainfield much before Monday.

Considerable influence is being brought to bear in favor of the site at East Front street and Watchung avenue, that being considered a central point not only for Plainfield, but the borough as well. After inspecting the sites Mr. Field will probably arrange to meet the several owners and consult with them as to prices and other details.

MANGLED BESIDE TRACKS.

Unidentified Man Found by Track Walker Along Lehigh Valley Line at Aldene.

An unidentified man was struck and killed last night by a train on the Lehigh Valley Railroad at Aldene. Morguekeeper Stiner, of Elizabeth, was notified this morning and removed the body to Elizabeth. It was found at 6:30 o'clock by a track-walker and was badly mangled.

In the victim's pockets were $1.20 in change and a penknife, but nothing that would furnish a clue to his identity. He was five feet seven inches tall, black hair, black mustache and apparently about forty years old. He was dressed in a gray coat, black pants, light colored vest, outing shirt and dark tie. He wore a gold ring. He had lost half of the little finger of his left hand some time ago. A set of false teeth was found beside the body.

Still Cold, but Storm Passes.

Although the minimum temperature for the past twenty-four hours was 54 degrees, equal to the month's record made yesterday, the fact that clear weather accompanied the continuance of the low temperature today made it less chilly and more bracing. The maximum temperature was 67 degrees today. Weather Forcaster Neagle says that it will be fair tonight and tomorrow with rising temperature.

Auto Wreck Victims Improving.

E. D. Middlekauff, of Central avenue, who was injured in an automobile accident on East Front street yesterday morning, is able to be about the house today. He sustained no internal injuries. William Wilson and George Brown, the two colored men in the machine with him at the time of the accident, are still kept at home. It is reported that Wilson sustained internal injuries.

ALBERT L. RUNYON DIES AT HIS MORRISTOWN HOME

Albert Lathrop Runyon, aged 72 years, formerly comptroller of New Jersey, from 1871 to 1877, died at the home of his son, George C. Runyon on Mount Kemble avenue, Morristown, early yesterday morning. He suffered a paralytic stroke about six months ago and since that time had been confined to his bed. He was born in Piscataway township, January 5, 1836, and years ago was a familiar figure in Plainfield and vicinity. He first appeared in public life as an Assemblyman from Middlesex county in 1870-1871 and during the latter year was made State comptroller, which office he served with dignity and honor.

After retiring from public life he became associated with Washburn & Co., flour manufacturers and remained with that firm until ten years ago. While serving the State and afterward he was highly esteemed by Republicans and Democrats alike, although he was a Republican. He was a genial, whole-souled person whom everybody liked to meet.

Mr. Runyon is survived by a wife, three sons, Fred F., and William S., of St. Paul, and George G., a lawyer, of Morristown; one daughter, Mrs. C. H. Snyder, of Berkeley, Cal.; also two sisters, Mrs. George T. Werts, wife of former Governor Werts, of Jersey City, and Mrs. Charles R. Martin. George G. Runyon was in Plainfield yesterday completing arrangements for the burial which will take place in Evergreen Cemetery, Plainfield avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 3:15 o'clock.

THE PROBABLE SLATE FOR SOMERSET'S VOTERS

With Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville, as the most likely nominee of the Democratic party for State Senator in Somerset county this fall, to oppose Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, who without doubt will be named to succeed himself, by the Republicans, some attention is being given to the minor offices to be filled in that county. For member of Assembly William W. Smalley, of Bound Brook, has decided to accept a renomination on the Republican ticket and a petition endorsing him is being circulated. It is believed that the Democrats will name as his opponent Horace Codington, of Warren township, who is a brother of Freeholder Joel Codington and practices law in Somerville.

County Clerk Alexander G. Anderson has no opposition in the Republican party for a renomination. George W. Anderson, of Bound Brook, has been mentioned in connection with the Democratic nomination. He is also a practicing lawyer in Somerville and was formerly the Deputy Surrogate.

LINBARGER SECRETARY OF COUNTY ADVISORY COMMITTEE

Walter C. Linbarger, of Somerset street, was chosen secretary of the Somerset County Democratic advisory committee, which is acting in co-operation with the County Committee in the fall campaign, at the meeting of the sub-committee held at the Ten Eyck House, Somerville, yesterday. William J. DeMond was named chairman of the same committee.

Only six of the nine members of the advisory committee, appointed a week ago, were present at yesterday's meeting, so it was decided to postpone the business until Monday afternoon, when another meeting is to be called. The committee is to supervise the petitions of candidates for the county offices and to arrange for their proper circulation. All petitions must be filed by September 7.

Concert at Fresh Air Camp.

The Y. M. C. A. orchestra will give a concert at the Netherwood Camp auditorium tonight, to which the public is invited. Martin Korff, leader of the organization, has arranged an excellent program, and the musicians will be assisted by Miss Josephine Martin, soprano. The Epworth League of Warren chapel was in charge of the service at the camp last night.

"Asphaltoilene" on Grove Street.

City Engineer A. J. Gavett has had "Asphaltoilene" spread on Grove street, between Front street and the bridge, believing that it will aid largely in preserving the macadam there, where the travel is so heavy.

Another Borough Fireman.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chandler, of Manning avenue, are the parents of a fine baby boy, born this morning. Chandler is callman in the North Plainfield fire department.

MAY CALL OUT MILITIA

Governor Says Martial Law, If Necessary, Will End Atlantic City Violations.

HE ISSUES A PROCLAMATION.

Declares He Will Call Special Session of Legislature to Appropriate Funds for Troops to Enforce Laws.

Governor Fort yesterday hurled a thunderbolt into Atlantic City, when in a proclamation to the people of New Jersey, he declared that if the saloons in that city are not closed this coming Sunday he would call the Legislature in special session to provide means for the use of the militia to enforce the excise laws and authorize him to remove derelict officials.

The Governor bitterly denounces Atlantic City, as a "saturnalia of vice," and arraigns its elected officers as openly defying the law, assisting in its non-enforcement, and declares that the grand jury is controlled by the liquor interests.

His proclamation declares that the officials are in league with the vice prevailing at the resort, and that it is now worse, morally, than ever before, and is becoming worse.

In an affidavit which the Governor presents he accuses Harry S. Graff, Anthony N. Fuffu and W. S. Stafford, three members of the Grand Jury, of violating the excise law by selling on Sunday.

After detailing conditions as they now exist, he concludes as follows:

"Two methods suggest themselves as a remedy when the officials refuse, and the courts of law are powerless, to punish the wrongdoers

"First—Call out the militia and police the city with soldiers and close up the illegal places by the military arm of the State. This amounts to declaring martial law. As the Executive of the State, I dislike to order such extreme measures without an appropriation to cover the expense first made by the Legislature or some great emergency.

"Second—Call the Legislature together to grant an appropriation to cover the cost of the military in case of its being called out or to enact legislation to place the drawing of all juries in the hands of an independent commission, that fair men may be selected for this duty; and, also, to authorize the Governor or the courts to remove, after hearing, officials who wilfully and perversely refuse to do their duty.

"This address to the people of the State is issued that the violators of the law at Atlantic City and the officials who stand by and refuse to prevent or punish such violators, may be warned of the fact that in case of their further refusal to enforce or obey the law the Legislature will be convened to meet the emergency.

"If a successful effort is not made by the officials and citizens of Atlantic City to enforce the Sunday law against the sale of liquor beginning on Sunday next, August 30, I hereby, by this public statement, notify the citizens of the State that I shall forthwith issue a proclamation calling an extraordinary session of the Legislature of the State, that legislation may be enacted under which the laws of the State may be enforced in all places, and equally upon all the people in the State, and I call upon all good people in the State, without regard to party, creed or citizenship to take steps to voice their sentiments upon the all-absorbing issue now before the people of the State, namely, shall the laws of the State be obeyed?"

"In Newark, Jersey City, Hoboken, Paterson, Trenton, Elizabeth, Long Branch, Asbury Park, Cape May and other places the excise law is reasonably well observed on Sunday because it is enforced by the officials. There can be no discrimination in the enforcement of the law. The city may not be permitted to be kept open on Sunday to get pecuniary gain by by violating the laws, while others must close. This question rises higher than Republicanism or Democracy; higher than prohibition or local option; none of these questions are of concern; it is simply this shall the people of the State stand by and see the laws nullified by one place in the State in defiance of the courts, the executive of the State and of all authority. A State law is applicable to all the people and all must obey it. Any other rule leads to anarchy.

"This statement is put out that the people may know the facts and understand the real conditions, in order that public sentiment can be voiced and public condemnation or approval be expressed. If a law is objectionable the remedy is not to destroy and nullify it, but to repeal it. The sale of liquor on Sunday has been prohibited by the laws of New Jersey from colonial times. The penalty for it is one thousand dol-

Yes, She Knew.

Lord Houghton's sister was often annoyed at her brother's indiscriminate hospitality.

"Do you remember, my dear," he asked her at dinner one day, "whether that famous scoundrel X was hanged or acquited?"

"He must have been hanged, or you would have had him to dinner long ago," replied the lady.—Tit Bits.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

In getting out of a bath tub Earl, son of Policeman Davis, of North Woodbury, stepped in a bucket of hot water. His right foot was severely scalded.

Thomas McCormack, while riding on a freight train at Glassboro, was crushed between two cars and seriously injured. He was taken to the Bridgeton Hospital.

O. C. W. Lang, postmaster of Bayonne, has asked the citizens of that city to organize for the purpose of obtaining $100,000 from Congress for a postoffice building.

At a meeting of New Egypt's progressive citizens yesterday it was decided to at once take steps for the proposed erection of a large summer hotel, to accommodate between 300 and 400 patrons.

Government life guards floated the yacht Helen Grant, which went ashore at Island Beach during the gale yesterday. The little craft, with only one man aboard, was gotten off and proceeded to Cedar Creek.

Thieves again made a tour of the various small confectioners and ice cream stands and camps at Singac along the Passaic river, last Tuesday night. Small articles of little value, but amounting in the aggregate to over $200, were taken.

An unidentified man, supposed to be demented or suffering from the effects of some drug, was dragged from in front of an electric train at the Gloucester station of the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad by Daniel Sweeney yesterday. The man was sent to the city hall and will be examined by physicians.

Albert Borden, seventeen years old, and George Roberts, a married man, about twenty-five years old, a blacksmith, disappeared from Delanco some time between Monday midnight and daylight Tuesday. They took their clothes and a boat belonging to Borden's father. They have not left a trace behind. Roberts left a wife and child.

While returning home from Wildwood with her parents yesterday afternoon Beatrice, the seven-year-old daughter of John Chard, of South Millville, was taken seriously ill, and died in her father's arms as she was carried into a drug store near the railroad station at Millville. Coroner Charlesworth pronounced death due to neuralgia of the heart.

Because George W. Johnson, an inspector of the Camden water department, refused to pay double fare on a night car of the Public Service Railway Company in Camden, he declares that he was forcibly ejected from the car by the conductor on January 27. Yesterday he had Attorney William C. French institute a suit for $1,000 damages against the company.

Miss Mary Rush, aged eighteen years, and residing in the West Park section of Little Falls Township, was thrown heavily to the pavement when stepping off a Grand street trolley car at Main and Grand streets, Paterson, yesterday. She was picked up unconscious and taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. There it was said she was suffering from shock. Late yesterday afternoon she recovered enough to return to her home in the care of a member of her family.

County Physician Charlesworth examined Winfield Clayton, who was sent to jail at Millville without bail, on the charge of brutally assaulting Adolph Sharp and his wife at their farm on Malaga pike and robbing their home. The physician refuses to say that the wound on the prisoner's leg is a bullet wound, as the authorities claim. Clayton says the wound was made by a broken piece of glass. He was positively identified, however, by the farmer as his assailant.

Gustave Schultz, a Lower Preakness farmer, while on his way to the Totowa section with a wagon load of tomatoes yesterday drove too close to the edge of the Pompton turnpike and the soft ground gave way beneath the weight of the wheels. The wagon rolled down the embankment and overturned, throwing Schultz out of the vehicle. His left shoulder blade was dislocated and he suffered from some contusions and lacerations about the face and body.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. H. B. Gibbons, of Daytona, Fla., will preach at Faith chapel, Sunday morning and evening.

Rev. Dr. Philip Strong, of New York, will occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist church, Sunday morning and evening.

There will be no services at the Congregational church Sunday, but on the following Sunday, the pastor, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, is expected to be in his pulpit.

CLOSED PORTALS.

The Women's Relief Corps, auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post, No. 43, G. A. R., will hold a regular meeting at Reform Hall, tonight.

Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, is planning to hold an open meeting in the near future to which the members will invite their friends. There will be social features and refreshments.

End of Season Sale.

No time for dull lethargy here—no time to let summer stocks remain on the shelving longer. This last week of August is going to see a lot of mighty low prices on stocks throughout the house, prices that will clean up like real, sure enough bargains always do; and to interest those that are through with the summer shopping, we add quite a bit of news, of underpricing on such goods as are always in demand – for we mean to have one big hustling week to end this summer season.

The local fans are on edge for the contest between Clinton Avenue and Somerville to be played at the latter place, tomorrow afternoon, and they will accompany the Plainfield boys to the county seat to give them a boost. Manager Conklin has promised to make it interesting for his opponents and an exciting contest is expected.

McGraw has signed Fletcher, of the Dallas, Tex., club. He is the son of an Illinois banker.

Kid Gleason has been indefinitely suspended by President Pulliam as a result of his trouble with Umpire Johnstone in Cincinnati Sunday.

President Ban Johnson of the American League, has suspended Fielder Jones and George Davis, of the Chicago White Sox, for disputing a decision made by Umpire Tim Hurst in Boston last Saturday.

Mal Eason, formerly of the Jersey City Club, is managing the Lawrence Club. He has recovered the use of his pitching arm and frequently goes into the box.

Harry McIlveen, formerly of the Newark Club, is making good with the Yankees. On Wednesday he secured a double and a single off Harry Howell, the St. Louis twirler.

Christy Mathewson has agreed to pitch a game for the Giants every other day, should such work be necessary to win the pennant, and McGraw thinks the big fellow can do it and win most of them.

That story that Chicago's White Sox will exchange George Davis for "Hal" Chase, of the Yankees, will not down, but it is impossible just now to get either side to discuss the proposed trade.

When George Stallings takes charge of the Yankees next spring he will bring most of the talented performers of the Newark team with him.

Brooklyn has released Finlayson, pitcher, and Pembroke, fielder, to Brockton, of the New England League.

GOLF.

The events at the Park Golf Club tomorrow will include the weekly competition for the President's and Golf Club cups, and the regular play for the challenge trophies. If the weather conditions are favorable there should be a large field out to engage in the play.

Charles B. Morse still holds the Hydewood Park cup in competition at the Park Golf Club. Late Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Morse, holder, defeated Walter C. McNaughton, challenger, by 2 up and 1 to play. The match was close throughout, Mr. Morse playing a steady and consistent game.

By the first of next week the Plainfield Country Club members who have been away for the summer will begin to wend their way homeward and will take part in the fall schedule at the club. The Golf committee did not plan a regular weekly competition this season as in the past for the reason that so many members leave town. However, there is an attractive program for this fall which will bring out a large field each week.

Thirty entries were booked Wednesday for the professional tournament at Van Cortlandt Park, August 31 and September 1, although the list does not close until August 30. Will Anderson, four times American open champion, is among the entrants, and also Donald Ball, George Low, H. H. Barker and Elijah Horton, the Western professional now at the Pelham Bay Park course. Tom Anderson, father of Will, has entered and the Finlays, father and son, are also among the nominations. The list follows:

Will Anderson, Onwentsia Club, Lake Forest, Ill.; Tom Gourlay, Forest Hill Field Club; George Low, Baltusrol Golf Club; H. H. Barker, Garden Club; Isaac S. Mackie, Fox Hills Golf Club; Jack Jolly, Arlington, N. J.; Alfred Campbell, Oak Hill Country Club, Rochester; Donald Ball, Philadelphia Cricket Club; Thomas Anderson, Montclair Golf Club; George W. Parr, Taconic Golf Club, Williamstown, Mass.; F. W. Pye, Rockland Country Club, Sparkill; J. S. Pearson, Richmond County Club; Daniel O'Brien, Brooklawn Country Club; David S. Hunter, Essex County Country Club; G. F. Sparling, Brooklawn Country Club; George Pearson, Yountakah Country Club; Walter Clark, Springfield Country Club; Peter Robertson, Oakmont Country Club, Pittsburg; Elijah Horton, Pelham Bay Park; Ernest Way, Detroit, Mich., Golf Club; Aleck Finlay, Jr., Haworth Country Club; G. O. Simpson, Dutchess County Club, Poughkeepsie; Aleck Finlay, Scarsdale Golf Club; John Galberum, Mount Tabor Field Club; R. M. Thomson, Knollwood Country Club; Robert Simpson, Hackensack Golf Club; Robert Dow, Ridgewood Golf Club; David Ogilvie, Morris County Golf Club; James R. Thompson, Merion, Pa., Cricket Club; Bob Peebles, Sound Beach Country Club.

By the way of practice for the open championship Will Anderson and Gilbert Nicholls had a match at the Tedesco Country Club, Swampscott, on Monday for a purse. It is a nine hole course of 3,005 yards, but with rather rough putting greens. Anderson won by 3 up and 1 to play, doing 75 to Nicholls' 77.

Plainfield, N. J., August 28, 1908.

Major Carl Lentz, the former boss of Essex county, who since his retirement from active politics two years ago, has been residing with his family at his summer home in Belmar, gave out a statement yesterday to the effect that he believes New Jersey should be classified as a strictly doubtful state by the Republicans. The major believes that Monmouth county will give a larger Democratic majority than it did last year. He also believes that Essex county and Atlantic counties this year will go Democratic. He is rather doubtful of Camden county, but feels positive if the Reupblicans want to carry this State this year they will have to give battle as they never did before.

THE FORUM.

Not a Lack of Funds.

August 28, 1908.

Editor, The Daily Press:

The article in your issue of yesterday in regard to the Plainfield Pleasure Club and its outing on Thursday does great injustice to the club and its members. Your statement that the train was held until the club could make up the guarantee is unqualifiedly false. The club's contract with the railroad company provided for the payment of the guarantee on Tuesday, August 25, at which time the guarantee was paid and a receipt for the same given. The train was held at our express request, on account of the inclemency of the weather, until it was decided whether we should go or postpone the event to some future date.

Kindly give this correction the same prominence in your paper that you gave the erroneous statement referred to, and, in future, if you wish any information in regard to the club, inquire of some of the members and not of our enemies.

Respectfully,

PLAINFIELD PLEASURE CLUB.

WESTFIELD CHURCH TO GET BOOK LONG MISSING

Session Book No. 2 of the Westfield Presbyterian church, that has been missing for about fifteen years, is to be returned. It is doubtful, however, if the mystery surrounding the abstraction of the missing book will be cleared.

The trustees of the church up to fifteen years ago had the complete set of sessions books covering the records of the church from 1735, when the church was organized, and forming a complete history of the church proceedings to date.

At that time F. W. Woodruff, of Morristown, one of whose ancestors was one of the founders of the church, had the book and made extracts from some of its data. The books were then nominally in the custody of Rev. N. W. Cadwell, pastor of the church.

Several years later, Mr. Woodruff had occasion to again refer to the books, and was surprised to find that the second book of the series was missing. The book contained the records of the church up to 1800. Diligent inquiry at that time failed to bring the book to light. Rev. Mr. Cadwell disclaimed any knowledge concerning its whereabouts, stating that it had been taken from the church chest without his knowledge a short time before.

Mr. Woodruff being desirous of securing some data in the book, offered a reward of $100 for its return, and to this Rev. N. W. Cadwell, who is at present in charge of a pastorate at Atlantic City, feeling the disappearance reflected on him, added another $100. Advertisements were published in the local papers, and Rev. Mr. Cadwell has received several anonymous communications which he has answered through the papers.

Now, he has informed the trustees, his anonymous correspondent promises to send the missing book to him this week, so that he can return it to the trustees of the church.

Throughout the proceedings the unknown writer has preserved the strictest secrecy, and in his last promise to Mr. Cadwell states no reward will be asked.

The trustees are waiting the return of the book with considerable anxiety. James T. Pierson, chairman of the trustees, declares that in future the set of books will be guarded with extra vigilance to prevent further disappearances.

MRS. MARGARET D. VOKES DEAD

Was "Dan" Daly's Sister—Husband Not Told Until After Performance.

Mrs. Margaret Daly Vokes, sister of the late comedian, "Dan" Daly, and a member of the well known Daly family of actors, died yesterday afternoon at the home of her husband's partner, "Hap" Ward, in Lynnfield, Mass.

Mrs. Vokes had been ill for several months with consumption, and had been critically ill up to two weeks ago. Since then, however, she has been in better condition, and her death at this time was unexpected. Last night her husband and his partner, composing the team of Ward and Vokes, opened for the season in Worcester. Her husband was not told of the death until after the close of last night's performance, and started at once for Lynnfield in an automobile.

Mrs. Vokes was a comedienne of considerable ability, and had until recently been an active member of the company supporting her husband and his partner in musical farce. She generally assumed the part of an unlettered but shrewd country girl, and was seen in this character in Plainfield several times.

PREVENTED A RACE RIOT.

Mill Foreman Announced That Fighters Would Get No Work.

There was a big crowd at the Botany Mills at Passaic yesterday morning, for every Monday and Thursday and the days when the mills hire extra hands if any are needed.

A number of Italians were in one group and other foreigners in another, when a Hun slapped a skylarking Italian boy, and in a moment fifty men were engaged in a fight. Several blows were struck and a razor was drawn but not used.

The police were called, but a bright foreman who called out that no one who fought could obtain work quickly restored order. Those who showed bruises were hurried away.

BOY TRIES TO SHOOT SLEUTH.

Another Lad Knocks Pistol from Young Sewell's Hand.

Three boys who had been arrested for sleeping in hallways escaped one day last week from the Woman's prison in Jersey City. Detective-Sergeant Moran yesterday noticed Peter Sewell, one of the boys, and started toward him. Sewell drew a revolver and, pointing it at the detective, was about to pull the trigger when another boy knocked the weapon from his hand.

At the station house Sewell confessed that the revolver and other articles he had in his possession were stolen. He entered the apartments of Austen Jansen in Morgan street the night of his escape from the prison.

lars' fine and three years in State prison, or either, or both. Relief against this can only come through legislation. It is abhorrent to all ideas of regublican government that one locality shall assert its right to refuse to obey the law while all others yield obedience."

POLITICAL NOTES.

Hugh J. Brady, a Republican of Orange, who is opposed to a non-partisan school board, which has been agreed upon by the leaders of both parties and the civic improvement workers, with the idea of rooting out the partisanship and dissension in the Board of Education, has called a meeting, to be held at the Union League Club tonight, to consider the nomination of nine Republicans instead of the four Republicans, four Democrats and one independent whose names were to be placed on the Republican and Democratic tickets.

"Larry" Van Note, the marshal who gained some notoriety by arresting Governor Fort for speeding at Point Pleasant, is one of the best known figures in the Democratic politics of Ocean County. He has served four terms as Mayor of Point Pleasant, and has been Freeholder and Councilman. He defeated a preacher for the last named office. The Democrats wanted "Larry" to run for Sheriff this year, but he would not do so. He says Ocean always gives big majorities for the Republican candidates in Presidential years.

The regulars of Essex county have practically agreed on the candidates whom they will support at the coming primaries for Assembly nominations. None of the former New Idea Assemblymen is among the men selected. Five of the present Assemblymen will be supported. They are Henry Young, H. Stacy Smith, John F. Clark, August J. Miller and William Roberts. The new men mentioned are Emil Schultze, Thomas S. Goldingay, Carl J. Ahlstedt, Scott German and Louis J. Bowden.

Before leaving for a week's vacation yesterday former Governor Franklin Murphy, chairman of the Republican State Committee, issued a formal call for the state convention to select Presidential electors at the Taylor Opera House, Trenton, on September 25. One elector from each Congress district and two delegates-at-large will be chosen. Hudson will have the largest number of delegates. The number of votes to which each county is entitled under this call is as follows: Atlantic, 30; Bergen, 51; Burlington, 33; Camden, 76; Cape May, 12; Cumberland, 25; Essex, 171; Gloucester, 21; Hudson, 173; Hunterdon, 14, Mercer, 56; Middlesex, 43; Monmouth, 39; Morris, 35; Ocean, 13; Passaic, 68; Salem, 16; Somerset, 18; Sussex, 9; Union, 54; Warren, 16. Total, 973.

Representative James Hamill, of the Tenth New Jersey District, has announced his candidacy for renomination on the Democratic ticket. Mr. Hamill was elected two years ago by a majority of more than 13,000. During his last term in Washington he was identified with the activities to procure new postoffice buildings for Jersey City and Hoboken.

MERCER COUNTY MAY LOSE $7,000 FOR ROADS.

A recent opinion of Attorney General McCarter regarding the use to which automobile license funds should be put to may materially affect the road repair program of Mercer county. If the authorities act in compliance with the attorney general's opinion Mercer county may lose over $7,500, which it expected to devote to road repairs.

The road committee of the Board of Freeholders Tuesday held a discussion over the matter of repairing the White Horse road, the Windsor and Hightstown road and the Manalapan road, as far as the county line, out of the automobile fund held by the State.

Under the opinion of Mr. McCarter the automobile fund is to be divided, not only among the various counties, but also among the cities, townships boroughs, or any other municipalities having improved roads.

The Mercer county authorities hold that this was not the intention of the lawmakers who passed the act creating the fund.

AFTER ARMY DESERTERS.

Officer on Hunt Gets One in Passaic —Warns Others There to Surrender.

Capt. B. R. Kober, U. S. A., who has been assigned to the Department of the East for capturing deserters, said today there were thirteen army deserters in Passaic. If they gave themselves up, he said, he would see that they were unpunshed, but if he had to take them they would have to go through the usual punishment.

This morning Capt. Kober arrested a deserter, John Lyall, who ran away from Fort Gibbons, Alaska. He was taken at the Lackawanna station at Passaic and had seven stitches in his head. He had been in a fight.

Commissioner Wight to Sift Charges Affecting State Sanitarium for Consumptives.

Trenton, Aug. 28.—Dr. George W. Wight, State commissioner of charities and corrections, said yesterday afternoon that he intends to continue his investigation of the charge made by Clarence G. Meley, of this city, made by Clarence G. Meley, of this city, that temporary admission to the State Sanitarium for Tuberculosis Diseases at Glen Gardner had been refused to his sister.

Every person interested in the affair will be asked by Dr. Wight to present his side of the matter to him, and the evidence which is so secured will be presented by the commission to Governor Fort. Final action will be entirely up to the State Executive.

Disturbed by the criticism of the institution which has attended some of the discussions of the Meley charges, Dr. W. S. Jones, president of the board of managers, yesterday wrote to Dr. Wight, asking him to invite representatives of all the newspapers to make a thorough inspection of the place. In his letter, Dr. Jones remarks. "All the papers are fair, and we invite this examination." He names September 3 as a convenient date, but leaves that to the State commissioner.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION SEPT. 25.

Chairman Franklin Murphy of the State Republican Committee yesterday issued a formal call for the State convention, to be held in the Taylor Opera House, at Trenton, September 25, at wich Presidential electors will be nominated. Union couty will have 54 votes of the 973 to be polled then.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Borough Marshal Bambach has secured no clue as to the identity of the three men who attempted to break into William Castner's house on Lincoln avenue Thursday afternoon, and it is believed they have left these parts. The three were evidently knights of the road, who called at the home of John J. Hague, who lives next to the Castners, and asked for food. Mrs. Hague supplied them, and they went next door to get shelter from the rain on Castner's piazza. Mrs. Hague gave the alarm when she saw them trying to pry open the rear shutter to enter the house. The Castner's were all away. The three made a quick getaway.

The Dunellen F. C. will play the New Market Field Club nine in the second of the series of five games for the championship tomorrow afternoon on the local diamond. The victory went to Dunellen in the first game, but the New Market team is strengthened, and village rooters say there is a good chance to even up the series.

Harry L. Hathaway, who was taken to Philadelphia several weeks ago to undergo an operation, is greatly improved, and will return to Dunellen tomorrow. He will resume his duties on the Call next week.

Miss Norma McLaughlin, of Paterson, is spending the week with her cousin, Miss Sarah Cole.

William W. Giddes will occupy the pulpit at the Methodist church, Mt. Horeb, Sunday morning.

Rev. Henry N. Jordan will preach at the Seventh Day Baptist church, Plainfield, tomorrow.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Earl Darlington and Philip Smith nearly lost their bicycles yesterday. On going to fetch them from the veranda in order to ride into the village, they discovered that they had been taken to pieces, evidently that they might be removed in a wagon. The thieves had no doubt been disturbed just in time.

It has been arranged to run a stage from North and Watchung avenues, Plainfield, to South Plainfield this evening in order to supply transportation to the Climax Athletic Club's entertainment.

The Young Peoples' Club of Plainfield, will give an entertainment this evening for the benefit of the New Dover church in the church building.

An entertainment will be given this evening by Charles and Marie Smith, of Plainfield, under the auspices of the Climax Athletic Club.

The members of the Young Peoples' Social Club have postponed their peach and ice cream festival from August 29 to September 15.

Mrs. W. Scanlon has returned from a visit to friends in New York and has resumed her residence with her daughter, Mrs. W. Ledden.

John Stevenson was obliged to keep his bed yesterday by a sudden illness. He was reported to be improving this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Mundy will remove early next week into the house recently vacated by Mrs. Giles.

The Good Government Club will hold the August business meeting this evening at Temperance Hall.

Joseph Miller and family removed yesterday from Lehigh avenue to Plainfield.

CARLE NAMED IN DIVORCE.

Actor One of Two Co-respondents in Godfrey Suit in Boston.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 28.—Arthur W. Godfrey has brought suit for divorce against his wife, Beatrice B. Godfrey, in the Superior Court. Richard Carle, of New York, and John H. McCarthy are named as co-respondents.

Godfrey and Miss Beatrice Bruner were married in Chicago in 1907. Miss Bruner came from Davenport, Iowa, and had been a student in the New England Conservatory of Music in this city. Godfrey was senior at Harvard when he met her.

Mrs. Godfrey said today: "It's too bad to drag the names of others into this matter. Some day I'll tell all about it, either in court or before, and it will stir some people up a bit. There is nothing in these allegations regarding Mr. Carle or Mr. McCarthy."

IMPERSONATES COMSTOCK.

Kingston, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Professing to be Anthony Comstock and then his agent, a wild-eyed man yesterday entered the book and art store of Forsythe & Davis, in Wall street, and threatened to close up the place unless two pictures were removed from public view, and later visited the Sheriff's office in vain search of a warrant for the arrest of members of the firm.

The pictures he objected to were Copley prints of a painting entitled "The Bath," which were found entirely unobjectionable by salesmen, patrons, officers and art critics. Officials who know Comstock say the man who threatened Forsythe & Davis is an imposter.

ANOTHER WRITER TAKES A FLING AT MARTINE

This is how the editorial writer of the Elizabeth Journal looks upon James E. Martine's acceptance of the Shrievalty nomination offer:

"Three times the crown was offered to Caesar by one of the political machinists who ruled Rome while the crowd on that outing on the Lupereal shouted its approval. Caesar pushed the bauble away, but each time less willingly than before. He put it by once, but for all that, to my thinking, he would fain have had it. Then he offered it to him again; then he put it by again; but to my thinking he was very loath to lay his fiingers off it,' says an illuminating commentator on the scene.

Something like this nas just happened to our own James E. Martine, who had the crown of a Shrievalty nomination placed before him so often that finally he gathered it to his arms. Had they pressed even Caesar a fourth time he might have accepted the diadem. But a few days ago Martine swore by the Great Horned Spoon that he would not be a candidate for the office of Sheriff—no, said he, not if the salary were $100,000 a year. He would never be a candidate for any office again in his life. Those few remaining citizens whose memories run as far back as the time when Martine began to run for office knew very well that when the crucial moment came the alleged sage of Cedar Brook would again fall a victim to the wiles of those who would enter him in the race once more. So it came to pass. Jim, whispering he would never consent, consented.

Mind you, this step is not taken to enhance the glory or magnify the fortunes of Jim, rather is it a sacrifice in behalf of the Democratic party and to help his friend, William Jennings Bryan. In some libararies one may see busts of Shakespeare, Washington and great men of other days, but a visit to the "broad acres" of Cedar Brook will likely reveal images of the Peerless of Nebraska in every nook and cranny. For Bryan is the idol of Martine. In these still summer evenings—when it is not chill and wet—over the little wavelets of the stream that is said to wind its length through the Martine patrimony, one may hear rising above the buzz of droning insects the voice of someone practising assaults on the tariff. That's Martine getting ready for the fray, for though the sheriff of Union county cannot repeal a single schedule or twist a single corporation's neck, the robber system of protection is going to be his principal theme on the stump. How could we get along now after all these years without his description of the pirates putting forth from Tariffa to prey upon the merchant ships, thus inaugurating the most iniquitous policy in the Republican bandwagon of evils? To the setting sun and to the growing corn Martine spouts these things, just as Demosthenes, in retirement in a cave whacked the trusts of Greece, and as Canute sought the sounding sea to make his voice vigorous. Hearing the Martinigrams thereabouts has caused all the chestnut trees of Plainfield to wither with envy. Nothing in that class can stand up against the Grand Old Chestnut of Union County. In the coming campaign, he will have, as usual, the time of his life. Through the strets he will prance, hat in hand, fingers running through his hair, cocksure of his election till the returns come in, shaking hands with people he never knew, swearing by the image of Bryan that Taft hasn't the ghost of a show and telling audiences every where what Tom Jefferson stood for, though providing circumstantial evidence to show that he doesn't know himself.

So here's to Martine and the gaieties that relieve a campaign and here's hoping that the Legislature will create some new office for wich Martine may be entered when the proper time comes."

GIBSON STILL IN JAIL.

No bail has been obtained for Albert A. Gibson, the bookkeeper of the Singer Sewing Machine Works in Elizabeth, who is a prisoner in jail, he being held in $2,000 bail for alleged alienation of the affections of Mrs. Annie Powlick, formerly of Catherine street, Elizabeth, from her husband.

She has not been to see Gibson since he was arrested. Powlick's suit for $10,000 damages will be tried at the October term of the Union County Court. Meanwhile the two detectives he has hired are busy gathering additional testimony to be used against Mrs. Powlick and her married admirer.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The college girls is the center of interest in the new comedy, "Commencement Days," which will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre on Saturday afternoon and night. The college boy has had his innings in several successful plays, but "Commencement Days" is the first strictly college girl play, hence perhaps the confidence that it will become in great vogue. It is said, however, that "Commencement Days" is of sufficient breadth and quality to stand strictly upon its merits as a dramatic work, without appeal to the faddist. "Commencement Days" is described as a spirited, varied and picturesque play of the present period, with a galaxy of charming girls contributing to, or back-grounding, a story strong enough not to be regarded as a mere excuse for character drawing. Its requirements demand not only a large cast, but several individual players of more than common ability. Max Figman, general stage manager for John Cort, spent several months in selecting the various players, and the consequence is said to be felicitous to a degree.

That rousing and seemingly evergreen farce comedy, "McFadden's Flats," which has had many imitators and which outlived many so-called musical entertainments since it was originally produced fourteen years ago, comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night in an entirely new dress. The piece is the most humorous exposition of New York life since the days of Harrigan and Hart. The fact that the comedy has endured as long as it has is due to the fact that the characters are drawn from actual life.

Amy Buckley in "McFadden's Flats," at New Plainfield Theatre, next Tuesday.

They are real flesh and blood creations who dwell in an atmosphere of wit, melody and song. There is not a dull moment in the piece. The action is incessant, the situations funny, and side-splitting, and the music and specialties of the sort to make any one "sit up and take notice." The new version of the play is said to be tenfold funnier than the original, while the company gathered by Messrs. Barton and Wiswell, the new theatrical firm, is said to be the strongest aggregation of vaudeville and comedy stars found in any theatrical organization. Despite the cost of the production and its expensive scenic adornment and stage and electrical effects, there will be no increase in the prices. The matinee will be given as usual.

Harry D. Carey's own great play, "Montana," a truly successful play, a play that wethered the financial storm of last season and played throughout the United States for forty consecutive weeks to enormous business, will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday afternoon and night. Mr. Carey has elaborated "Montana" this season to such an extent that he has been offered some of the best cities to be had. The characters in "Montana" are written true to life, Mr. Carey having spent a number of years on his ranch in Montana studying the types. The Cree reservation being but a short distance from his ranch he spent a great amount of his time studying the Indians and their methods. His character of Pierre Fault in "Montana" is probably one of the greatest half breeds on the American stage.

Act First in "Montana," at New Plainfield Theatre, next Wednesday, matinee and night.

Golden-voiced Al. H. Wilson, the man who sang his way into the hearts of the people, will bring his latest play, "When Old New York Was Dutch," to this city next Thursday. The plot of "When Old New York Was Dutch" is well conceived. The author has not permitted a morbid sentiment or unwholesomely suggestive word to enter into it. Built upon the early history of New York it is instructive. Its refined comedy is mirth provoking and the sweet love scenes and Wilson's melodious voice win the sympathies of even the most cynical. In short, it is one of the class of productions that the theatre-going public will appreciate.

JAPANESE TRAYS ARE HANDY.

The use of small Japanese trays on which to serve light refreshments certainly was a happy thought of hostesses.

When friends call for a little visit on the porch these hot days and evenings lemonade and cake or wafers generally are the hostesses' foremost thought.

How many dripping tumblers have ruined gowns, even with napkin protection?

How many men (very few are not) capsized with embarrassment while endeavoring to gracefully manage plate and tumbler and so on?

It is quite the best form to place the tumbler filled with the beverage, plate and napkin on the tray before handing to guest.

These small lacquer Japanese trays are very inexpensive and can be purchased at the large department stores as well as the small Oriental shops about town.

Also a splendid idea for winter afternoon tea—is it not?

"Just 20 seconds," said Mr. Thomas.

"Exactly. Now you understand the possibilities in this matter of the writing; and I tell you, Thomas, this talk with you only confirms and emphasizes my belief that here you have a great case—one of the most extraordinary in my experience. If you can put what I've told you to good use, I shall be glad; but mind, I shall not look to see it in the morning papers."

The surgeon had arisen and was accompanying the reporter to the door. Thomas stopped him by a restraining gesture.

"By the way, doctor, stand just as you are. Now will you put your finger on that part of your body corresponding to that where Paul North was shot?"

The surgeon obliged him. Thomas, standing behind him, made several rapid measurements and calculations with his eye and hand.

"There is something decidedly curious here, doctor," he said. "Stand behind me, please. Suppose me your intended victim, if it's not too great a strain on your imagination. Now see where you must hold your pistol to comply with all conditions—within three feet, pointed upward at an angle of 20 degrees!"

The surgeon, who hastened to attempt the experiment, uttered an exclamation of surprise.

"Curious how much a man may miss when he thinks he has observed the whole, sometimes," he said. "Why, I never thought of this before."

"What, doctor?"

"The man who fired that ball must have been upon his knees."

"Precisely! Precisely!" exclaimed Thomas. "Just my thoughts exactly. What sane person would fire a pistol at a man in any such direction in an erect attitude? It would be almost equally absurd if the assassin had been seated."

"You are right," returned the surgeon, thoughtfully. "He might have been crouching behind some article of furniture—"

"Or been previously knocked down!" Thomas interposed, turning a very meaning look upon the surgeon's face.

"So, indeed! That would indicate, then, a struggle to your mind!"

"It would indicate that the murderer fired in self-defense, or from momentary passion induced by North's treatment of him."

When Thomas found himself in the cool air of the June night again, he hastened at a round pace in the direction of Newspaper Row. He was near the door of his own office when a man jumped from a horse car and tapped him upon the shoulder. It was Detective John Lamm, direct from Swampscott.

"What's your hurry, Kingman?" he inquired, with the easy assurance of a familiar acquaintance. "Come up into my office a few minutes. I want to talk with you."

Reporter Thomas consulted his watch.

"The fact is, old man," he said, with a frank smile, "I'm rather driven to-night. It's that North mystery, you understand."

"How do you know that isn't the very matter I wanted to talk with you about?" returned Mr. Lamm, taking the reporter's arm with good-humored insistence, and escorting him, half-reluctantly, to his own private den, as he called it.

"Kingman, I know you, and you know me," said the detective, after they were fairly settled in their chairs. "It came to me when I saw you just now that we might work this case together. It wouldn't be the first case we have handled together, eh?"

"You're right," said Thomas.

"Now, I'm interested in this North mystery very particularly, you understand," pursued Mr. Lamm, quite warming to his subject, now that he was closeted with a tried friend, and at an hour when he was reasonably secure from interruption. "Not for the government, of course. Private parties. And my opinion, gathered from all I have been able to ascertain about the case, is that it is very mysterious, very complicated, and may baffle even the most thorough investigation."

Thomas pursed up his lips, and regarded the gas jet doubtfully.

"You don't think so, eh?"

"When I hear what Thornton Stackhouse's alibi is, I can answer you better."

"Alibi, eh? So you have the medical examiner's report? Good! Just what I was after. When did North die?"

The reporter laughingly parried this query with another.

"Do you suppose I have the doctor's report on the autopsy in my coat pocket?"

Mr. Lamm ventured to express a shrewd suspicion that his friend did possess, by some fortunate chance or other, the essential facts of that report, and Mr. Thomas quite justified that suspicion by letting him know, in strict confidence, the outcome of his interview with the surgeon.

The detective uttered a long, low whistle.

"Curious! Mighty curious!" he commented.

"If you'll be so good as to give me an opportunity," suggested Thomas, "I'll be pleased to ejaculate with you."

"Um—ha! You said a moment ago, Thomas, that your opinion of the case would depend upon the alibi of Thornton Stackhouse. What would you say if I told you that the said gentleman's elsewhere has one weak spot in it, involving the precise period of time that you have mentioned?"

"I should say nothing, but remain in hourly expectation of Thornton Stackhouse's arrest."

"Very well. See that you do say nothing, for the secret is yours and mine at present. And so you have already convicted the poor fellow?"

John Lamm took one of the cigars which stood upright in the upper pocket of his vest, and drew a match against the under side of his chair, which was tipped back against the wall.

"I must confess," Thomas replied, "that it looks to me something that way."

"Oh, indeed, yes. The evidence is strong—even stronger, probably, than you know—against him. But then—"

In lieu of continuing, Lamm lighted his cigar.

"Thomas, what is your definition of a good theory of a mystery?" he suddenly inquired, as he threw the match from him.

"I don't know that I ever thougnt of defining it."

"Well, I'll tell you what mine is. A good theory is one which thoroughly explains all the facts in the case."

"Short and comprehensive," said Thomas.

"I subscribe to it. That's my idea. Now, is there any fact in the case, so far known, inconsistent with Thornton Stackhouse being the man?"

"None at all."

"Ah! And yet I can see plainly enough that you don't subscribe to my opinion. Is there any fact which the supposition of his guilt leaves unexplained?"

"There is one fact which the supposition of his guilt does not explain."

"Well, now we are coming to the point. What is it?"

"It doesn't explain to my mind why a certain individual of my acquaintance should be so anxious to convict him."

"Name the man."

"It would be a breach of professional etiquette. But as you and I are old friends, Thomas, and never betray each other's confidences, I don't mind saying to you that, if you can get hold of any facts tending to explain Mr. Richard Fetridge's strong interest in this case, I shall be exceedingly obliged if you will bring them to me."

"Jupiter!" exclaimed Thomas, opening his eyes; "there is more in this case, then, than I thought!"

And when he left the room after a half-hour's further conversation, it was with the conviction that, unless some unexpected thing happened to determine otherwise, the North mystery would turn out to be a complication worthy of his best thought and his most skillful treatment.

CHAPTER VII.

THE INSPECTOR DISCOVERS NEW EVIDENCE.

The Friday when the body of Paul North was discovered, and the day following, were two exceedingly busy days for the police department, under the active superintendence and guidance of Inspector Applebee.

Again and again he had examined every nook and corner, turning his bull's-eye upon the recesses of every trunk and box, sounding every cask and receptacle, making sure that nowhere within the four walls of Paul North's home was hidden the weapon which had caused Paul North's death.

It was with rather a puzzled countenance and a mind unsettled and ill at ease that about noon on Saturday he sought a conference with his chief at headquarters; for even Inspector Applebee had his superior officer.

"Well, Applebee!" said the chief inspector, as the door was closed, and the two men found themselves alone in the little office; "are you prepared to make any arrests? What's on your mind? Have you found out anything?"

"Found out anything? I've found out too much. There's just the trouble. When I woke up this morning my mind was settled. Four hours' work and it's all at sea again. Fully prepared to make an arrest to-day, I've now reached a point where I don't know whom to suspect, or what to think."

"Well, take this morning for a starting point. When we separated last night, you were sure the partner was our man."

"I was. In the first place, North seemed to have written his name on the wall in his own blood. Now, it strikes me that an accusation made at the moment of death is a very solemn one. A man isn't likely at such a time to indulge in feelings of petty spite or practical joking, is he, now?"

"I should say not, decidedly. But why were you so sure that he wrote it?"

"Because the doctors say he could have done it, and that there are few circumstances of death like that under which such a thing could happen. And it strikes me that to assume somebody else did it in face of such a report, is taking too much advantage of what must be in that case a remarkable coincidence."

"Coincidences happen," said the chief shortly.

"So they do. But in nine hundred and ninety-nine chances out of a thousand, if a murderer endeavored to throw us off by such a ruse, the medical examiner would discover the trick at a glance, and denounce the writing as a fraud."

"Even so. How do you know what North had in his mind to write? He might have started in to declare 'Stackhouse is my executor,' or 'Stackhouse inherits my property,' or 'Stackhouse is—' anything else you may please to imagine."

"True," said Applebee, doubtfully.

"And then, again, we are not unquestionably sure that the writing is intended for Stackhouse, are we?"

"After two hours of inspection and experiment, I am fully persuaded that it cannot be anything else."

"And how does Stackhouse himself impress you?"

"Confound the man! He puzzles me. I had a long talk with him this morning. He carries a 32 caliber pistol. There are no signs of its having been recently discharged."

"I presume he knows how to clean it," said the chief inspector, dryly.

"No doubt and how to fire it, too. But what good does that do us? I put the case to him plainly. I said: 'Stackhouse, this is no time for conventionalities. People are beginning to talk. Better clear it up at once by giving me an alibi.' Shoot me, if he didn't say that between eight and nine, when Jarrett says North was shot, he was walking in the Public Garden alone, smoking a cigar."

"Looks bad."

"So it does. But the queerest thing is that he is not living at home. Where did Thornton Stackhouse spend last night? At his house at the beach, where the women folk would certainly be expected to need him at such a time as this, of all times? No, sir. At the Adams house."

"That means trouble in the family."

"And very serious trouble. Men quarrel with their wives often enough; but not often under such circumstances as these."

"How did you find the family?"

"Frightened to death. Stupid. Idiotic. Stackhouse's wife alone preserves her senses, and she is a tartar. She seemed to take my visit as a personal affront, and read me a lecture on propriety. I confess I lost my temper. 'Do you intend to hinder justice all you can, or to help it?' said I. 'It's not in my province to do either,' she said, with a defiant look in her eye. 'I shall let justice take its course.' I can forgive a young woman with plenty of money for doing a great deal, but there's such a thing as overdoing the high and mighty. I couldn't imagine what made her seem so unmoved by her father's death till I learned that she's not his daughter after all."

"No?"

"An adopted child."

"Adopted at what age?"

"Took her out of the Temporary Home in Charles street when she was a year old."

"Watch that woman."

"You may be sure I shall."

"How about the other daughter?"

"She's his own daughter, but I didn't see her. I was given to understand she was completely prostrated by her father's death. She is between 17 and 18 years old, and I doubt if she could help us at all."

"But all this doesn't explain what has unsettled your ideas about Stackhouse. So far you have only confirmed your own suspicions."

"Ah, but there have been several new facts. At an early hour this morning, I deputed two men to make a thorough canvass of the neighborhood for the purpose of ascertaining whether anybody had been seen going in or coming out of the North house on the night of the murder. Unfortunately the people who live directly opposite, who would be more likely to have observed than anybody else, left for Newport yesterday morning. Still, we have found a servant girl, Hannah Doyle, who lives several houses further down. This woman positively declares that when she was returning home after dark about half-past nine on Thursday night, she saw a woman—a young woman, she believes—come down the steps of the North house and walk away."

"The deuce she did! Can she not be mistaken in the house?"

"She says not. What made her notice the woman and remember the circumstance was the peculiar fact that anybody should be coming out of a house boarded up for the summer. And no other house for several doors except the North house is boarded up."

"This is important, Applebee."

"I think so."

"Half-past nine must have been later than the murder. Consequently the woman must have been the criminal or an accomplice."

"She could not have failed to know that North had been killed even if she had no part in the deed. The fact that she gave no alarm—has not spoken a word since—declares her complicity."

"It seems proof positive."

"Another fact, if you please. I have discovered that North had somewhere in his possession a 32 caliber pistol. That pistol was presumably in the Marlboro street house on the night of the murder. I have searched the premises from top to bottom without finding a trace of it."

"That has an odd look, too."

"But," continued Applebee, with a meaning emphasis, "I did find the box of cartridges—nearly filled—in a drawer of the writing desk in the library where the man was shot. The drawer was closed, but the box was open."

"Important," said the chief inspector, quickly. "Important. Now, how thorough has been your search of the premises?"

"I did not take any chances. I took two men with me. We even visited the coal bins and examined the ash barrels in detail. Stackhouse has been eager to afford us any help. He has even given us every key we asked for. The search has been thorough. The pistol is not there."

"So then it only remains to discover who that woman was."

"So it seems."

"Have you no clew?"

"Just one."

"Of what nature?"

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The 11 o'clock morning service at St. Stephen's church, Netherwood, will be conducted on Sunday by Rev. Arthur S. Peck, who retires as rector September 1. There will be high celebration of the Holy Communion. Mr. Peck will begin his duties with the Church of St. Edward the Martyr, New York, September 1.

Rev. Henry N. Jordan, of New Market, will preach at the Seventh-Day Baptist church tomorrow morning at the usual hour. His theme will be "The Gospel Proclamation," Luke 14, 1:24. It is expected that the pastor, Rev. Edward Shaw, will be in his pulpit a week from tomorrow. He is attending the general conference of the denomination at Boulder, Col., and expects to leave for home next week.

Funeral of F. Morgan Miller.

The funeral service of F. Morgan Miller, the five-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Miller, of Watchung avenue, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock, and was private. Rev. Henry N. Jordan, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, New Market, officiated. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Baseball and General Sports

BASEBALL.

Roger Bresnahan says he will catch all the remaining games for the Giants if he is not retired by injury.

McGraw's declaration that in another year, Bridwell will be as good a shortstop as Hans Wagner seems to be borne out by the way that young Giant is playing his position and smashing the ball.

"Fred" Tenney came to the front with three hits in Pittsburg Wednesday, which is a pleasing indication that he is working harder than ever.

Manager Duffy, of the Providence Grays, announced Wednesday that he had sold Pitchers Frock and Barry to the Pittsburg club of the National League, and that the Boston American club had exercised its option on Glaze, the former Dartmouth man going back to the Red Sox at the end of the Eastern League season. When Duffy secured Glaze from Boston as a part of the McConnell deal he told President Taylor that if the Boston club wanted to buy back the pitcher he would give Taylor first chance. A telegram came from Taylor stating that he wanted the player. The price was satisfactory and Duffy wired back that the sale was on. Frock and Barry will join the Pirates at the end of the season. Duffy is trying to buy Pitcher Wicker from the Montreal club and has offered in exchange a pitcher and some cash.

Iolas vs. Plainfield A. C.

The fast Iola Club baseball team will cross bats with the Plainfield A. C. team on the Clinton Avenue grounds tomorrow afternoon. The Iolas are in top form at present and are expected to score a victory. Mulvaney, the crack college twirler, will be in the box for them and he will be supported behind the rubber by Ramsberger, one of the best catchers in the city. The Iolas will line-up as follows: Harding, ss; Hallard, 3b; W. Mulvaney, 2b; Newmiller, 1b; Ramsberger, c; Mulvaney, p; Staats, lf; Conklin, cf; Farr, rf. The team has some strong games scheduled for the rest of the season. Next Saturday they play the Highland A. C. on Hope Common.

Hard Game For Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. team will play the Montrose A. C., of Newark, on Crescent Oval, tomorrow afternoon and a good contest is assured the local fans who attend. The local aggregation has been playing fast ball of late and are now in the best of condition. Jack Peacock will probably be on the slab and Ralph Schoonmaker behind the rubber, while the other positions will be filler by the regular men. Manager Listman is confident that his team will be able to score a victory against the fast-fielding and hard-hitting Newarkers, who have won a majority of their games this season.

Second Ward Conference.

The members of the City Committee from the second ward invite all voters from the ward to attend a meeting to be held tonight in the meeting rooms above the City National Bank, Park avenue and Front street, to express their preferences concerning nominations for ward offices.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Henry Leifke and niece, Miss Irene Samuels, of West Front street, have returned from a sojourn at Belmar.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Stram and daughter, Miss Lena Stram, of Schnectady, N. Y., are visiting relatives here.

Ernest and Harold Stillman, of West Fourth street, are visiting their grandfather, C. L. Stillman, of Westerly, R. I.

Charles Emmons, Hilaire Blatz and A. A. Cannon have returned from a two weeks' camping at Midland Beach.

Miss Florence Terry, of Montclair, and Miss Florence Pearson, of Netherwood, are visiting Miss Kanenna Hansen, of East Second street.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Morse, of Franklin place, have returned from Oriskany Falls, N. Y., where they spent a week with relatives.

Mrs. Fred L. Stillman and daughter, Laura, of West Fourth street, are spending their summer vacation with friends and relatives at Westerly, R. I.

Mr and Mrs. A. A. Cannon and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Blatz, of the borough, have returned from Midland Beach, where they were camping out for two weeks.

Mrs. M. F. Chittenden, of Flemington; Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Capner, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Waldron, of Elizabeth, and Miss Nettie Schureman and William Spain, of Orange, recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Peter M. Van Cleef, of Richmond street, have returned to their homes.

SUES FOR HER LOST MONEY.

Miss Caroline Burke, of New York, a guest at the Devonport Inn, Asbury Park, has brought suit against M. Francis Cavallon, also of New York and a guest at the hotel, Miss Burke recently lost $80, she says. The money was secreted beneath her gown. She advertised the loss, and the next day $82 was returned to her by a messenger boy. It had been found at the hotel by Mrs. Cavallon, who insisted that the roll contained only the amount returned to the owner.

Miss Burke then brought suit against Mr. Cavallon for the balance. The latter said he did not return the money promptly because the amount found did not tally with the advertisement, and he feared he would be suspected of having held out the difference, $98. After consulting his lawyer he returned the $82 to Miss Burke.

Chloroformed by Thieves.

Burglars broke into the home of Herman Lazerovitz, a grocer, of Kingsland, yesterday morning, and after chloroforming Lazerovtiz and his wife robbed their store. They took $43 in cash and groceries worth $60. The men cut loaves of bread and ham, took bottles of beer from the ice box, and enjoyed a feed in the store. The thieves cut the burglar alarm and clubbed two big watch dogs to death. Mr. and Mrs. Lazerovitz were awakened late in the morning by their two children, who slept with them, but were not affected by the chloroform.

Storm Sank Many Boats.

After a two days' wind and rain storm the bay and shore at Atlantic Highlands presented an appearance of desolation yesterday. Five launches and yachts were smashed or driven ashore, scores of rowboats dragged anchor and were battered and capsized or sunk. Sailors declare that it was the worst summer storm in many years. Thousands of dollars' damages was done to the pounds along the coast. The waters quieted down some yesterday, and hundreds of summer residents gathered along the shore to view the damage.

Sons of Veterans Elect Officers.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Middle States Summer conferences of the Christian Socialist Fellowship opened at Asbury Park yesterday afternoon in Library Hall, and will continue until Sunday next. On the closing day Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes will make an address on "Charity from a Socialist View." The conference opened yesterday with devotional exercises conducted by the General Secretary, Rev. John D. Long. Miss May Coghlan Fitzpatrick, of Brooklyn, N. Y., spoke on "Fishers of Men," and the Rev. James L. Smiley of St. Ann's church, Annapolis, Md., State Secretary for Maryland, made an address on "Socialism, the Church's Opportunity." During the conference, State organizations for New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland will be perfected.

MURDERS HIS NEIGHBOR.

Joseph Hoover Shoots Down Edward Ford In Streets of Bordentown.

Edward Ford, of Crosswicks street, Bordentown, was shot and fatally wounded at noon yesterday by Joseph Hoover, his next door neighbor. Although Hoover would not give any reason for the crime when arrested, his friends said that he had frequently accused Ford of trying to break up his home. The shooting occurred close to the City Hall in the busy section of the town in the presence of at least 200 men and women.

Ford, who was a foreman carpenter in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad, tried to get away, but Hoover began firing, and put four bullets into his body. Ford died at the St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, last night. Hoover gave himself up and was committed to the county jail at Mount Holly by the Mayor.

Both Hoover and Ford had wives and children living in Bordentown.

ARMORY SITE ACCEPTED: NOW A HITCH OVER THE PRICE.

The State Military Board was in Somerville Tuesday and viewed the site selected by the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders for the new armory. The site selected is on the north side of Grove street, facing the new county buildings. Members of the Board spoke in endorsement of the site and it was formally accepted.

There now seems to be a hitch in securing the site from the property owners. Although the freeholders had voted an appropriation of $3,500 for the purchase of the Voorhees property and $2,000 for an adjoining lot owned by the Hebrew Society. It is now the belief of some of the freeholders that the price asked for the latter is excessive. The Hebrew society refuses to sell for less and has served notice on the Board that if the deal is not closed at once the sale will be called off.

The Board is negotiating for thirty-five feet of land on the other side of the Voorhees property.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bushnell, of this city, have gone to Gettysburg to visit the battlefields. This is Mr. Bushnell's first trip there since the Civil War.

Second Class Railway Property for the Same District Shows Aggregate Valuation of $2,951,325.

The Union County Board of Taxation made public yesterday a list showing the number of polls assessed as far as returns have been made. According to this list the voting strength of the county, exclusive of Rahway, from which there have been no returns, is about 25,158.

There are 14,688 assessed bills listed in Elizabeth. The list is of more than usual interest in view of the fact that the county and city are on the eve of a political campaign that promises to be one of the hottest of recent years, drawing out every possible voter. The list is as follows:

Springfield township	294
Clark township	85
Cranford	814
Elizabeth—
First ward	1,468
Second ward	836
Third ward	1,959
Fourth ward	995

Roselle Park Borough	634
Summit—
First ward	774
Second ward	757
Union Township	696
Westfield	1,033
Total	25,158

The board received from the State Board of Assessors yesterday a certificate of valuation and assessment of second-class railroad property in Union county. The table shows a total of $2,951,325, and in a number of districts there is a marked increase. In Elizabeth, however, a loss is seen. The valuation in this line is nearly three thousand dollars less than that of 1907. Linden township is shown to have several thousand dollars less than last year, and Union township also loses. On the other hand slight gains are shown by Clark township, Fanwood borough, Garwood, New Providence, Roselle borough, and Westfield. The list by districts follows:

Clark Township	$ 9,016
Cranford Township	66,809
Elizabeth	2,377,128
Fanwood Borough	8,751
Fanwood Township	126
Garwood Borough	6,974

Total	$2,951,325

New Place of Worship.

The Shiloh Baptist church congregation that has been worshipping in Reform Hall since organization in April, has removed to Kunzman Hall, 523-525 West Third street, between Liberty street and Plainfield avenue. This hall is adapted in every way as a place of worship, well lighted with gas and electric lights and provided with comfortable seats. The hall has been leased until the congregation can erect its proposed new church at New and West Fourth streets, on the lot recently purchased. There will be special services tomorrow, preaching at 11 o'clock in the morning and a special sermon to the Willing Workers at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement of Miss Sarah Hopewell, daughter of Mrs. Peter Van Cleef, of Richmond street, and Raymond M. Guinn, of this city, is announced. No date for the wedding has been fixed.

TRAMPS COMPEL BOYS TO GIVE UP THEIR CLOTHING

Clad in the discarded rags of some "knight of the road," Paul Heiden and Harry Stoller, two New York lads still in their 'teens, walked into police headquarters at 2 o'clock this morning and told how two tramps had held them up at the Greenbrook tanks and made them strip off their good clothes and put on old suits which were given them.

According to their story, the boys live at 371 East Tenth street, New York, and were "beating" their way to Philadelphia in search of a job. Stoller is 18 and Heiden a year younger. They came through town on a freight, but when their train stopped at the Greenbrook tanks for water, two other freight-hoppers, who were attracted by the clothes the boys were wearing, accosted them with the order to strip and put on two old suits they had. The young fellows said that the hoboes looked as though they meant business, so they complied with their request. Gathering up the boys' good clothes, the two hold-up men boarded a westbound train and disappeared.

Heiden and Holden surveyed each other and concluded that they wouldn't have much of a chance getting work in the clothes left for them. They accordingly came back to this city, and as they were pretty well chilled when they arrived, they were allowed to remain at headquarters until morning, when they started off, saying that they would return to New York.

Y. M. C. A. ORCHESTRA GIVES ENJOYABLE CONCERT

The Y. M. C. A. orchestra of twenty-five pieces rendered a highly successful concert at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp last night, and each of the seventeen numbers on the program, especially arranged by Martin A. C. Korff, the leader, was greeted with enthusiastic applause by the three hundred camp children and large number of Plainfielders who visited the camp for the concert. A substantial offering was received, which Mr. Korff turned over to the camp managers.

The concert was held in the auditorium, which was lavishly decorated with the National colors. The three hundred mothers and children now at the camp marched into the auditorium singing "Onward Christian Soldiers,' played by the orchestra, and took seats reserved for them. As soon as the children had taken their seats, the entire audience joined in singing "America."

The two soprano solos by Miss Josephine Martin were decided features of the program. She sang "Sing, Smile, Slumber," and "Take Me, Jennie Dear." Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, at the melodeon, was her accompanist, and violin obligato was played by Martin A. Korff. Whitney Frazee played a cornet solo, "Beautiful Home of Paradise," and orchestra numbers especially applauded were the descriptive march, "Empire Express," "Plantation Echoes," "Dreaming," "Sweetheart Days" and "The Troublesome Rehearsal."

Mr. Korff led the orchestra, and B. F. Hadley, secretary of the camp, acted as master of ceremonies. At the request of Mr. Korff, the camp children sang several popular airs, played by the orchestra. The musicians made the trip to and from the camp in a large stage.

ICE CREAM LAWN FETE NETS $26 FOR HOLY CROSS CLUB.

Despite the autumnal weather, the ice cream festival held on the lawn of Holy Cross church yesterday afternoon and evening, proved a complete success, and about $26 was netted for the Holy Cross Club, under the auspices of which the affair was held. There were nearly 200 quarts of ice cream disposed of, all of which was made by Rev. George A. Warner, the rector, and frozen by the boys of the club.

At night the lawn was lighted by Japanese lanterns, strung from tree to tree, and each table was lighted by candles, which increased the temperature so as to make the ice cream palatable. The frozen delicacy was served from the camp tent, used on the annual outings of the organization. The club committee in charge of the affair consisted of Ira Vail, Edward Mosher, William Little and Raymond Kline.

Netherwood Camp Service Tomorrow

Rev. Ora J. Shoop, pastor of Grace M. E. church, will address the meeting at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Vocal and instrumental music will be a feature of the service.

FRANK L. HOLT ENDORSED

Second Ward Republicans Make Him Their Choice for Councilman.

HANAFORD IN THE RACE.

Has His Petition Out and Will Make Determined Effort to Succeed Henry D. Hibbard.

Frank L. Holt, of Kensington avenue, is the choice of some of the Republicans of the Second ward to succeed Councilman Henry D. Hibbard, whose term will expire this year. This action was taken last night at a conference of representatives of the party from the Second ward held at Republican headquarters in the City National Bank building.

The conference was arranged by the ward members of the city executive committee, those present being Herbert S. Guinn, Frank L. Holt, Howard C. Tracy and Robert H. McCready, it being their desire to give all Republican voters in the ward a chance to express their opinion on the subject. Mr. Tracy had an authorized statement from Councilman Hibbard, which he read, saying that owing to a pressure of business duties and the fact that he had already served two terms as Councilman, he declined to take a renomination. This settled the rumor as to where Mr. Hibbard stands.

After an informal discussion of the situation, Mr. Tracy suggested the name of Frank L. Holt as the nominee of the party from the ward to succeed Mr. Hibbard, and there being no opposition, he was the unanimous choice of those present for the nomination. The idea was resented that the Third ward was trying to take a hand in Second ward affairs and it appeared so ridiculous to the members of the party present that it was not considered worth denying. Mr. Holt, who is a New York lawyer, is spoken of favorably by all who know him. He is said to be thoroughly qualified for a position in the Common Council and his friends believe that if elected he will make a good record. He is spoken of as a man of independent action and one who is sure to support the best interests of the city.

The fact that Mr. Holt was endorsed at the conference last night does not mean tat he will have no opposition, for it was stated afterward that Francis Hanaford will be a candidate for Councilman from the ward. His petition will be out today and his friends say that he has been promised at least one hundred signers. Mr. Hanaford intends to make a determined fight for the honors. It is also probable that there will be other candidates and Mr. Holt will have to fight it out in the primaries.

The conference endorsed Howard C. Tracy, L. M. Booth, Francis Hanaford and W. W. Coriell as Congressional delegates; Howard C. Tracy, Robert H. McCready and L. M. Booth as members of the Republican city committee and Henry C. Deknatel and H. C. Williams as members of the Republican county committee. Mr. Holt withdrew his name from the city committee in view of the fact that he will be a candidate for the Councilmanic nomination.

Not a little surprise was occasioned when Mr. Tracy in very complimentary terms sought to have the conference endorse Congressman Charles N. Fowler for a renomination. He said that he had made a close study of Mr. Fowler's record during the twelve years he has been in Congress and believed him to be especially fitted and qualified to continue representing the Fifth Congressional district. He declared him to be the best possible candidate and expressed the hope that he wuold be renominated. L. M. Booth and Francis Hanaford also spoke in favor of Congressman Fowler and it was the sense of a majority of those present that he be renominated for another term.

Howard C. Tracy was chairman of the meeting and L. M. Booth the secretary. Among other Republicans present were Dr. T. S. Davis and Charles H. Hand, but they took no especial part in the discussion.

Funeral of Somerville Woman.

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Compton, eighty-three years old, widow of Nathaniel Compton, was held this afternoon at her late home at Pluckemin. Rev. Thomas D. Wesley, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiated and the body was taken to the Reformed cemetery at Bedminster for burial. Mrs. Campton came from one of the oldest families of Somerset county and had been a member of the Presbyterian church at Pluckemin for a period covering fifty years. She leaves a son, Andrew Compton, of Pluckemin, with whom she had made her home.

ATLANTIC CITY WILL PUT LID DOWN TOMORROW

Governor Fort has won his fight for Sunday closing in Atlantic City without resorting to the troops or a special session of the Legislature.

Atlantic City will be closed as tight as a drum tomorrow. Instead of State guardsmen behind the bars of every licensed establishment, policemen, who for years have winked at open sidedoors, will arrest every license holder who dares to defy the Bishops' law.

The decision was reached late yesterday afternoon when County Judge Enoch A. Higbee, long reported as a component part of the county political machine, issued what he chose to term a "friendly warning to his friends—the hotel men of Atlantic City."

Judge Higbee decided to issue his warning when news was conveyed to him that the leaders had determined upon this course of defiance.

Judge Higbee said the issue is not Sunday selling, but shall Atlantic City and county be permitted to rise above the laws of the State of New Jersey. "I firmly believe that the Governor will prevail. He cannot well recede from his position, and, of course, obedience to the law must be insisted upon," he said.

SALARY HEREAFTER FOR MIDDLESEX'S SHERIFF

The next Sheriff of Middlesex county will occupy an unique position on the list of those who have held the Shrievalty.

That, in the ordinary course of events, will not be due to any personal achievement, but chiefly to a Legislative statute promoted by ex-Senator W. H. C. Jackson changing the emoluments of the office from a fee basis to a straight salary. Thus, whoever he may be, the man who succeeds Andrew S. Church will be the first Sheriff in the history of the county to receive renumeration at the rate of so much a year.

The coming Sheriff will be paid $4,500 a year. Under the new statute the County Board of Freeholders is compelled to pay the under Sheriff, the warden and the other attaches of the office and also pay for the feeding of the prisoners in the jail.

That, however, is not the only distinction the new Sheriff will possess, for he already is slated for a salary "raise," which will amount to the tidy sum of $1,000 a year.

The State census of 1905 puts the population of Middlesex county at 97,036. In the interveing years since then the figures have jumped above the 100,000 mark, and, according to statute, the Sheriff is entitled to a salary of $5,500 instead of $4,500. The tantalizing circumstances is that although county officials are positive, with everybody else, that there are more than 100,000 people in Middlesex, no action can be taken until the census of 1910 is turned in. Therefore, Mr. Church's successor in reality will be out $1,000 each year he is in office until the third and last year of his term.

GOAT FRIGHTENS HORSE: WOMAN HURT IN RUNAWAY.

Mrs. Charles Wink, of Somerville, was quite severely injured in a runaway accident which happened in Whitehouse at a late hour yesterday afternoon. She went there to spend the day with her friend, Miss Beulah Pidcock, and they were returning to the latter's home from a drive when, on turning a corner suddenly the spirited hore driven by Miss Pidcock spied a goat driven by Harvey LaTree, and took fright at it. The horse stopped abruptly, then dashed to one side of the road and up a steep embankment. Miss Pidcock could not control him and the occupants of the vehicle were thrown out.

Miss Pidcock landed clear, but Mrs. Wink was dragged some distance before she was rescued from her perilous position. The wagon horse kicked itself free and ran on home.

Miss Pidcock escaped practically uninjured. Mrs. Wink sustained a sprained ankle and was badly cut and bruised on her right side. They were taken to the former's home in an automobile.

Somerset Court Session.

A regular session of the Somerset county courts was held yesterday afternoon in the court room in Somerville, but practically nothing was done. Judge Schenck heard one motion in the Common Pleas Court and several estates were settled in the Orphans' Court. Former Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, of North Plainfield, was on hand to look after some client in a case, but it was not taken up.

ANOTHER FAIR DIVISION

Frank P. Smith Said to Have Secure Settlement of His Contested Claim.

GETS BIG SHARE OF ESTATE.

Latest Story of the Famous Case Has it That He Received One-Seventh of $8,000,000.

Frank Peterson Smith, one of the Fair heirs, who for several years has been contesting the settlement of the estate of his sister, Mrs. Charles L. Fair, who, with her husband, was killed in an automobile accident in France, has been successful and recently, it is said, he reelved one-seventh of her $8,000,000 estate from Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and Mrs. Hermon Oelrichs, the amount he has been fighting for through his attorneys, Chandler & Beekman, of New York. Mr. Smith is now believed to be in Kansas where he went immediately following the settlement.

At the time Mrs. Fair was killed, efforts were made to find her brother, who was then believed to be near Boulder, Col. He was not found at the time, but later he showed up and in his option the settlement was not a fair one. He then started an action to recover one-seventh of the estate, basing his suit on the fact that Mrs. Fair died forty minutes after her husband did, and therefore, inherited his fortune. To substantiate this he traveled to Europe, where the French gate-keepers at the spot where the accident occurred, expressed a desire to tell a new story, and declared that Mrs. Fair lived nearly an hour after her husband died of his injuries.

Another heir, who it is said, has benefitted by the settlement, is Miss Lillian Smith, daughter of Frank Peterson Smith, and she is reported to have received $61,000 as her portion. She had been working as a servant in a boarding house at Shenandoah, Ia., and was the missing daughter of Frank Smith, who was himself a "lost" heir to the big estate, according to the supposition of the other heirs. Instead of being "lost," however, Smith had been busy for three years ferreting out every detail of the circumstances surrounding and following thetragic death of his sister and her husband. His search carried him to Europe, California and through New Jersey.

"The rightful heirs to the estate," said Smith in an interview during the proceedings, "are the late Mrs. Hannah Nelson, our mother, and mother of Caroline D. Smith Fair, Mrs. Joshua Leonard, William B. Smith, of Caldwell; Charles J. Smith of Boulder, Col.; Mrs. George Bunnel, of Union; Mrs. Sarah Leffler, now dead, whose heirs are Mrs. Frank Leonard and Frank P. Smith."

Suit was brought last spring by Smith, who declared that he would press his claim to the highest court if necessary. He was joined by the other contesting heirs who said that the big estate of Mrs. Fair had been taken by Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and Mrs. Herman Oolrichs.

GIRL SAVES YOUTH IN LAKE.

Swims to Shore with Drowning Young Man, Who Upset Rowboat.

George H. Jennings, 19 years old, son of John L. Jennings, a retired banker, who has been visiting Miss C. Lockwood at Lake Hopatcong, owes his life to Miss Hattie Reynolds of Newark, who rescued him from the waters of the lake yesterday.

The young man was in a rowboat which he upset in deep water. He could not swim and cried out for help.

Miss Reynolds, who was rowing near by, jumped from her boat and swam to young Jennings, who was going down for the third time when the girl reached him. Grabbing him with her left hand, Miss Reynolds swam for the shore while a big crowd cheered her pluck. She reached the shore about exhausted, and was hauled out still clinging to Jennings, who was unconscious. He was revived after half an hour's hard work.

Miss Reynolds came to the lake on Tuesday to spend a few days and enjoy the evening swim. Owing to the cold weather yesterday she had postponed her daily swim and had no intention of going in the water until young Jennings shouted for help.

—The Misses Kathryn Samson, Lena Jahn and Mary Logan, all of the Plainfield High School, have taken up their school work in the commercial course at the Plainfield Business College. Miss Grace Finch, of New Market, a student at the college, has taken a position in the freight department of the Central railroad.

PLAINFIELD ELKS AT LONG BRANCH DEDICATION

A delegation of fourteen local Elks attended the dedication ceremonies of the Long Branch Elks' new $20,000 home yesterday afternoon, parading with representatives of forty other lodges in connection with the ceremonies. Those who made the trip from Lodge 885 were District Deputy A. D. Findlay, who officiated at the ceremonies in cooperation with Exalted Ruler J. T. Welsh, of the Long Branch Lodge; Former Mayor J. F. Buckle, Chief P. S. Kiely, Charles Woolston, Frank Randolph, Charles Dunham, D. J. Carney, J. H. Nichol, George J. Finger, E. C. Westcott, Henry Pedeflous, George O. Stevens, Erwin Y. Neighbor and William Drayton.

The dedication ceremonies were here at 3 o'clock, in the presence of 5,000 visitors. New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania lodges took part in the parade which followed, and at its conclusion there were public exercises at the Ocean Park Casino, which was crowded to its utmost capacity. The address of welcome was made by Mayor Charles O. McFaddin, of Long Branch. The home, which was formerly the Garfield Inn, has been extensively remodeled and is now a house where the "Best People" are justly proud to receive guests. The Long Branch lodge was founded six years ago.

DEATH OF MISS LITTLE.

Well Known Young Woman Passed Away This Morning.

Miss Jessie May Little, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Little, of Sandford avenue, died this morning about 10:30 o'clock following an illness extending over a period of four years. The immediate cause of death was the grip. Miss Little was a member of Grace church, and possessed an exceptional Christian character which was admired by a large host of friends. For a number of years she was one of the most faithful members of the choir of the church and a regular attendant at all the services. She is survived by her parents and a sister, Miss Edith Little.

The funeral will be held from the late home Tuesday afternoon, the hour to be announced later.

Planning a Hallowe'en Celebration.

The Somerville Civic Club is looking ahead to Hallowe'en and already preparations are being made for a big parade at that time. A meeting will be held in the near future for the purpose of appointing committees to take up the work and bring it to completion. The success of the affair last year was very gratifying.

Germans Outing Tomorrow.

The annual outing of the singing section of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein will be held tomorrow when the members will meet at Saengerbund Hall in time to start on the outing at 8 o'clock. The committee, consisting of Henry Haurand, John Wirth and Henry Hertel, have not divulged the objective point of the outing, but announced today that a feature of the day's pleasures will be a mammoth clambake.

—The next regular meeting of the Common Council will be held Tuesday night, September 8, owing to the fact that Monday, September 7, is a holiday.

MISSING PAIR LOCATED

Peter Doeringer Finds His Daughter, Mrs. C. E. Kelly, Jr., Living in Detroit.

WAS WITH WILLIAM F. BIGGS.

Going West With Mr. Kelly, Woman's Father Meets Her With Biggs in Detroit Street—A Reconciliation.

Having located his daughter, who is the wife of Charles E. Kelly, Jr., of New Market, at Deroit where she had gone in company with William F. Biggs, of Greenbrook road, North Plainfield, with whom she left her home at New Market about two weeks ago, Peter Doeringer, of Vine street, returned home last night. Mrs. Kelly came with him and she is at present at her father's home in the borough.

Biggs, who deserted his wife and five children to elope with Mrs. Kelly, was left in a cell at the Central police station, Detroit charged with abandonment, but will probably be freed upon his promise to return to the borough and support his wife. Since his elopement, Mrs. Biggs has been obliged to sell her home and household goods by a foreclosure of the mortgage, and is now boarding with her children, the oldest of whom is a girl about seventeen years of age.

Mr. Doeringer received a letter from his daughter in Detroit early in the week and although she gave no address, he was determined to find her at all hazards and at once left for the west, accompanied by Mr. Kelly, her husband. They reported the elopement to the Detroit police upon their arrival in the western city but just after making the report, met Mrs. Kelly, who was with Biggs, walking on State street. Biggs, recognizing the two, immediately left Mrs. Kelly, who willingly accompanded her father and husband to their hotel, where a reconciliation was effected. The trio immediately started east, and arrived in this city last night.

Speaking to a Daily Press representative about the matter today, Mr. Doeringer said that a complete reconciliation had been made between his daughter and her husband, who are the parents of a three-year-old daughter and that everybody is satisfied with the outcome. He would not state what action would be taken against Biggs, who is still being held by the Detroit police.

TO CROWN KING AND QUEEN AT LABOR DAY SHOOT.

The old German custom of choosing a king and queen at the holiday shoot at the rifle ranges will be carried out by the Independent Gun Club at its Labor Day festival in the grove, and club members, both men and women, will compete at the targets on the holiday, when there will be shooting all day. The Germans generally decide who shall be king and queen by shooting at an eagle but conditions at the local range makes this impracticable because of the danger from spent shots. Accordingly the Independents will select their rifle rulers at the 200-yard range, and the shot which strikes nearest the centre of the bulls-eye will decide who shall be king and who shall be queen.

Rifle and trap shooting will be the main attraction at the club range all day, and aside from the contest to determine the king and the queen there will be two merchandise shoots, for valuable prizes, at the rifle range and traps. The value of the prizes will aggregate $50. Dinner will be served at the grove and the holiday will be celebrated there from early until late.

Somerville Man to Wed.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Winifred Ethel De Castro, of Sag Harbor, N. Y., and John T. Fritts, a jeweler of Somerville. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride at Sag Harbor, on Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 9. A large number of the groom's friends and relatives in Somerville will attend the ceremony.

AMUSEMENTS.

Proctor's Theatre, Newark, to give the public the biggest and best entertainment that can be obtained is strongly evinced by a persual of the program offered his Newark Theatre patrons commencing August 31. The stellar attractions will be a mommoth spectacular production adapted from the poem of "Sheridan's Ride." It is as its name implies a stirring war drama with a cast of forty people comprising a company of infantry, a section of artillery a detachment of signal corps, and the principals headed by Carlyle Moore, the author, who is without doubt one of the best swordsman on the stage today. The fascinating intrigue and love interest prevails throughout, the climax is reached when the battle is fought o the stage in full view of the audience with Sheridan at Cedar Creek after riding from "Winchester Twenty Miles Away." Those jovial comedians of "Those were Happy Days" fame, Howard and Worth, are with us after a year's absence with new tales of the early doings at Wellington, Missouri. A newcomer in the vaudeville ranks, Willard Newell, will present with the assistance of a capable company a crisp comedy entitled "Last Night." Johnny Johns, the dapper little black-face comedian, bids for favor with a new budget of songs and stories. Sam Shannon and his "Quick Lunch Girls" appear in a novel and well costumed singing and dancing ensemble act. The Stelling gracefully mingle clever juggling with laughable comedy. Carey and Dupree are a sure panacea for the blues. Other acts of like calibre and a new series of animated pictures will complete the bill.

ONLY ONE.

The Record in Plainfield Is a Unique One.

If the reader has a "bad back" or any kidney ill and is looking for relief and cure, better depend on the enoly remedy endorsed by people you know. Doan's Kidney Pills relieve quickly—cure permanently. Plainfield citizens testify to this. Here is a case of it:

A. C. Lazzi, 44 Elm place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills off and on for five years and from my experience feel that I cannot give them too much praise. I have to do a great deal of stooping at my work and I think that my kidneys became weakened in this way. I suffered from a dull, grinding pain in my back, and also had attacks of rheumatism. Another source of annoyance was the irregular action of the kidney secretions. While suffering from a spell of this trouble, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Randolph's Pharmacy and shortly after I was well again. Since then hard work has brought o none or two slight attacks of backache but a few doses of Doan Kidney Pills have never failed to give me instant relief."

The Scotch Plains team will play at Westfield this afternoon the game being advertised by the Westfield team as a county championship contest. This is likely to cause a dispute as there are Plainfield teams that would be considered contenders for such honors.

Pitcher Malarkey, of the New York Giants, has been sold outright, to the Buffalo Eastern League club.

Y. M. C. A. vs. Montrose A. C., of Newark, will be the attraction at Crescent Oval this afternoon.

The Clinton Avenues are trying to make it three straight with the West Ends at Somerville this afternoon. It will be Randolph against Montross.

The Iolas and Plainfield A. C. are battling for honors on the Clinton Avenue grounds this afternoon. Both teams are evenly matched and a good contest should result.

"Christy" Mathewson considers Al. Bridwell, of the Giants, the best pinch hitter in either of the big leagues.

"Will Rube Marquard, the sensation of the American Association, find the National League batters easy picking when he joins the New York Giants?" asks an American Association man. "Hardly," he adds.

certainly mystified the association batters, but he will be up against a tougher game in the Nationals. All critics in the West feel certain that Rube will make good, but he will hardly cut the wide swath some of the over-enthusiastic are predicting.

"In the American Association are a number of left-handed batters who have seen big league service and failed to make good. A southpaw has a decided advantage over them. The recent success of Otto Hess, of Cleveland, and Ed. Selver, of Detroit, is proof of this fact. Hess was of little or no use to the Naps, yet in his first game for Columbus he fanned eleven men and won easily, while in his second game he recorded a shut-out. Selver was easy meat for every American League team, yet since joining the Indianapolis club he has been a consistent winner.

"That Marquard is a grand pitcher there is no doubt, but he will hardly bob up with eight or ten strike-outs in every game he pitches in the Nationals. The fact that McGraw paid the enormous amount of $11,000 for the youngster has caused him to be the most discussed player before the public."

"Strike tuh," the famous expletive of Silk O'Loughlin, may cause the permanent retirement of the American League umpire from baseball. Recently in Philadelphia he collapsed, and the game had to wait. Later in Boston he twice collapsed and had to go to his dressing-room before the game could continue. Physicians have told O'Loughlin that he is suffering from a severe organic stomach trouble. It is caused by the strain on the muscles of the diaphragm in yelling "strike tuh," and they have warned him that he must stop this.

GOLF.

Willie Smith, the professional golfer, who travelled all the way from Mexico City, in quest of championship honors, had the satisfaction of leading the field the first half of the national open tournament on the links of the Myopia Hunt Club today. His rounds were 77 and 82, for a total of 159, three strokes better than those of his nearest competitor, Jack Jones, of the home club.

It was expected that "Marty" O'Loughlin would be a prominent figure in the tournament at Myopia, but for some reason or other he failed to get away. He is planning to take part in the big tournament at Van Cortland Park next week and he may be heard from.

There will be general play at the Plainfield Country Club today, but several events have been scheduled for Labor Day which should attract a large field as that day will mark the return of many members from their summer outing.

Weekly competition for the President's and club cups and regular play for the challenge trophies will be the attraction at the Park Golf Club, this afternoon.

The Westfield Golf Club has had a most successful season and in addition to the weekly events on the course considerable time has been devoted to frequent social functions at the clubhouse.

The Saturday night dinner dances continue to prove an enjoyable feature of summer life at the Plainfield Country Club and the members generally attend in large numbers.

One of the most consistent golfers at the Park Golf Club is Miss Lydie E. Loizeaux, who does not hesitate to take her chances in competition with any of the male members. Oftentimes she is successful and defeats those who have followed the game longer and have had more experience. Her playing this season has been the best since she took up the game.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fleming, of Park avenue, have returned from their summer outing.

Mrs. George Dufford, of West Front street, has been visiting relatives in Hunterdon county.

Mrs. William Green, of Newark, has returned home after spending several days with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis K. Anderson, of West Front street, have returned home from their vacation spent at the seashore.

Mrs. George Lunger, of West Front street, who has been spending the summer in Hunterdon county, has returned home.

Mrs. Jane Swackhamer and Mrs. Emma Dubois, of this city, have returned home from a visit with relatives at Whitehouse.

Mrs. W. R. Codington, of Sandford avenue, who has been quite ill, is slowly improving under the care of Dr. G. W. Endicott.

County Register and Mrs. F. H. Smith, of West Sixth street, are enjoying life in the Adirondacks. Mr. Smith has been greatly benefittted by his sojourn in the mountains. Before they return home they will probably visit Mr. Smith's sister, Mrs. Burdick, wife of Dr. Charles Burdick at Ogdensburg, N. Y.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"Commencement Days," the new comedy of college girl life by Virginia Frame and Margaret Mayo, will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight.

This season "McFadden's Flats" is destined to enjoy the most prosperous year it has ever had. The enduring farce, which has outlived and outraced all of its competitors, will have an entirely new dress, new features, surprises and music. It has been rewritten, reconstructed and rejuvenated and will be presented for the first time in its new form at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night. The principals have been selected with great care, and each one is cast in a part particularly suited to his or her particular ability. There are numerous features, made up of bright and original ideas and the many infusions and changes made it necessary to add an new equipment, at least as far as scenery was concerned. Up-to-date tuneful music dominates and numerously clever thought out ensemble arrangements and specialties that serve to introduce a bevy of spirited young ladies, elaborately costumed, form one of the chief features of this up-to-date entertainment.

The press throughout the country have been unanimous in their praise of "Montana," which is now in its fourth season and which will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday afternoon and night. The company this year is even greater than last season. Harry D. Carey, the author, having selected the cast with great care, assigning them to roles best suited to their talents. The character of Jim Graham, foreman of the Buckhorn Ranch, is in the hands of Thomas Gillen, who last season played Jack Rance, the leading male character with Miss Blanche Bates in David Belasco's "The Girl of the Golden West." It is needless to say that Mr. Carey has surpassed his previous efforts in selecting his cast for "Montana" this season. He includes such eminent players as Miss Francis Hooper, Miss May Keese, Miss Gladys Crolius, Thomas J. Fitzpatrick, Henry Etzel, Charles H. Henderson and Malcolm Blevins. Mr. Carey has spared no expense or efforts in placing "Montana" on the road this season, he has added wonderful scenic and electrical effects unsurpassed in the history of the stage.

To render a ballad in a sweet and homely manner requires far more cleverness in expression than most classical themes, for nature is art and to be natural is often the more difficult. It is in naturalness that

Al. H. Wilson, who will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night in Sidney R. Ellis' "When Old New York Was Dutch," excels. His depth of expression, the pouring forth of the soul, are all so beautifully harmonized that one can easily understand his subrique of "golden voiced," and even that does not fully express the glorious richness of tone and quality. In speaking of Mr. Wilson, a well-known critic on one of the Metropolitan newspapers says in part: "Unaffected music lovers will readily agree that Mr. Wilson has the most abundantly musical voice before the public today, and quiet folk would readily accept his vocal equipment and let that of Caruso go if the choice were offered them."

The New Plainfield theatre will have Corinne next Saturday afternoon and night in a new comedy with music entitled "Lola from Berlin," by John J. McNally. In the new play Corinne has realized one of her ambitions, that of playing a serio-comic role. The foundation of the complications of the new play are based on two advertisments, one inserted in a Berlin paper and the other in a New York paper. In the former, the lawyer advertises for the heir of a wealthy German recently deceased in America. In the latter Mrs. Westervelt advertises for a house servant. The advertisement in the paper reaches the eyes of Lola who is really the heir of the deceased German and she immediately comes to America and calls at the home of the lawyer on the morning of the insertion of the advertisement for a servant. The complications which are begun in these two advertisements are cleverly wrought out by the author and they keep the audience convulsed with laughter from start to finish. There are a number of song hits by William Jerome and Jean Schwartz.

PRETTY MODES OF THE MOMENT.

The quaintest bonnet shapes are appearing, regular scuttles with long dropping brims that slope downward at the back below the collar like roof of a snow shed. The feathers of such structures are often posed at the back, to tower far above the high crowns and nod forward with every step of the wearer. Some of the sloping brims drop as far as the middle of the back.

Importers have shown us several adorable little boleros in light-colored taffetas, satins, etc., reaching only to a short Empire waistline and with or without little Directoire coat tails in the back. These boleros are intended to accompany sheer summer frocks, and in some cases the color scheme is medium in tone or dark.

Double width tulle is being used for veils with the hats that have long dropping back brims. The veils are long and the ends are knotted at the front below the bust or at the back and tied in fleecy bows that mingle with the gauze of the deep ruches.

Fancy cretonnes are seen in profusion, and, although this is only a fad, some very dainty models may be noticed, with parasols to match. The plain and fancy Rajah silks are combined very frequently, too, with this flowered material.

Soutache braiding is fashionable, but is rather expensive to buy, and takes much time to do by hand.

A Cheap Kitten.

"A corruptionist," said Senator Depew, "once entered a voter's house. In the voter's absence he pleaded his cause to the man's wife. Finally, spying a wretched kitten on the floor, he said:

"'I'll give you $25 for that animal, ma'am.'

"She accepted those terms.

"The corruptionist, thrusting the kitten into his pocket, rose to go. At the door, he said:

"'I do hope you can persuade your husband to vote for me, ma'am.'

"'I'll try to,' said the woman, 'though Jim's a hard one to move when his mind's made up; but anyhow you've got a real cheap kitten there. Your opponent was in yesterday and gave me $50 for its brother.'"—Washington Star.

MR. MARTINE REPLIES.

Replying to an editorial in these columns a few days ago, reproduced from the Newark News, James E. Martine has taken occasion to further express himself relative to his stand in the Union county Shrievalty nomination. In an interview today he declares he was neither "wheedled or cajoled" into running for Sheriff; rather urged, that he might accomplish much good for the county and State. He declares that he does not feel that "it's an awful come down" except in the sense of number of citizens who may be called upon to vote for him, the Shrievalty being a county office.

"The dignity and honor of an office depends upon what the incumbent may through his conduct make it," continued Mr. Martine. "I confess the office was not sought by me, and is not altogether to my taste. I shall do nothing dishonorable to secure the same and hope, in the event of election, to so demean myself that I may have the enviable support and favor of all."

"HEAVENLY RECOGNITION."

Seventh of a Series on Heaven by

REV. DR. CHARLES E. HERRING

We have already spoken of heavenly recognition as a most natural and reasonable doctrine, and yet there are those who criticize this hope because to them heaven is such a glorious place there will be no room for special friendships. In that atmosphere of perfect love we shall love all alike.

We need, therefore, something more than the reasonableness of such a theory to support our faith. We need scriptural confirmation. Has the scripture, then anything to say regarding the hope that we shall meet and recognize our friends in the other world? We have already spoken of one scripture which confirms this longing. It is the word of Jesus, when He said His mission was not to destroy but to fulfill. You can apply this utterance to the greatest hope in your life. Perhaps death has come into your home and taken away a child in whom your hopes centred. Nothing in this life can compensate for that loss. Your sorrow of soul does not grow any less as the years pass. The only comfort you have is the hope that the separation is not forever. Our Lord came to earth to manifest the thought and will of heaven, and this is His message. "I came not to destroy the holy longings of the human heart, I came to satisfy, purify and complete these longings. The purpose of God's grace is to perfect our knowledge and our love and not destroy it. Our present knowledge and love will be taken up and included in a larger knowledge and love.

A certain Welsh divine was interrupted in his study by this question from his wife: "Shall we know each other in heaven?" The minister answered tersely and truthfully, "To be sure we shall. Do you think we shall be greater fools in Heaven than we are here?" It is not only true that we shall recognize and love our own in the other world. We shall love them better.

We have another scriptural support to our hope in the example of our Lord when He lived this earthly life. He came to reveal the love of Heaven. He loved all men, but it is very evident that He had a special interest in the few. He was especially attached to twelve men and a few women upon whom He depended to realize His plans in the world. Of these twelve, He selected three who were with Him on the great occasions of His earthly life. He selected them probably because of their sympathy with His plans and purposes and because they were especially responsive to His spiritual teachings. Our Lord also spoke of the twelve in the other world as occupying twelve thrones and judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

You remember, too, as you read the life of the Lord that he enjoyed the friendship of Martha and Mary and their brother Lazarus. When Lasarus died, the sorrow of Jesus was so marked that the Jews who stood around said: "Behold! How He loved him." It was to Lazarus that our Lord said: "Go sell all that thou hast and give to the poor and thou shalt have treasure in Heaven." That was, as I take it, a special message to Lazarus because the Lord had a great mission for him; probably a mission as great as that of Paul.

He said this to Lazarus because He had a special love for him. Do you ask what has all this to do with our hope of meeting and recognizing our own in the other world? Simply this. Christ on earth lived the ideal sinless life, but it was a human life. He revealed to us the character of the Heavenly love by His own example. How was that? By loving all men in the same way? I think not. He loved men in proportion as they were in sympathy with Him, and that is the reason for our love to men, because of their real nearness to us. You find, too, in the earthly life of the Lord that His special love to His own seemed to be more intense towards the end of that life.

There is another scriptural confirmation of the doctrine of Heavenly recognition in what our Lord had to say about the "Mammon of Unrighteousness." "Make yourselves," He says, "friends of the Mammon of Unrighteousness that when ye fail they may receive you into everlasting habitations." Perhaps this verse has never been clear to you; yet it points very strongly to the thought of future recognition. What is the "Mammon of Unrighteousness?" Is it not money? Money that is so associated with unrighteousness in the lives of men that it is called the "Mammon of Unrighteousness." How little good is done with money compared with what might be done. Our Lord says: "Make friends of it. How? Spend it for righteous things. Make it tell for God in this world. Make it count on God's books. Make it carry out God's purposes. Spend it in giving men better opportunities for hearing the word of God. Don't spend so much on yourself, for the pleasures of your selfish self. Let your money rather work for men's salvation so that when they pass out of this life into the other they shall praise you for what you have done towards their salvation. They will say it was the consecration of your wealth to the spread of the Gospel that saved them. The time will come when you will pass into that world. Who will be there to receive you? Those whom you blessed with your money while on earth. They will bless you eternally for the blessing you have been to them with your means through which they were able to hear the truth of the Gospel. Then we shall not only meet our loved ones in the Heavenly world but those also whom we helped to send there.

Some have criticised the thought of Heavenly recognition because such partiality might introduce jealously into that world. The answer to that objection is that we don't feel jealous of others here because they are interested in their own families. We admire men because of their love of kindred. We regard such love as commendable. Why should we change in the other life?

Browning makes Pompilia say of the man who had befriended her on earth:

Oh, lover of my soul, O Soldier saint!
No work begun shall ever pause for death.
Love will be helpful to me more and more.

and why not? After the Resurrection you note how tenderly our Lord said "Go tell my disciples and Peter." Peter was one of them but he might think that because he had denied his Lord that he was barred out from the number of the disciples; but the particular loving interest of the Lord was just the same after the Resurrection as before it. Note again how tenderly He called "Mary" in the garden. Death had not changed His particular loving interest, and death will not change our love. A woman on her death bed said to her husband: "You might be for ages by my side, and I would never notice you, much as I love you. I will have something better to do in Heaven. I will have my Savior to look to, and to talk to." What a strange conception of the glory of Heaven! As if her devotion to her Lord would not intensify her devotion to her husband. We shall be men and women in Heaven and shall have human interest there as we have here. This is the only view of the other life that gives us complete satisfaction. Of course, in that world, there will be a perfect state of society, but that will not be opposed to our own family interests. If a man has the love of God in his heart today, we know that the love to his own family is intensified.

"As the moon, in moving around the earth, does not the less move with all the other planets around the sun so the saints in Heaven, who cluster, by sweet silent attraction around the objects of their peculiar attachments, will not thereby fail to move on, with all the saints round the Savior as the sun of righteousness, in the general harmony of Heaven."

It is not likely that we are to be so interested in our Lord that we shall stand inactive about Him without recognizing that there are other beings in Heaven.

Our very devotion to Him will stimulate our active interest in others and our love for them. Remember that our Lord has gone to prepare a place for us. It will suit us then It will be adapted to our individual likes, longings and interests. We shall not adapt ourselves to it. It will be perfectly adapted to us. Let us rest then in this thought. You long with all your soul to meet your friends; your own flesh and blood in that world. Then God will satisfy that longing.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Although the terms of three borough councilmen, Theodore Apgar, J. H. Van Middlesworth and Charles Berkheiser, expire this year, no petitions have been circulated at yet, and but little interest is shown in the local election. Mr. Van Middlesworth was appointed by Mayor Swackhamer, because of a tie at the last election, and Mr. Berkheiser was also appointed several months ago to fill an unexpired term. The petitions must be filed by September 9, but as yet there is no talk of other candidates.

The Middlesex County Board of Taxation has announced that the tax valuations of Dunellen are $759,789, as compared with $737,775 from last year. In Piscataway township, the values are stated as $3,076,500, an increase of $217,626.

Rev. George H. Gardner returned home yesterday after spending his vacation in Massachusetts and Connecticut. He will be in charge of the service at the New Market Baptist church tomorrow morning.

Rev. S. Rechnitzer, of Suffern, N. Y., will occupy the pulpit at the Methodist church tomorrow.

Miss Lillian Kennedy left today for her vacation sojourn at Asbury Park.

Miss Carrie Millard is visiting her niece, Mrs. J. Alfred Wilson, of Newark.

Henry Smalley is visiting relatives in Iowa.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Mr. and Mrs. George Stillger entertained a few relatives and friends yesterday in honor of Mr. Stillger's eighty-second birthday.

Only the regular routine township business was transacted by the Committee at its meeting held last night in the town rooms.

The local ball team accompanied by a crowd of rooters are playing Westfield at Recreation Park this afternoon.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be held at 10:45 a. m. No evening preaching services will be held.

Mrs. Richard Duyckinck, of Plainfield, has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Harry Christianson, of the borough.

The Epworth League of the Methodist church held a business meeting last night in the church.

Conrad Peltz, Jr., of Westfield road, is entertaining his father, Conrad Peltz, of Bayonne.

Albert Walpole is visiting friends in Boston, Mass., for two weeks.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

An entertainment was given last evening in Washingtan Hall for the benefit of the Climax Athletic Club by Charles and Marie Smith, the well-known Plainfield impersonators and dance artists. The event was greatly enjoyed by a large audience and the versatility of the artists was much applauded. Dancing followed the performance and was kept up until a late hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jackson have returned from New York State after spending two weeks at the Adirondacks, Saratoga and Albany. The trip was thoroughly enjoyed and beautiful weather prevailed.

Mrs. Collins and Essie Shields have accompanied Miss Katherine Wilson, who has been staying in the village for several weeks, back to her home in Jersey City.

"Hamlin and Turkey" will be Frank Kellogg's subject tomorrow evening at the Baptist church as leader of the Christian Endeavor meeting.

Routine business occupied the session of the Good Government Club last evening. The attendance was light.

(Additional suburban news on page 2.)

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. Dr. Philip Strong of New York, will preach at the First Baptist church, tomorrow, morning and evening.

Rev. G. W. Baily, pastor, will preach at the Calvary Baptist church tomorrow morning, his theme will be "The Sinner's Last Hope." In the evening Rev. Prophet Jones, of Philadelphia, will preach.

FRUIT THIEVES SET TRAPS IN SWAMP FOR PURSUERS.

Policeman Arthur Charles, the sprinter of the Bloomfield police force, captured, yesterday, three fruit thieves who had stolen and destroyed large quantities of fruit in the suburbs. The prisoners are James Lepard, John Ucaro and Pasquale Christiano, all of Belleville.

Charles discovered the trio in the garden of Mrs. Adrian Dickerson. They had several bags of ruit. The men dashed across the fields. Charles in pursuit. The chase then led through a swamp. The three men kept together on a very crooked path. This enabled the policeman to capture the three, and handcuff them together.

In marching the men out of the swamp, Charles noticed that they jumped over something occasionally At other times they would get in single file. This aroused the policeman's curiosity, and an investigation showed that the swamp along the edge of the path was set with traps, large enough to take in a man's foot and hold him like a vice, evidently to catch pursuers, so that the thieves could escape with their booty.

Recorder Cadmus fined each of them $10 for resisting arrest, and held them for the Grand Jury on a charge of fruit stealing.

INDEPENDENT GUN CLUB PRIZE WINNERS ANNOUNCED.

Dr. B. F. Leonard has been declared the winner of the season's holiday shoot recently concluded under the auspices of the Independent Gun Club. Mr. Leonard made a score of 275 out of a possible 300 at the 200-yard rifle range, and leads all other competitors for the title in class A. He wil receive a gold medal, while G. A. Strong, who made 270 out of 300 in shooting during the season will receive a club badge as winner of second honors in the trophy shoot.

In Class B, the gold medal for winner goes to M. D. Dilts, with a score of 214, and W. E. Stewart, who secured 172, got second prize, a club badge. At the traps, the season's title goes to John Wirth, a handicap man. He made a score of 97 out of a possible 100. C. W. Krausse won second honors, with an 86, and L. M. VanDyke, whose score was only two points lower, finished third in the season's shooting. All will receive medals.

REAL ESTATE BROKER ARRESTED AT ROSELLE.

Alleged Swindler Wanted at Easton, Traced by Decoy Letter, Awaits Extradition.

Chief of Police John Kinney, of Roselle, arrested Carl Von Greve, said to be one of the cleverest real estate swindlers and forgers in the country, yesterday afternoon. Von Greve is wanted by the police of Easton, Pa., on several charges. His arrest was made on two warrants which Kinney held; one for the apprehension of Von Greve as a fugitive from justice and the other for swindling the real estate firm of Severcool & Wright, Easton.

The Pennsylvania authorities had been looking for Von Greve for several weeks. He was traced to Roselle by Mr. Wright of the swindled firm, and Detective Jacob Johnson, of the Easton department. Kinney captured his man in the postoffice, where he had been decoyed by a letter sent to him by Harry Smith, a Roselle real estate broker, who is also a justice of the peace. Von Greve was arraigned before Justice Smith and sent to the county jail pending his extradition to Pennsylvania.

Detective Johnson claims that Von Greve is suspected of having forged numerous checks, deeds and mortgages. The charge made againt him by Severcool & Wright is the forging of two contracts while in their employ.

Justice Smith sent the decoy letter to Von Greve at the direction of the Pennsylvania authorities after a check signed by Von Greve and indorsed by Smith had reached a bank at Wethersby, Pa. Smith cashed the check for the real estate man last Thursday night.

UNION COUNTY FREEHOLDERS.

(Official).

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, August 6, 1908, at 2:30 P. M.

Members present: Director King, Freeholders Adams, Cady, Cladek, Darby, Doane, Fay, Jones, Krouse, Maurer, McGovern, Meisel, Perry, Pierson, Robison, Smith, Stephan, Swain, Wilbur and Woodruff—20.

On motion of Freeholder Cady the minutes of the previous meeting were approved as per printed copies on the members' desks.

Communications.

From Harry Hatton, as follows:

Catham, N. J., July 28.

Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Under separate cover I am sending you a sample of the result of six weeks' riding for possibly 2,000 feet twice daily, on the country road, which you are sprinkling with some preparation for laying the dust. A man in moderate circumstances cannot afford to lay out $6.50 every five or six weeks for a pair of tires, and I feel that it is no more than right that you should take the matter under consideration and remedy it, or be prepared to recompense citizens who are losers through such practices.

Very respectfully yours,
HARRY HATTON.

Enclosed with the foregoing was a bill for a pair of tires, in amount $6.50.

On motion of Freeholder Cady received and referred to the Committee on Legal Questions.

The following communication was presented and read:

To the Honorable Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county:

Gentlemen—Your petitioners respectfully represent that they are an organization of taxpayers and property owners of the city of Elizabeth, formed for the purpose of promoting improvements in the said city and to co-operate in all movements tending to facilitate business and promote the growth and prosperity of the city; they represent that they are in favor of and respectfully request the speedy establishment of the proposed new bridge over the Elizabeth River and that all necessary appropriations and measures should be passed by the authorities to accomplish this purpose without delay, and they further represent that the said bridge should be located at the foot of Atlantic street for the following reasons: First, because Atlantic street is already built up on both sides with residences, and its extension to the river would merely open up for similar improvements hundreds of lots now merely taxed as acreage property, whereas Baltic street, the other proposed location, abuts the railroad, and the property along one side of said street belongs to the railroad company and may never be improved unless for railroad purposes.

Second, becauset Aatlantic stree has a prospect of being paved soon, making a fine highway to the bridge, while Baltic street, on account of the railroad owning half of the property may never be paved.

Third, because Atlantic street is more central, being half way between Spencer street bridge and the railroad bridge.

Fourth, because Atlantic street leads more directly to Brunswick avenue, the only open street across the river that continues straight to the factories and southward to Linden.

Fifth, because a straight highway transecting that section of the city would better facilitate traffic and promote the interests of business men and people traveling thereon.

Respectfully submitted,
CITIZENS' PROTECTIVE IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION,
By GEORGE NEUREITER,
President.

On motion of Freeholder Swain received and referred to the committee on Baltic street bridge.

The following petition was presented and read:

Elizabeth, N. J., May 28, 1908.

To the Honorable Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county:

Gentlemen—The undersigned citizens of the city of Elizabeth do hereby respectfully petition your honorable body to appoint Robert J. Hamilton bridge tender of the new bridge to be erected over the Elizabeth River at First street. Mr. Hamilton was permanently injured in the service of the volunteer fire department of the city of Elizabeth, but he is physically able to perform the duties of the position he seeks. This and his record as a citizen recommend him to your consideration.

(Signed)
DENNIS F. COLLINS,
JOHN F. KENAH,
PATRICK J. McGURN,
and thirty-seven others.

On motion of Freeholder Cladek, received and referred to committee on First street bridge.

From H. K. Dumont and directed to S. P. T. Wilbur:

Gentlemen—I think it is an outrage that you as a freeholder of Union county have not done something to do away with the noise on the Washington street bridge, Plainfield. Whenever a carriage or an automobile crosses the bridge it sounds like a thunderclap. If this a freeholder, will you kindly tell me does not come under your duties as a freeholder, will you kindly tell me with whom I can take up the matter?

If it is necessary I will have a petition signed by all the property owners who reside within a block or two on both sides of the bridge.

Please let me hear from you on the above subject.

Very truly yours,
H. K. DUMONT.

On motion of Freeholder Smith, received and referred to the committee on Washington street bridge.

Reports of Committees.

By the committee on First street bridge, Westfield:

To Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county:

Gentlemen—Your committee appointed to ascertain the need for and probable cost of a new bridge on First street, near Union avenue, Westfield, as requested by resolution of the Westfield Town Council, would respectfully report:

We have examined the proposed location and find that it is situated on a new extension of First street, and there is now a temporary bridge in use, the street is a thoroughfare in a rapidly growing neighborhood, the town is now expending over $40,000 in a new school house in the immediate vicinity, and there is need for a permanent bridge to be built at this point.

We therefore respectfully recommend that a new iron beam brick arch, or reinforced concrete bridge be built at a cost not to exceed $1,300.

Respectfully submitted,
CHARLES A. SMITH,
PETER H. MEISEL,
J. LOGAN FAY,
Committee.

Freeholder Woodruff moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By committee on bridge on Knopf street, Linden, N. J.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your committee appointed to investigate the need of a bridge over West Brook, at Knopf street, Linden, N. J., would report that it has examined the bridge site and finds the street graded and macadamized, and finds that a bridge is necessary at the place named.

Your committee would therefore recommend that a new bridge be built at the place indicated, to be of 24-foot span, and about 55 feet in length. The bridge to be built with concrete or stone walls, and to have a covering of steel beams and brick and concrete arches. The cost of the structure to be not more than $2,400.

Respectfully submitted,
HENRY KROUSE,
PETER H. MEISEL,
W. H. SWAIN,
Committee.

Freeholder Wilbur moved that the report bereceived and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By committee on bridge on Broad street, Westfield.

Board of Chosen Freeholders, Union county:

Gentlemen—Your committee appointed to examine into the need for and probable cost of lowering the top of the bridge on Broad street, Westfield, to meet the grade necessary for the new brick pavement on said street, as requested by resolution of the Westfield Town Council, would respectfully report:

We have examined the propsed improvment and find the bridge is located in the centre of the main business block in Westfield, and to enable the brick paving contract to be finished in a workmanlike and sightly manner at the proper grade, it will be necessary to remove the present surface of the bridge between the curb and the trolley track on both sides of the street, including concrete, brick arches and steel beams, replace with six inch beams, about twice as many as present, set steel rods for reinforcement and fill in with concrete, the town to furnish and lay the brick pavement, covering same at their own expense. The iron beams to be removed to remain the property of the county, to be used elsewhere, which would reduce the cost of the improvement about $90.

We would respectfully recommend that the alteration be made when the town is ready to have it done at an expense not to exceed $450, against which it should credit the salvage on ten-inch beams t be used elsewhere.

Respectfully submitted,
CHARLES A. SMITH,
S. P. T. WILBUR,
GEORGE B. CLADEK,
Committee.

Freeholder Jones moved that the report be received and recommendation be adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By the committee on Munsell avenue bridge, Linden.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your committee appointed to view the site of the proposed bridge on Munsell avenue, near Clinton avenue, Linden, N. J., would respectfully report that it has visited the place, and finds that a bridge is required at the place named.

Your committee would recommend that a bridge be built at this place, to be twelve feet span, by about fifty feet in length, and the cost not to exceed the sum of $1,000.

Respectfully submitted,
HENRY KROUSH,
JOHN H. STEPHAN,
JOHN ROBISON,
Committee.

Freeholder Adams moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered by an unanimous vote.

By committee on Dudley avenue bridge, Westfield, N. J.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your committee appoited to investigate the need of a bridge on Dudley avenue, near Mountain avenue, Westfield, N. J., would respectfully report that it has examined the site of the proposed structure and is of the opinion that a bridge is necessary at the place, and your committee would therefore recommend that a bridge be built, the span to be three feet, and the length to be sixty-five feet, the covering to be of steel beams and concrete arches, at a cost not to exceed the sum of $450.

Respectfully submitted,
JOSEPH PERRY,
J. N. CADY,
ROBERT C. MAURER,
Committee.

Freeholder Wilbur moved that the report be received and recommendation be adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By committee on County Road Bridges, Mountainside Borough.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your committee appointed to investigate the need to lengthen the above-named bridge, would respectfully report that it has examined this bridge and would recommend that it be lengthened about six feet on the southeasterly end, with stone or concrete walls, iron beams and brick arches, at a cost not to exceed $400.

ELSTON DARBY,
E. K. ADAMS,
THOS. J. PIERSON,
Committee.

Freeholder Swain moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By Committee on Pittsfield street bridge, Cranford:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your committee appointed to inquire into the advisability of building a retaining wall at Eastman street and Pittsfield street bridge, would respectfully that it has examined the bridge and the location, and would respectfully recommend that the said wall be built with a pipe railing on top at a cost not to exceed $400.

Very truly yours,
E. K. ADAMS,
S. P. T. WILBUR,
THOS. J. PIERSON,
Committee.

Freeholder Darby moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By Committee on Jail Inspection:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Jail Inspection would respectfully report that it has inspected the jail and also the books of the warden; we find the total number of prisoners committed during the month of uJly, 1908, to be 68; confined during the month, 132; number of prisoners in jail August 1, 1908, 50; daily average during the month, 57 18-31; treated by physician, 9.

Respectfully submitted,
E. K. ADAMS,
J. HERVEY DOANE,
J. LOGAN FAY,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Cladek, received and placed on file.

By Committee on Hummock bridge, Union Township:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your committee would respectfully report that it has examined the old bridge and finds it rotten and in bad condition. We would recommend a new iron beam bridge with brick arches, twenty feet width and fourteen feet span, at a cost not to exceed $500.

Respectfully submitted,
NOAH WOODRUFF,
THOMAS J. PIERSON,
J. HERVEY DOAN.

Freeholder Krouse moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

New Business.

By Freeholder Perry:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to examine the bridge on Franklin road, at Branch Mills, Westfield, N. J., the committee to report at the next meeting of this board as to the advisability of widening the bridge, together with the probable cost for the work.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse the resolution was adopted without dissent, and the director appointed as the said committee, Freeholders Perry, Cladek and Darby.

The following bills, properly audited and approved, were read, and on roll call unanimously ordered paid, viz:

HAVE YOU AN OLD SILK PETTICOAT?

The advent of the tunic, or as we call it, the overskirt, has given rise to a new economy among women. This is using up a well-cut silk or satin foundation skirt to give an "air" to an overskirt and bodice of a simple striped material.

A woman who owned a smoked gray silk foundation skirt had it carefully sponged, pressed out and left untrimmed. She bought at the shops a remnant of gray and white striped cotton voile at a small price and made an overskirt and bodice of it.

For the latter she used a piece of the gray silk body lining, cutting it low-necked, taking out the sleeves and finishing the edges with a tiny point of lace.

The tunic was opened up the side, cut to points, put into a box plait at back, and its edges were bound with a three-inch bias fold of the material.

The bodice was simply draped over a guimpe of lace and was drawn into a five-inch empire belt of gray silk fastened with old silver buttons at the back.

It was all very attractive and inexpensive. It might serve as a good suggestion for a woman who wants a new gown at small cost and possesses the necessary foundation skirt. Of course this is the item.

'Tis Thy Bridal Morning.

When a bride is married in a traveling dress the number of bridesmaids should be limited to one.

If the bride goes straight away from the church, friends do not expect to be invited to the ceremony.

The bridal bouquet is oftener than not dispensed with, a few orange blossoms being used in the trimming of the hat or toque instead.

To invite guests to the church only, and not to return to the house afterward, except under special circumstances, is not considered in good taste.

Nor to invite them to the reception and not to the ceremony.

"A perfume. To be sure, there is a handkerchief, but it is unmarked and I have inquired at the stores where they sell such things, to no purpose. I told you where and when I found that bit of lace. It was upon the stairs, between the second and third floors, not a great many steps from the door of the library, and it had not been lying there any fifteen days, which is the length of time the family have been away."

"How do you know?"

"Bless you, I took it to a chemist. He assured me that to be as fresh as that the perfume must have been applied within two days at the longest. It is one of those volatile preparations that soon lose their strength."

"I don't see but your chain is complete, then, so far as it goes. No man ever carried that handkerchief. It must have been dropped by a woman. The woman was seen coming away after the hour at which the crime was committed. You haven't forgotten that perfume, I trust."

"Assuredly not. If I ever get near enough to the woman who uses it—but that's the trouble. I'm afraid she's not apt to pay me a visit."

"You must visit her, then. Meanwhile, what about the threatening letter which was written to North a week or two previous to the crime?"

"Bless me! I had nearly forgotten it. But what are we to do? The decoy letter is still unclaimed at the post office."

"Put an expert on to the handwriting. Get samples of the chirography of everybody who is likely to have suffered by the operation of the firm."

The idea was so feasible that Inspector Applebee determined to put it in effect at once. He left headquarters and hurried to the office of North & Stackhouse, where he hoped to find the junior partner.

Disregarding the crape on the door, which kept away less important visitors, Inspector Applebee rattled at the handle, and was quietly admitted by old Jobson, who seemed to have the outer office all to himself.

"Mr. Stackhouse?" said the inspector.

The old clerk covered his eyes with his left hand and pointed to the door of the inner office. Applebee understood the unspoken premonition of the old man.

"Poor old fool!" he thought; "he thinks the hour of the firm's disgrace has come, and that I am here to arrest his employer. Well, may be I shall, some day. But not yet—not yet."

He pushed open the door and went in without ceremony. Thornton Stackhouse started up from the desk at which he had been writing, his face flushed, his manner agitated.

The inspector expected some word of greeting—a grunt or a nod, if nothing more. But Stackhouse drew a full breath, set his teeth, and seemed to be waiting.

"Bless me," thought the inspector. "He expects it too."

"Well, Stackhouse," he said, with a reassuring smile; "is there anything new in the case?"

Stackhouse sighed and shook his head wearily. His dry lips murmured:

"Nothing."

He evidently understood that there was still a respite, but it did not seem to comfort him. His eye suddenly fell upon the paper on which he had been recently writing. He furtively seized it in his hand and crumpled it.

The inspector, who observed this, immediately began to appear indifferent to Stackhouse's actions, and, pretending to turn toward Jobson, stated his purpose in calling.

Stackhouse, falling into the trap, seized the opportunity to tear the writing paper into strips, and cast it into the waste basket.

"May I be shot!" was the inspector's inward ejaculation, "if that basket goes out of my sight till I have gathered up those bits of torn paper."

Meanwhile he continued to talk about the threatening letter to North, which he held in his hand.

"It's altogether probable, Mr. Stackhouse," said the inspector, "that we have a very important piece of evidence here. It will require a most careful examination. Plainly, this is largely a matter of handwriting that we have to deal with. You have your stock books and so on available? I supposed as much. Be good enough to have the books, with all the correspondence of the firm that you can secure, brought here. I will have an expert in handwriting secured at once. Of course, until after the funeral, your office will be closed? Very good; we shall be able to work uninterruptedly for a day or two."

Gradually all traces of Stackhouse's agitation disappeared. He accompanied the inspector into the outer office. The books were got out, Jobson was sent after by the writing expert, and Stackhouse seemed to be eager and absorbed in the new quest. Applebee's opportunity came at last. Going into the inner office upon the first reasonable pretext, he hastily transferred the contents of the waste basket to his hat. Fortunately he had a large head and his hat was capacious.

After the arrival of the writing expert the inspector did not linger long at the office. He suddenly discovered an errand. In five minutes he was locked in a private office alone, excitedly comparing, arranging, searching and pasting. As the writing was only on one side of the sheet, patience and a little mucilage soon effected a restoration of the whole. And this was the inspector's reward:

"Oh, Marion! Oh, my beautiful and cruel wife! I will not ask you to have pity on me, for I know you hate and despise me. I will not ask you to think of my suffering and despair, for I know you have made up your mind that I deserve the worst misfortune that a guilty conscience can inflict. But, oh, for your own sake, I beg of you to tell me what that wicked and unscrupulous woman, whose name was upon your lips when we parted, has told you! If you knew what her purpose is, how she exists by blackmail and crime, you would be careful how you put faith in her. Perhaps she presented what seemed to be proofs. Remember proofs can be manufactured."

"Pshaw!" grumbled the inspector, hugely disappointed; "it's nothing but a wheedling love letter to his wife!"

CHAPTER VIII.

APPLEBEE TAKEN BY SURPRISE.

The course of professional duty which brought Detective Lamm to Swampscott shore on Friday also brought to the North villa, on the day following, Mr. Kingman F. Thomas.

A young and timid gentleman, of many aspirations but too little confidence, had been deputed to call at the house for such news as might be attainable. But Moffett, in all his dignity—before he had looked at Mr. Lamm's warning figure—Moffett had repelled the novice in newspaper work; and when Mr. Thomas reported himself for duty on Saturday morning, among the work to be deputed to him for the day was a visit to the North household at Swampscott.

Other newspaper duties so far encroached upon Mr. Thomas' time that it was not until evening that he took the train for Swampscott, and it was growing dark when he reached the house, which appeared almost deserted.

But Mr. Thomas' vigorous ring at the bell was answered by a pretty maid in mourning, to whom Mr. Thomas confided the fact that he was a friend of the late master of the house, and would be glad of the opportunity to see Miss Harwood.

Aunt Comfort in due time surged through the doorway of the reception-room, none too large to admit the comfortable passage of her portly form.

"This is Miss Harwood?" said Mr. Thomas.

"Yes, sir."

"Permit me to present myself. My name is Thomas. I have long known Mr. North in business circles; indeed, I may say that we met very frequently on social occasions also. Hearing of this sad event, I have called to offer my condolences, and to beg that, if my services in any capacity will be of value, you will do me the favor of putting them to the best use, though I know that, with Miss Harwood as head of the bereaved household, nothing has been left undone." This with a deferential bow.

"Thank you. Oh, thank you! A-h!"

"But I am confident that everything will be properly managed. There is Mr. Stackhouse."

"Oh, sir, you don't know. I couldn't say a word about the matter, not even to Mr. North's friend. But I will remark that circumstances have taken such a strange turn that Mr. Stackhouse will not be concerned in the funeral arrangements. The only gentleman who is doing anything is Mr. Fetridge—a friend of the family; and I am so overwrought and troubled by these terrible events, Mr. —Mr. (Thomas, thank you), that I hardly know whether to hope he can be of much service to us or not."

Mr. Thomas brought his most approved glance of sympathy to bear upon the good old lady.

"You must be calm and firm, madam," he suggested. "Remember that everything depends on you—the young ladies look to you, naturally, in a time like this."

"Ah-h-h!" ejaculated Aunt Comfort. "They are acting very strangely. Of course, I couldn't think of saying anything against them, for I love the poor girls, both of them; but I must say, sir, that it has been a trial to me to see how recklessly they have gone on here, without even listening to good advice."

"The effect of the sudden shock," hinted Mr. Thomas, respectfully. "They need a little disinterested coun-set, my dear madam. Now if I could only see them as their father's friend and have a little talk with the young ladies, I am sure they would see matters in their true light and realize what a blessing it is to have such a prop and stay as you in a time like this."

Aunt Comfort furtively wiped her eyes, as she again swayed back and forth shaking her head.

"You are very kind and thoughtful, Mr.—Mr.—(Thomas, thank you)—and, you being a friend of their poor dead father, perhaps the girls will heed what you say. I would not think of allowing a stranger to see them. There were two callers here yesterday. One was a police detective. Perhaps he had a right to come. But the other was only an inquisitive inspector."

"And the young ladies?" Mr. Thomas ventured to hint after a respectable pause. "This Mr. Fetridge is known to them and to you, of course—he is a friend of the family?"

"Oh, dear me, yes, sir," was Aunt Comfort's reply. "He has been a frequent visitor here for—let me see, let me see, it must be three years at the very least since we first made his acquaintance. There was a time when he didn't come so much, and we thought perhaps there had been some disagreement between him and poor Mr. North. But he began to come again to the house, just as before. Yes, Mr. Fetridge has been very friendly with both our young ladies."

"I never heard Mr. North speak of Mr. Fetridge," said Thomas. "But you know him to be trustworthy and honorable that is certainly sufficient assurance."

"Thank you, Mr. Thomas. Here I have been keeping you from the ladies. I am sure they will be very ready to see a friend of their father. And I do hope they will hear what you have to say."

"I can advise them to no better course, my dear madam, than to follow your own good counsel," said the reporter as Aunt Comfort took her panting course toward the door.

Sitting in his chair he could easily follow Aunt Comfort's progress by her ejaculations, partly natural, partly the result of her excitement of mind. As he waited her return, he thought, with pardonable self-complacency, on the facts which the good woman had disclosed, and wondered if it would be his good fortune to find the young North ladies half so ready to speak. He was aroused from his reflections by the reappearance of Aunt Comfort at the door.

But Mr. Thomas had no thought for the excellent aunt after his eyes fell on her companions.

"This is Mrs.—I would say Mr. North's elder daughter," Aunt Comfort introduced Marion. "And this is Miss Stella, his younger child. My dear girls, this is a friend of your poor father, Mr. Thomas. He takes a deep interest in your welfare, and will only be too grateful, he says, if he can be of some service."

Mr. Thomas inwardly congratulated himself that his was a real and no simulated interest in the case, for he felt perfectly sure that the orbs of this blonde-haired, stately reserved woman would detect in an instant any pretense.

It was to Marion that he turned, but his thoughts, not less than his sympathies, were with her delicate, grief-stricken companion.

"I do not know that Mr. North had a single enemy in his business affairs," he began, "yet it seems plain that somehow or other he had gained the hostility of some person, and that person must have been concerned in this terrible crime."

"Just what the police detective said," Aunt Comfort interposed. "But if Mr. North had an enemy, it was certainly no one in this house."

She looked around for some words of confirmation, but Stella was still quietly crying, and Marion said nothing.

"Cannot you think of any person," resumed Mr. Thomas, "who might have had a grudge against your father? Any discharged employe?" He looked at Marion.

"Let me speak for my sister as well as myself, Mr. Thomas," declared Marion, rising. "We neither of us have any idea whatever to express as to the possible or probable guilt of anyone. We thank you for your proffer of assistance, but will not trouble you further at this time. Come, Aunt Comfort. Good evening, sir."

The two young ladies had left the room, with Aunt Comfort in unwilling tow like some unwieldy, harmless barge, before Mr. Thomas realized that the conference was at an end. One pleasant association only he carried away with him, the charm of the presence of the younger girl, whose gentle inclination of the head as she looked at him just before leaving the room seemed to accentuate his feeling that here was a helpless, beautiful girl, who appealed to his sympathetic interest, and whom, if occasion should come, he would most gladly serve.

Mr. Thomas, as he wrote of the day's developments in the North case, graphically presented certain facts, but kept others, quite as important, untold. Among these undisclosed matters the name and standing of Richard Fetridge in the North household were included.

There is no "rest day" in the reporter's week. Sunday came and brought to Mr. Thomas new duties. In all the daily papers of Saturday this announcement had appeared:

"The funeral of the late Paul North will take place from his late residence, Swampscott, at three p. m. on Sunday, June 19. Relatives and friends invited without further notice. Burial private."

In the throng that pressed into the house of mourning, it would have taken attentive observation to single out Mr. Thomas. But he was there among the first; a nod of recognition, given and returned, secured for him a place after his own heart, where he could see all and not be seen. From this point of vantage, Thomas looked over the assemblage quite at his leisure, and noted many a face familiar in State street and on 'change.

Rather a young man in black, whom he remembered to have seen often, was escorted to a place of some prominence. He exchanged some whispered words with those in authority, and Mr. Thomas set him down, unhesitatingly, as Richard Fetridge. And Richard Fetridge it was, and none other.

Thornton Stackhouse, looking worn and almost haggard, appeared on the threshold of the great parlors. He had been looked for obviously, for he was at once approached by the master of ceremonies, with his mourning face, and escorted to the seat reserved for him not far from the family group.

"By some potent influence, Mr. Thomas' eyes, as well as his thoughts, were turned toward these silent, motionless women. Once more, it was not Marion but Stella who seemed to appeal to his heart. Once only he caught sight of her face, and its pathetic, frightened look again touched him nearly. "What would I not give," he thought, almost wondering at the sudden feeling, "for the opportunity to help that poor girl! How I wish it were in my power to give her courage and hope."

Miss Harwood sat with Marion and Stella on either side, closely veiled. No other relatives were present for Paul North's only brother—a Chicago merchant—was abroad with his family.

As the sweet, mournful strains of the funeral anthem were heard, the searching eye of Mr. Thomas noted the presence, in a seat not far from the central group, of the worthy Inspector Applebee.

Mr. Thomas' mental surmise was quite correct. Inspector Applebee was there on business. But the outcome of that visit surprised no one more than the officer from police headquarters.

The brief service had ended; the assemblage rose respectfully to permit the special mourners to pass through the room; and Inspector Applebee found himself, directly before them as they went on, followed by many a sympathetic look.

Aunt Comfort came a little in advance; and then the two orphaned girls, Stella walking on the side nearer to the watching inspector.

A subtle, delicate odor came to his sense as Stella stopped for a moment, so near that he might have touched her without lifting his arm—a faint, rare perfume.

Instantaneously the scent recalled a certain scene to the inspector's mind. His thoughts went from Paul North's villa at Swampscott to Paul North's town house in Marlboro street; and he seemed to find again, where it had lain overlooked in the master's house, a bit of filmy lace.

There could be no mistake, the inspector said to himself, outwardly impassive, but every nerve quivering with excitement.

With Stella North, almost as if it were a part of herself, came that faint, yet penetrating and subtle odor which Inspector Applebee had known in all his life but once before; when he was keeping watch in the house where Stella North's father lay, cold in death.

Summer Girls' Hobbies.

The fad of the summer girl of making her outing hat of duck a background for receiving the autographs of new acquaintances has been improved upon this year by an ingenious girl.

She is taking inks in various colors on her vacation this year, and instead of names being written helter skelter she will demand that signers follow a design mapped out by her to represent a ribbon trimming. There will be names in strips and names inclosed in large polka dots, the different inks being used for the color scheme.

Straw finger bags are excellent for general use or for shopping and are considered quite as smart as the lingerie variety. At the same time they are much more practical; and when they have outlived their use as a pocketbook can be used again as a foundation for a vanity bag.

They are quite inexpensive, as a good size costs only forty-nine cents.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Typhoid fever has gained a grip on Paulsboro, and there are four cases in the family of Abraham Cowgill.

Belvern Stillwell collided with another player while running for second base in a ball game at Clayton and dislocated his jaw.

Millions of small dead fish have been seen floating on Salem Creek the past few days, large quantities of oil and coal tar being no doubt the cause of their destruction.

The rope-makers at Florence Foundry are on a strike, claiming that a new schedule decreases their wages sixty-five cents a day. They have been making $2.50 a day.

After walking about the coping of the new county building at Sixth and Market streets, Camden, for several days, a homeless cat was yesterday rescued by Walter Dease, a painter.

Henry Bradley, a stationary engineer of Vineland, created excitement by guarding himself with a loaded shotgun while he charged L. Cassidy, a glassworker, with assault. Cassidy was locked up pending a hearing.

The State convention of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the A. O. H., will be held in St. Mary's Hall, Bordentown, on Tuesday, September 1. The convention will be opened with mass by Rev. Dr. J. Duggan, of St. Mary's church.

The campmeeting now being held by the New Jersey Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, on Davis street, Woodbury, will close Sunday. About 175 persons occupy the tents on the grounds and rooms in nearby dwellings.

It required several stitches to close a wound in the foot of Joseph Waters ten years old, of 265 Chestnut street, Camden, who limped into Cooper Hospital yesterday and said that he met with the injury by stepping on a broken bottle.

The storm killed hundreds of sparrows in Gloucester City, and fishermen used them for bait in bobbing for eels. David Simpkins found in a field near the water works a wet and chilled railbird, which he took home, warmed back to life and liberated.

After further investigation by Detective Curtis officials of the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad are satisfied that the supposed attempt to wreck a train at Lawton last Sunday was simply the michievous work of some young men camping near there.

To allay the sting of mosquito bites on the legs of nine-year-old Frederick Bird, of 118 South Third street, Camden, his mother applied carbolic acid ointment. The remedy caused such burns that the lad had to be taken to Cooper Hospital for treatment.

Frank Johnson, claiming to work on a farm near Pitman, was given a hearing before Mayor Lincoln yesterday at Gloucester, charged with attempting to throw himself in front of an electric car on Wednesday. As he was sober and sorry he was discharged.

Rosie Parks, a cashier in the Palisade Amusement Park, and Dick Barry, the youthful aeronaut, went to West Hoboken Wednesday and were married. Justice Michael Riley, of Fort Lee, had refused to marry them. Barry hails from Boston and is only twenty-one.

To spend their honeymoon paddling in a canoe from Hancock, N. Y., to Trenton, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Waite left here yesterday. They were married Wednesday night. Mrs. Waite was Miss Anna Wilson, an enthusiastic canoeist, and she and Mr. Waite spent much of their courtship canoeing on the Delaware River.

Eagleton Hanson, secretary of the Trenton Iron Company, and for nearly forty years in the employ of that corporation, died at his home in Trenton yesterday, after suffering for five months with heart disease. He was born in England in 1842, and was at one time chief accountant for the Pullman Palace Car oCmpany at Chicago.

While oiling switches on the Pennsylvania Railroad's "L" line between Second and Third streets, Camden, yesterday, William Swift, sixty-eight years old, of 517 South Ninth street, was struck by a train and his left arm was badly crushed. He was taken to Cooper Hospital, where the arm was amputated. His condition is serious.

WORKMAN FALLS HEADLONG TO BOTTOM OF HUGE TANK.

Changewater, Aug. 29.—A miraculous escape from death at the bottom of an eighteen-foot tank on which he was at work was experienced by Charles Gallagher yesterday afternoon. His fellow workmen when they finally reached his unconscious form expected to find him dead, but were astonished to discover him still breathing.

Gallagher, who is thirty years of age, lives in Bayonne, and was sent here to help erect storage tanks for the Tidewater Pipe Line Company. The tanks which are huge iron cylinders are being constructed near the Musconetcong river.

Gallagher with several other men was employed in riveting bolts in the iron plates. The men were at work on a scaffolding and while performing his duties, Gallagher lost his balance and fell headfirst over the edge of the tank to the bottom, eighteen feet below.

In his descent his body struck a fifty-pound weight suspended on the interior of the tank, and it was dislodged. Gallagher's head struck on the bottom of the tank, and the weight a moment later fell upon him, but the force of the fall was broken by striking upon the side of the tank before it hit the unconscious man.

The other workmen heard Gallagher shout as he fell, and could see him lying one the tank bottom, but had no ladder that was long enough to reach him. A makeshift scaffolding of planks had to be built across the top of the tank before a rope could be dropped to the bottom, down which a workman slid, and, rolling the weight from Gallagher's body, had him lifted to the top.

Dr. La Rue, of Washington, four miles away, was summoned, Gallagher regaining consciousness before his arrival. The physician found that the workman had been severely injured about the arms and the base of his spine, but believes that, unless some new developments occurs, Gallagher will recover. He was taken to his boarding-house in Washington.

J. H. Blodgett, of Jacksonville, Fla., one of the wealthiest colored real estate dealers in the South, returned home today after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. William Dempsey, of West Third street.

K.G.E'S. GRAND SESSION

Annual Gathering Will Commence at Trenton on Labor Day Morning.

200 PAST CHIEFS TO ATTEND.

Grand Sir Herald Horace J. Martin, of Freedom Castle, Will Be Advanced to Office of Grand Vice Chief.

The twenty-fifth annual session of the Grand Castle of New Jersey, Knights of the Golden Eagle, will convene in K. G. E. Hall, Ribsam Building, Trenton, on Monday, September 7, next, at 11 a. m., and will continue until some time on Tuesday. Grand Chief Oscar M. Condit, of Asbury Park, will preside, and about 200 past chiefs are expected to attend from the seventy-three castles of the State.

A number of important matters will come up for consideration, including several proposed amendments to the laws.

In the election of officers Grand Vice-chief Sidney J. Hall, of Millville, will be promoted to the position of Grand Chief, and Grand Sir Herald Horace J. Martin, of Plainfield, to the office of Grand Vice Chief, both without opposition. A lively contest has already developed for the office of Grand Sir Herald, which is the stepping stone toward the highest honors in the State and a seat in the Supreme Castle of the United States. The announced candidates are Past Chiefs M. L. Ferris, of Asbury Park, and Robert P. Dinges and Frederick Giermann, of Trenton, with a good prospect of several others entering the race. The newly elected officers will be installed by Supreme Chief Eli Manchester, of New Haven, Conn., and Supreme Castle jewels will be presented to the retiring Grand Chief, Mr. Condit, and to William S. Hewitt, of Atlantic City, upon whom the rank of Past Grand Chief was conferred by the Supreme Castle in its session at Huntington, W. Va., last fall.

Grand Chief Condit and his staff have labored hard in behalf of the order and the year has been marked by substantial progress, although the gain in membership is not large, due chiefly to the many suspensions. One new castle has been instituted, at Heislerville, Cumberland county, and the castle at Pleasantville, Atlantic county, has surrendered its charter. Twenty-eight district sessions and twenty-two sessions of the Grand Castle for the conferring of the past chief's degree have been held by Grand Chief Condit.

Advance figures furnished by Grand Master of Records A. L. Clark show the following statistics:

Membership in State June 30, 1907, 7, 524; membership June 30, 1908, 7,681; gain for the year, 157.

Initiated and reinstated during the year, 807; withdrawn, 10; suspended, 528; deceased, 65; expelled or resigned, 7.

Sick brothers relieved during year, 900.

Receipts of subordinate castles: Initiation fees, $2,565.35; dues, $54,-185.31; from other sources, $24,-951.67; total, $81,702.33.

Expenditures by subordinate castles: Sick benefits, $21,288.62; burial of dead by castles, $5,606.04; burial of dead by funeral benefit fund, $10,600.00; donations, $561.-01; sundry purposes, $34,451.76; for investment, $15,572.17. Balance on hand, $23,368.19; total amount invested, $93,185.05; total fund, $116,-553.24.

In twenty-two years the Order in New Jersey has paid out for benefits (sick and death) over $495,000.00

The finances of the Grand Castle of New Jersey also make a good showing, as follows: Balance on hand, last session, $1,429.74; receipts, $2513.16; expenditures, $2,-969.59; balance on hand at this session, $973.31.

The present officers of the Grand Castle are:

Sitting Past Grand Chief—William B. Kirby, Bridgeton.

Grand Chief—Oscar M. Condit, Asbury Park.

Grand Vice Chief—Sidney J. Hall Millville.

Grand High Priest—Adam Q. Bloom, Trenton.

Grand Keeper of Exchequer—Halstead Wainright, Farmingdale.

Grand Master of Records—A. L. Clark, Trenton.

Grand Sir Herald—Horace J. Martin, Plainfield.

Grand Bard—Dr. H. G. Keeler, Tuckerton.

Grand First Guardsman—H. H. Bartlett, Bordentown.

Grand Second Guardsman—John D. F. Morgan, Blackwood.

Grand Trustees—F. A. Buren, Camden; R. M. Coffman, Camden; T. K. Eastburn, Vineland.

Representative to Supreme Castle—William B. Kirby, Bridgeton.

REV. ORA J. SHOOP TALKS ON "OUR BEST QUALITIES"

Addressing the New York mothers and children at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp yesterday afternoon, Rev. Ora J. Shoop, pastor of Grace M. E. church, gave a highly practical talk on "The Perfect Man or Woman." He stated that the qualities for the highest type of manhood or womanhood were purity, honesty, truthfulness, independence, industriousness, cheerfulness, charity, good habits, high ambitions and good opinion, but showed how these must all be centered about faith to be most effective and complete.

He graphically illustrated his discourse by a bundle of eleven sticks each of which was labeled to typify one of the characteristics. The central and largest stick was faith, about which all the others fitted to form a compast bundle, their most useful and effective arrangement. He showed how useless each stick, or quality, would be without the others and especially without the central stick, and by this graphic illustration drove home a powerful lesson.

As usual, music was a feature of the service. Mrs. William H. Sebring, formerly of this city, but now of Merchantville, rendered two soprano solos, "The Story That Never Grows Old" and "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," in a highly effective voice, and her singing was greatly appreciated. Miss May Randolph was at the melodeon and J. D. Loizeaux led the meeting and conducted the introductory devotional exercises.

MR. AND MRS. D. B. MARTIN OBSERVE AN ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Martin, of West Third street, celebrated their wooden wedding anniversary, Saturday evening, when they entertained a large gathering of relatives and friends. Numerous gifts were received, among them being a handsome rocker from the members of the Clinton avenue baseball club, of which Mr. Martin is the popular captain, as well as president of the club.

The evening was spent in dancing singing, playing games, after which supper was served. Music for the dancing was furnished by Miss Charlotte Martin, Miss Minnie B. Stoeckle and Alan Snyder. The home was attractively decorated for the occasion, Japanese lanterns being placed around the porch.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin were assisted in receiving by the Misses Cline, Mr. Ernest Dorflinger and "Jack" Martin. The Clinton Avenue Club was well represented, all but two members being present. There were also guests from Westfield, Newark, and Hoboken. The affair terminated at a late hour, when the guests in departing extended their best wishes for many happy returns of the occasion.

MAN AND WIFE HAVE FIERCE STREET FIGHT.

Angry words between John W. Lane, who lives on Somerset street, and his wife, May, Saturday night at their home, led to a tongue-lashing, hair-pulling and beating-up contest, which the two had carried into the street when Borough Marshal Lemuel Pope arrested them as they tried to spoil each others' looks on Somerset street near their home. Both are colored. The police have no information as to how the fracas began, but some healthy blows were exchanged in the fistic argument before the officer "broke it up."

At their hearing today before Borough Recorder Dolliver each showed the personal results of the other's hot temper and quick blows. The Recorder decided that both were at fault and fined the man and wife $3 apiece. They paid up and left the court-room good friends.

Superintendent Krebs Returns.

Superintendent H. C. Krebs, of the North Plainfield public schools, and Mrs. Krebs, returned home Saturday night from a delightful summer vacation. While away they attended the three hundredth anniversary celebration held at Montreal, Can. On their way home they spent a week at Lake George and enjoyed a trip through the famous St. Lawrence.

HARVEY LOST HIS WATCH IN A WEST END MIXUP

Richard Harvey, a colored man who lives in old "Battle Row" on West Fourth street, got into trouble Saturday night with David Weinman, a carpenter and contractor, by unwittingly walking over a fresh concrete walk in front of Weinman's place on West Third street. Weinman, with about a half dozen friends engaged in a scrap with Harvey and Patrolman Vanderweg and Roundsman Higgins arrested them both. Judgment in the case was laid over until next Tuesday night by City Judge Runyon at the session of court today.

Harvey told the judge today that during the scrap he lost a silver watch. The time-piece, which dropped out of his pocket, was claimed at the time by Weinman, whom, he alleges tried to get it away from him, when he picked it up. In the fracas, Weinman's friends closed in on him, and he dropped the watch a second time. The colored man, who has an excellent local record, told about the loss as a mere incident of the fight, and took its loss philosophically. "I don't care particularly about the watch, Boss," he said to Judge Runyon, "cause it wasn't a very expensive one. I guess the man who's got it now needs a good watch, probably more than I do."

The Judge lays considerable importance on the recovery of the timepiece and has postponed the caes with the belief that it will turn up. Harvey said the case number was 337. According to Harvey's story, he was making a short cut from Fourth to Third street Saturday night to pay his butcher's bill, when Weinman remonstrated with him for walking over the concrete walk. He claimed there was no warning light and that he didn't see the walk, tried to smooth things over, and passed on. He alleges that Weinman and his friends then attacked him, scratching him about the face. Harvey fights a la Joe Gans, with blows instead of claws, and beat off his opponents afterward going to his home, where he was later arrested.

LOCAL MEN GUESTS AT NOTABLE THEATRE PARTY.

Manager W. J. Counihan and Treasurer Sam W. Cunningham, of the New Plainfield theatre, returned today from Asbury Park where they were numbered among the guests of Cohan & Harris at a dress rehearsal of "Lola from Berlin," last night. The party included Messrs. Cohan and Harris, Marc Klaw and A. L. Erlanger, Jack Welch, Cohan & Harris' general representative, and several other well known theatrical men. The trip was made by auto from New York, the Plainfielders going to the city to join in.

The production of "Lola from Berlin" is one of the newest Cohan & Harris have put out and it will come to Plainfield next Saturday with Corinne in the title role. It is a musical comedy built on unusual lines and will be one of the most pretentious offerings of the season at the local house.

WATCHUNG COUNCIL, K. OF C., HOLDS ANNUAL CLAMBAKE

Under the auspices of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, the annual outing and clambake was held yesterday afternoon at Sebring's Mills, where members and invited guests to the number of 150 gathered to enjoy the generous spread provided. The bake was ready about 1 o'clock and the best part of the afternoon was spent about the festive board partaking of the many good things served.

The occasion was marked by the presence of a number of well known politicians, who were present as invited guests. The bake was pronounced one of the most successful ever held and all thoroughly enjoyed the affair. The details for the outing were in charge of a committee of which John J. Kenney was the chairman.

Nelson Homestead Sold.

Edward Nelson and his sister, Miss Sarah Nelson, have sold the old homestead property at West Front and Liberty streets to John P. Emmons and the latter is now completely remodelling the dwelling with the idea of making it a double apartment. He will also build a double-house on the property facing Liberty street. Mr. Nelson and sister are now stopping temporarily with Mrs. Sarah Robinson, of Sandford avenue.

Funeral of Miss Little.

The funeral service of Miss Jessie May Little, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Little, of Sandford avenue, who died on Saturday, will be held from the home of the parents tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

FLEEING MAN FIRED UPON

Colored Gardeners from Plainfield Have an Exciting Time in Fracas at Fanwood.

REVOLVER FIGURES IN CHASE.

John Scruggs Sends Three Bullets After Andrew Regan but He Escapes Unscathed.

Firing three shots at Andrew Regan, colored, of West Third street, John Scruggs, also colored, a neighbor, chased him through Park avenue, Fanwood, Saturday, after the two men had quarreled over a job, which Scruggs declares Regan "dished" him out of. None of the shots, fired from a .38 calibre revolver, took effect. Scruggs was arrested shortly after the shooting by Marshal William J. Logan, of the Fanwood police. At a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Sheelen Saturday night, Scruggs was held under $200 bail to appear at a hearing tonight. The bail was supplied by a borough resident.

According to the story as it came out at the preliminary hearing, Scruggs and Ryan met at Scotch Plains about noon Saturday. Scruggs is a gardener, who hires other men to help him with his contracts. Up to about a week ago, Ryan had been one of these men, but since that time he has started out for himself and, it is said, secured several jobs from Scruggs' "customers." As soon as Scruggs spied him, he is alleged to have begun a profane comment upon Ryan's business methods, and the two soon became engaged in a heated argument. Finally Ryan walked away, but when he was several rods down the road, Scruggs renewed the quarrel by calling after him. Angered at an alleged retort, he started in pursuit. Ryan took to his heels and Scruggs drew a heavy revolver from his pocket and fired three shots at him as he ran. None of the shots hit.

After the shooting, Scruggs went to the house of H. C. Christianson, where he was temporarily employed, and was arrested there by Marshal Logan shortly afterwards. Herbert Terow, of West Third street, who witnessed the shooting, appeared as Ryan's witness at the hearing Saturday night.

"JOE M'GREGOR" WINS RACE-MEET HANDICAP

The matinee race-meet at the driving park, Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of the Fair Acres Driving and Riding Club, was one of the best of the season and attracted a large crowd of lovers of good sport. The announcement that there would be a handicap race aroused considerable interest owing to the fact that it was the first of the kind ever held here. It was really the feature of the afternoon and will probably be repeated.

There were five entries in the handicap event, the horses being handicapped from scratch to 150 feet and were given a standing start. George Forgerson's "Joe McGregor" won the race with a handicap of 150 feet, in good time. He finished fifth in the first heat, but took the next two in clever style. Henry Uhrhahn's "Ben Butler" was second, finishing second in two heats and third in the last. The summaries:

MANAGER DISAPPEARS; CIRCUS OUTFIT STRANDED

A whole circus outfit, comprising forty performers, a menagerie of animals, sadly in need of food as their human comrades, are stranded in Atlantic City, anxiously awaiting the return of John S. Berger, owner of the show that was to have been given at the seashore resort for three days for the benefit of the police pension fund. The same show was given in Plainfield several months ago by Mr. Berger for a similar object, and proved a great success.

Mr. Berger, who promised the police one-half of the gate receipts if they would allow him to call the performance the "Policemen's Circus, for the Benefit of the Police Pension Fund," left Atlantic City, Saturday night and since then the troubles of the circus have been accumulating.

The police took pity on the circus company and collected $400, which was distributed so that hotels could be paid and Broadway could be reached. Soon afterward appeared P. G. McHugh, of Cleveland, who said he owned the "top" under which the circus was to be given, while others took charge of the animals and "props." When Mr. Keller, a New York attorney, appeared with a writ of attachment for $1,200, money that had been collected by policemen from the sale of tickets the last blow fell. This money was paid to Berger for the purpose of settling bills of the circus, but, it is said, he borrowed the entire amount on the deposit book and so far has not returned it. The show is still sojourning at the shore.

It was learned later that Berger, who makes his home at the Hotel Albany, when in New York, was arrested August 2, last, at Broadway and Forty-second street for engaging in fistcuffs with two men who, he said, had insulted his wife. He was afterward discharged when the case was called.

NETHERWOOD CAMP TO CLOSE NEXT SUNDAY.

Next Sunday will be "closing day" at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, and Monday morning, September 6, the three hundred New York mothers and children who form the last of the season's delegation at the camp, will take train for their homes in New York city. The exodus was started today, for forty New York babies, many of whom have been at the camp the entire summer went home on an early train from Netherwood with Miss Sara Curry, the matron.

Special services will be held nightly at the camp during this last week. Tonight Captain and Mrs. Hopkins of the local Salvation Army corps will conduct the service to be held in the camp auditorium. A delegation from the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will be at the camp the following night for a prayer and praise service and Wednesday night, Hughes Fawcett is to give an address to the New Yorkers. Christian Endeavorers from the First Baptist church, New Market, will be in charge of the service Thursday night and the following night a delegation from Rescue Mission will be in charge of a service.

BOROUGHITES FILE PETITIONS AS CANDIDATES.

Former Mayor N. B. Smalley, L. B. Woolston and B. R. Waldron have filed petitions as candidates for the Somerset County Committee with Borough Clerk F. A. Martin. Mr. Waldron, if chosen, will represent the third district.

None of the Councilmanic petitions in North Plainfield have yet been filed, but it is reported that Walter Apgar has withdrawn his candidacy. Thomas Curren today denied the report that he was a Councilmanic candidate on the Republican ticket, although several of his friends, including some of the party leaders, have been booming him for office.

Mrs. F. B. Bostwick Coming Home.

Mrs. May Bostwick, wife of Dr. Frank B. Bostwick, of Gibralter, accompanied by her son, will sail for home on September 14 on the King Albert of the North German Lloyd line, arriving in New York about September 21, when she will come to Plainfield to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Eoff, of Crescent avenue. Dr. Bostwick, owing to a pressure of business will be unable to accompany his family at this time. Mrs. Bostwick and her son will be accompanied by a maid.

Light Cable Out of Business.

Front street, between Watchung and Madison avenues, was in darkness Saturday night, because of trouble with the electric light cables. The trouble was located and repaired yesterday.

CHINAWARE HURLING DECIDES WOMEN'S GRUDGE

Feminine jealously between Mrs. Mary Jetter and Mrs. Emma Burgess, both colored, who live on West Fourth street in "Deacon" Spencer Conway's house, resulted in a mutual exchange of crockery ware and a lamp at the house Saturday morning. In the mix-up, Mrs. Burgess was severely cut in the right hand and left arm, by a pen-knife, according to her story. Both told entirely different stories of the scrap, but Judge Runyon decided that each was at fault and fined them $5 apiece.

Mrs. Burgess, who is house-keeper for the "Deacon," at whose home Mrs. Jetter boards, had a long list of grievances against her assailant when the two were haled before Judge Runyon today. She said that the other woman was constantly "pickin' on" her and "slurrin'" her. The grudge had its foundation about three years ago, according to details furnished by the injured woman.

The fight started in the dining room at about 9 o'clock Saturday morning, when "slurring remarks," mutually divided caused blows to be exchanged with broomstick, lamp, teacups and a vase, ending with a knfe-slitting speciality by Mrs. Jetter who inflicted a wound which required four stitches to close. Patrolman Saffron, to whom each of the combatants appealed, brought the two to court. A large gathering of colored folk was "in on" the hearing

M'CAULEY ARRESTED ON LONG STANDING WARRANT

James McCauley, a local character, who does lots of playful things whenever he has a seance with the cups, is in the borough lock-up again. Acting Chief Charles Keller nabbed him Saturday on a warrant issued last spring, when McCauley, in one of his playful moods, "pinched" a horse and rig belonging to John Kennedy, as it stood in front of Blatz's Hotel on Somerset street. The rig was later located in Scotch Plains, but Kennedy swore out a warrant for the joker, and he has just been brought to justice. He took the rig—"just for fun"—the night of April 6.

For most of the time since the warrant came out, McCauley has been rusticating in a cell at the county jail, Elizabeth. The sentence was due to another spring-time prank, when McCauley had a rough-and-tumble fight with Borough Marshal Lemuel Pope, who tried to arrest him for fighting on Somerset street one Saturday night. McCauley streaked it for Union county, and when he got across the line, turned and "beat up" Pope, just outside the borough limits. Patrolman Messler, of the city force, answered Pope's whistle for assistance and nabbed the scrapper, whom Judge Runyon sentenced to two months.

McCauley has been free for more than a month now, but has given North Plainfield a wide berth. He took a walk up Somerset street Saturday, and Keller flashed the warrant on him. He is still smiling, although a prisoner.

Carnival at Oak Tree.

An amusement carnival will be held for the benefit of Marconnier chapel, at Oak Tree, on the grounds of William H. Ten Eyck, Iselin road, at the head of Dark Lane, on the afternoon and evening of September 3. In the afternoon there will be a butterfly hunt for the children and in the evening a score or more of amusements of the summer resort kind will be given for the enjoyment of all on the large lawn and grove. Refreshments of all kinds for sale and good music will be furnished. The auto-bus will leave Thompson's garage every half-hour in the evening, beginning at 7 o'clock, for the carnival. A nominal charge will be made for the trip.

Gesang and Turn Verein Outing.

About a score of members of the Gesang and Turn Verein spent yesterday at Krausse's farm, on Johnson's Drive, the occasion being the annual outing of the organization. There was a bountiful clam-bake and the Verein members played quoits and baseball in the afternoon. A nine composed of the active singers beat a team of singers-emeritus by a score of 5-2. Henry Haurand was chairman of the committee in charge of the affair.

Tramp and Corn-Roast.

A merry party of sixteen young women from the Young Women's Christian Association enjoyed a short tramp to the mountains Saturday afternoon, where a corn-roast was held. After a delightful climb up the mountains an ideal spot was found for the roast. The outing was one of the most enjoyable of the season

CAR DEMOLISHES WAGON

Small Boy Badly Hurt When Trolley Rams a Grocery Rig.

DRIVER SLIGHTLY INJURED.

Accident on West Fourth Street Brought About by Sudden Driving of Horse Across the Tracks.

Rammed by an eastbound trolley car on West Fourth street near Spooner avenue shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, a delivery wagon belonging to W. W. Wilson, the West End grocer, was completely overturned and wrecked and Walter Wilson, the proprietor's son, and Earl Huff, a 15-year-old boy who was riding with him, were thrown out. Huff, who is the son of Mrs. Helen Huff, of 207 Stebbins place, is perhaps seriously injured internally.

The accident happened when young Wilson, who was driving, attempted to cross to the left side of the street as he drove toward John street. The trolley, No. 132, which was in charge of Motorman George Weber and Conductor Alvah T. Lindabury, struck the wagon on the left side, just back of the front wheels, completely overturning horse and rig and throwing both occupants out.

Weber brought his car to a quick stop, and went to the injured boys' assistance. Fred Schomp, a driver for Wilson, came along about that time with another grocery wagon and took young Huff to the office of Dr. Cregar, on Grant avenue. The physician's examination showed that his left lung was bruised by a rib, and he is suffering from an internal hemmorhage. No bones were broken although he sustained bruises and abraisions about the body. Wilson was badly bruised about the right hip and arm, but was able to go home. The horse was a mass of cuts and bruises, having been thrown completely over and pushed along the macadam. The wagon is a wreck. The glass vestibule of the trolley car was smashed and several windows on the side broken by the force of the collision. None of the passengers were hurt.

According to young Wilson's story, Motorman Weber sounded no warning bell. He said the car was going at a high rate of speed. Motorman Weber says that he followed the grocer's wagon for some distance, with his car, due at the Fourth street stand at 9:27, under full control. He said that he had no time to sound his bell, for the driver cut across the track sharply. Weber is a seasoned motorman, who has been employed by the trolley company for many years, and is regarded as unusually careful in running a car.

MEADOWVIEW KENNELS AWARDED MANY PRIZES.

At the recent dog show held at Sound Beach, under the auspices of the Fairfield Country Kennel Club, "The Meadowview Kennels," owned by A. G. Hooley, of Rockview avenue, captured many of the valuable prizes offered in competition, including the following:

Lady Mallwyd, first in limit; reserve winners; Champion Lady Allister, first in open, and first in open bred in United States and Canada. The above were also winners of the Mulford cup for the best English setters at the show. Meadowview Don, first limit and winners; also cup given by the Fairfield County Kennel Club for best English setter bred by exhibitor. Dr. J. E. Hair, of Bridgeport, Conn., was judge of the show and is also owner of the Albert Kennels. He has been one of the most prominent and successful breeder of English setters in this county, as well as being a prominent physician.

Tramp to Chimney Rock.

Members of the Young Women's Christian Association are reminded of the proposed trip to Chimney Rock on Saturday, if weather permits. Only a general invitation is given and immediate response response is necessary as there are accommodations for a limited number only. Those who intend taking the trip are urged to send their names in not later than Thursday. The stage will leave the association rooms at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and return at 10 o'clock at night. Supper will be served at Chimney Rock.

Mrs. Honeyman Improved.

Mrs. John Honeyman, of Knoxville, Tenn., sister to Mrs. D. C. Adams and Mrs. E. A. Parse, of Grove street, who has been critically ill, necessitating two operations, is reported to be slightly improved. Dr. D. C. WESTFIELD.

The action of Councilman Hiram L. Fink in having the surplus dirt from the roads carted on his personal property for filling in is to be investigated by the Law Committee of the council. This committee is composed of Councilmen Wilson, Middleditch and Malsbury. The investigation will be commenced this week.

There were ten bidders for the contract of paving a couple of blocks on Broad street, Westfield with vitrified brick, about 2,500 in all.

Rev. A. W. Hayes conducted services at the Westfield Methodist church yesterday after an absence of seven weeks in Europe.

Rev. G. W. Van Vleck, of New Yoak, took the place of Rev. C. H. Greenwood at the Westfield Baptist church yesterday.

Rev. Charles E. Dunn, of Tioga, Pa., conducted the services at the Westfield Presbyterian church yesterday.

Funeral services of Mrs. Hanford Moffett were held at her late home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

STOP GAMBLING ON SANDY HOOK BOATS.

That the New Jersey police authorities have taken the first step in a movement to suppress gambling on the Sandy Hook steamboats, running between New York and the Atlantic Highlands, became known with the news that they had confiscated playing cards on the Sandy Hook and had expressed an intention of exercising surveillance over card games within the three-mile Jersey limit.

It was further learned today that the Union News Company had issued orders to its employees on the boats to refrain from furnishing playing boards to the passengers, thus practically preventing those without staterooms from entering into any games.

Police were present on the "six o'clock boat," as it is called, on Wednesday evening when the movement against the sea gamblers was started. No attempt was made against holders of staterooms, but developments in that line are expected before the end of the season.

Referring to the matter, H. R. Church, speaking for W. C. Hope, general passenger agent of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, which controls the Sandy Hook vessels, said:

"Of course, gambling on the open decks is what would come to our attention first. Those passengers who have staterooms and who indulge in cards are doing so without our knowledge."

HOOKED A GIANT CATFISH.

It Nearly Pulled Montclair Alderman Under After an Hour's Fight.

Arthur E. Geserich, of St. Louis and his cousin, Councilman Henry E. Wrensch, of Montclair, who returned yesterday from a two-day fishing trip at Greenwood Lake, had a startling experience on the lake. The two men fished from a boat, and near an island just across the New York State line Mr. Wrensch allowed his hook, which was baited with a frog, to drop to the bottom of the lake. About five minutes afterward there was a tug at the line. Wrensch was dozing in the boat, but he was quickly roused. Then began a fight which lasted for an hour. The fish was exhausted Wrensch, and the fish was apparently tired out too when he pulled it up along side the boat. The men could see that their capture was one of the biggest catfish they had ever beheld, and they were wondering how they would get it in the boat when it made a last effort to escape. The loose line caught about Wrensch's wrist as the fish dashed away, and the Montclair Councilman was almost pulled overboard. His head was pulled under the water and he would have gone entirely under if Mr. Geserich hadn't cut the line.

Mr. Geserich, who is President of the Dixon Fishing and Hunting Club of St. Louis, said that they have huge catfish in the Ozark Mountains and Southern Missouri, but for strength and gameness he never saw one equal the fish that put up such a battle in Greenwook Lake.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

There is no denying the potency of "McFadden's Flats," the peer of all musical farce comedies which is underlined as the offering at the New Plainfield Theatre tomorrow night. The piece which is now in its fourteenth year is as attractive and entertaining as ever. This season an entirely new version of the enduring comedy is offered and the result is one of the most pretentious and thoroughly up-to-date productions ever offered to theatregoers. The fun while of a brisk, lively nature, is still clean and wholesome. There is not the least suggestion of vulgarity or horse play, and the situations while sidesplitting, are not at all improbable. Specialties of the kind that would lift any similar offering above the commonplace are introduced.

Miss Bessie Lee, the leading lady of "Montana," was formerly the leading lady of the Keith and Proctor stock of New York. She was the "Bonita" of Arizona and has successfully filled important roles in several Froham companies. In the part of Flo Harper, Miss Lee is said to have given her best of all efforts. Miss Lee is a second cousin to the late Gen. Fitzhugh Lee. "Montana" will be presented at the New Plainfield Theatre Wednesday afternoon and night.

The new songs introduced by Al H. Wilson, the Singing Ambassador of German dialect, in this season's production, "When Old New York Was Dutch," which will be presented at the New Plainfield Theatre next Thursday night, are said to be the most tuneful of any he has heretofore composed. There is a stirring march number, with chorus, entitled "Auf Wiedersehn Fraulein;" the famous sympathetic yodel, "Whispering Breeze," and a charming love ballad, entitled "Helen," which is expected to create considerable interest, as will his domestic story in song, "The Old Chimney Corner." Another original song is "Around the Camp Fire," a descriptive medley of national airs, in which Mr. Wilson will introduce, assisted by a chorus of trained voices, his "Song of Home," Tom Moore's beautiful Irish ballad, "Believe Me of All Those Endearing Young Charms," the rollicking Scotch sonnett, "I Love A Lassie," and Southland's refrain of "Dixie."

The season a new star is shining most brilliantly in "The Three of Us" and has won the immediate approval of the critics in every city and this great drama which is most refreshing in its simplicity is surely making one of the big successes of the season. This particularly bright star is Miss Janet Waldorf and at the outset it was choniced that she had won the right to be ranked among the stars on the top of the list. If any doubt of her comprehensive grasp of the art of acting has existed, when you see her it will surely be dispelled. She has brought to this principal role a rare finish and a complete mastery. In every point the play is exceptionally strong in its simplicity and is always in the range of plausibility and commands attention for its very homliness. "The Three of Us" will be at the New Plainfield Theatre next Friday night

Fresh from its triumph in New York city comes the musical play "Lola from Berlin," with Corinne and a brilliant cast of comediens and comediennes including Mark Sullivan, Henry Carl Lewis, Hazel Carlton, Franklin Vail, Pearl Revare, Lillie May White, Franker Woods, Osborn Clemson, Lillian Wilson, Freddie Stott and Bunnie Ingeborg, for a brief engagment of matinee and night at the New Plainfield Theatre next Saturday. This play is the latest work from the pen of John J McNally and its story is said to be unique and a distinct departure from anything heretofore attempted by him. The music of William Jerome and Jean Schwartz is tuneful and pretty and includes the following song hits: "I Think of You the Whole Year Round," "I'd Sooner be a Has-been," "Unter der Linden," "Signs," "Beneath the Moon," "Just Home from College," "Meet me in Rose Time Rosie," "Poor Little Foolish Man," and "There's not Another Girlie in the World for Me." There is a strong singing chorus including some very pretty girls.

ENORMOUS CEMENT CONTRACT.

Order Placed with Atlas Company For 4,500,000 Barrels for Panama Canal Work.

New York, Aug. 29.—The Atlas Portland Cement Company, whose principal plants are at Northampton and Coplay, Pa., has been awarded the contract to furnish 4,500,000 barrels of cement to the Isthmian Calan Commission at acost of about $5,500,000, the largest single contract ever given out in the Portland cement business in its entire history.

The Atlas company was the lowest bidder. The award marks a new era for the Portland cement industry. Had this order been given at as late a date as ten years ago, no mill or combination of mills could have filled the order.

The contract provides that delivery shall begin in December, the shipments to be at a minimum rate of 2,000 barrels a day and a mavimum of 10,000 barrels.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Winfield Harris fell from a high platform at Rio Grande and sustained a fractured shoulder.

Charles Bradley, of Millville, found a horse almost dead from starvation and thirst hitched in the dense woods near Dorchester.

Falling twenty-five feet into a pit at the Camden Iron Works Saturday William Ross, of 1109 Linden street, fractured his right thigh.

At Gloucester City Saturday William Lincoln was held in $300 bail on a charge preferred by the Public Service Corporation of using gas without it passing through a meter.

The coroner's jury put upon the train crew the responsibility for the death of William Berry, of Philadelphia, who was killed at the South Westville Station Wednesday afternoon, and censured the railroad company for not having signal bells and gates at the crossing.

As a result of a too intimate acquaintance with the hind feet of a mule Wilbur Freck, of Riverside, is under a physician's care. Freck was feeding the animal when it launhhed out with both feet, striking Freck full in the face, crushing it into an almost unrecognizable mass.

Mrs. W. H. Mershon heroically clung to the reins of a runaway horse at Clayton yesterday, until turning a sharp curve the buggy was overturned and the body torn from the wheels and thrown a considerable distance with Mrs. Mershon still in the seat. She was able to walk home.

Richard Moore, who attempted to killhis sweetheart, Miss Josie Teates, of 1077 Main street, Paterson, on Sunday night last, and who afterward attempted to commit suicide, was discharged from St. Joseph's Hospital Saturday, and arraigned before the recorded on a charge of atrocious assault and battery with intent to kill. He pleaded not guilty and was committed to jail in default of $1,000 bail.

While Charles A. Ewing, of Glassboro, a West Jersey railroad conductor, was trying his fine trotter, he met an automobile which scared his horse and he and Miss Wanda Rogers were thrown out of the carriage To save Miss Rogers from injury Ewing let go the reins and the horse ran away and demolished the vehicle. Miss Rogers escaped injury, but Ewing was badly cut about the eye and face.

Two years in the State prison was the sentence imposed upon John Koonblie, alias John Kelly, a professional pickpocket, by Judge Joline in the Camden Criminal Court Saturday. Koonblie was captured while operating at the Pennsylvania Railroad terminal. Leon Jones, a negro, got a similar sentence in the same institution on being convicted of threatening the life of Joseph Stone, a well known hotelkeeper at Mt. Ephraim.

In default of $2,000 bail each Frederick Lenz and Henry Miller, who were captured in the act of attempting to break into the residence of Deputy Revenue Collector Harry L. Jones, at 606 Cooper street, were committed for trial by Recorder Stackhouse Saturday. Two charges were preferred against the men, Jones accusing them of attempting to rob his house and the policeman who made the arrests charging assault and battery, with intent to kill.

EXERCISES TO PRODUCE THE NEW FIGURE.

If the sheath dresses are to come in the fall, the hips that were left to us after training down for last winter's princess lines must go.

This is still an era of sadness for the short and fat; for only one thing remains, to start in at once to become short and thin. It will be hot work, but what is heat in the interests of a willowy shape? Besides, the more you perspire the more quickly will the coveted slenderness arrive.

Here are three exercises that will do wonders in getting rid of fat hips:

Stand erect, with the finger tips of the right hand held lightly on the right leg. Kick out the leg slowly, without bending the knees, and at the same time slide the fingers down the leg as far as they will go, always remembering not to bend teh elbow. Bring the leg slowly back to position and repeat with left leg and hand.

Drop the hand at the side, touching with the finger tips, and kick slowly in a circular motion, slide the fingers along it and keep both elbow and knees unflexed.

Lastly put the finger tips on the back of the leg and kick slowly backward, sliding the fingers and keeping the muscles unflexed as in the other two exercises.

Try them morning and evening; keep it up for fifteen minutes at a time, and if you are not a sylph when cold weather comes again, at least it will not be your fault.

Besides getting thinner you will have the happy consciousness that the excessive prespiration caused by the violent exercising will beautify your skin and improve your general health.

Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Morely, who have been occuying Edmund Rushmore's residence on Sycamore avenue for the summer, will return to their home in Brooklyn, tomorrow.

COMMODORE OF BOUND BROOK BOAT CLUB DIES SUDDENLY.

William B. Robeson, one of Bound Brook's most prominent citizens, died suddenly Friday morning after an attack of acute indigestion, which affected his heart. He is survived by a widow and two daughters.

Mr. Robeson was commodore of the Bound Brook Boat Club, and because of his death, the regatta planned by the club for Labor Day will not be held. He was engaged in the business of manufacturing and importing perfumery and but a short time ago moved into a handsome new residence on West Union avenue.

A French Dressing.

Three tablespoonfuls of lucca olive oil, one tablespoonful of vinegar, half a teaspoonful of salt, quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper. Mix the salt and pepper with oil. Drop in the vinegar slowly, beating continuously with a fork, and it will become thickened and creamy, like an emulsion; a dash of paprika or cayenne may be added. A few drops of tragon vinegar improves lettuce salad.

Cranford Venetian Carnival.

More than a hundred handsomely decorated canoes will take part in the Venetian Carnival to be held at Cranford Labor Day night. In connection with the parade of boats, there will be an elaborate display of fireworks and concerts by two bands.

ADDRESSING THE YOUNG DAUGHTERS.

I have been asked about a topic which it seems is now bothering the newspapers, and especially the New York Times, which had a clever editorial on the subject, says Vogue. It seems that when King Edward wrote a little note to Hon Mrs. John Hubert Ward before her marriage, and sent it with the splendid bracelet which he gave her, he addressed her as Miss Whitelaw Reid. Society has its observances. These may not be according to rule, and its grammar and its rhetoric may not be orthodox from high school and university standards. Indeed, we remember a book called "The Queen's English," which pointed out certain faults. Royalties and fashion abroad adopt peculiar methods of pronounciation, and their own code of familiar conversation and address. English people can never understand our "initials," and their novelitss are constantly poking fun at John G. Smith, J. G. Smith an dall the terrors of that middle letter now considered so demode.

Mrs. Ogden Mills never gives her husband's middle name, and her unmarried daughter is Miss Ogden Mills in London, and not Miss Beatrice Ogden Mills. The eldest or only daughter of a family takes the paternal name only. Our ambassador is known in London as Mr. Whitelaw Reid and not as Mr. J. Whitelaw Reid. His daughter is therefore Miss Whitelaw Reid. Owing to many families wishing to preserve and impress upon the world the dignity of a distaff name or one inherited, establishing a house thereby, this custom, borrowed perhaps from Spain, is the one in vogue in England. The king would never have addressed our ambassador's daughter as Miss Jean Reid, because that would imply without being strictly correct, that she were a younger daughter. Then even he would have written to Miss Jean Temple Reid. A king writes so seldom with his own hand, and almost always through his secretary, that the grammar of the note employing the first persons throughout and then singing Edward R. may be pardoned, built it also royal usage, as any one who had read the latest edition of the Letters of Queen Victoria can testify. In all letters of sympathy and congratulation in the queen's case, more likely the former than the latter—as she gloried in a funeral—this same form is observed.

DELICIOUS WAYS OF SERVING CRABS.

In these days when crab meat can be bought in many places ready picked, without fear of after consequences, it is a convenient and delicious substitute for meat for summer lunches and suppers.

While hot crabs, either deviled or in farcis, are popular; to serve it cold is less well known.

Crab salad, either with French or mayonnaise dressing, is almot no trouble if the crabs themselves do not have to be boiled. The meat should be icy cold and served on lettuce.

Crab ravigote is even more delicious. This is served in the shell and is mixed with a highly seasoned mayonnaise, to which is added a little onion and garlic, and made quite acid with lemon.

Sweet pickles, cut in thin sections lengthwise, are placed over the crabs after they are in the shells, and alternating with them, in the opposite direction, are anchovies. If preferred, the pickles can be chopped through the crab meat, and the anchovies only used on top.

The cold crab is also delicious served with chopped red and green peppers, besides being artistic to look at.

While prices of this crab meat differ in different cities, it averages about fifty cents a quart, and the shells are supplied. It is safely used in cities several hundred miles from the coast; anywhere in fact where it can come fresh each day.

It is important to buy from a reliable dealer, and also never to use it in very hot weather. As a rule it comes in tightly covered tin buckets. A quart should fill about eleven shells of medium size.

It is better to pick over the meat lest there be small pieces of shell. The shells themselves should be thoroughly scrubbed with a small, stiff brush, inside and opt, and put to soak in cold water for an hour or more, to remove all shfiy odor.

Pretty New Hatpins.

The very latest hatpins consist of a dollar size miniature in the style of Louis XVI., with portraits of court beauties upon their enameled surface. Other hatpins have cone-shaped tops inset with the jewels, while still others are of beautifully cut jade in many various shapes and sizes. A hatpin nowadays is such a very important feature of trimming that the particular woman cannot select it with too great care. It looks almost peculiar to see anyone wearing a hat fastened merely by plain black-headed pins—in fact, there seems to be something lacking in the general aspect of her costume.

GIRLS' IDEAS OF MARRIAGE ARE CHANGED.

Marrigae is no longer the only profession for a girl; when her grandmother was young it was. Girls who did not marry then missed so much that the inducement to accept a husband was far greater than it is today.

How different are the conditions today! In every direction there are alluring possibilities of independence, absorbing occupations open to girls, which must necessarily go far to divert a girl's mind from marriage as an ambition and aim. They may even seem infinitely preferable to the unquestionable ties and restrictions of marriage. True it is that one rarely finds even successful women who have given the best of their years to this or that calling, advising girls to follow in their train. That it is not from jealousy—O, no! they know where their own shoes have pinched in the past, and, for the matter of that, where they pinch now; they know the tears of blood, the thorns in the path, the sharp stones in the road of every woman's life in an independent career.

But that does not alter the fact that in these days the numerous occupations open to women, and the need or temptation to follow them, present a constant alternative to marriage, and tend to make girls less ready to change their state, more exacting in their requirements, and incidentally make men less able or willing to incur the responsibilities of wedded life. The wider outlook on life which modern conditions involve should make girls more perfect comrades.—John Strange Winter, the novelist.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Scotch Plains team were again defeated by Westfield Saturday afternoon at Recreation Park by the score of 5 to 10. The 'Plains team put up a poor game in the field, Brewer pitched a good game and with the right kind of support the result of the game might have been different. Ortleib, who was in the box for Westfield, pitched a good game although at times the 'Plains batters found him, but the support back of him never made the game dangerous for Westfield.

The ball team held a clambake yesterday afternoon on the Mountain, near Glenside. The bake was well attended and every one had a good time.

Rev. Mr. Greenwood, of the Westfield Baptist church, preached at the morning service at the Baptist church yesterday. No evening service was held.

HOW "FATHER BILL" FOOLED AN INNOCENT NEIGHBOR.

A good story is told of Father Bill Daly, the well known turfman and developer of famous jockeys. Frank Robley, of the "McFadden's Flats" company, which comes to the New Plainfield Theatre, tomorrow night, tells the tale. Mr. Robley is an old friend and neighbor of the turfman who is noted for his many eccentricities and his ungovernable temper.

About a year ago when Mr. Robley was spending his summer vacation he had occasion to ask "Father Bill" how he prepares his horses for their various races.

"By treating them with kindness and using human intelligence," said Daly rather laconically.

A few days later Mr. Robley met Daly again. This time "Father Bill" was steaming a bowed tendon in hot water and Mr. Robley, who is of the sympathetic kind and a lover of dumb animals, said.

"Don't you think you are using that poor animal rather cruelly? That water's very hot," and to emphasize his remark he placed his finger into the water and pulled it out quickly. "I wouldn't do that if I were you," said Mr. Robley softly, "for if one of these humane society officers ever saw you do that they would surely call you to task and arrest you."

Daly laughed.

"Don't you mind that water a bit," vouchsafed the turfman. "It isn't so very hot and I wouldn't hurt one of those dear horses for all the world. If I can stand it those horses can," and suiting his action to the word he immersed his own foot into the water and triumphantly held it in that position for fully two minutes.

Mr. Robley apologized and departed. That same night Mr. Robley had occasion to mention the incident to his wife. She burst into a fit of laughter which threatened to dislocate her jaws.

"My dear Frank," she replied, "You are a most foolish man. Of course Mr. Daly can stand it for don't you know he has a wooden leg.

An Enjoyable Outing.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Force, of Duer street, and Mrs. Frank Wynkoop, of Dunellen, were guests Friday and Saturday of State Supervisor of Roads Robert A. Meeker and wife, at their cottage on Bangs avenue, Asbury Park. Besides witnessing the greatest baby parade Asbury Park ever held, the guests were given a forty-mile auto ride to Long Branch, Seabright, Monmouth Beach and then over the celebrated Rumson road to Branchport and return.

Long Branch Fair at Elkwood Park August 31, Sept, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 7. Reduced rates via New Jersey Central. Round trip tickets from Plainfield, including admission to grounds, $2.20. See agents and circulars for train service. 8 25 6 eod

TAKE CARE OF THAT TEMPLE, YOUR BODY.

Generally one can work out the problem of increasing his vitality himself, but if he does not succeed it would be greatly to his profit to consult a physician and get direction, rather than await until he is actually ill before doing so. Many make a practice of going regularly to the dentist to have the teeth examined, in order to keep them in proper condition. How much sickness might be saved if one, feeling that his health was not what it should be, should in the same manner consult his physician to obtain help in right ways of living, that his body might be in the most perfect condition possible, says the Ladies' World. If this practice obtained there would be fewer sudden deaths from heart disease and other obscure conditions of the internal organs.

The essentials of life in every human being are a perfect nutrition. By which is meant that he should have the right kind of food, the proper amount to sustain the functioning of the organs of the body and the outlay which is used in the daily employments of the individual. A great deal has been written and preached on this subject recently, but it will have little effect if the individual does not find out what these sayings have for him. As necessary for the human machine is the right kind of food as is fuel for the furnace which heats the steam by which the engine is run. Coal to heat the boiler containing the steam is necessary for the steam engine, but a steam engine cannot be run by electricity any more than the electric motor can be run by steam. It is the opinion of many that most people are ruining their systems not only by not eating the right kind of food, but by eating far too much. I think that our present bills of fare are much too elaborate.

The present crave for novelties manifests itself in the culinary department in indigestable mixtures which would try the stomach of an ostrich. Youthful stomachs can for a time cope with the digestion of all sorts of things that the middle-aged stomach could not dispose of and which would be more difficult still for one advanced in years. Vitality will be proportioned to the digestive strength of the stomach. Simple, nuorishing food, in the amount necessary to repair the waste that has taken place, and to provide the strength, is what one should take. Anything more clogs the system, impairs the power. The surplus of food is deposited in fat beneath the skin and around the vital organs, especially the heart, and serious damage is done. It is by individual experimentation that the problem is solved. Those who live to eat only will not live very long. The temptation to enjoy the pleasure of the palate in eating and drinking are among the ones most frequently yielded to. Our customs of friendship and hospitality and our desire for display combine to dig the pitfalls of a lowered vitality, a weakened system and a premature grave.

WHAT SHE EXPECTED AND WHAT SHE FOUND.

I married quite young and expected when I started to be entirely my own mistress, mapping out my days without having to consult anybody, says Eleanor, in Home Chat. I felt I was breaking away from the ties and trammels of the "daughter at home," gaining complete freedom, and so doing a very good thing for myself. I'm afraid I was rather like the girl who expected to Sit on a cushion and sew a fine seam,

And live on ripe strawberries, sugar and cream.

But I soon found I had made a mistake—married life has its ties and trammels just as girlhood has.

John never actually said so, but I very soon found that he expected me to be at home when he came back from the office. That was surprise number one. Mother had never minded if I were late for dinner, because I'd been enjoying myself at a garden party and didn't want to hurry home. And in lots of other ways I find I have to consider others instead of only myself.

Girls talk a lot of nonsense about how they are going to manage the man they marry. And their mothers mostly merely laugh, and say they'll "learn better by-and-by." I don't think it's quite fair to the girls. It would have saved John and me many a heartache if mother had given me a good chapter of advice torn straight from the pages of real life.

A girl who marries at nineteen hasn't much practical experience of men. When she goes on her honeymoon she is rather like Christopher Columbus sailing out to discover a new world.

Hard For Him.

Mr. Jolly—It's easy to obey the Biblical injunction when one's neighbor is a pretty girl.

Miss Nexdore—But, surely, it isn't easy for you.

Mr. Jolly—O, yes;. I refer to the command to "love thy neighbor."

Miss Nexdore—Yes, but the command is really "love thy neighbor as thyself."—Philadelphia Press.

His Advantage.

"The bachelor is worse off than the married man."

"How do you make that out?"

"The married man is afraid of only one woman, the bachelor is afraid of all of them."—Houston Post.

CLEVER IMITATION OF FRENCH GOWNS.

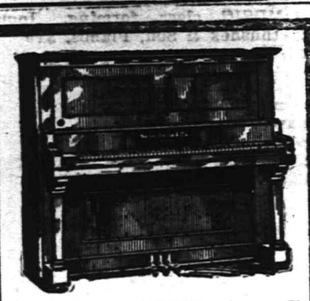
What may be classed as Parisian gowns are not of imported kinds, but clever imitations of such, says Mlle. Stantyn, in Woman's National Daily It is claimed that many imitations show such remarkable improvement that the various changes are more appreciated than original copies. One clever dress for street wear shows the long skirt, clinging in effect, but not too much so for thin material. The waist portion is cut so that the front can be turned back in lapels, very much resembling a jacket front. The left side is plain, though the right bears an immense triangle-shaped lapel.

One extremely elaborate jacket suit was fashioned of white pongee with long sleeves that closed at the hands, and upper portions made in with the waist portions from the shoulder to the line. It would be almost an impossibility for the wearer to raise her hand to her head. These sleeves were outlined with very large patterns of white soutache. Two small tabs and buttons on the back panel of the coat held the sleeves to the sides. The lower edge of the coat was pinted, each point heavily worked with soutache. The collar was a square shape at the back, a short V at the front, outlined with braid. While the back was decidedly elaborate because of the clever sleeve arrangement. the front was of conventional coat pattern, showing three lengths of braid in two-inch widths.

Keep an Expense Account.

It would be well if families would make a thorough inquiry into their financial condition and prospects. A searching analysis of this kind, set down in black and white, would be edifying to many a husband and wife, and, in most cases, could not fail to simplify their method of living, and consequently add to their happiness.

Complete frankness upon this subject between husband and wife will enhance the help-each-other spirit so essential to the perfect home. What wonder if the wife becomes extravagant when the husband gives the impression of wealth and has not bravery enough to tell her the truth about his finances? Even the "butterfly" will often change and become a real helpmate for her husband if he honestly confides in her.



QUALITY and PRICE

The two vital questions in your piano purchase are, first, quality; second, price. An unsatisfactory piano, in tone and action, is the most annoying article you can have in your home. You dislike to be expending money on it continually to keep it in playing condition.

WHEN GOING ON A WEDDING TRIP.

Some thoughtful advice as to the honeymoon suggests that the selection of a companion for the trip be made with care, this giving to the counsel an air of triviality.

Of course, nobody goes on a honeymoon without attention to so obvious a detail.

The honeymoon is a trying period. In the first place, misguided friends seek to invest the beginning of it with terror. The rice they throw elings with telltale pertinacity. The spectacle of the hurtling shoes promotes gayety.

Then, in their eagerness to appear as a hardened married couple, the pair are certain to bertay themselves. If spoken to they are frightened as a couple of criminals at the service of a warrant.

At the hotel they are at once "spotted." The clerk unable to do this would never have been a clerk. The instant recognition of their status is annoying.

A honeymooning couple should act natural. To do this is possible. If they could only remember that the mere fact of marriage was in itself not remarkable it would help some.

People are getting married every day. Some have been known to crowd several marriages into a short span of years.

There are countless precedents for marriage. It obtains among the best people, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. Why so sedulously endeavor to bring about the conditions of the honeymoon and then act as though ashamed of success?

Let the honeymoon pair be brave, if the admission of being married can be construed as bravery, for the fact is one they cannot conceal.

They have a way about them. Their fathers and mothers had a similar way. So, while the placarding of of baggage with the legend "Just married and glad of it," is an extreme not to be upheld, it really is not berayal of a secret, for there is no secret.

The honeymoon is relatively expensive. The wisdom of devoting a year's income to it and making up the deficit by life in a flat may be questioned.

Nevertheless the newly married are going to have one, and to enjoy it must forget that they are under surveillance, if they can. Beyond this they have to make their own rules.

ABOUT WOMEN THE WORLD OVER.

In London the drivers of the motor busses have to take an examination to test their proficiency in mechanical knowledge and other subjects, as evidenced by the tests given by the Royal Automobile Club. Miss de Benest is the first woman to be given a certificate and is the first woman driver.

Mrs. Helen L. Grenfell has been appointed by Governor Buchtel of Colorado a delegate to the meeting of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance in Amsterdam, Mrs. Harriot Sheik was appointed by the Governor of Wyoming a delegate to the same convention. Mrs. Grenfell served three terms as State superintendent of public instruction in Colorado.

A painter of interiors and European street scenes is Mrs. Colin Campbell Cooper, of the Sherwood Studios, the winner of numerous prizes at the Chicago Exposition, Atlanta Exposition, St. Louis Exposition and the Woman's Art Club, of New York. Mrs. Cooper studied both in New York and Paris. Mr. and Mrs. Cooper are impatiently awaiting the completion of the Gainsborough Studios, where they will make their headquarters in the future.

Mrs. Margaret K. Horn, of Indiana, has obtained a pension of $24 a month from Congress in recognition of her services during the war with the Sioux Indians. A pension bill was under consideration awarding her $16 a month as the widow of a war veteran. In the debate it was brought out that Mrs. Horn had personally rendered the government good service, for, while her husband was at the front during the Civil War, she herself in 1862 fought against the Sioux Indians, being one of the besieged at Fort Ridgley, Minn. Because of this service her pension was raised to $24.

FASHIONABLE SIMPLICITY.

The handsomest dressed women at exclusive seaside resorts are wearing more black, white, pale tan and gray than loud colors for their suits. Hats that go with such costumes, however, are loaded with flowers, either for morning or afternoon. The best coats are very much cut away from the front, the slope beginning from the bust line. There is really nothing new about such a coat, as it has been seen ever since last winter, but the best models continue to appear in the shape. Coats have grown more close fitting to suit the new skirts, and in many of the smartest ones the backs are perfectly straight and plain, calling to mind a back board which prevents a wrinkle or fold. A front sloping of to a narrow back and a back long straight and plain sounds as well as it looks, and it is not likely that the style will attain a general vogue It is trying to every one but a sylph as are all the other fads of the moment. But the woman who knows is choosing the thing that suits her particular style rather than the style of the multitude.

CHAPTER IX.

UNDER COVER OF THE NIGHT.

When the yellow state house dome next came into Reporter Thomas' view that Sunday after the funeral, he had gained a deal of information about the people at the North villa.

Quite naturally, one of the first places he sought was the quiet office of Detective Lamm.

The door being locked between them and possible intruders, Mr. Thomas began his disclosures.

"At the present time, Lamm," he said, giving the office chair a twirl before sitting down in it, "there are two things which strike me as peculiar. There are two men in this case who naturally come under suspicion—one of them because he has no history; the other because his history is peculiar."

"And the man with no history is?"

"Thornton Stackhouse. You may or may not be aware of the fact that until he appeared in Boston ten years ago, he was unknown to anybody in these parts, and that of his earlier life there are only extant to-day the vaguest and most conflicting rumors. He never refers to anything in his life more than ten years old. So, as I say, he has no history."

"Umha!" said Lamm; "as you say, I may or may not have been aware of the fact. Well, then, as to the other man whose history is peculiar?"

"I referred, Lamm, to Mr. Richard Fetridge, the Apollo Belvidere of State street, the ideal lady killer, the man whose personal appearance is the principal thing about him which would at once strike an observer."

"And why does this man begin to appear suspicious to you?"

"Because I can't exactly understand his relations to the North family, nor his motives in his relations to them."

"Tell me what you know and I'll try to help you."

"From what people down at the shore gossip, it appears that Fetridge made the acquaintance of the Norths at Swampscott three years ago. The young man was boarding at some hotel, met the young ladies, seems to have been particularly struck with Marion, the elder daughter, and began to go to the house a good deal. People will talk, you know, and people said that Fetridge was dead in love with the girl, and probably might have married her but for old man North's opposition."

"Ah!" Mr. Lamm lit a new cigar. "Didn't like the young fellow, eh?"

"May have liked him well enough, but didn't want a man without money for a son-in-law," rejoined Thomas.

"But Marion was not his own daughter?"

"No. But he adopted her when she was a year old, and he had no expectation of having a child of his own; and North seemed to think as much of her after Stella came as before. Of course, one way of showing his liking was his anxiety to have Marion well married. At all events, the old man turned the cold shoulder to Fetridge, who was only a struggling lawyer, with nothing but his wits to depend on for a living. His visits to the house suddenly stopped. About two months after he ceased to call at the place, Marion North became Marion Stackhouse."

"There was plenty of gossip about that event at Swampscott, I'll be bound," was the detective's comment.

"Of course. Everybody said she married Stackhouse for money, although she was in love with the other fellow. Some people go so far as to say that Marion and Fetridge had some lovers' quarrel, and so separated. Other people, with whom Marion is no favorite, did not hesitate to say that the young woman, being one of the cool and calculating kind, agreed with her father that Stackhouse was a certainty and the young lawyer only a possibility so far as money interests were concerned."

"Fetridge is a rich man now," oracularly declared Mr. Lamm.

"Ah! If friend North had dreamed that in a few weeks Fetridge would fall heir to a very handsome property in Australia, I think our friend Stackhouse would have been dismissed for the lawyer. It was an uncle, I hear, that left Fetridge his fortune. Fetridge went to Australia to settle up the estate, as perhaps you know, not in the least expecting to get much of anything. But in nine months he came home, to everybody's surprise, himself included, a millionaire."

"Exactly; well?"

"Well, he began to feel drawn toward the Norths again. This time the old man was very glad to have him on good terms with the family. The almighty dollar, you know. I don't mean to slur a dead man's memory, but Paul North was a disciple of Mammon, if ever there was one in the world. The question in everybody's mouth is, how did Stackhouse attain his extraordinary influence over Paul North? I attribute it to his cunning catering to the old man's strongest passion—avarice. But not to digress. Fetridge visited the house regularly for a month or two, and it was gossiped down at the shore that the Apollo had turned his attention to Miss Stella. I am not at all certain as to the correctness of that assumption myself, Lamm."

"He may have something of his former liking for Marion, you mean?"

Mr. Lamm found an answering look from his co-worker that made a spoken response superfluous.

"Just about a month ago, Lamm, professional business called Fetridge away from Boston. At any rate that was the explanation given by the young lawyer, who appears to have entered into quite intimate relations with the firm of North & Stackhouse since he came back from Australia with his millions. A Water street man I saw at the funeral told me he believed Fetridge backed the concern, and went away on some business connected with it."

"That's a mere guess," was the detective's comment. "We must try to get at the real cause for this trip. You do not imagine that any disagreement with the family or the firm could have been at the bottom of it?"

"There was no love lost between Stackhouse and Fetridge. The cause of their mutual dislike may or may not be hard to determine," said Thomas, in a meaning tone; "but I'm very certain, from what has taken place since Mr. North's death—Fetridge did not come back, you know, until two days before—that he is on quite as good a standing with the family as ever. The way in which he was trusted in the funeral arrangements shows that much, plainly enough."

Mr. Lamm knocked the ashes from his cigar, took a turn up the room, and coming back stopped in front of Thomas as he sat fingering his watch fob.

"There's a mystery about this man Fetridge," he said with emphasis. "What you have found out about him simply confirms my feeling, quite warranted by my own knowledge of the man and his circumstances, that Fetridge is a person to be very carefully watched. Mark my words, young man. The day you find out what secret is shared by Marion North-Stackhouse and Richard Fetridge will mark a great advance in the progress of this investigation."

When detective and reporter parted, after some further interchange of views, a certain line of policy was agreed upon. Richard Fetridge was to be kept constantly in sight. For the goings and comings of the young lawyer in the city, Mr. Lamm declared his purpose to fully account, while Mr. Thomas was to be the sentinel on duty at Swampscott.

It happened that he was passing the North estate a little before nine o'clock, and that just then the whim seized him to enter the broad gateway and have a look at the silent, gloomy mansion upon which the heavy pall of death and ill-fortune had visibly fallen. There might be something stirring—some face, some light, some whispered conversation, perhaps—or was it that the sweet, sad face of North's orphaned daughter still haunted him and lured him out of his path?

At all events it would not necessitate much of a delay, for the abiding place of Richard Fetridge was but a short distance beyond. At first sight it did not seem possible that he should gain anything by entering the grounds. There was not even a light visible from his standpoint on the driveway. It might have been, thought Mr. Thomas, some long abandoned ruin for all the semblance of life that could be seen about it.

He was turning away, when his attention was attracted by a noise close by him as of a window cautiously opened, and immediately after he became aware of the flutter of white skirts at a window in the second story. Instinctively he drew back into the bushes. The night was dark, but the phosphorescent gleam that seems to distinguish objects even in a dark landscape, enabled him to see that somebody had emerged from the window and was coming down a trellis work into the garden. He heard the snapping of the frail wood work, the cracking of the vine that clung to it, and finally the precipitate, probably unintentional, drop to the ground, and the accompanying thud. But the figure gathered itself up quickly—came toward him—passed him—breathing with audible excitement.

It was a figure veiled and closely muffled in a long cloak—the figure of a woman.

"Is it one of the servants?" Thomas asked himself, as he observed her hurried steps until the gate was reached, her backward glance, as if hesitating for a moment whether to go on or to return, and then a quick, almost headlong flight directly up the street in the direction of Marblehead.

"She cannot be going to the town, at any rate, whoever she may be," was Mr. Thomas' mental comment. "Is she a thief or a servant? I shall make it my business to know more about the matter, at all events."

With a stealthy tread, quite as noiseless as that of the cloaked figure hurrying before him, Thomas followed the woman, keeping her as well in sight as the darkness would permit.

Regarding one point there could be no doubt in the watcher's mind. The fugitive knew the road she was taking, and followed it with a fixed purpose. Mr. Thomas began to find it a matter of some difficulty to keep her within view, especially as the thick foliage made the darkness in some places very black indeed. Suddenly the woman left the road, and ran across the lawn of a private estate.

Thomas hastened after her, expecting to see her enter at the servants' door. But, to his surprise, she avoided the house, and eventually came out upon the rocks behind it, overlooking the sea.

"Utterly absorbed in what she has in mind," thought Thomas. "And going straight toward the water, too! I don't know much about this district, but I think there is a little point of rocks out yonder, just in the direction the woman is taking. What if the creature should have come to this lonely spot at night to end her life?"

Startled at the thought, the reporter made haste, so that in case of emergency he might be ready to act.

Nearer and nearer he approached the unknown wanderer. She stood still at last upon a rock that overhung the water that plashed monotonously along the long beach.

The night wind swayed the folds of her cloak as she remained there for a moment like a statue.

Suddenly, with a quick motion, the woman drew something from her breast, and cast it waterwards with all her strength. The effort seemed to exhaust her, for she sank down a moment, clasping her hands before her face.

The weakness was only transient. With nervous hands she pulled the veil over her face and wrapped the long cloak closely around her. Almost headlong was the haste with which the figure turned toward the road again.

Looking neither to right nor left, she passed very near the man who had thus played the spy upon her. No affrighted fawn, thought Thomas, could have run more fleetly, under the spell of any dread whatsoever.

For an instant the reporter was in a quandary. He desired to do two things at once—to follow the fleeting figure; to stop and investigate. He stood up, looking after her.

"Queer thing!" he thought. "She is not going back to the North villa; at least, not by the same route by which we have come. She continues on the road toward the Phillips Beach station. Can it be that this woman has been kept here in hiding, and is going away? Perhaps, if I hurry, I can still overtake her."

He stumbled hastily across the rocks to the place where she had stood when she threw the something, which had aroused his curiosity, toward the water. It was well-nigh a hopeless quest. He stood for a moment in the very attitude which he had seen her occupy, the lonesome swash of the sea in his ears, measuring the distance with his eye and trying to calculate the limit of her force. He walked down slowly in a straight line to the very edge of the water. The tide seemed very near the flood.

"Quite hopeless. Not a chance in a million," he said at once. "But if I mark the spot and the height of the tide, by daylight to-morrow I can investigate with possible chance of success."

He was looking about him for some object by which to secure the necessary landmarks, when his glance was attracted to a glittering something on a point of rock about which the water flowed. Even as he looked a wave dashed over it, obscuring it for the time, only to leave it gleaming in a reflected light again as the dark element receded.

An astotnished, incredulous stare! No, it could not be; yet it would pay him to make sure!

He drew off his shoes and socks and prepared himself for the effort of investigation. A few cautious steps brought him so near that there could be no mistake. He uttered an involuntary cry, and, plunging forward, regardless of a thorough wetting from an unexpected wave, grasped the glistening object in his shaking hand.

It was a pistol!

The Newest Preserve Jars.

At last there comes the fruit jar which is not difficult for women to wash, fasten on the lids or take them off. All three objectionable features were found in the old-fashioned kind. It will take a trial of the various kinds to tell just which ones will be the best for some close by suction, others with tiny rubbers and many are closed and hermetically sealed by merely pressing on the lid. To escape the tedious task hertofore always presented is something to be looked forward to with pleasure.

Sale of Lands for Unpaid Taxes

COLLECTOR'S OFFICE, CITY OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Notice is hereby given that the subscriber, the Collector of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, pursuant to the authority of the statute in such case made and provided, will on

Wednesday, September 23, 1908,

at two o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the said Collector's office, No. 151 North Avenue, in said city, expose for sale and sell the several tracts or parcels of land hereinafter specified, or any part or parts thereof severally sufficient for the purpose, on which taxes for the year nineteen hundred and seven remain in arrears, to such person or persons as will purchase the same for the shortest term and pay the tax lien thereon, including interest and costs of sale, or in fee where no one will bid for a shorter term.

This sale is made under the provisions of the act of the Legislature of this State, entitled: "An Act for the assessment and collection of taxes," approved April 8, 1903, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Further particulars of the land to be sold, as shown on the City records, may be obtained at the office of the subscriber any week day prior to the day of sale, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., except holidays and Saturdays, and on Saturdays between 9 a. m. and 12 noon.

The following is a list of the several tracts and parcels of lands to be sold, which shows the names of the delinquents, the supposed owners thereof as the names of the delinquent owners appear on the books of the taxing district, together with a statement of the wards of the city wherein said lands are respectively situated, and the street in which each lot is situated, the block and lot number of each lot as they appear on the Official Assessment Maps of the City of Plainfield, on file in the office of the City Collector, and the amount due from each of the said lots respectively. To the amount due on each lot and parcel as hereinafter designated, there will be added interest at the rate of ten per centum per annum from the twentieth day of December, 1907, to the day of sale, and the fees provided by said act of the Legislature, viz.: for preparing and publishing notices of sale twenty-five cents for each parcel of land advertised; and for selling twenty-five cents for each parcel sold; and for each certificate of sale, fifty cents, besides necessary disbursements for printing, postage, affidavits and acknowledgements, which are hereby estimated at three dollars for each item of arrearage, and the City Clerk's fee for recording report, ten cents for each parcel of land sold, and all said fees and expenses shall form part of the tax lien and be paid by the purchaser at the tax sale.

Sale Number.	Supposed owner or person to whom assessed.	Ward.	Block No. City Assessment Maps.	Lot No. City Assessment Maps.	Street or Aevnue.	Year.	Amount of Tax.	Date from which Interest will be added at 10 per cent. per annum to date of sale.

CLINTON AVENUES LOSE

West End Team Drops a Close Game to the Somerville Nine.

MONTROSS PITCHED GOOD BALL

Took Delight in Aiding in Defeat of Fellow-townsmen—Umpire's Decision Criticised.

The Clinton Avenues lost their first game to Somerville at the latter place, Saturday afternoon, the score being 2 to 1, and it was sweet revenge for the Somerset county fans to see their rivals bite the dust in a closely contested game. That the teams are evenly matched is shown by the fact that the Plainfield boys took the first two games by scores of 3 to 1, and neither side has had any great advantage to speak of. After Saturday's contest was well under way, it was plainly evident that Manager Dorflinger's colts were not due to win. They were not quite up to their regular form and several good chances to score were lost.

Somerville scored its first run in the fifth inning, and it was chiefly due to the dropping of two fly balls, one by O'Loughlin and the other by Dick Scott. They were so easy that the misplays caused the guilty players to hang their heads. Frech came home with the tally, Jack Martin making a poor throw to Boelzley. The Clinton Avenues tied things up in the eighth, when Montross after allowing the bases to be filled forced Emery home. He then closed the gates. In their half of the eighth Somerville cinched the game when Miller got a hit. Montross drew a pass and Broggy, who had fanned every other time at the bat, drove the ball to right field for two bases bringing Miller home with the winning run.

"Old War Horse," Montross, as he is now called, took great delight in defeating his fellow-townsmen. The luck was with Jimmie and several times he worked himself out of difficult holes by his clever work. The fact that nine Plainfield players were left on bases indicates the kind of ball he pitched, and yet Randolph pitched winning ball. He allowed but four hits and was in fine form. Under ordinary circumstances he would have had no trouble at all in scoring a victory.

There was considerable criticism as to the work of Umpire Dalley. At times he appeared to be off on balls and strikes, but both teams suffered alike. His judgment of a play in the seventh inning was wrong according to the rules. Somerville had a man on first base and one on second and Frech was at the bat, with no outs. Frech went down to first on a missed third strike of the catcher and when Captain Martin protested the umpire refused to call Frech out. The rules say that a batsman is out if, while first base be occupied by a baserunner, three strikes be called on him by the umpire, unless two men are already out. Considerable time was wasted in arguing the point, but the umpire would not give in.

Features of the game were the stick work of Barnes and O'Loughlin and the work of the Plainfield infield. Barnes and O'Loughlin each got a two-base hit, and the former also got two singles, while the latter touched Montross for a single.

The work of Staats in left field for Somerville, was noteworthy. He caught seven flies, some of them exceedingly difficult, and it was largely due to his playing that the home team won the game. The score:

SEVERAL GOOD MATCHES ON PARK GOLF CLUB LINKS

Several good matches in golf were played at the Park Golf Club, Saturday afternoon, when the competition for the challenge trophies and the President's and Golf Club cups was continued. It was ideal weather for golf and the course being in fine condition resulted in a number of low scores.

In the play for the challange trophies, Walter C. McNaughton, holder, defeated E. E. Gano, challenger, by 3 and 2 to play for the Hydewood cup; for trophy number three, W. R. Faber, holder, defeated W. V. Byard, by 1 up in 19 holes, and for trophy number five, Dr. A. W. Anderson, challenger, defeated Miss Lydie E. Loizeaux, holder, by default. The drawings for next Saturday follow: For the Hydewood cup, C. B. Morse, holder, challenged by Walter C. McNaughton; for trophy number two, E. E. Gano, holder, challenged by W. R. Faber; for trophy number four, W. V. Byard, holder, challenged by Dr. A. W. Anderson.

These scores were posted Saturday for the President's and Golf Club cups:

Walter C. McNaughton, 91, 5-86; W. R. Faber, 98, 8-90; Dr. A. W. Anderson, 100, 10-90; W. V. Byard, 100, 9-91; W. E. Lough, 112, 20-92; Charles B. Morse, 105, 11-94; E. E. Gano, 96, 0-96; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 107, 5-102.

Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose James, of Somerset street, are the parents of a ten-pound baby girl, born Saturday night.

Y. M. C. A. WINS CLOSE GAME

With Three Regulars Absent, Association Boys Beat Montrose A. C., 4 3.

GAME WON IN THE SEVENTH.

Scott Pitched Great Ball and Local Nine Shows Itself to Be in Good Form Still.

Just to keep in practise in case it's necessary to trim the Newark association nine again before the State baseball championship is awarded, the local Y. M. C. A. nine trimmed the Montrose A. C. team by a score of 4-3 on Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon. The visitors came from Newark, and played good ball, for the score was 2-2 up to the "lucky seventh," when the Plainfielders bunched their hits and scored two, establishing a winning lead, although the visitors also scored in their session with the stick.

The Y. M. C. A. nine was crippled by the absence of Craig, Loizeaux and Pond, who are spending their vacation days in realms even more suburban than "The City Beautiful," but Manager George L. Listman, "Jack" Payne and Joseph were in uniform instead. The manager made two hits, as many as any other player, and Payne and Joseph divided the run-getting honors by each completing the circuit twice.

Scott, who has not been working in the box for several games past, did good work at the centre of the diamond, while Peacock played at short. Scott fanned nine Newarkers and gave but a single pass, in the fourth. His steadiness in this session saved the local boys from defeat. The inning started with safe hits by Schaefer and Foley. McCormick was safe at first, and when Scott passed Quinn, Schaefer was forced. Right there, with the bases full and none gone, things tightened up and the next three batsmen went out in order. The visitors made three errors and the Y. M. C. A. but one. Of Montrose's misplays, two were wild flings which resulted in run-getting. Bird, Miller and Schaeffer pulled off the only double play, prettily executed.

The Y. M. C. A. started the run-getting in the third, when Payne and Listman hit safe, Schoonmaker was struck out and Joseph sacrificed, scoring Payne. In the fifth two bases on balls and a bad throw by Bird enabled Joseph to make the rounds. After beginning to score in the fourth, the Newarkers found Scott for three hits in the fifth, scoring Simms. Peacock's error, after a hit by Schaffer in the seventh, gave the visitors their last run.

PLAINFIELD A. C. WINS TENTH STRAIGHT GAME

The Plainfield A. C. made its ten straight on Saturday afternoon, when it defeated the Iola Club on the Clinton Avenue grounds by a score of 12 to 5. Slocum and Mulvaney the crack college twirlers opposed each other in the box and the honors were carried off by Slocum, who was given better support than that accorded Mulvaney. Each team had previously won a game, the first going to the Iolas by the score of 8 to 3 and the second to the Plainfield A. C., by a score of 3 to 0.

Anxiety to win the third and deciding contest resulted in several costly misplays by both teams. The game was witnessed by a large number of spectators. The Plainfield A. C. will play the fast Climax A. C. team on Saturday on the Clinton Avenue grounds. The score:

HIGHLAND A. C. DROPS GAME TO THE ST. MARY'S

The Highland A. C. was defeated Saturday afternoon on Hope Common by St. Mary's team in a fast and well-played game by the score of 5 to 3. Conshay, Hansen and Winters were in the points for the Highlands, while Squier and Mosher officiated for St. Mary's. Conshay kept up his strikeout record by fanning thirteen batsmen and allowing but four hits, while Hansen fanned two and gave four hits. Squier had a strikeout record of nine and but four hits were made off his delivery.

The game was filled with excitement from start to finish, each team having a large crowd of rooters present. The play of both teams was marked by sensational fielding. Each team has now won a game. The score:

TUCKER JOHNSON SHOOTS A BIG OWL IN VIRGINIA.

Tucker Johnson, porter at the City National Bank, who with his family, has been spending his vacation with his parents in Alebrmarle county, Va., returned home Saturday bringing with him a prize in the shape of a big night owl which he shot on Thursday. Mr. Johnson went to Virginia prepared to do some hunting and while tramping across fields and through woods came across the owl which was having a pitched battle with several hawks.

The hawks were making constant and vicious attacks on the owl and he was about all in when Mr. Johnson happened along and ended his troubles with a well aimed shot. The owl, said to be one of the largest seen in that vicinity in a long time measures four and a half feet from tip to tip and is a fine specimen. Mr. Johnson will have it stuffed and mounted and it will occupy a prominent position on top of the vault at the City National Bank.

A FRELINGHUYSEN CLUB ORGAGNIZED AT MT. BETHEL.

At a very enthusiastic meeting of Republicans at Mt. Bethel, Saturday night, a Frelinghuysen Republican Club was organized, with a membership of thirty-eight. This is the first club of the kind formed in Somerset county, but it is expected that many other similar organizations will be found soon in all parts of the county. The meeting was held at the Mt. Bethel Hall and these officers were elected:

President, Guy D. Peck; vice-president, E. E. Cooper; secretary, W. H. Toms, treasurer, Jacob Schomp.

The club has decided to meet once a week from now until after the campaign, the principal object being to not only win votes for State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, but the whole county ticket.

Ready to Join Roosevelt.

Monroe Long, Charles Eoff, Harry Thompson and William Barlow, of this city, returned home yesterday from the Adirondacks, after a three weeks pleasure trip fishing, hunting, etc. The young men had a wonderful experience hunting bear and they declare that they are now ready to take the proposed trip with "Teddy" Roosevelt through the jungles of Africa, believing that they would be able to give the President points about shooting wild animals. They brought enough game home with them to supply several families for many weeks.

Baby Parade Great Success.

The annual baby parade was held at Asbury Park Saturday and pronounced the most successful in its history. Miss Dorothy May Trible, of New York, who appeared in a sheath gown, won the first prize, a magnificent loving cup valued at $300. The second prize went to "The Village Blacksmith, Bob Fitzsimmons." The float showed a forge, with Gilbert Duff, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Duff, of Jersey City, with his leather apron and red shirt, at work at teh anvil. Standing near was the tiniest of tiny ponies, waiting for a new set of shoes.

Stricken By Apoplexy.

Harry Young, forty-five years old, an employe on William Bradley's Ardmaer Stock Farm above Raritan, was found dead in an areaway at his home in the latter place at an early hour yesterday morning. It is supposed that he was stricken by apoplexy. County Physician Long was summoned and after investigating the case he granted a burial permit. Young was unmarried and was a brother to Mrs. Eugene Chamberlain and Mrs. C. W. Sorter, of Westfield.

Secretary Parker Back Tomorrow.

General Secretary Herbert E. Parker, of the Y. M. C. A., will resume his duties at the association after a month's vacation tomorrow. He has been at the association conference at Silver Bay for the past two weeks, and previous to that had a fortnight's sojourn at Binghamton, N. Y. His wife and child were with him.

Renovation at Y. M. C. A.

The work of re-painting the pool at the Y. M. C. A. has been completed and the swimming may be commenced tonight. The gymnasium floor, which has been repaired in several places, is to be re-varnished and will be ready for use Wednesday. Regular classes will not begin until October.

Dr. Chambliss Sails for Home.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, who has been spending the summer with a party in Europe, sailed from Liverpool on Saturday and is expected to arrive home via Montreal Sept. 8. Mrs. Chambliss is stopping at the home of her son at Brownsville, Tenn.
